The fine, clear, spiritual quality of Miss Gill's unusual soprano voice was excellently adapted to the characterization given Joan in this presentation of her career. The village Maid of Domremy, dreaming in her father's garden, delighting in the sound of the church bells, hears always the call of the echoing, mystical voices, growing more insistent. In the first portion, Joan is heard answering their plea, while Philip seeks for her, and the youths and maidens strive to entice her to their May Day frolic. In the trio of the second section comes Robert the baritone, with a stirring patriotic song, and Joan, later, has a lovely solo in "A ring—a simple, simple ring," beautifully interpreted by Miss Gill. At Orleans, the populace joins in the singing, welcoming the Maid, while the English men at arms proclaim her as a witch. Here the chorus have some splendid, full-voiced measures, and in the Cathedral later comes a beautiful rendition by them, with organ and 'cello accompaniment, of the reverential Ave Maria.

A pleasing instrumental intermezzo occurs at this juncture, when the story lapses from joy to sorrow, in an effective selection by the four instruments, two pianos, organ and 'cello, with a good deal of swift staccato treble for the pianos. Joan at Rouen has an affecting solo, "Is it here that I must die?" while the chorus of invisible spirits admonish her, "Fret not thyself to-day." The finale is a chorale by the villagers of Domremy, "Her deeds they will live and remain," bringing to a conclusion a very artistic and pleasing production. The solo, duet and trio work in recitative and song of the visiting artists received much merited applause.

An attribute of this cantata is its melodious and charming instrumental accompaniments, typical of the spiritual atmosphere of the story. Miss Muriel Bridge and Miss Isobel Donnelly as pianistes, Mr. Fred. Chenhall, organist, and Mr. Martin Chenhall, Junior, playing the 'cello, were very satisfactory accompanists, forming an instrumental background for the tone picture that wove itself under Mr. Chenhall's baton, in a manner extremely creditable to the singers and the conductor. For the solo numbers in the cantata and the following vocal programme, Mr. Chenhall played accompaniments, with his usual proficient ease.

The visiting soloists delighted their audience with several numbers at the conclusion of the cantata. Mr. Gladstone Brown, the tenor of the trio, was the first solo singer. He gave an old Thirteenth Century number, that elicited much applause, to which he responded with the English favorite, "Come to the Fair." Mr. Brown's clear, warm tenor, with his echoing, trumpet-like head tones and his smooth, even delivery, combine to make his singing very pleasing. To repeated, enthusiastic applause, he appeared once more to give a love song, "Love, could I only tell thee."

Miss Nellye Gill's songs were chosen to bring out to the fullest extent the delicate sweetness and the high, echoing quality of her vibrant soprano. She sang "A Spirit Flower" and "Morning" with its soaring charm, and, as a further encore, the quaint "Lass with the delicate air," a song so old that the charming singer's grandmother might have used it for a solo, and so little used that it seems new and fresh to modern audiences. The odd, daintily handled rippling arpeggios of the song of the "delicate lass" had a suggestion of coloratura quality in their pretty cadences.

Mr. Ernest Caldwell, a newcomer to local musical circles, was welcomed with effusion. He has a baritone of rotund, rich timbre and wide range, capable of suggesting bass-like depths and yet with fine higher modulations. He sings with a degree of dramatic interpretive force that makes his full, powerful tones very effective. The old English song, "King of the Elves," was his first number, effective and masterful, a song of the descriptive, narrative type with a whimsical cast, done in rapid tempo with sudden pauses. In contrast, and illustrating the versatility of the singer was the moving, expressive rendition of the well-known "Tommy Lad." An impression of resemblance to the singing of Peterboro's favorite baritone, Frank Oldfield, was heightened in the third number of Mr. Caldwell's selections, when he came out to sing Oldfield's song, "I Passed by your Window." Mr. Caldwell sang it well, but it will probably be some time yet before he can duplicate Frank Oldfield's rendition of the lovely baritone solo.

As a final number, Mr. Caldwell and Miss Gill gave in duet the rhythmic number, "The Swing Song," the two fine voices combining in a pleasing finale to a very attractive programme of music.

At the conclusion of the concert, a flashlight picture of the group was taken, following by the entertainment of the choir and visiting artists by the ladies of the church.

FABLES ON HEALTH

A wise neighbor, who had had several children of her own, happened into the Mann household one afternoon to find Mr. Mann playing a game with the new baby.

The game consisted of jumping from behind a chair and clapping the hands; tickling the child from time to time, and crying "boo"—or some such word.

"Tell your husband to stop that," the neighbor advised, "I've learned that the over-stimulation of a child's emotion isn't particularly good. The child may seem amused for the moment, but you will begin to see a reaction after a while."

It is very bad to frighten a baby or to tickle it into hearty laughter. This is done by thousands of parents despite the bad effects.

Any sudden outburst of emotion may greatly affect the child's nervous system. While the child may see mto be enjoying the game, it is, nevertheless, being shocked. It's system is not organized for such over-stimulations.

Nervous habits are very likely to grow from such sources and parents would do well to prevent anyone from any practice that tends to shock, either through laughter or fright.

OSHAWA MAN UNCONSCIOUS SINCE WEDNESDAY NIGHT

OSHAWA, May 13. — (Canadian Press).—Little change in the condition of Lieut. William Southam was reported by the hospital authorities this morning. He is still unconscious through injuries he sustained in a motor car accident at Dumbarton last Wednesday night.

REPAIR MEMORIAL IN CENTRAL PARK

Parks Committee Will expend $165 to $200 in Preserving Brown Memorial Fountain.

At a meeting of the Parks Committee held last night, it was recommended that the contract for repairing the Brown Monument in Central Park be let to the Coughlin Monumental Works, at a cost of $165. The only other tenderer was Sherwood & King, who named $172 as the price.

The Parks Committee included in its estimates this year $150 for repairing the monument. Besides the $165 for actual repairs there will be an additional sum for making flower beds and erecting a rail.

The lettering on the monument is almost obliterated by the weather and the corners are chipped. Instead of raised letters the contractor will cut the words into the stone. The corners will be trued up and surface renewed. It is not desired that the monument should look like new but a great improvement is promised.

Among the changes that will be made, it is planned to build a concrete step that will make drinking easier, and the unsightly water pipe and sheet iron will be replaced with suitable fixtures.

Mr. Moore, the government forester, who is in the city in connection with the planting of Armour Hill Park, and improvements to the Cathedral, will draw a sketch of a setting for the monument, which it is expected, will be completed by Thursday.

The contract was awarded to the Coughlin Monumental Works, on motion of Aldermen Morrison and Crowe.

Parking Cars.

An informal discussion of the lack of facilites for parkng cars, was opened by Alderman R. N. Jones, who followed a suggest'on made editorially in The Examiner that Simcoe street might be used for the purpose.

No decision was arrived at, but Alderman Jones pointed out that the need is pressing since some thirty-five citizens are on the police blotter for offences connected with parking cars.

MARK STREET SUNDAY SCHOOL HELD MEETING

A Presentaton to Mr. Gamble—School Had Successful Year.

One of th most successful business meetings was held on Friday evening last, when the teachers and officers of Mark Street Methodist Sunday School were elected for the year 1924-1925. Rev. R. Bamforth opened the meeting with a hymn and prayer, when he called Mr. Gamble, the superintendent, to the chair, to lay plans and business for the coming year. One of the pleasing memories of the past year was the co-operation and harmony in the different departments of the work; among the teachers' and officers' committee in charge of the Missionary Department, who took upon themselves to see that speakers and missionary instruction was given once a month, resulting in the largest missionary offering given by the school, an increase over last year.

Another interesting and encouraging part of Mark Street Sunday School is the attendance of a Chinese class of five members, and the interest they take in being present every Sunday.

At the close of the meeting, Mr. Kent Throop, secretary of the Sunday School, read an address to the superintendent, and the presentation by Miss Maggie Succee:

Dear Mr. Gamble,

We, the teachers and officers of Mark Street Methodist Sunday School, take this opportunity of expressing to you our sincere appreciation of your diligent and painstaking work in our Sunday School through so many years, and at the close and beginning of another year we wish to convey to your our best wishes for your future service with us as your helpers, and that God's blessing may rest upon your and our work together for the advancement if His Kingdom.

As a kindly expression of our goodwill, we request you to accept this token of appreciation of your faithful services.

Signed on behalf of Teachers and Officers,

Kent Throop, Secretary.

Mr. Gamble was taken by surprise. He thanked the teachers and officers for their kindness, and assured them that without their help and Christ's benediction the work would never be such a success.

Miss Ethel Stevens, who is leaving for the West on an extended trip, was presented with a bouquet of flowers on behalf of the teachers and officers.

Refreshments were served, after which the meeting closed.

PRESBYTERIANS TO HOLD FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

TORONTO, May 13. — When the General Assembly meets this year in Owen Sound, the Presbyterian Church in Canada completes 50 years of its history. Preparations to celebrate the event in some worthy manner are now being considered, and likely will take the form of a special evening in the early sessions of the coming assembly being devoted to services of a reminiscent and historical nature in which several veterans of the church, and some who were present at the assembly of 1875, will take part. It is also proposed to issue for the use of the students, a history of the Presbyterian church during the past 50 years. One of the oldest ministers of the church is Rev. W. T. McMullen of Woodstock who it is hoped with others, will attend the coming assembly.

CHURCH QUARRELS WITH GOVERNMENT

Blessing Basilica Bells Postponed Because Tachereau Refused to Attend.

QUEBEC, May 13.—Articles published in L'Action Catholique, the semi-official organ of the hierarchy, and comments by professors of the Quebec Seminary to their classes, have led to strained relations between the government and the authorities of the church, and resulted in the postponement of the ceremony of blessing the bells for the new Basilica, which was set for Sunday afternoon.

Premier Tachereau and his ministers refused to attend the ceremonies and the Lieutenant-Governor doubtless in accordance with his constitutional advisors, also decided against being present. The resul was that the blessing, which was to be attended with all the ceremony and importance of a joint eccelsiastical and civic function, has been indefinitely postponed, while efforts are being made to patch up the quarrel between the Parliament bulidings and the Cardinal's palace.

The series of articles which recently appeared in L'Action Catholique were openly aimed at Lesolei, the Liberal organ of the government but indirectly attacked the administration.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

BANK DEPOSITORS

YOU OWE IT TO YOUR BANK TO

1 BE SQUARE

2 KEEP A PROFITABLE BANK BALANCE

3 ACCEPT YOUR BANKERS DECISIONS ON LOANS

Banks owe and give their clients many services. There are three things which every bank depositor owes his bank.

When you use a bank as your financial institution you owe it to that bank to:

1. Keep your good business reputation, because you expect the bank and its other customers to do likewise.

2. Maintain a balance on which the bank can make a profit because many services are now rendered by the bank which were not given formerly. These services cost money to the bank, as do high rents, taxes, etc. If your bank makes no money on you, you are getting a free ride on the backs of the other depositors—which is unfair.

3. Accept the banker's decision concerning loans and credits. When he says "No" accept the "no," because if the banker didn't have the courage to say "no" many times daily your money would not be very safe in his bank. The banker says "No" only because he thinks your proposition is unsound—not just to be mean.

NOTED CONSTITUENCIES WILL DISAPPEAR SHORTLY

OTTAWA, May 13.—(Canadian Press.)— Two historic constituencies in Nova Scotia will disappear as a result of the redistribution now being considered by special committee of parliament. One of these is Shelburne and Queen's, which has been represented by the Right Hon. W. S. Fielding for many years, and the other is Hants, for which the present member is L. H. Martell. It is proposed under the redistribution bill to unite Hants with Kings, the member for which is E. W. Robinson, and Shelburne to Yarmouth, the member for which is Paul Hatfield, and Queen's to Lunenberg, the member for which is William Duff.

SUN YAT SEN REPORTED DEAD OF BRAIN FEVER

SHANGHAI, China, May 13. Canadian Press. — Sun Yat Sen, president of the Southern Government of China, is reported to have died from brain fever. The report which reached here from Hong Kong, has not yet been confirmed, but according to reliable information received here, Sun Yat Sen has been unconscious for the past two days.

POINCARE CABINET TRIPPED ON TAXES

General Press Opinion is That Ruhr Policy Did Not Materially Affect Vote.

PARIS, May 13. — The Poincare cabinet, at a meeting this morning, decided to hand in its resignation, to be effectve on June 4th.

This decision was taken at a formal council of the ministers held in the Elysee Palace under the chairmanship of Premier Millerand.

The Premier interpreted the major ity given to the parties of the Left as a repudiation of his government.

The new chamber will meet on June 2nd, elect its president, officials, and secretaries, and adjourn until June 4th, when the president wil deliver the opening address.

London Opinion.

The London morning newspapers express general surprise over the French election result, which is attributed by most writers to domestic conditions, the fall of the franc, the cost of living, and increased taxation, instead of Premier Poincare's policy on the Ruhr.

Most of the commentators refrain from attempting to forecast whether the Ruhr policy will be abandoned, but the general tendency of belief is that it wil be continued for the present at least.

The main hope is that with the new government in France the allies will get busy on the basis of Dawes report and settle Europe's troubles.

JETTIES NEEDED FOR VANCOUVER HARBOR

Minister of Marine to Enquire Into Request of Vancouver Business Men

OTTAWA, May 13.— (Canadian Press.)—In the House of Commons yesterday afternoon L. J. Ladner, Conservative member for Vancouver South, asked the Government whether work on Number 1 and 2 jetties in Vancouver Harbor was being delayed. He had received telegrams from Vancouver business men saying that unless money was provided to continue the construction of these jetties, they would not be ready for use when the grain crop began to move this ..... were urgently needed, it was stated.

Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Minister of Marine, told Mr. Ladner that he had not had his attention drawn to the situation in Vancouver Harbor, but would make inquiries in regard to the matter immediately.

OSHAWA BABIES BAPTISED IN WATER OF THE JORDAN

OSHAWA, May 13. Canadian Press. — At the first baptismal service held in the new St. George's church on Sunday afternoon, the water used in the ceremonial came from the River Jordan, and was presented to the Rector, Rev. C. E. DePencier, for the occasion by Mrs. F. W. Cowan, who recently returned from a trip abroad.

Thirty babies weer christened during the service, the first being triplets, children of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Carlyle.

Had a Weak Heart Was Very Nervous For Three Years

Miss Jessie Peterson, Zealandia, Sask., writes: "I wish to let you know how much good Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me.

"For nearly three years I was very badly run down, had a weak heart, and was so nervous that sometimes I would almost faint away.

"I heard of many people who had recommended your Heart and Nerve Pills, so I decided to give them a trial. After I had used two boxes I found they had done me good, and after having taken five boxes I was completely relieved.

"I cannot recommend your Pills enough, and I would advise anyone having a weak heart or troubled with nervousness to use them."

Milburn's H. & N. Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Three Defeats By the Cardinals Bad Start By McGraw—Cincinnatti Take Leadership By Defeating Philadelphia.

ST. LOUIS, May 12. — The St. Louis Cardinals knocked the New York Giants out of first place in the National League to-day by defeating McGraw's team 5 to 3, while Cincinnati was winning from the Philadelphias. It was the third straight victory over New York for the Cardinals, who thereby climbed out of the cellar. Homers by Flack and Bottomley, the former with two on, gave the locals four runs in the third inning. Score:

New York .. ..100000002—3 11 0
St. Louis .. ..00400010x—5 12 0

Dean, Oescher, Watson and Snyder, Gowdy; Pfeffer, Sherdel, Bell and Gonzales.

Two for Pirates.

CINCINNATI, May 12. — Cincinnati bunched hits off Mitchell to-day and won the second game of the series from Philadelphia 4 to 1. Donohue was hit freely, but kept the safeties well scattered. He walked three men after having gone 39 consecutive innings without passing a batter. The score:

Philadelphia .. .. ..000001000—1 9 2
Cincinnati .. ..10000201x—4 9 1

Mitchell and Henline; Donohue and Hargrave.

Vance's Victory.

CHICAGO, aMy 12. — Brooklyn hit opportunely behind Chicago's errors and won, 7 to 3 to-day. Wheat's two doubles and Fligh's home run were features. Vance had only one bad inning, in which the locals bunched four hits for three runs. Score:

Brooklyn .. ..20010020—7 8 0
Chicago .. ..03000000—3 6 4

Vance and Deberry; Aldridge, Pierce and O'Farrell.

Weak Team Cost Newcastle $750

LONDON, May 13. Canadian Press Cabe. — At a meeting of the Association Football League at Manchester yesterday, the Newcastle United, Club winners of the cup final, was fined 750 pounds for playing a weak team before the cup final match. On April 21, Newcastle put into the field against Aston Villa only two of their regular team and were defeated by six goals to two. The following Saturday they defeated Aston in the Cup final by two to nothing.

BUD FISHER WINS PREAKNESS PURSE

"Mutt and Jeff's" Creator Received $54,000 As His Share—His Filly First to Win Since 1915.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 12.—Travelling over a track almost fetlock deep in mire, Bud Fishers' filly Nellie Morse, splendidly ridden by J. Merrimee, defeated a field of fourteen good colts at Pimlico this afternoon to win the historic Preakness by a good two lengths, covering the nine furlongs in 1:57 1-5.

Harry Payne Whitney's Transmute beat out the Rancocas Stable's Mad Play by a length for second place. Mad Play, coupled with the other Sinclair entry, Bracadale, in the betting, was easily the favorite of the dopesters.

The race netted the cartoonist-horseman $54,000 as his share of the purse and possession of the Woodlawn Vase for a year.

Transmute brought his owner, $5,000; Mad Play added $3,000 to his season's earnings, while Donaghee, by taking fourth position pulled down $2,000 for J. W. Bean.

G. A. Cochran's Revenue Agent led in the also rans, who straggled in with wide gaps between them.

Rustic, Sun Flag, Big Blaze, Thorndale, Modest, Sting, Faenza, Bracadale, Nautical and Apprehension finished in the order named.

Nellie Morse was the sole filly entered in the race and was the first of her sex to carry off Preakness honors since 1915, when E. F. Whitney's Rhine Maiden flashed home in front.

A crowd of 25,000 braved predictions of the Weather Man that rain, which had fallen almost steadily here for the past 36 hours would continue to-day.

DO YOU KNOW BASEBALL?

By BILLY EVANS

QUESTIONS

1. Is there any limit to the distance a runner can run in order to avoid a fielder making a play on a batted ball?

2. It is necessary for a pitcher to throw the ball to third or second when he makes a feint to catch a runner at either of the two bases mentioned?

3. Does the calling of a balk have any effect on the statue of the batterf? That is, can he go to first base in any situation which involves the calling of a balk?

ANSWERS

1. There is no limit. He simply must avoid interfering with the fielder, and can run as wide as he desires, before the fielder gets his hands on the ball.

2. It is only necessary that a pitcher complete the throw to first when he starts such an act. It is not necessary that he do so when making a feint to second or third. He need only step in the direction of either base.

3. The calling of a balk in no way affects the status of the batsman. He can never go to first base on a called balk.

EAST PETERBORO LEAGUE SERIES

League Opens May 28 But Several of the Teams Are Booked For Exhibition Games on the Holiday.

The East Peterborough Baseball League will open the 1924 season on Wednesday, May 28th, when George Street will play at Keene. On the same date, Mackeys Bread will meet Cognawagas and on Friday the 30th Lakefield will play at Curve Lake. The games scheduled by the league executive are as follows:

May 28—George St. at Keene.
May 28—Mackeys at Cognawaga.
May 29—Lakefield at Curve Lake.
June 3—Keene at Mackesy.
June 3—Cognawaga at Lakefield.
June 4—Curve Lake at George St.
uly 13—Keene at Curve Lake.

The remainder of the schedule will be drafted after the teams have played the opening games, when they will be in a better position to suggest playing dates.

President C. S. Tanner of Lakefield was present at an executive meeting held on Saturday night.

Manager McCarthy of the Keene Club completed arrangements for the Maple Leafs to visit Keene on Victoria Day and play the Keene team for the Business Men's trophy.

The Lakefield team will play an exhibition game at Campbellford on the holiday.

SOCCER NOTES

On Thursday evening, the Canadian Woollens will play the Vets at the Oval. Kick-off at 6 o'clock. Referee, A. Mitchell.

On Saturday afternoon, the Thistle and Quakers will play return league game at King Edward Park. Kick-off at 3 o'clock. Referee, J. L. Howarth.

The referee reported that Blowers of the Vets left the field before the game was finished and never notified him of his leaving the field. The said player will be notified to be at the meeting next Monday evening.

In the game last Saturday, "Wag" Hotston was humorously inclined and in a raid upon goal he wittily remarked he was going home, so the referee took it for granted that he was leaving the field. Everything went well, until the knight of the whistle stopped the game and questioned "Wag" who said he was not speaking to him but to his teammates—the result was a throw-up and play continued.

Several complaints were laid by club representatives regarding other clubs requesting the services of their players but the matter was laid over until written complaints were received by executive.

Mr. Sargent of Campbellford was present last evening in the interest of the Trent town to have a team down their on Friday May 23, when the Agricultural Association intend running a Field Day. All players who would like to travel on this date are requested to notify Jack Cridland, 864 George street or phone 2283W, as soon as possible. All club secretaries please notify your players.

Sam Jones is very busy at present collecting all the "has-beens" together. He is going around in real earnest and he expects to have the elite of calibre. The well-known boxing instructor, Wilfred Jones has promised to guard the uprights. They will give the regular more than they expect.

The goal-scorers in the Senior Football League games are as follows:

Wyllie, Woollens ..... 5 goals
Chambers, Woollens ..... 3 goals
Mitchell, Woollens ..... 3 goals
Melville, Thistle ..... 2 goals
Craig, Quakers ..... 1 goal
J. Wade, Vets ..... 1 goal
Burrows, Vets ..... 1 goal
A. Williams, Thistle 1goal
T. Williams, Thistle ..... 1 goal
McFadden, Vets ..... 1 goal
Sharman, Vets ..... 1 goal
Burgess, Thistle ..... 1 goal
Richmond, Thistle ..... 1 goal

Twenty-two goals since season started.

Law B—A referee shall be appointed, whose duties shall be to enforce the laws and decide all disputed points, and his decision on points of facts connected with the play be FINAL, so far as the result of the game is concerned.

Any player leaving the field during the progress of the game (except through accident) without the consent of the referee will be deemed guilty of misconduct, and will render himself liable to be penalized.

As regards rough play, the referee has absolute discretion. When he considers the conduct of a player dangerous, or likely to cause injury, he must award a free kick. In doing so he must caution the offender, and, if the offence is repeated, order the player off the field of play.

If you find the spectators on your ground beginning to annoy the referee take care that you arrange for HIS protection both during and after the match. Club committees should refuse admission to notoriously bad characters.

NEWCASTLE DEFEATED

BILBAO, Spain, May 12. — The Newcastle United cup final winning team which is touring Europe, were defeated by a Spanish 11 here to-day by one goal to none.

BEING A SPORT YEARS AGO

Do you remember when a wild evening's sport consisted of putting on one's Sunday clothes and taking a street car ride out to the end of the line and back? The conductor came along the step that ran full length of the car, and collected fares. The other side of the car had a railing to keep careless passengers from falling out while rounding a curve.

That sort of entertainment wouldn't satisfy a four-year-old child now. But it was great stuff, back yonder. There were no movies, then, no radios—and even the horseless carriage was generally considered an impracticable toy that never would be used except by people with more money than brains.

The thrill of the old-time street car ride through the summer night was not altogether due to lack of other entertainment nor even to the exhilaration of fresh air that rushed through the open sides of the car and nearly took the passengers' breath.

The real thrill was because the street car was still a novelty, just coming into widespread use.

It's only 36 years ago this May that the electric street car was "born." Many cities claim the honor. But it was in Richmond, Va., that the first commercially successful electric overhead trolley car made its initial trip.

A generation or so before Thomas Davenport constructed a toy street car that ran around a circular track. Never heard of Tom? All he did was invent the electric motor.

Two Germans built an electric trolley line a third of a mile long, at the Berlin Exposition in 1879. Next year a small line, for public use at a fixed far, was operated near Berlin. But it failed financially.

Americans, meantime, were busy, several cities experimenting. Richmond, Va., had the first "honest-to-goodness" electric trolley line, according to the American Electric Railway Association.

From then on, the old-time horse car was doomed. To-day the electric railway industry carries 16 billion passengers a year and represents an investment of six billion dollars.

It seems incredible that all this has come about in 36 years. We'd like to turn the clock back and get a "kick" out of such simple amusement as a trolley ride. The world changes fast in our generation and the novelty of the new quickly becomes commonplace and boresome.

DIAMOND DUST

There will be an important meeting of the Mercantile League tonight at 7 o'clock in Cressman's store. The meeting is an important one and the teams are asked to have their representatives on hand at the hour specified above.

The rain of the past few days has played havoc with baseball all over the country and with practices for the local teams. Players are being held up by weather conditions and the fans are just as impatient. The cloud has a silver lining, however, and some good weather should soon be along.

Sneak thieves entered the dressing room of the United States Olympic football team at the Columbus Olympic Stadium and robbed the player of all their valuables amounting to about 5,000 francs and several hundred dollars in United States currency. The men were disconsolate especially over the loss of their jewelry, which included a number of watches and medals won in athletic tournaments, to which they attach much value.

Jack Williams, the Indian southpaw from Belleville, has been sold by Rochester to Binghampton. Williams was returned to the tribe by Pittsfield, the club which bought him a week or ten days ago. Jack is being shifted around quite a bit and may be wishing he was back in the old C.O.B.L. hurling for Belleville once more.

The Lakeviews, junior champions of 1923 have a strong team lined up and are at present, after beating the seniors on Saturday, ready to open their schedule with the Crescents. Lou Lebarr the manager who piloted the boys last year is giving all last years players who brought home the honors for him the first chance for a place but if they do not make good and there is somebody better around the lot they will likely have to look for a berth with some other team. The following are the players who played with the Lakeviews last year and who have been signed by Manager Lebarr: Lambert Collins, Frank Whitehouse, Lou Lebarr, Jr., Don Cameron, Harry Halliday, Don McIntyre and Harry Whitlow. Other players who have been signed are Fred Ash, who played two years ago with the Lakeviews, Harry Cheu, last year with the C.G.E. Juniors, Johnny Marchen, last year with the Maple Leafs and Jimmy Johnston for the past two years with the Maple Leafs.

Manager Lebarr has everything arranged for a game here on Saturday the 21st of June between the fast Riverdale Press team of Toronto, T.A.B.A. junior winners for 1923. The team have been showing great form in their practices this season and with practically the same team as last year they are picked as the winners for the T.A.B.A. for this year.

With a bunch of willing workers who are out for the promotion of sport in Peterboro like the men who are behind the City League this year it should be the biggest success in years. If the $500 is raised which is needed for expenses at the Exhibition Ground the league will no doubt run very smooth. It is hoped that the fans will give the City League their support as it is the younger ball player of today who will be the star of tomorrow.

If Millbrook's application in the Juvenile league is accepted and they want home and home games it will be a good proposition as a short trip does not incur much expense, and will make the juvenile series more interesting. Playing before a strange crowd will be a great asset the younger ball player as it helps them a great deal when they get in the finals.

The Crescents will hold practices at Riverside Park on Tuesday and Thursday evenings of this week at 6 o'clock. All players are welcome.

The Mercantile League with six fast teams entered will show the fans some of the fastest Mercantile ball ever seen in this city in years. Before the season is over these games should be drawing great crowds. The games will be played at Riverside Park.

The Secretary of Central Ontario Baseball League has mailed out players' affidavits for all new men on the different teams of the league and these are returnable on or before Saturday, May 17 properly made out and sworn to before a Justice of the Peace, declaring the time they took up their residence in the city for the team they have attached their penmanship, occupation and when they commenced same; also their former place of abode, with the street and address.

Secretary F. G. Chester anonunces a change in his address to 295 Arthur street, Oshawa. The former address of the Secretary of the Oshawa Club was given out as on Ash street.

Wail From Belleville

Secretary N. Thompson of the Belleville Club has forwarded the following querries to the President and Secretary of Central Ontario League:

"In the first instance we were advised if we used the Spalding Baseball exclusively for the 1923 season, the winning team in the Central League would be presented with a silver trophy or silver medals. These were never received by this Club. Could you say as to the disposition of them?"

"We have ordered new uniforms for the season 1924 and they are being supplied through one of our merchants. We have been asked for our 1923 pennant and the Johnson Cup to make a display with the uniforms. We have never received a 1923 pennant nor has the cup been engraved for 1923. Will you please advise what can be done?"

The Secretary says "it is to sudden for an immediate reply but will be given serious consideration."—No official closing—no disposition of medals—no pennant no engraving of cup. Belleville could break the four "No's" by winning the big four this year and make a double killing.

Timely Tips To Amateurs

SAYS WALLY SCHANG
Catcher, New York Americans

There are so many tips that I might pass out to the amateur player that I scarcely know where to start.

Despite the fact that I have been in the American League many years, each season I learn many things about catching to which I had never before given any thought.

To the amateur players fortunate enough to see major league games, I suggest they watch carefully the work of the starts at the position they play.

The amateur who sees only the minors must look to the stars of that class of ball for their tips. Many of the minor league players have had big league experience and can be watched to great advantage.

Don't quit on any play, is my pet bit of advice to all players, catchers in particular. No play is impossible until you have actually failed to make it.

I often grab foul flies and throw out runners when there didn't seem to be a chance in the world at the start of the play.

And after all, nothing looks worse than to lose a play that you could have made if you went the limit in your effort.

I refer particularly to fly balls that drop safe within reaching distance.

The NUT CRACKER BY JOE WILLIAMS

Suzanne Lenglen will take the oath for the French Olympic athletes, but the boys will have to take the wallopings themselves.

We only have to wait six more months until the Yankees and Giants get together and settle this master mind business again.

Johnny Dundee says he will not retire undefeated and there are any number of active young gents in the game willing to see that he is not disappointed.

"Meeting Dempsey is the one big chance I have been waiting for," says Harry Wills.....Now you can understand the peculiar psychology of the man who laughs on the way to the death chair.

Carnegie Tech is all worked up because the baseball team used a ringer .....What's the matter, wasn't he any good?

Babe Ruth objects to being purposely passed, so the next time you see him on the street go right up and introduce yourself.

Notwithstanding his numerous retirements during the past week, the suspicion exists that there is nothing retiring about Mr. Vincent Richards.

Perhaps one reason why fight managers never go in for the silent drama themselves is that they are never silent.

Society Note: Mr. Connie Mack and his Athletics have returned to the cellar, where they will be at home to their friends, if any, the rest of the season.

CLASSIC MARATHON SUPERIOR TO ALL.

The First Champion Was a Greek Shepherd Who Fasted and Prayed For Two Days After He Won the Race.

NEW YORK, May 13. — A silver cup donated by an enthusiastic Frenchman to a runner able to negotiate the marathon distance "without dying as a result," was responsible for the revival of this classic event, considered to-day the feature of the Olympic games and the crowning exhibition of athletic prowess.

The marathon, 42 kilometers or 26 miles 385 yards, takes its name from the site of the ancient battle of that name, and its distance that over which the runner with news of victory travelled to waiting Athens.

M. Michel Breal a young Frenchman ,advanced the plan to put such a race on the programme when Baron Pierre de Coubertin first suggested the revival of the Olympic games.

The first race, held at the 1896 games at Athens, was won by a Greek shepherd named Spiridion Louys, who fasted for two days, and spent the nights after his triumph in prayer before holy pictures.

Accounting tales of human endurance have been told about athletes, who have won honours in this long grind. In Antwerp in 1920, Hannes Kolehmainen, a Finn, won first honors, in the Olympic record time of 2 hours, 32 minutes, 35 4-5 seconds, crossing the finish line 13 1-5 seconds ahead of J. Lossman of Esthonia. Four minutes behind Lossman came a young Italian, A. Valerio who, upon crossing the finish line, turned about and then astounded the spectators by turning a double somersault to prove his physical fitness. A. Broos, a Belgian, followed the Italian to the tape, and then made an extra lap of the big track, carrying a shield with his national colors.

CITY LEAGUE FIELD DAY WILL BE HUMMER

The committee of the Amateur Sports Association met yesterday afternoon at 5.15 and decided to hold the City League Field Day at the Exhibition Grounds on Saturday, 31st May.

The Field Day will open with a decorated bicycle parade, starting at 1.45 p.m. sharp, from Central Park, and proceed south on George Street to the Exhibition Grounds.

Prizes will be given for the best decorated bicycles. Persons riding decorated bicycles will be admitted to the grounds free.

There will be a baseball game between two Midland teams, which will start at 4 o'clock sharp, giving all those wishing, the opportunity to see this game after the Peterborough-Oshawa fixture at Riverside Park.

TWO WINDSOR MEN DROWNED

Car in Which They Were Riding Plunged From Road Into Little River

WINDSOR, May 13.—(Canadian Press).—William C. Stuart, of Belle River, a prominent real estate man and philanthropist, and Edward Mullins, of South Woodslee, president of the South Essex Conservative Association, were drowned shortly before four o'clock this morning in Little River, at Riverside, when a car in which they were riding plunged off the roadway and into the stream.

Considerable mystery surrounds the accident, as there were no witnesses. The car containing the two bodies was found at four a.m. by Paul Labute, an officer of the Riverside Police Department, who saw the lights of the car gleaming beneath the water.

The two men were alone in the car, having just left the Island View Hotel on the river front, where they had attended a dinner of the Riverside Town Council and Essex County Council. They were on their way to their homes, with Mr. Stuart driving. The car was an open touring model.

The bodies were removed to the undertaking parlors of Albemi J. Janisse, Windsor, where a jury, empanelled by Dr. Paul Poisson, coroner of Tecumseh, viewed the remains at five a.m., adjourning the inquest until next Tuesday evening.

The place where the accident happened is one where many such mishaps have occurred.

A strange fact in connection with the accident is that Mr. Stuart, speaking to those at the dinner at Island View a short time earlier, had pointed out the dangers of the River Front road, and had conducted the party over the route, pointing out the dangerous spots.

SUPREME COURT DECIDES ISSUE

Manitoba Grain Future Act Not Upheld by the Court.

OTTAWA, May 13. — (Canadian Press).—By the simple answer of "No," the Supreme Court of Canada to-day declared the Manitoba Grain Futures Act ultra vires. The case came before the court on reference from the Dominion Government which had submitted the following questions:

(1) Had the Legislature of Manitoba authority to enact Chapter 17 of its statutes, entitled "An Act to provide for the collection of a tax from persons selling grain for future delivery"?

(2) If the Grain Act be, in the opinion of the court, ultra vires in part only, then what particulars is it ultra vires?

This morning Mr. Justice Idington, Acting Chief Justice, rendered judging by answering "No" to the first question, and thus declared the statute ultra vires. The second question remained unanswered, an answer not being necessary in view of the answer to the first question. There were no dissentient judges.

BRITISH ATHLETES STARTED TRY-OUTS FOR THE OLYMPICS.

North of Tweed the Scots Have Put All Their Football Fields at the Disposal of Olympic Aspirants.

LONDON, May 13 (Associated Press). — Six training grounds for athletes ambitious to participate in the Olympic Games have been established in England.

North of the Tweed, the Scots have put all their football fields at the disposal of Olympic aspirants.

The British Olympic Association, with $150,000 in its purse, has provided trainers and coaches for promising youths anxious to make the trip to Paris.

Within a few weeks a long series of elimination matches will begin to weed out the mediocre and find out the real talent in the hundreds of ambitious lads who want to show their stuff at Colombes Stadium in July.

First there will be county matches, then district meets, and finally, on 20th to 21st June, the national championships at Stamford Bridge, near London.

After this meeting the British team for sports under the control of the Amateur Athletic Association will be selected.

Meanwhile governing bodies in other fields of sport, swimming, boxing, fencing, rowing, and so on, are eagerly watching the efforts of the would-be heroes and heroines of the Olympics.

Nothing startling in the nature of speed or strength has yet been reported among the British aspirants, but the weather has been so wet and wintry that no one has expected any record-breaking.

The British are particularly hopeful of the success in the long-distance runs, some of the shorter track events, and in swimming, though, in the water sports there is some doubt of equalling the experts from America.

SOCCER NOTES.

Mr. Kitney, of Nicholls Oval, has informed the press that soccer will not be played at the Oval this week, owing to the heavy rain which has left the grounds very soft, and desires to keep them in good shape for the rest of the season. Therefore the Woollens vs. Vets. game will be played at King Edward Park on Thursday evening.

SANITATION NOT REAL PURPOSE OF DIVERTING WATER FROM THE LAKES

Judge Barrett of Chicago Says Primary Purpose Is to Build Up Mississippi River By Canal From Lake Michigan — Sees Greatness For Chicago and New Orleans.

DENIES "ROBBERY."

WASHINGTON, May 13. — George F. Barrett, counsel for the Chicago Sanitary District, told the House Rivers and Harbors Committee Monday that an "American interpretation" should be applied to the 1910 Boundary Waters Treaty with Canada. He favored legislation to divert 10,000 cubic feet of water a second from Lake Michigan into the Illinois River.

"I take the position," he said, "that as far as Canada and England are concerned, they cannot question the diversion of 10,000 cubic feet a second in any way, not for power purposes, navigation or for power purposes. Their Governments having agreed to this diversion they are stopped from complaining."

Absolute Right

He contended that the U.S. has absolute right over such a diversion and it is now merely an internal question of how the qantity of water shall be used.

The witness traced at length the steps taken by Chicago in developing its sanitary district to "prove that whatever was done was perfectly consistent with the directions of Congress," adding that he wanted to refute "the charges made against us in the Canadian press of acting as robbers and highwaymen."

For Commerce Purposes

Judge Barrett said even the proposed diversion for sewage purposes was of secondary consideration, the 10,000 cubic water a second being necessary to make "the Mississippi a great river able to carry the commerce of fifty years from now when New Orleans and Chicago will be two more New Yorks.

He asserted that the Canadians by utilizing 10,000 cubic feet of water a second at the Decew Falls, on the Welland Canal, could obtain 300,000 horsepower which they sold at $15 per horsepower, although it only cost them $4.50 per horsepower to produce.

A. C. Lewis, representing the Ontario Government, asked for Judge Barrett's authority for saying the power only cost Canada $4.50 per horsepower, and was told his authority was a statement by Sir Adam Beck, head of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

C. A. Maguire, former mayor of Toronto, and now vice-president of the Great Lakes Harbors Association denied that the "Canadian power companies were making fabulous profits,' 'adding that "last year the Ontario Power Company lost $26,000 through honoring its exportation contracts."

Financial News and Views

Canadian Stock Exchange and Mines | New York Stock Exchange and Curb Prices

TO-DAY'S QUOTATIONS AND OPINION AND REVIEWS OF THE MARKETS.

MINING MARKET.

The mining market was quiet this morning. The bulk of the trading was in Everett which declined to sell off as low as six and a half but later rallied to 8 cents. A prominent engineer is at present investigating this property for interested parties and his report is expected shortly. Indian was steady at 23; Canadian Lorraine continued to decline yesterday afternoon, selling as low as 50. The news from the north woud hardly warrant the sign of the advance made yesterday. The Toronto and Montreal boards were quiet but firm undertone was noticed. Montreal Power was up 2 points; Smelters up to 39; Toronto Rails 88½.

NE WYORK MARKET.

The New York market had fractional changes but is entirely fractional and sentiment is somewhat mixed and until the street gets a definite line on the trade prospects it is apt to drag along as it has done for the past month.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT

GRIFFITHS EXCELS ALL OTHER PICTURES

D. W. Griffith's wonder spectacle, "Way Down East," taken from the famous New England play of that name, will be seen at the Regent tonight, and continuing with performances daily thereafter for the duration of the local engagement.

In "Way Down East" the master of the silent drama has excelled himself. Griffith has taken this simple story of plain people and infused into it the charm of New England homesteads with their quaint surroundings, dreamy perspectives of enchanting roadways, meadows and hills; old-fashioned sleighting parties, barn dances and bucolic humors in a manner which creates a new art form. It is a tale of the love that conquers all things but which is retarded for the time being by gossip and thrilling adventures prompted by the stern dictates of a simple people who have but one code of honor. It progresses charmingly and with those intimate touches of Griffith beauty which makes all his works stand out so appealingly to a climax which is the greatest scene ever depicted within the four walls of a theatre. The audiences are thrilled and thrilled until they fairly gasp for breath and find relief with the termination of the suspense in great outbursts of applause and cheers.

This may sound a trifle overstated but it is the bare truth, and not one-tenth what the most staid critics in all the big cities have said about it over and over. Its record is the most phenominal ever made by a theatrical attraction in America and it is a dzily or nightly occurrence to see bankers, society women and schoolboys spontaneously join in the applause which rocks the theatre.

It is presented by the finest cast that ever assembled for a screen presentation, and in addition to the plaintive picture of Anna Moore as depicted by Lillian Gish and the manly David of Richard Barthelmess. The other characters are played by Burr McIntosh, Mary Hay, Kate Bruce, Lowell Sherman, Creighton Hale, Mrs. Morgan Belmont, Edgar Nelson, George Neville, Vivia Ogden, Florence Short, Mrs. David Landau, Josephine Bernard, Emily Fitzroy, Patricia Fruen, and many others.

AT THE CAPITOL

A picturization of one of the popular Frances Hodgson Burnett stories, "The Dawn of To-morrow," with a hilarious comedy picture and a quartette of clever musicians in the Crouch-Richards Four, presenting a novel musical offering in "Colonial Days," also the usual entertaining short reels, make up the programme at the Capitol Theatre for the first three days of this week.

"The Dawn of To-morrow" is one of those clear, black and white pictures that George Melford produces, and is a human interest story, with the heart appeal that arises from the delineation of a 'crook reformation' production. It is entertaining and unusual, with an excellent cast of popular players. The "leit motif" of the stroy is the belief of a London waif in the protecting influence of unseen, beneficient forces, and the vindication of her belief works out through an intriguing picture. Emerson said: "In the mud and scum of things, something lovely always sings." In the refuse heap of Apple Blossom Court, a slum in London's dreariest district, lives Glad, the only member of a ragged community that has remembered how to laugh. This is Jacqueline Logan, and "The Dandy," her thieving, gallant-minded lover, is Raymond Griffith, in a splendid characterization of the role of a man forced by environment and destiny to an evil life, pulled by inclination to better things. To Apple Blossom Court comes its owner, Sir Oliver Holt, (David Torrence) wrestling against a physical malady that is slowly killing him, and, aided by the underworld dwellers in his slum, he gains a new viewpoint and a fresh lease of life. Arthur Holt, his nephew, handsome, profligate, becomes infatuated with Glad, and, incidentally, tries to rob his uncle's safe. Through a mesh of circumstances, Dandy comes within the clutches of the law, charged with robbing an officer, but Gad's faith in ultimate right has a final, powerful fulfillment.

The comedy is a good one, entitled "Midnight Blues," and the vaudeville offering is a quaint affair ofold-time apparel and new-time music. The catchy jazz selections of a quartette of 'cello, banjo and saxaphone players is made very effective by the odd setting provided, with the four appearing in the rich silks and satins of another day, when the women paraded in pannier'd skirts and patches and the men wore knee breeches and lace ruffles and powdered wigs. Dressed in the mode of a time when harpsichords were faintly tinkled in prim drawing rooms, the players give their modern audiences samples of the latest ideas in melody.

AT THE ROYAL

"DON'T MARRY FOR MONEY"

Fills the Heart and Fills the Eyes.

The consensus of opinion last night at the Royal Theatre seemed to be that "Don't Marry For Money" was one of the best pictures of the season. That was our humble opinion before the picture was half over, and we were tickled pink to find we were in accord with the audience, which demonstrated its approval in a very demonstrative manner, at the fade-out of the final close up, by applause which was too prolonged and too emphatic for any question of the huge pleasure it received from "Don't Marry For Money."

We liked it for the story, which was up to the minute, was logical, plausible, and carried a fine moral.

We liked it for the drama, which was intense, full of emotion and surprise.

We liked it for the viewpoint of the authors, Hope Loring and Louis Duryea Lighton, who had sense enough not to try to "write down" to the audience but gave it credit for mature intelligence.

We liked it for the direction, by Clarence Brown, which was superb, and a splendid example of creative co-operation with the authors.

We liked it for the cast. Nine known names, each a film favorite: House Peters, Rube De Remer, Cyril Chadwick, Wedgewood Nowell, Aileen Pringle, Christine Mayo, George Nichols, Hank Mann and Lydia Knott. Each gave a splendid performanceindividually, and each delivered a splendid characterization, that made this picture an unusual example of ensemble work, with the putting across of the story the principal objection, with the inevitable result that they were doubly successful.

We liked it for the presence of House Peters and Rubye De Remer, two of our most satisfying stars.

We liked it for the gowns. Words fail us there. We can't describe gowns, but we know good-looking ones when we see them.

"Don't Marry For Money" continues at the Royal Theatre until Wednesday night. We advise you not to miss it.

TOURNIER'S LATEST THRILLER, "TORMENT," COMING TO ROYAL

With half of the story laid in the American Bank of Yokohama at the time of the Japanese earthquake Maurice Tourneur, the director, promises a genuine motion picture novelty in his picturization of "Torment," which comes to the Royal Theatre on Thursday.

A sensational wrecking scene in which the characters become entombed in the lower regions of the bank, provides one of the gripping situations in the play. The following sequence finds a band of international crooks, their victims and a fortune in jewelry removed from all communication with the outside world. The subsequent scenes are said to disclose one of the most unusual themes yet attempted for the screen. Interwoven in the highly tense story is a charming romance.

A massive reproduction of the lower vaults and adjoining rooms of the bank in Japan was built at the United Studios in Hollywood, where the sets occupied practically all of the floor space of one of the large stages. Exterior scenes and other atmospheric shots were photographed in Japan amidst the actual locale of the plot and used in conjunction with the situation filmed at the studio.

Owen Moore and Bessie Love head the cast, which includes Maude George, Joseph Kilgour, George Cooper, Morgan Wallace and Jean Hersholt.

NEW DEVICE FOR SAFETY ON OCEAN

Radio Now Used on Liners Enables Them to Follow a Direct Course.

MONTREAL, May 13. — Radio may play an important part in the experiments to be undertaken by Professor W. R. Boyle, of the University of Alberta, for a means to warn ships of the approach of land, icebergs, or other ships.

Prof. Boyle has already carried his experiments to an advanced point, and is contemplating bringing them to their conclusion, with the final adoption of an effective warning device after the summer tests he will make on the St. Lawrence River, Belle Isle Straits, and along the Labrador Coast.

Secrecy veils the entire test, but it is almost certain that the instrument to be finally brought out will be of some electrical nature. That radio will play an important part in its construction and use is also considered probable.

A radio device is now being used on trans-Atlantic liners entering New York harbour, by which they can follow a definite route along the channel deepened especially to make their entrance feasible. This, however, requires the transmission of a current from a cable laid at the bottom of the channel, to be picked up by apparatus on shipboard.

Discovery of an obstruction, not emitting any electrical discharge, however, may require the use of some sort of sounding device on the ship, highly sensitive and probably made along radio-frequency lines.

Dr. Boyle has already decided on the effectiveness of the apparatus as regards ships and land, and is only undecided about its availability against icebergs. His experiments, along the Labrador coast are expected to satisfy him on this point.

FAVOR ESTABLISHMENT OF RESERVE BANK HERE

OTTAWA, May 13. — (Canadian Press).—The establishment of a central or reserve bank was proposed at the Commons' Banking and Commerce Committee this morning by J. T. Shaw, Independent, of Calgary. Before this subject came up, however, four witnesses on American methods of bank inspection were mentioned before the Commons' Banking and Commerce Committee this morning as likely to be called to give evidence.

Three were suggested by A. W. Mellon, secretary of the United States Treasury, namely: E. W. Stearns, of the office of the Comptroller of Currency; Sheriff Smith, of the Chase National Bank, and J. W. Poole. The other is W. P. Malburn, of the Exchange National Bank.

Acting Chairman Thomas Vien announced further on the matter of witnesses that Sir William Stavert, of Montreal, would not appear till next meeting of committee.

YOUNG GIRL WOUNDED WHEN GUN DISCHARGED

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 13 (Canadian Press). — Wounded by a bullet when a pistol fell from her father's pocket and was accidentally discharged in an East Pittsburgh church on Sunday night, fourteen-year-old Thelma Klingensmith died in the hospital to-day.

William Klingensmith, the father, said he carried the pistol for protection against highwaymen.

During the church services the pastor called upon the congregation to stand, and sing a hymn.

The pistol dropped from Klingensmith pocket as he arose.

CHARLES DICKENS MUST HAVE KNOWN ABOUT FARM LIFE.

"My advice is never to do to-morrow what you can do to-day—Procrastination is the thief of time. . . . My other piece of advice: 'Copperfield, said Mr. Micawber, 'you know—annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure nineteen nineteen six, result—happiness; annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure twenty pounds ought and six, result—misery. The blossom is blighted, the leaf is withered, the God of day goes down upon the dreary scene, and, in short, you are floored—as I am.'"

ANGLICAN BISHOP IN ATTACK ON THE O.T.A. AND PRESENT SYSTEM

Says Regulations Regarding Medicinal Use of Liquor Are Ridiculous Reunion Between Anglican and Roman Catholic Churches Referred To.

LONDON, May 13.—(Canadian Press.)— "Regulations regarding medicianl use of liquor are ridiculous and the high price of liquor has been the chief incentive to bootlegging and illicit manufacture." Right Rev. David Williams, Bishop of Huron, delivering his annual charge before the Synod in Bishop Cronin Hall this morning, made this declaration in connection with the Ontario Temperance Act.

"Prohibition," he said, "was inconsistent with the teaching of Christ, with the divine plan in moral evolution of race, and with the Christian way of life, which demands self-denial, but never its imposition by force upon others. Therefore, he said, opposition to prohibition was not opposition to Christ. Reviewing the results of the O.T.A., abolition of the bar and saloon was an undoubted gain which must never be lost. On the other hand, because the law lacked the moral support of large numbers of people, its enforcement, like all sumptuary laws, is nearly impossible, and provoked resentment. Regulations regarding medicinal use of liquor were ridiculous and the high price of liquor has been the chief incentive to bootlegging and illicit manufacture.

"In the coming plebiscite," he said, "we must set before ourselves four aims, never allow the return of the bar or saloon or any change that will encourage drinking for drinking sake, we must not encourage illicit traffic and we must so frame our laws that they will receive the moral backing not only of extremists, but of a large mass of moderate, but often silent members of the community, who do not consider the question one of right or wrong, but simply one of personal expediency."

The question of re-union between the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches was referred to by His Lordship, who declared that if church unity was to mean more than words, "unity between us and Rome is a question that must be faced sooner or later, for no great communion can be left out."

The Bishop declared, however, that nothing could be binding on the Anglican church in Canada until it had been adopted by the General Synod. "Let nobody fear therefore, that anything can be done by a small partisan group at Malines, which can be binding upon us in Canada."

ENGLISH MOTORIST WRITES ABOUT NEW ESSEX "SIX"

The following article appeared in "Sporting Life" of London, England, written by their Automotive Editor, Mr. Francis W. Norman, and is an unsolicited expression of British opinion of the Essex "Six":

"I have recently driven a 16 h.p. Essex 'Six' for fifty miles. It is the least costly 'Six' I have ever touched, and I must try to forget that, because—in violent distinction from the general run of American cars—it steers delightfully, it has excellent brakes, it holds the road admirably up to 50 M.P.H.—not a bad pace for a car of its cylinder capacity, with four grown-up men aboard—and it also looks exactly like motor car.

"I like myself to have means of regulating the juncture at which the ignition will operate. The automatic firing point variation of the Essex 'Six' appears to be quite efficient. In all other respects the 1924 Essex 'Six' at £365 (with wire spokes, detachable wheels) is the most remarkable money's worth I have encountered in twenty years' study of cars offered the British Motor buyers. Acceleration is phenomenal, engine silence is most refreshing, ease of gear change is capital. A clinking good car. One hopes that the people producing it get some wages now and then! If they do, what is the secret of the price of the Essex 'Six'"?

AT THE COMMUNITY FESTIVAL

The songs which Mr. R. A. Brown will sing at the Community Festival on Friday evening, illustrating the test pieces at the recent Toronto Competititve Festival, include three of distinctively English type, with a fourth number in a composition by the great French composer, Charles Gounod. In the bass solo section, in which Mr. Browne took first prize, the selections chosen were by the English Purcell and his admirer, Sir William Sterndale Bennett.

Henry Purcell was among the most original of the early English composers. He was a "Master of Muisque" in his time and when he died, was buried in Westminster Abbey. In 1692 he composed the music for Howard and Dryden's opera, "Indian Queen," from which is taken the first test piece, "Ye Twice Ten Hundred Deities," considered by Burney "as perhaps the best piece of recitative in our language."

The second piece, "'Tis Jolly to Hunt," is from the cantata, "May Queen," of Sir William Sterndale Bennett. This cantata was given in fine style last year by the St. Paul's Church choir. Bennett is said to be the only English composer since Purcell who attained a distinctive style and individuality of his own, and his work is among the classics of the art of music. In 1858, he produced the "May Queen" cantata, at the Leeds Musical Festival. It has been described in the following words: "The work is full of beauty, both in choruses, solos and instrumentation, although there are symptoms of absurdity and bad writing in the libretto."

In the operatic bass solo section, in which Mr. Browne took second prize, one aria is from Sir Arthur Sullivan's little-known opera, "Ivanhoe," "Ho! Jolly Jenkin," and the second, "She Alone Charmeth My Sadness," in recitative and aria, is from Gounod's "La Reine de Saba," an opera, "The Queen of Sheba," performed for the first time in 1862. The plot hinges on the visit of the Queen of Sheba to King Solomon ,and her awakened passion for his sculptor, Adoniram. The death of the two results later at the hands of Adoniram's discontented assistants. Of this opera, it was said that the "vagueness and undramatic character of the libretto distracted from the beauty of the music."

SERVICES AT THE CATHEDRAL

Despite the persistent rain, another large congregation of men filled the Cathedral last night to hear Father De Costes' splendid instruction on the evils of sin, and particularly on the malice of mortal sin. "Know thou and see that it is an evil and a bitter thing to have left the Lord thy God."

The ten commandments are the direct result of God's infinite love of man; they are the safeguards of man happiness here below, and the plain roads to eternal happiness. So long as man keeps these commandments he is happy and free, and his whole life is pleasing to God. But when man breaks the commandments through grevious sin, then the element of fear enters into his soul, his heart becomes heavy, he finds himself disturbed in mind, and he no longer sings at his daily task. God never intended that His religion should be a burden; and when any man finds it such he must seek within his own heart for the trouble. He has done wrong.

Mortal sin is a grevious, wilful, deliberate breach of God's law in an important matter. Any thought, word, deed or omission to constitute a mortal sin must be deiberate, and must be a serious breach of God's law. The conscience first quotes the law, avoid evil and do good; this act is evil, therefore it must be avoided. Oh, do not suppress that voice! Hearken to it!

Mortal sin is the only real evil which can befall man in this vale of tears. Sickness, bereavement, affliction will all pass away in time. They cannot follow us into the grave, but mortal sin will pursue man into eternity. There he must give an account of his stewardship, and there abide the decision of God, his judge eternal and just. We admit this principle in our daily lives; we see the necessity and justice of the decisions meted out by our civil and criminal courts to maintain the laws of the State. Has God no right to maintain His law? Ah! Yes! He has, and He will. He is infinitely merciful and gives the sinner innumerable chances to repent and amend his ways, but there will come a day when His justice will replace His mercy.

Consult your own experience and see the results of sin. If man would only keep God's commandments what a happy world this would be! No armies, or battleships, no munitions of war, no national hatred, no jails, no locks and no bars to our doors. Sickness, pain, death are the results of the primal grievous sin of disobedience. This original sin darkened our understanding, weakened our will, and leaves in us a strong inclination to evil.

It is often fashionable to-day to assert the divine sinlessness of the world, a thing that cannot be seen in the wildest of dreams, and to deny all sin, a thing that can be seen more plainly than a pikestaff. We meet it and its effects daily, continuously, momentarily in our daily life. Why have we built so many jails, police stations, industrial schools, and refuges. They are all the direct result of actual sin—of man's disregard for the commandments of God.

Here Father De Coste made a strong appeal, beseeching his hearers to instruct those under their care, to guard their homes, to see that their children learned well the Ten Commandments, to protect them from evil companions and all occasions of sin. It is a sad spectacle to see the young neglected so that they become a prey to evil companions and finally the slaves of their own appetites and passion. They finally drift into the hands of the law, for they become a menace to the Church and State. And they were once pure—made to the image and likeness of God!

God, in His wonderful mercy, has left us the sacraments, the great means of restoring ourselves to His friendship. Let us, then, make use of them, for through His infinite love for us we serve Him as erring children—not as slaves.

In the hurry and strain of your daily life, raise your hearts and minds often to God. Remember your final end—and you will avoid sin.

OBITUARY.

MRS. W. C. BARRIE.

There passed peacefully away to her eternal rest, Elizabeth Couch, beloved wife of Mr. William C. Barrie, of 520 Chamberlain Street. She had been ill for the past few weeks, but death came very unexpectedly.

Mrs. Barrie was well known, a life member of Park Street Baptist Church, where she was an active worker in the interest of Christ's Kingdom.

Former president of the Women's Mission Circle, a good neighbour, and a faithful friend, she was always ready and willing to help those in need of a friendly hand. Especially will she be missed in her home circle, where she was a loving wife and mother.

Left to mourn her loss, beside her sorrowing husband, are three daughters and two sons, Mrs. John Pilling, Mrs. Ada Russell, Frank of this city, Mrs. H. S. Smyth of Port Hope, Charles W. of Toronto, a son, Norman, was killed on active service during the war. Several sisters and brothers are also left to mourn her loss.

The funeral will be held from the family residence at 2.30 on Wednesday, 14th May, and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. Dr. Rose, of Murray Street Baptist Church, will conduct the funeral services.

THE LATE MRS. WM. O'KEEFE.

(Lindsay Post, 6th May, 1924.)

The funeral of the late Mrs. William O'Keefe took place from the residence of Mr. R. P. Spratt to St. Mary's Church, where solemn pontifical requiem mass was chanted by His Grace Archbishop Spratt of Kingston, brother of the deceased, assisted by Rev. John Spratt, of Assumption College, Sandwich, nephew, and Rev. Father Meagher, and Rev. Brother Wilfried (Joseph Spratt) was in the sanctuary. There was a large congregation at the funeral service. Interment took place at the parish cemetery. His Grace Archbishop Spratt recited the prayers at th grave. The pall-bearers were Messrs. N. Brady, M. H. McGough, B. J. Gough, A. O'Loughlin, John Walsh, and W. Best.

Among the relatives of deceased present at the funeral were: Mrs. Christoff and daughter Madeline Cathro of Detroit, Joseph J. Duffus, ex-Mayor of Peterborough, and Joseph Duffus, of Detroit.

A RECITAL

An interesting recital by the vocal pupils of Miss Ina Allen, assisted by violin pupils of Mr. Ferdinand Filion, was given at the Conservatory of Music Hall, last evening, the attendance slightly decreased by the inclement weather of the night. Several of the pupils of iMss Allen, who reside in Millbrook and Cobourg, were unable to be present, on account of the bad condition of the roads for motoring. The vocal selections were much enjoyed by those present, and showed excellent training, the young people singing with ease and careful attention to enunciation ond phrasing. Mrs. Irene Kennedy of Cobourg, sang twice, her numbers being "The Valley of Laughter," and a trio that included Gounod's "Sing, Smile, Slumber," "Nirvana," and a "Madrigal," by Chamnade.

Miss Phyllis Richards of Millbrook sang "Happy Day," and "Machushla," Miss Dorothy Warmington of Cobourg, sang "In Faith I Shall Arise," "The Rosy Morn,' and "Shepherd, Take Me"; Miss Geraldine Weatherhead had a trio of songs —"The Fairy Lullaby," "Gentle Shepherd," and "If no One ever Marries Me,' and Miss Estelle Shearer also sang three times: "Break o' Day," "The Hindu Song," and "Some One Brought Me Daffodils." Mr. Frank Alcorn of Millbrook, had two baritone solos: "The Trumpeter," and "The Road that Leads to You." Accompaniments for the vocal solos were played by Miss Estelle Shearer and Miss Dorothy Warmington, of Cobourg.

The violin selections Miss Winnie Evans were much enjoyed, and displayed much skill and good training. Miss Evans' numbers were the Drdla "Souvenir," and the "Meditation" from "Thais." Miss Olga Fowler played the accompaniments for the violin selections.

CONSERVATIVE MOTION TO RETAIN PROTECTION DEFEATED BY 317-252

Only Nine Liberals Voted With the Opposition and None of the Government Groups Supported the Motion Which Premier Had Accepted As Motion of Censure--British Motor Industry Is Exposed to World-Wide Competition.

"A BLOW TO CANADA"

LONDON, May 14.—The Labor Government again came out victorious in the House of Commons last night when the Conservative motion, moved by former Premier Stanley Baldwin, for retention of the McKenna duties, which Premier MacDonald, had accepted as a motion of censure, was rejected by a vote of 317 to 252.

The debate on the motion was almost exclusively devoted to the automobile industry and the effect the removal of the duties would have on unemployment in that field. On the whole, the proceedings were devoid of excitement and great stretches of benches were empty for several hours.

In the event the vote was taken on party lines, the Conservatives solidly supporting the duties, and the Liberals linking forces with Labor to abolish them. There were 252 votes against the Government measure, just five less than the number of Conservatives in the House.

No Labour Opposition.

Only nine Liberals voted with the Conservatives and not a single Laborite voted against the Government. Albert Purcell, Laborite from Coventry, the centre of Great Britain's automobile industry, who had made speeches against the repeal of the duties as the self-styled spokesman for the workers of his constituency, abstained from voting. Mr. Baldwin, launching an attack on the proposal of Philip Snowden,Chancellor of the Exchequer, said that the repeal of the McKenna duties was one of the most stupid things every attempted in this country. He compared it to shoving a swimmer back into the water, when, after a hard struggle to save himself from drowning, he had just succeeded in getting his feet on the bank. He was certain it was going to aggravate unemployment, put more men on the dole, and encourage dumping from the United States.

"Goods may come in cheaper," he said; "but no one sends in goods cheaply for the good of his health. The moment English production fails the cost goes up. I fear the only result in twelve months' time will be that you have more unemployed and also that you will be paying more for your motor cars. In addition to that you will have dealt a blow at Canadian trade."

Auto Employees Few.

Chancellor Snowden, replying, described Mr. Baldwin's picture of unemployment ironically, as touching everyone's heart. He then went on to show that there were not so

Norwegian's Body Hanging From Tree

SASKATOON, Sask., May 14 (Canadian Press). — Mystery surrounding the murder of J. Wheme, 40, Norwegian, whose dead body, with a bullet wound in the forehead was found swinging in the air from the limb of a willow tree at The Pas, Man., on Monday, deepened yesterday when the police investigation disclosed that, although the man must have been shot three or four weeks ago, his body was not strung up on the tree until late last week.

The man was employed by The Pas Lumbering Company, and left there on 28th March.

He is known to have purchased a bottle of liquor from the Government store in The Pas on 31st March. The bottle was delivered to a Russian boarding-house where Wheme was living.

BORDEN PLANS EMPIRE UNION

Suggests Dominion Representatives Resident In Britain to Participate In External Affairs of the Empire.

LONDON, May 14 (Canadian Press). — Sir Robert Borden would bring the whole of the British Empire into closer co-operation by a system of resident ministers in the British Isles to voice th opinion of the Dominions on the external affairs of the Empire.

Such was the suggestion brought forward by him when he addressed the Women's Canadian Club in the Central Collegiate Institute on Monday afternoon.

"One great difficulty in the way of greater unity in the Empire in the past has been the fact that the Mother Country has held a sort of trusteeship in the administration of external affairs," he said. "But now that the Dominions have begun to have a voice in external affairs, we must try to find out a means by which each of these separate parts may express their desire in the matter of external affairs.

"The Imperial Conferences which have been called from time to time have attended to this as best they could. But I believe that there might be a still more satisfactory solution of these problems, and I venture to say that this problem will be one of the great problems of the future. I might suggest a system of resident ministers. I don't attempt to say that this is just how the thing should be done. It would be a bold man indeed who would say that. But the problem is there to be solved."

SARAH'S SUCCESSOR IN GREATEST ROLE

By M. THERESE BONNEY

PARIS, May 14.—Yvonne de Bray whom critics proclaimed Sarah Bernhardt's successor, to-day is playing her greatest scene.

But this time it's far away from the footlights.

Yvonne, heralded as the most beautiful, most promising young actress on the French stage, is hovering on the borderland of life and death.

In the beautiful chateau Henri Bataille willed her, she is waging a losing fight for health. Her acting days are over, the doctors say.

Yvonne's last appearance was in one of Bataille's plays, "La Femme Nue." Into it she threw her whole being. She played as she never had before.

As the wife of a struggling young artist, she was supposed to find another woman in his arms. But instead of fainting, Yvonne became a veritable Amazon.

She pulled the other woman's hair and left deep fingerprints upon her face. Then she collapsed.

The audience applauded wildly as the curtain fell. Never had Yvonne made her part so realistic.

But the audience never dreamed it probably would be her last scene.

From her dressing room attendants carried Yvonne to her palatial home. There she is singing her swan song, but no orchestra accompanies her now.

YVONNE DE BRAY

BROKEN HEART KILLS HUSBAND

Found Dead In New York Station on Way to Court For Order on Wife to See His Son.

NEW YORK, May 14.—John C. Korzinek, designer in a Passaic woollen mill, died in a smoking-room of the Erie railroad station at Passaic, because, according to his mother, he was broken-hearted over separation from his wife, who lives at No. 34 Chester Avenue, Newark. Heart disease was given as the cause of death.

A station attendant found Korzinek lifeless at about the same hour he was due in court to press a rule against his wife, permitting him to see his son. Mrs. Korzinek was in the Jersey City Court and was told of her husband's death. She collapsed.

Just prior to his death Korzinek had four times ridden back and forth in a taxicab between his mother's home at No. 62 Albion Street, Passaic, and another house in which he had lived with his wife.

Mrs. Korzinek sued her husband for divorce a few months ago and own the suit. Before the decree was signed she changed her mind and sued for separate maintenance. That suit was awaiting trial.

RUMANIANS WERE BRITISH GUESTS

King Ferdinand and Queen Marie Spent Busy Day In London.

LONDON, May 14. — King Ferdinand and Queen Marie of Rumania (who are on a brief visit to London) spent a busy day yesterday beginning with a ceremonious luncheon at the Guildhall, and closing with a brilliant dinner at the Rumanian Legation, where they were hosts of King George, Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Duke of Connaught, and other members of the Royal Family; Infanta Alfonzo and Infanta Beatrice of Spain, Premier MacDonald and his daughter, Isabel, together with a large number of other nobilities.

A musicale and reception followed. The court circular, which gives an official account of these resplendent functions with all glittering detail; also records an audience which King George has had with Mr. James Brown, Scottish miner and Labor member of parliament, who as Lord High Commissioner of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, will take up his official residence in Holyrood Palace at Edinburgh, next Monday. When the King inquired of Mr. Brown how his wife felt about her new exalted station of life, the miner, with a smile, replied in broad Scotch:

"Oh, she is bearing up wonderfully well."

EAST AND WEST HAND IN HAND

Co-operation Essential to Prosperity of Canada, W. D. Robb, C.N.R. Vice-President, Affirms — Should Absorb Own Products.

WINNIPEG, May 14 (Canadian Press). — To ensure prosperity to the whole Dominion it is essential that the East and West march hand in hand. The ideal to be aimed at is for the East to look to the West for her products while the West must to a great extent turn to the East for her markets, W. D. Robb, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways declared in an interview here yesterday.

A large export market for the surplus agricultural products of the West was very desirable. Mr. Robb asserted that it was important to establish on a firmer basis the industries of the East, so that Canada generally could become more like the United States in the way of absorbing a greater proportion of her own products.

Immigration into Western Canada would inevitably be reflected in redoubled trade activity in the East, said Mr. Robb, adding that a real live immigration policy would prove of great importance to the future prosperity of the country.

COWS LIVE HIGH.

LIMA, Peru, May 14.—A Lima shoe dealer was killed recently when a cow fell through the roof of his house into the dining-room. Animals often are kept on top of houses in Peru, and it frequently happens that a cow passes her whole life on a roof, being taken there as a calf and finally brought down as fresh beef.

SPEAKS FOR FLAPPER.

CHICAGO, May 14.—"A flapper flaps for the same reason that the little bird flaps its wings when it first leaves the security of its cage," says Mrs. Frederick Edey of New York, Chairman of the Credentials Committee of the National Council of Girl Scouts. "The modern flapper is so far ahead of her Victorian sister in every way that comparisons are out of place."

MARTIN TO JOIN COMPANIONS IN GLOBE-CIRCLING

Retains Command of the Flight and Will Be Sent East With Another Plane, Meeting Group Somewhere In India—On Way to Washington.

REPORT AT ONCE.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Major Frederick L. Martin, world flight commander, and Staff Sergeant Alva L. Harvey, his mechanic, who escaped unhurt after wrecking their plane in collision with a mountain on the bleak Alaskan peninsula, have been ordered by Secretary Weeks, of the War Department, to report to Washington immediately.

The War Department has decided to provide them with another airplane, now at Langley Field, and will despatch them eastward to rejoin the world flight at "the farthest convenient point" from which they can complete the flight with the rest of the command.

They probably will be sent on a naval vessel, and it is expected that the point at which they rejoin the other three planes, now at Attu, the tip of the Aleutians, will be "somewhere in India."

The radiogram from Major Martin to Major-General Patrick, Chief of the Army Air Service, asked for instructions. After a conference with Air Service officials, General Patrick recommended to Secretary Weeks the plan for sending Major Martin and Sergeant Harvey east to rejoin his flying companions.

Martin Retains Flight Command.

Immediately after approval of the plan to accord Major Martin the honor of leading his comrades on the homeward journey, General Patrick sent this telegram to Major Martin:

We rejoice and thank God that you are both safe and well. Confidence in you unabated. You have proved yourself. Still want you to command flight. Cannot arrange for you to overtake others by going west. You and Sergeant Harvey will report to me here without delay. Plan to send you east to rejoin flight at furthest convenient point from which you can complete the journey with the rest of your command.

OTTAWA MAYOR'S FUNERAL LARGE

All Walks of Life Represented and Cities of Hull, Toronto and Montreal — Every Place of Business Closed.

OTTAWA, May 14.—Henry Watters, the 38th mayor of Ottawa, was buried on Tuesday afternoon in Beechwood cemetery, with practically the entire city in attendance at the funeral.

Under a clouded sky, which momentarily threatened a downpour the body of the chief magistrate of the Canadian capital was followed to the grave by thousands of mourners.

All walks of life were represented in this, the largest funeral Ottawa has ever witnessed with the exception of that of Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1919.

His Excellency the Governor-General of Canada, was represented while the Prime Minister, and several of the Ministers of the Crown, all the civic officials, the corporation laborers, the Collegiate, the schools, the firemen, the police, and scores of other organizations and associations with which Mr. Watters had been connected, also attended.

During the afternoon for two hours the funeral was in progress almost every place of business in Ottawa was closed.

At 11 o'clock in the morning Rev. J. R. Watts of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, conducted a service at the late residence of the deceased mayor; this for the family and the immediate friends. After the conclusion of this service the body was removed to St. Paul's church, where it lay in state.

Then for two hours and a half, a steady procession of sorrowing citizens, estimated to have numbered some fifteen thousand, passed in front of the bier.

The cities of Hull, Toronto, and Montreal, were represented at the funeral. Professor R. O. Hearst and Frank J. Hoag attended for the Ontario College of Pharmacy.

"Mind of Europe Changing Under the Influence of Quiet Sanity"-MacDonald

British Premier Believes Nations Are Beginning to Re-act to Reasonable Common-Sense -- Declares His Faith In Nationalism Properly Exercised and Directed and Pleads For Sincere Effort to Put Into Operation the Experts' Plans of Reparations.

ADDRESSED WOMEN'S MEETING.

LONDON, May 14.—Prime Minical situation in the course of an ister MacDonald, reviewing the poliaddress before a women's demonstration, under the auspices of the Labor Party at Albert Hall, Tuesday evening, said:

"Our greatest problem at this moment is getting the experts' report into operation."

"Of some things therein," he continued, "I am somewhat suspicious, but if we were to begin to examine every line, every paragraph and every proposal in the reports, when would we end? I still claim that what the Labor Government did within twenty-four hours after finishing a study of the report, namely, taking the initiative in announcing to the world that the report should be put into operation en block, was the right thing to do, and if that course is pursued, Europe will have a new chance of finding its feet.

Adjustments Later.

"Germany, France, ourselves, Italy, Belgium—none of us— can afford to go into details now. It's all together— the whole report, and nothink but the report. If in working it out we find an impossibility, then by the common sense remaining to us we shall be able to adjust conditions.

"And I beg of every nation to follow the line we have taken, to take the whole report, to put it heartily into operation, and to do its level best to carry out the obligations imposed by it, and then to trust to the sense of justice of the world to see that right is done in the end.

Premier Feels Change.

To-night,,, taking no part in the political affairs of any country, and expressing no views on them, I feel that things are changing—changing not by bullying, not by shaking one's fists in anyone's face, but changing because of quiet sanity, of reasonable common sense that is beginning to influence the mind of all the nations of Europe.

"In this great policy of reconsruction, one or two nations are not enough. France, Italy, Belgium and ourselves are not enough. Russia is not enough. My heart is with the small nations of Europe. I am a nationalist, convinced and unbending. I respect national traditions and national characteristics. I hold that it will be a very bad day for the world if the diverse ties of humanity created by so many experiences of race, creed and clime become sandpapered into one feature; that is not my ideal, nor is my ideal that you should run nationalism so hard that it becomes a pest to anyone trying to make peace.

Want Them All.

"Nationalism is not aggression. Nationalism is self-respect, and those who respete themselves best of all are the very best people to respect others. Therefore, the foreign policy of the Labor Government appeals not only to the large powers, but to the small powers, such as Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Holland ,Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. We want them all."

RULERS OF CANADA ON PROGRESSIVE BENCHES CONSERVATIVE'S VIEW

Dr. R. F. Preston Says Government Proposed to Put Woollen Industry Out of Business — Progressive Makes Threat Over Dumping Clause and Liberal Quotes Railway Wages and Short Hours to Which Farmers Have to Contribute.

MINORITY DICTATION.

OTTAWA, May 14. —(Canadian Press)—Resuming the debate on the budget in the House of Commons, Tuesday Dr. R. F. Preston, (Conservative, North Lanark) discussed the effect of the budget proposals on industry generally and particularly the effect of increased British preference on the woollen industry. He pointed out that in the major industries alone in the county of Lanark, more than nine million dollars had been invested and the wage bill exceeded two millions annually. Two thirds of these figures might be taken as applying to the woollen industry.

Dr. Preston traced the history of the woollen industry in Canada which he said had been built up under protection and which had invariably suffered by any reduction of the tariff. He spoke of the closing of many Canadian mills during the years 1900-1908 and said that there was danger of the same depression in the Canadian Woollen industry again through the increase in the British preference. Last year some $22,000,000 worth of woollen goods had been imported from Britain manufactured under conditions which did not exist in Canada and which made competition impossible.

Worse Than in 1900

The present situation in the Woollen industry, said Dr. Preston, was worse than it had been in 1900, after the British preference had first been introduced. This industry had been left to meet the full force of British competition and now the government proposed to put it out of business. Canada was the only country in the world which was lowering protection at the present time. While other countries were raising tariff, Canada alone was making it easier for the foreigner to get into our markets, and harder for the Canadian producer to hold his own in the home market. Dr. Preston demanded that the duties established under the Fielding tariff of 1907 should be at least maintained.

Friends in Government

It was a political and not a scientific budget. The boot and shoe industry had not been interfered with because of government interests in that industry. All countries were putting up higher tariffs while Canada was throwing open her markets. Canadian industries were terrified and those not effected by the tariff felt that they were out on suspended sentence.

Dr. Preston criticized the government for having broken pledges in regard to cash bonuses for soldiers. The government had passed more orders-in-council than any government before it. It was "the most profligate extravagant government in the English speaking world".

Minority party rule has destroyed responsible government. "On the Progressive benches sit the rulers of this country, on the government benches there is simply a cabinet in custody."

Dr. Preston predicted that after the next election "this Government will be consigned to an oblivion which its record richly deserves." He made a plea for a good sound protective policy to enable the industries of Canada to carry on.

Wants Rural Credits

L. P. Bancroft (Progressive, Selkirk) made an appeal for the establishment of a system of rural credits which would enable the farmers to obtain capital. The responsibility was on the Government to bring forward such a scheme. Provincial Governments had tried to establish systems of rural credit, but the experience in other countries showed that this was a matter for the central Government. He felt that if here was some way in which farmers could borrow the necessary capital to operate their farms on reasonable terms, one of the most important methods for stopping the exodus from the farms would have been discovered.

The transportation problem was a most pressing one in the west, added

Bottle Contained Suicide's Farewell

BRANDON, Man., May 14 (Canadian Press). — "On the 24th of April, 1922, I am just going to jump off the bridge at Brandon. Good-bye to all."

This message, signed by W. E. Karson, yesterday was found in a bottle fished out of the Red River near Lockport, Manitoba, by a schoolboy.

It had been in the water for two years.

Hotel records of two years ago are being examined by the Brandon police in their effort to learn whether Karson was registered at any of them at the time suicide was contemplated.

The police are convinced that the note is genuine.

FRENCH POLICY IS TRANSFERRED TO THE VICTORS

Poincare Cancels Visit to Premier MacDonald and Economies That Caused So Much Contention in Both Houses Are Left in Abeyance Until the New Cabinet Takes Charge.

BRIAND RELUCTANT.

PARIS, May 14. — The resignation of Premier Poincare's Cabinet, announced for June 1, effectve June 4, passes the application of the experts' reparation plan, so far as France is concerned, to the succeeding government, along with all other problems involving questions of policy. The carefully prepared economics which the premier was authorized to make by decree by the preceding chamber, will be held in abeyance because the opposition won the elections on the promise to the electosr to repeal the law.

The resignaton of the Premier and his colleagues was decided upon at once on learning the outcome of the elections. Such resignation was imperative; the only question discussed by the Cabinet to-day was how to make it clear immediately that the Ministry's resignation was forthcoming without bringing on a Cabinet crisis in the absence of Parliament, which is due to meet June 2.

Announced Tuesday.

It finally was decided to announce yesterday that the Ministry's resignation would be submitted June 1, and would be effective June 4 which gives ample notice of the government's intention and plenty of time for the leaders of the parties composing the majority in the new chamber to form their ministerial combination.

The meeting of M. Poincare with the British Prime Minister, Ramsay MacDonald, at Chequers Court, although not officially called off, will not take place. It is understood that Count Saint De Aulaire, the French Minister at London, as been instructed to inform the British Premier that under the circumstances M. Poincare would prefer to leave the negotiations concerning reparations, and the security of France in the hands of his successors.

The choice of the head of the new Cabinet will involve certain difficulties by reason of the necessity of taking into account the internal political situation and important diplomatic negotiations in view.

Open to Briand.

It is generally admitted that former Premier Aristide Briand can have the post if he will accept. He however sets forth the plea that he is getting old and is beginning to feel the necessity of more repose than the responsibilities of the Premiership would allow. There is a growing impression that the first cabinet will find trouble in making its way with the new majority; hence the disinclination of the leaders to take the responsibility until experience shows how the new union of radicals and socialists is going to get along. Already critics are predicting that much incompatbility will be displayed by the various groups.

The names most frequently mentioned, in addition to M. Briand, for the new cabinet, are Eduard Herriot and Robert De Jouvenel, among the radicals, Ex-Premier Painleve, and ex-Minister of Public Works, Violette, of the Republcan Socialists, Paul Boncour, former Minister of Labor, and Leon Blum, of the Socialist Party.

Forming Cabinet.

Official negotiations of the new cabinet, will begin only after the new chamber is organized. President Millerand will send for the new president of the chamber as soon as he is elected, along with the president of the senate, according to precedent, and on these a case will call in the man who seems to be the logical choice for the emergency.

It is on the radical and socialist leaders, however, that the choice depends, for M. Millerand will surely be advised by the presidents of the two houses of parliament to summon the man these groups pick out.

FIRST WITNESSES NAMED IN BANK INVESTIGATION

OTTAWA, May 14. — (Canadian Press).—John Skelton Williams, former Comptroller of Currency, and L. W. Pole, chief national bank examiner, are the first two American witnesses to give evidence on bank inspections and other banking problems in the banking inquiry before the Commons Banking and Commerce Committee. The former is expected to appear on May 20th and the latter on the 22nd. F. W. Stearns, of the Comptroller's office at Washington, and Sherill Smith, vice-president of the Chase National Bank, New York, are to be heard later.

These decisions were reached at the Banking and Commerce Committee this morning before George Edwards, accounting advisor of the Finance Department, resumed the evidence on the working of amendments made to the Bank Act last session.

CHEESE PRICES IMPROVING

Most of the cheese in this district this year will be sold through United Dairymen Co-operative, Limited. This company's first sale this season of cheese from the Central Ontario District was held on Monday of this week and netted theifactories 14 9-16 cents a pound, f.o.b. Belleville. This is a 1-4 of a cents a pound above the price on the Belleville Cheese Board last Saturday and indicates that prices are improving. Several Peterborough County factories which commenced to make cheese towards the end of April will make their first shipment of cheese next week.

Norwood Correspondence

NORWOOD, May 13. — Mothers' Day was very fittingly observed in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning. A programme, suitable for the occasion, was given by members of the Sabbath school and others.

The anniversary services of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church were held on Sunday last. Large congregations Bremner, of Cobourg, was the special speaker, and in the morning took for his text, Jeremiah 18:4, which reads as follows: "And the vessel that he made of clay was marred in the hand of the potter; so he made it again, another vessel, as seemed good to the potter to make it."

A solo, "Nobody Knows But Mother," was rendered by Mrs. Harold McClure, was very much appreciated. In the evening, Mr. H. Bertrand and Mr. J. Alf. Finlay sang a duet, which was well received.

Instead of the usual anniversary supper, a special offering was taken and was very generously responded to.

Through the thoughtfulness of the Young Women's Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, nearly every person was enabled to wear a carnation in memory of the mothers who have passed to the Great Beyond, and in honor of those now living. The young women secured a large number of the flowers and were busy all day Saturday disposing of them.

KNELT BEFORE FAST TRAIN.

Widow's Suicide Described at Coroner's Inquest in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, May 14.—Mrs. Jadwiga Synowski, widow and mother of five children, knelt on the ties between the rails, bowed her head as a fast train approached and thus met death, it was testified, at the inquest conducted by Coroner W. G. McGregor. J. H. Phillips, fireman on the train, said he was looking from the cab window on March 21 as his train neared Walker's Mill. The woman, he said, laid aside a basket she was carrying, got on her knees facing the on-rushing train and was killed. The brakes were applied, but it was too late to save her.

The jury returned a verdict of suicide.

Mrs. Synowski had been despondent since her husband was killed in a mill accident two years ago.

COAL TENDERS WERE AWARDED

Property Committee of Campbellford Board of Education Had Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD, May 14. — The Property Committee of the Board of Education, composed of J. L. Hoover, chairman, and Trustees Jeffs, Hall, Stephens, and Cock, met last night to open tenders for the year's supply of fuel for the High and Public Schools. All four dealers submitted tenders as follows, the quantities of each kind of fuel required being 100 tons of select lump, 5 tons of stove coal, 100 tons of pea coal, and 5 cords of dry edgings.

P. J. Kelly—$8.50 for select lump, $15.50 for stove, $11.50 for pea coal, and $5.00 a cord for wood.

H. M. Fowlds & Son—$9.00 for select lump, $15.50 for stove, $12.25 for pea coal, and $6.00 a cord for edgings.

A. C. Connor—$8.65 for select lump, $15.00 for stove, $11.95 for pea coal.

M. Mulhearn—$8.80 select lump, $15.50 for stove, and $12.55 for pea coal.

Messrs. Mulhearn and Connor put in no tender for edgings.

Leaving the wood out of the calculation so as to make a comparison of the different offers, Mr. Kelly's tender amounted to $2,077.50, Mr. Connor's to $2,135, Messrs. Fowlds' to $2,236, and Mr. Mulhearn's to $2,212.50. Mr. Kelly's tender was $158.50 lower than that of Messrs. Fowlds', $57.50 below Mr. Connor's, and $135 lower than Mr. Mulhearn's.

On the motion of Trustees Stephens and Cock, Mr. Kelly's tender was accepted, the coal to be delivered before 12th July. Each load is to be weighed on the market scales.

Trustee Stephens, who is a member of the Agricultural Society, offered on behalf of that organisation to purchase some of the old school seats, these to be placed on the Fair grounds for the benefit of visitors.

This matter will be disposed of later.

Rabbits Survive.

Albert Stephens, of Percy Township, who lost several head of valuable cattle from some mysterious disease, which is being investigated by experts of the Live Stock and Veterinary Departments, has received another report from the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

Samples of the sweet clover on which Mr. Stephens' cattle had been fed were sent to the latter institution, where it was fed to rabbits as an experiment. The Guelph authorities state that the rabbits have all survived the test, but their blood has thinned considerably during the treatment.

PEPALL HAS BEEN ARRESTED IN U.S.

Charge of Illegal Entry Laid Against Man Named in Canadian Warrant

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 14. —(Canadian Press.)—Andrew Pepall, Glass Company president of Toronto, was arrested at his Hollywood home by Federal immigration agents late yesterday and lodged in the county jail on a charge of illegal entry into the United States.

Although Pepall was named in a warrant issued on Canada several weeks ago against the Provincial officer accused of conspiring to defraud the Ontario government, agents said his arrest here was not in connection with the Canadian transaction.

Pepall declared last night he could not understand how the illegal entry charge could be brought against him, but would furnish $1,000 bail to-day.

TEMPERANCE PEOPLE SLEEP SAYS HEARST

TORONTO, May 14.—(Canadian Press.)— What did the Christian temperance people of the province do when they got the Ontario Temperance Act? asked Sir William Hearst, former Premier, in an address last night in the Men's Association of Sherbourne street Methodist church. They went to sleep, and they're asleep to-day," he declared. There is great danger of them losing all they have."

How many of those present, he went on, had studied the benefits of the act?

Sir William said that the great duty of Christian men in the church was to go out in the world and give more men active leadership than before. The way to do that was by organiztions such as he was addressing.

Christian men in the country were not making themselves felt as they ought to do, he said. Their feelings and ideals were not reflected in the legislatures.

ALFRED CUDDY IN LINE FOR BIG JOB

TORONTO, May 14.—(Canadian Press.)— The biggest police position in Canada—that of chief of the C.P.R. service, paying a salary of $11,000 with use of an official car —will be filled on July 1 and the appointment may go to Alfred Cuddy, deputy commissioner of Ontario police. The position was formerly held by the late Chief Chamberlain, whose death took place about five months ago.

As a special officer chosen by the Ontario government to assist in probing bond scandals, he has been very much in the public eye of late.

Several members of the Toronto police department entitled to retire on pension, have been spoken of, including Deputy Chief L. R. Geddes, as successor to Deputy Cuddy, should he take the C.P.R. position, but there is a growing feeling against appointment of officers already in receipt of pensions from any other public office.

TORONTO BOY WAS KILLED BY A CAR

TORONTO, May 14.—(Canadian Press)—George Brooks aged 7, Currie avenue was run over and killed by an automobile late yesterday afternoon on Coxwell avenue north of Gerrard street. William Brown, Rushbrook avenue, driver of the automobile, was arrested by detectives Winters and Clarke, charged with manslaughter. The Brooks boy with three others was playing on Coxwell avenue, they started to run from west to east side of Coxwell avenue when they saw a northbound car. Two of boys stopped, then, police state suddenly started to run again. Brown thought he ould speed up car and avoid striking any of the children but was unable to drive clear of the Brooks child.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Funeral of Dr. John Macoun Was Largely Attended--Personal Mention.

CAMPBELFORD, May 14. — Dr. John Macoun, who died on Sunday, after a short illness, was buried on Tuesday afternoon in the English church cemetery, Rev. G. C. Clarke, B.A., Rector of Christ's church, conducted the service.

Among the mourners were six nephews of the late Dr. Macoun, standing in line at the head of the casket, according to their ages.

Three of them were sons of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Macoun of Seymour, and the other three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Locke of Seymour.

The bearers were Messrs. F. W. Wood, J. P. Archer, J. A. Stewart, G. A. Payne, D. J. Lynch and C. L. Owen.

The flowers were many and very beautiful. A beautiful pillow was sent by a brother and sister, Mr. Charles Macoun and Mrs. Locke.

Dr. Macoun's familiar figure will be missed on the streets and his neighbors and friends will miss his genial smile and conversation. Much sympathy is felt for Mrs. Macoun in her loss of a loving and kind husband.

Mrs. Macoun's two brothers, Mr. Alfred Senior, of Toronto, and Mr. Albert Senior of New York were at the funeral.

LIBERAL M'CREA OPPOSES BUDGET

OTTAWA, May 14 (Canadian Press). — Another Liberal, F. N. McCrea, of Sherbrooke, yesterday declared his opposition to the Budget. He compared the present situation with that of the children of Israel called to make bricks without straw, for, in his opinion, the Budget was going to take away protection from industry, while at the same time increasing the burden.

He spoke of Mr. Fielding's statement of last year: "That we might consider tariff as permanent or as lasting for some time with some slight changes." And then of this thing of Gerrymandering it as has been done this year.

The worst thing that could happen to the Government, he added, would be its defeat on the Budget, but that "would be very much better than to ruin the country."

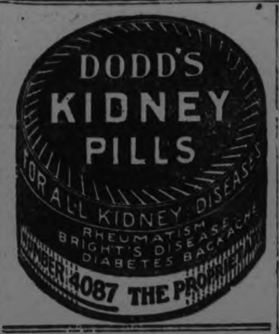
Mr. McCrea urged the revision of railway wages and renewed attacks he has made before on the international unions and Civil Service hours.

"International labour," he declared, "will be pretty nearly the death knell of this country if we keep on."

He charged that civil servants worked five and a half hours a day, and "didn't work half of that time."

Civil Service was very much overmanned and very much underworked. There was no reason in the world why the Government should not say to the Civil Service as to everybody else, "We want a reasonable day's work for a reasonable day's pay."

Previously Dr. Preston, Conservative, of North Lanark, described the present administration as the "most profligate and extravagant Government in the English-speaking world."



NO ONE FISHED FOR CITY CASH FOR HOME BANK

Maguire, Church and Others Deny Point Blank the Statement That Richardson Asked Deposit of Toronto Funds in Home Bank

DID NOT KNOW MAN

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(Canadian Press). — Ex-Mayor C. A. Maguire, who is here as a witness before the House Rivers and Harbors Committee, was shown last evening a brief telegraphic summary of the testimony of Former Controller Fred. H. Richardson at Osgoode Hall, in which Richardson was reported as saying that he had approached Mr. Maguire and asked the latter to bring about a deposit of Toronto city funds with the Home Bank. Mr. Maguire announced that upon his return to Toronto at the last of this week he would give out a full and complete statement covering all charges. "I never, in any manner, shape or form, used my influence to have deposits of city funds made in the Home Bank. Nor did Mr. Richardson ever approach me on that subject or influence or attempt to influence me in that regard," he declared.

Church Not Approached.

When Ex-Mayor T. L. Church was interviewed last night in Ottawa and asked specifically whether he had ever been approached by ex-Mayor Maguire, ex-Controller Richardson or any finance commissioner in respect of city of Toronto deposits, his reply was an emphatic "No, never."

"In the whole time I was Mayor," continued Mr. Church, "I never knew what the deposits were, nor where they were made." Mr. Church repeated time and again that on no occasion had he been approached, officially or unofficially, by any one whatsoever with regard to the allocation among the banks of the civic funds.

No Influence Used.

So far as the finance department of the City of Toronto is concerned, neither ex-Mayor Maguire nor any one else used any influence to secure city deposits in the Home Bank, says a despatch from Toronto today. Covering completely the 1920 and 1922 period mentioned by Fred. H. Richardson in his evidence before the inquiry yesterday, Thomas Bradshaw, former commissioner of Finance, and George H. Ross, the present commissioner, made the above unqualified statement last evening. "At no time during my tenure of office did any one approach me with a view to influencing city deposits," declared Mr. Bradshaw, questioned as to the evidence given by F. H. Richardson. Mr. Bradshaw declared that he was not concerned in any way. "I am not even acquainted with Richardson," he said.

Richardson on Stand.

Nervously at first, but gaining confidence as the examination proceeded, Frederick H. Richardson related yesterday afternoon before the official referee, Charles Garrow, K.C., at Osgoode Hall, the history of the special commissions, totalling $13,500, made to him by the Home Bank between March 29, 1921, and July 7, 1923, to influence city deposits in the bank. The examination was held at the instigation of the liquidator of the Home Bank, and was conducted by A. W. Anglin, K.C. At the close of two and a half hours' questioning the examination was adjourned, so that the liquidator might examine Mr. Richardson's bank books.

In brief, Mr. Richardson's evidence was that, consequent upon the request made in 1920 by Col. J. Cooper Mason, general manager of the Home Bank, he agreed to exert his influence with the view to obtaining a greater share of the City of Toronto's deposits for the Home Bank than had hitherto been the case. For his services, if successful, he was to receive a monthly commission of 1 per cent. upon the average monthly deposits to the credit of the City of Toronto. In fulfilment of this agreement he paid a number of visits to the City Hall in the late summer of 1920 and the early part of 1921, where, in each case, he says, he interviewed Controller Alfred Maguire urging that a bank with headquarters in the city should receive better treatment in the matter of deposits, and suggesting that the city's business should be divided more equally among the banks. In each instance Mr. Richardson stated, Controller Maguire promised to advise such an adjustment.

A FREAK OF NATURE

MILTON, May 14. — (Canadian Press).—Dr. J. E. Cross, V. S. of Esquesing Township came across one of the strangest freaks of nature yesterday that he has ever found in all his thirty-five years practice. A mare belonging to T. French of the Eighth Line, gave birth to a colt having two perfect heads and necks attached to one body. Freak died shortly after its birth.

RULERS OF CANADA

Mr. Bancroft. The demand for the completion of the Hudson Bay Rail way was caused because of excessive transportation costs. The construction of this road must be continued until it was completed. It could not be abandoned when 332 miles were finished and cut 90 miles unfinished. In the west it was felt that the opposition to the completion of the rail way came from interests who feared that it would prove a serious competitor.

The Dumping Clause

He concluded with a sharp criticism of the Government's attitude to the dumping clause. The removal at the beginning of the session of the five per cent. differential in this clause, that is in the spread allowed between the market value at point of origin and the invoice price of goods imported into Canada, had given rise he said, to serious doubt as to the genuineness of the tariff reductions later introduced in the Budget. It was estimated that the removal of this saving clause in the dumping regulations really had the effect of giving industry higher protection than ever, more than neutralizing any reductions in tariff so far made. True, the Minister of Customs had announced a few days ago the abolition, for an indefinite period, of this suspension. But there was apparently nothing to prevent the Minister from suspending the five per cent. differential again "after the Budget vote has been taken" without even consulting his colleagues.

He was not satisfied with the Minister's announcement. The Government should give absolute assurance that this differential would be permanently restored. "On the Government's attitude to this question," concluded Mr. Bancroft, "my vote on the Budget will depend."

Need Immigrants

F. N. McCrea (Liberal, Sherbrooke) said the only relief from the problems facing this country would be to increase the population and attract capital. In order to get immigrants there must be employment. All immigrants could not be put on the land; some must go to the industries. These industries must be sustained. Speaking as a manufacturer of long experience Mr. McCrea declared himself a moderate protectionist.

The fact that the Government bond issues had been taken up quickly by Canadians indicated that the people had money and also that they were not prepared to invest capital in industries when it was uncertain what the Government would do in the matter of tariff. The tariff reductions had been referred to as only one step, "God knows how far the next step may be." The changes in tariff were merely a transference of taxation from one element in the population to another.

Railway Wages

But Mr. McCrea emphasized the point that the management of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways were practically powerless as far as wages, hours of labor, etc., were concerned. These were dictated by international labor organizations who could call a strike if the railways refused to pay their wage scales. He gave two examples of employees acting as operators and agents at stations on the Canadian National Railways, the first of whom had drawn $186 for twelve days' work, and the second $314 for fifteen days' work. In the latter case the agent had charged for two week's holidays, in addition to fifteen days which he had actually worked. He asked the western farmers if they were satisfied to contribute to the payment of such excessive wages when they had to work long hours for what they were able to get.

Fears Tariff Reduction

It would not be long before the "whispers of death" were justified said Mr. McCrea if the present tendency in tariff reduction continued. Canada had too great resources to be ruined altogether. It could survive until saner councils prevailed. "But we need sane Government part of the time," he remarked. He did not believe with the Minister of Interior that this Budget spelled the death knell of protection. Those who now supported it would see the error of their ways before they had done too much damage. But if the Minister (Hon. Chas. Stewart) wanted to sound the death knell of some Canadian industries and prevent the acquirement of new industries he would probably get his wish by the means employed in this Budget. If the Government was sincere in their assertion that this was their way of helping the country they must be far astray. They were "jerrymandering the Budget." Some supporters of the Budget had said this was the first step in tariff reduction. "If this is only a step, God knows how long the jump will be next time," he commented.

Country Before Party

There were worse things, he said, than defeating a Government. Better do that than ruin the country.

Much of the revenue raised by excessive taxation in Canada nowadays went to paying wages of Government employees who worked five and a half hours a day "and didn't work half that time," he said.

There had been much talk of retrenchment, but not much retrenchment.

Returning again to the question of railway employees' wages Mr. McCrea said that it was time to tell the United States' labor leaders Canada would run its own industry and affairs. When a man could take a train from Ottawa to Montreal in three hours and get a day's pay or make the round trip and got more than two days' pay, it was time for Canadians to demand a more even distribution of money earned. He was not opposed to Canadian labor unions. The international, however, threatened to sound the death knell of Canada.

W. F. MacLean's Address.

W. F. MacLean (Conservative, South York) congratulated Mr. McCrea for his honesty and courage. He thought it was time for Canada to make an effort to get back to pre-war conditions. Pre-war rates of postage, of passenger, freight and express rates were desirable. These things could not be achieved all at once, but some step should be taken in that general direction. It would have a great influence on the country generally and do much to restore confidence.

Mr. MacLean called the attention of the House to the political revolution now in process by the substitution of group government for the old two-party system. The group system had been recognized to such an extent that a minority in the House of Commons dictated the tariff policy of the Government.

New National Policy.

Mr. MacLean laid down certain principles upon which he thought the new national policy should be based. There should be a fiscal policy which would enable Canadian workers to obtain employment. There should be public support of public ownership. He advocated a national system of banking with provision for re-discount and he favored the construction of the St. Lawrence Canal system.

Mr. MacLean quoted the ballad of Young Lochinvar and drew a parallel between the story told in that poem and the relationship of the Prime Minister and the Progressive leader. Mr. Forke was the young Lochinvar who had come out of the west, run off with the Prime Minister and collaborated with Mr. King in arranging the Budget proposals now before the House. He warned members in all parts of the House that the group system of Govrnment had come to stay and that in future the Government would be carried on by negotiation between parties rather than by straight part, majorities.

Electrify Railways.

Mr. MacLean advocated the electrification of Canadian railways and as many industries as possible. Except in Saskatchewan and Alberta, there was plenty of hydro-electric power waiting development. Such enterprises as Ontario's could be set up all over Canada. It would be a paying investment, would meantime give employment to many people, and eventually would supply power at cost. He deplored the "Mount Royal hook-worm" which had got into the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Ontario Hydro-Electric system and retarded progress towards the electrification of the railways in the east.

He was skeptical of the assertion that had been made that the platforms of the Liberal and Progressive parties were identical. If this was so, why have two organizations? There would be agreements and disagreements and meantime Canada's interests were endangered by political opportunism. National unity under such a platform as he had sketched was necessary.

PROTECT THE TREES.

The Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham having saved the Armour's Hill site for the citizens of Peterborough for park purposes and having commenced the beautifying of the property by the planting of hundreds of young trees, it becomes the duty of the people to see that these efforts are given a fair chance to succeed.

The first essential is that the trees which have been planted shall be protected from vandalism.

Parents should impress the value of these trees upon their children and make them understand that they must not be interfered with.

Unfortunately, perhaps it will be necessary in some cases for parents themselves to be taught to protect these growing trees which, if given a chance, will in a few years be the crowning glory of one of Peterborough's prettiest parks.

An incident of Sunday last illustrates the point. A father and mother, accompanied by a youngster, took a stroll over the property, and the child knocked down half a dozen of the young trees, unrebuked by his parents, who seemed to imagine that their offspring was accomplishing a very clever feat in his wanton destruction.

If there are many such parents in the city the chances of the hundreds of trees on the Armour Hill Park ever reaching maturity are of the slightest.

However, the Examiner is sure that the majority of citizens will readily recognize the desirability of doing everything in their power to protect these trees and of instructing children along the same lines.

COSTLY IMMIGRANTS.

There are varying opinions as to Canada's need of more immigration.

The Labour leaders, for example, are unanimous in opposing the bringing in of more citizens to add to the unemployment in the cities until the wheels of industry begin to hum at top speed again.

On the other hand, such authorities as President Beatty of the Canadian Pacific Railway declare that hundreds of thousands of new people are needed in this country.

It is doubtful, however, whether the most enthusiastic advocates of larger immigration consider that the need is great enough to justify Canada in paying the price for immigrants represented by the cost to this country of assisting in financing the operations of the Canada Colonization Association.

This organization, launched amid general plaudits as likely to produce wonderful results in the way of a tide of immigrants into this country, was successful during the last fiscal year in bringing exactly thirty-five settlers to Canada.

For that showing the Government contributed $100,000 last year.

Moreover, the Canadian National Railway and the Canadian Pacific Railway each made a donation of $50,000.

Two hundred thousand for 35 new citizens—some of whom are doubtless by this time in the United States and lost to Canada—puts immigration in the luxury class.

This country whould go bankrupt if an attempt were made to bring in a million settlers at that price.

STREET PROBLEMS.

Ald. Fife's statement to the Board of Works that Peterborough is a big enough city to have the City Council decide what streets should be watered or oiled without waiting for petitions from the citizens seems to be reasonable.

The programme of these activities should be drafted by the Board of Works, the members of which should be in a position to know which streets most require oiling.

The idea that one thoroughfare badly in need of such treatment should be left unoiled just because there is no petition for the work, while another street is oiled on petition when the need may not be so great, is not businesslike.

There is a Board of Works department with a City Engineer and staff.

That department should be able to advise the members of the Board of Works Committee each spring as to the streets most in need of oiling, and the programme for the summer should be framed in accordance with that advice.

Another good suggestion acted upon at Tuesday's meeting was that originated by Ald. E. M. Turner in reference to the constant tearing up of paved streets, which requires all companies or persons intending to break the surface of a paved thoroughfare to obtain a permit from the City Engineer.

It was a surprise to find no such permission has been insisted upon in the past, and that outside of the gas company, which has asked for a permit, the custom has been for anybody who would to break the surface for any purpose to do so without worrying at all about notifying the City Engineer.

The new regulation will put a check upon this practice, and will give a chance to insist upon the pavement being left in good shape when the work is completed.

RELIEF FOR WAR WIDOWS.

One of the important recommendations made by the Ralston Commission in its third report just tabled in the House of Commons is that dealing with pensions to widowed mothers of Canadian soldiers.

Hitherto a distinction has always been made between widowed mothers who were actually supported by their sons at the time of enlistment and those who have since the death of their sons become dependent and would, in the Pension Board's opinion, have been supported by their sons had the latter lived.

The commission thinks that the same principle should apply in both cases, and the public will probably agree with that finding.

The mother who by reason of the death of her husband has been left in destitute circumstances and who because her son was killed in the war is deprived of the support she would have received from him in the ordinary course of events, is exactly on the same footing as the other widow whose son was supporting her when he heard and answered the call to arms.

In both cases the death of the son has left the mothers in a dependent condition; and Canadians generally are willing that the country for which these boys died should see that the widowed mothers are taken care of for the rest of their lives.

The commission's stand is based on justice and common sense and should prevail.

FRANCE'S RESTORATION.

If it is true, as in morals it certainly should be, that God helps those who help themselves, France has established a claim upon Divine assistance which should stand her in good stead, says Barron's Weekly. Take a single instance in her reconstruction work in the devastated regions. During the year 1923 the coal mines in the departments of Nord and Pas-de-Calais attained 72 per cent. of the output of 1913, the year preceding the war. Remember that destruction by the Germans had been wilful and complete. Everyone of the coal mines of the north was out of business on the day of the Armistice. Flooding was wickedly added to other wilful destruction, and 30,000,000,000 cubic feet of water had to be pumped out. This task is about 85 per cent. completed. Of the 200 coal pits 145 have now been repaired. Mining there is all more or less deep level and no less than 1900 miles of levels had to be re-established. Some of them were not worth reopening, but about one-half, including the best paying seams of coal, have been rendered accessible. Almost all of the local railroads serving the mines have been restored, and 800 miles had been destroyed.

Remember that France, whatever criticism we may offer about her financing, has done this practically out of her own resources. Germany is only beginning to realize that she must pay the bill. Reconstruction is not yet complete, but French industry has worked wonders. Some things can never be restored. Most of the war-damaged land is back in cultivation, but on 280,000 acres the expense of clearing would be much greater than the value of the land. Nevertheless 3,400,000 acres, approximately, have been leveled, and this area is now under cultivation. As for restocking the farms, in spite of the wonderful effort that has been made, a restoration to pre-war conditions would require that more than one-half of the cows, horses, donkeys and mules, more than two-thirds of the sheep and goats and at least half of the pigs should be replaced. It is helpful to know that practically all of the factories have been rebuilt where they would not have gone out of business anyway. The showing is nothing like so good so far as dwellings and farm houses are concerned, but these are sufficient to accommodate the replaced population, which was 4,690,000 before the war and is 4,250,000 now.

This is warmly commended to those rather cheap statesmen who are demanding that France should pay us our pound of flesh, presumably suspending further reparations to do so. It would almost seem as if we had politicians in the business of making this country look as cheap as themselves.

BECAUSE IT WILL HELP CANADA.

Retaliation is a dangerous weapon in international diplomacy. Like revenge in personal relationships, it is apt to rebound on those who draw its shafts from the quiver. Retaliation breeds retaliation until the value and balance of the weapon employed is lost sight of in the interest taken in the motive. General Ross in the House of Commons recently urged the adoption of some perfectly sound and sane policies, but he based their acceptance on the ground that since Canada was suffering certain inconveniences, injuries and even indignities, the best way the Dominion could show her peevishness or contempt for such policies was by retaliation.

Canada is naturally angered at the utter disregard of our natural rights which the authorities responsible for diversion of the waters of the Chicago drainage canal display. Men of the Dominion get hot under the collar to think that in spite of the protests of their own Government this diversion continues and is causing material loss to our shippers amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars every year. Neither do we like the damaging features of the new American tariff.

General Ross suggests that we should use as a weapon the exportation of some of Canada's raw products to compel the United States to come to terms—the weapon of retaliation.

The Star has for a long time fought strenuously for an export tax, if not for powers of complete embargo, in the matter of her raw products, her pulpwood, her minerals, especially her nickel and asbestos, and other resources. We believe that the export tax or the embargo should be imposed for exactly the same reason that the United States fixes her duties, because it would be to her advantage. The export of millions of tons of pulpwood month by month and year by year, which deprives the Canadian manufacturers of an opportunity of exporting the finished product, is an injustice to this country.

For months past a Pulpwood Commission has been sitting at various centres throughout the Dominion and by the activities of secretarics, organizers and a well paid staff, they have been enabled to drum up a sufficient number of witnesses, few of them with expert knowledge of their subject, which they could just as easily have obtained at one tithe of the cost by turning to the manuscripts and publications of the Ottawa library. The Commission has cost the Government many thousands of dollars already and so far has accomplished just what it might be expected to achieve—nothing. Half a dozen experts in the pulp industry, such as Mr. Barnjum, could have given facts and figures, letter and verse, for all the arguments that are worth engrossing on the minutes and have told the Commissioners that unless something is done to check the outflow of our natural resources it will not be many years before the Dominion is importing the same product at a price fixed by a country which prides itself on setting commercial advantage above sentiment.

The arguments of General Ross seem sound, but they are based upon an unstable foundation. Retaliation would lead to retaliation; and an embargo on hard coal during the depth of winter, or the prohibition of the entry of many essentials in our key industries might not always serve our book.

An embargo for pulpwood by all means, but not on the grounds of retaliation. Two wrongs will never make a right and export injunctions would not stop the leakage of the Chicago drainage canal.—Montreal Star.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, May 14. — One choice bunch of butchers came in yesterday for which $8.50 a cwt. was wanted. These cost $8.00 in the country and will average less than 1,100 pounds each. The feeder and stocker trade is not too brisk, but Quinn & Hisey sold a load of feeders to go back to the country at $7.50 a cwt., but these were around 1,300 pounds each. Light 70-pound stocker heifers sold at 4 1-2 cents a pound, and for a load of Western feeders not averaging 900 pounds each $5.75 a cwt. was refused. Two loads of light feeders sold at 5 1-4 cents and 5 1-2 cents.

Top price for odd lots of steers was $8.00 a cwt. For shipping heifers 7 1-4 to 7 3-4 cents was paid, and a choice heifer cow cost $8.00 a cwt. Butcher cows were in strong demand with choice ones up to 6 1-2 cents and good cows 5 1-2 to 5 3-4 cents. Bulls were also firm, and an extra good butcher's bull brought 6 cents. Other good bulls were 5 to to 7 1-2 cents.

5 1-4 cents. Best butcher's heifers 5 1-4 cents. Best butcher's heifers and steers handyweight sold at 7 1-4

At Monday's drop of 50 cents a cwt. calves were quite steady yesterday. There were not many outstanding calves and these sold at 10 1-2 cents. Large bunches of medium to good calves sold at 8 1-2 cents and common ones around 5 cents.

In the sheep and lambs the former are somewhat easier and choice sheep are selling at 9 cents a pound. Spring lambs are steady, with keen competition for prime fat lambs at and over 70 pounds. These bring up to $17.00 each, but light unfinished ones are $9.00 to $12.00 each. Wooled 1923 lambs are going at 15 to 16 cents a pound.

With over 2,000 hogs on sale the prices were no better than on Monday, and the packers' bid of $7.00 a cwt. f.o.b. stands.

A Thought

DRIFTERS AND STICKERS.

The average man holds a job eleven months, and then takes a crack at some other job.

In about forty per cent. of such cases the drifter goes into something entirely new and something he knows little or nothing about.

He bluffs his way into the new job and then has to spend so much time four-flushing to hold the job that he finds it impossible to get down and learn his duties thoroughly.

About twenty per cent. of all men hold their jobs longer than a year.

Is it a wonder that there are so many failures?

HAD YOUR SPINACH YET?

BOSTON, May 14.—The lowly spinach, served as a side dish and scorned by many as "grass," is now found to be one of the most valuable foods known to science. Prof. W. M. Bunker of Massachusetts Institute of Technology has proved its value. Fed to white rats, its effect was conclusive. One rat made a startling growth immediately after being put on a spinach diet, while another, denied it, was stunted.

HIS SLUGGISH LIVER MADE HIM FEEL DROWSY AND TIRED ALL THE TIME

When your liver becomes sluggish and inactive your whole health suffers, and the only way you can get back to feeling right is to make your liver right.

This you can do by the use of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills as they will stimulate the sluggish liver clean away all waste and poisonous matter from the system, and prevent, as well as relieve, all complications arising from a liver that has become inactive.

Mr. E. Hazel East Florenceville, N.B., writes: —"I had been troubled with my liver and felt drowsy and tired all the time, and was unable to do my work with any comfort. I took your Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and to-day I am a different man, and would not be without them in the house."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

INDIANS PREFER RED.

WASHINGTON, May 14. — The red man's fondness for gaudy colors has long been known, but it has remained for Dr. T. R. Garth of the University of Denver to ascertain their color preferences. Full blood Indians were found to prefer red to all other colors; then blue, violet, yellow and white in the order named. White men preferred blue, then green and then red.

NEWS LAKEFIELD AND IN DISTRICT

Special Services in the Churches on Sunday Last.

LAKEFIELD, May 13.—Mother's Day was celebrated in the Baptist, Methodist and the Presbyterian Churches on Sunday, and was marked not only by special music and sermons but also by the wearing of flowers, red and white, honoring mothers both living and dead.

In the Baptist Church on Sunday morning the women were in charge of the service, the choir being composed of mothers. The sermon which was given by the pastor, Rev. Thos. L. White, was on Eve — the first mother. The church was prettily decorated and the attendance was large.

In the Methodist Church, Rev. C. S. Reddick gave a sermon on the advantages and responsibilities of mothers, which was appropriate to the day. There was a ladies' choir.

Rev. P. L. Jull preached in the Presbyterian Church on "Our Lord and His Mother and the Beauty of Their Life Together," the text being: "Blessed art thou among women." The mother of our Lord shared with other mothers the glory and the grief of motherhood, and the life of this pattern mother should be an inspiration to other women to be better women and better mothers. The choir rendered an anthem appropriate to the occasion, Miss Kidd taking the solo parts.

On the third Sunday after Easter (May 11th) Rev. Walter Cox, continuing to preach on the Easter message, spoke of five crosses which had had the effect of changing the history of the world. First there is the Cross of Calvary, on which the Saviour of the World gave His life a ransom for many and which stands for all time as the symbol of Christianity. Then the Cross of Constantine, which appeared in the sky at a critical moment in battle, with the message, "In this sign conquer." Constantine's troops were victorious, and he and many others became converts and established Christianity in the great Roman Empire, which comprised a large part of the known world. Then third, the Cross of Canterbury, marking the exact spot when St. Augustine and his fourteen monks landed in England. It was a critical moment in British history: the King was pagan but the good Queen Bertha was Christian, and was almost in despair when St. Augustine arrived and revived the spark of Christianity in the island, converting the King and his followers. This is important in its effect in the world as the British Church has sent missionaries to all parts of the world. Then there is the Crusaders' Cross, borne by those devout soldiers whose souls revolted at the idea of the Holy Land being overrun by the Infidels and Turks, and who went bravely forth to fight and die for this cause. The Crusaders' Cross has been adopted as the motto of the Red Cross Society, which has done such a wonderful work — the blood-stained cross of sacrifice. Then there is Charing Cross, which is one of the thirteen crosses erected by King Edward I. to mark the resting places of the body of his queen, Eleanora the Good, from Lincolnshire, where she died, to Westminster, where her body was interred. Only three of these are standing to this day, and one in the heart of London. Charing Cross was passed by practically all the troops going and coming to the front in the Great War. The wayside crosses of France and Belgium had a wonderful effect on the soldiers in the war, being a constant reminder of the sacrifice of Christ. There is no more fitting memorial to the dead than the erection of the wayside cross, the symbol of Christ.

CONSERVATIVE

many workers in the automobile industry as recent exaggerated accounts would have people believe—some of these estimates fixing the number as a million men in the British motor industry, which last year produced only 62,000 cars. The largest plant in the country, according to Mr. Snowden, has a payroll of only 4,952 employees."

The Chancellor scorned the idea that reduced prices had anything to do with protection. He declared that Henry Ford was in the main responsible for the reductions which had taken place, and pointed out that in 1913, before the duties were instituted, Great Britain exported 8,829 cars, as compared with 3,041 last year, and imported 14,228 as compared with 30,025 last year.

He admitted that removal of the tariff was bound to cause dislocation, but asserted that when the watered capital was removed from the trade and it was put on a sound basis, it would not need protection.

Pledged to Country.

"We have decided to repeal these duties," continued the Chancellor, "in the first place because we are honor bound to do so; we are bound to honor the pledges we gave the country; the Government will stand or fall by this resolution— we shall not fall."

Neither Mr. Asquith, the Liberal leader, nor ex-Premier Lloyd George uttered a word during the debate. William M. Pringle did most of the talking for the Liberals, and Austen Chamberlain aided Mr. Baldwin's opposition oratory about the working man and his job.

William Graham, Central Division, of Edinburgh, wound up the debate for the Government. He said that only 25,000 men were employed on cars affected by the duties, and only a portion of them would be affected by the repeal of the duties. The dislocation would be temporary only, and what the Government was doing would lead to industrial efficiency.

Something Wrong.

"If the British motor car trade cannot compete with the United States trade," he said, "there is something very seriously wrong with it."

Premier MacDonald, was not in the House for the debate or the vote; he spent most of the day in helping to entertain the Rumanian King and Queen, and the remainder of it in making a speech to women voters.

Blow to Canada.

Referring to the effect on Canadian exports Mr. Baldwin pointed out that Canada had benefitted by the preference given her under the duties. There had been increased production of Canadan cars largely aided by United States capital put in the country to get the benefit of preference. The advantage of that was the tendency to populate one of the largest o. the Dominions and give opportunities to British workers who wanted to emigrate to the Dominion instead of going abroad. There was nothing so full of ill-omen for the future as that the stream of Britain's skilled men should go to the United States where in the process of generations they must lose their feeling for their country. He feared that abolition of the duties would deal a blow to Canada's trade and, coupled with the government's action in regard to certain imperial conference resolutions, make the Dominions less responsive to any idea of reciprocity.

NEW INDUSTRY IN LAKEFIELD

By-Law In Support of the Brass Foundry Will Be Submitted to the Ratepayers.

LAKEFIELD, May 14.—At the regular meeting of the Municipal Council held on Monday evening it was decided to submit a by-law to the ratepayers regarding the question of the Brass Foundry Co., which is desirous of locating in the village. The company have secured an option on a lot north of the Lakefield House proptrty on Queen street The matter has been carefully looked into and prospects are bright at present for another industry to locate in Lakefield.

Baseball Meeting

On Monday evening, a meeting was held to organize a soft ball team it was decided to call the team, St. John's Church Bantams. The following officers were eelcted:

Patron—Rev. Walter Cox.
President—C.C. Stenner.
Captain,— Roger Stenner.
Vice Captain—Harding Stuart.
Members—Westall Adamson, Roger Wannamaker, Gerald Kennedy, Bobbie Stenner, Willie Adamson, Stanley Diver, Wilbert Diver, Hector Edwards and George Stenner.

The team will practice at 6.30 every Monday evening and are open to receive a challenge from any other Bantam team.

A.Y.P.A. Meeting

At a regular meeting of the A.Y.P.A. on Monday evening it was decided to organize a Tennis Club for the coming season. Arrangements will be made at the next meeting held May 26th for the meeting of the Local Council to be held here on June 5th. Also at the next meeting of ficers will be elected for the coming year. The treasurer presented her report which was very satisfactory as a small balance is left on andh. Rev. W. Cox thanked the members for their co-operation in making the Blossom Time Fete so successful.

A Linen Shower

On Saturday afternoon last a reception and linen shower was given in the nurse's residence at the Nicholl's Hospital wor Miss Frieda McIlmoyl, who was a member of the 1923 graduating class, and who is a bride of this month. The young ladies decorated the motor car in which Miss McIlmoyl was returning home with white ribbons which caused rather a sensation in the village.

Mesdames J. C. Smith, F. S. Brown, H. J. Stuart, and W. M. Graham attended St. Paul's choir concert, Peterboro, on Monday evening.

Saskatoon Frost Caused No Damage

SASKATOON, Sask., May 14.—Although there was nine degress of frost registered at Saskatchewan University on Sunday night, no reports of damage even to garden vegetables have been reported. Prof. Manly Champlin, of the Field Husbandry Department at the University said he was puzzled that no dam age had been caused. Some thermometers here registered 12 degrees of frost.

The Government of Switzerland has built a sun school high in the Alps for ailing children.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Special Services Held in the Churches on Sunday

MILLBROOK, May 13. — Special "Mother's Day" services were held in Grace Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning and at the Sunday School session in the afternoon. The hymns chosen were appropriate to the subject of motherhood, and the solo, "Jesus is our Shepherd," contributed by Mrs. H. Walker, of Janetville, was much appreciated.

The pastor, Rev. G. S. Gervan, spoke from John 19, 25: "Now there stood by the cross of Jesus his mother," developing his theme along lines suitable to communion Sunday, and giving special prominence as well to the fact that, through all the ages, mothers have been "standing by" with wise counsel, loving forbearance and patience, and supreme self-sacrifice in the problems and difficulties of childhood, home and during national crises.

A large number of communicants remained for the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper which followed the morning service.

The attendance at the Sunday School session was most encouraging, the "Mother's Day" program being followed throughout. Readings by Laird Bothwell and Anna Hawthorne, and a chorus, "O Happy Home," by Jean and Edna Gervan, Ruth Thorndyke, Vanita Ingram, and Margaret Armstrong, were particularly enjoyed. Gordon Armstrong and Miss Kathleen Lancashire, who were also to have assisted with readings and solo, were both unavoidably absent.

Mrs. L. S. Clarry, who has the distinction of being one of the oldest mothers of the congregation, had a seat on the platform in the afternoon and one of the special features of the service was the presentation to her of a beautiful bouquet of flowers. Mrs. Clarry, by special request, led in one of the responsive readings, and at the close of the school received congratulatory greetings from many warm friends.

The concluding hymn was, "When mothers of Salem their children brought to Jesus."

Methodist Church.

"Mother's Day" received special special reference in the Methodist Church on Sunday at the morning service, and the theme was continued at the Sunday School session in the afternoon.

The pastor, Rev. S. T. Tucker, read for his lesson Luke 2, 40 to 52, and the choir sang, "O Holy Shrine of Motherhood," with duets by Mrs. G. W. Sayles and Mrs. F. P. Johnston, and Mrs. Sayles and Mr. W. H. Coombe.

Mr. Tucker's subject was, "The Place of Mothers in Civilization," pointing out that the home is the unit of society, not the individual as was emphasized in previous years, and the world to-day is drifting away from recognizing the value of the home in its influence upon the individual life and upon the national welfare. Woman's place in the State is one of the problems of the day. The tendency in civilization has always been away from God's plan, emphasizing the masculine traits of war, conquest, exploitation, failure to observe the rights of weaker and smaller peoples. God's plan has included peace, the conservation of human life, the recognition of the rights of others, patience, forgiveness, long suffering, salvation, and these are the traits of motherhood.

To-day the civilized world is confronting the problem of maintaining peace, and lessening the danger of war in settling the differences between nations. The influence of the mothers is seen in this attitude, for who knows better than they what war entails? Pain, sorrow, evil, finds its way back to the mothers every time, and who but the mothers can best suggest that ideal legislation in matters of education, the protection of womanhood and childhood, and the abolition of the great evils of the industrial world, which prepares the way for human welfare and uplift?

Mothers are the keenest moral sentinels of the nation, and the noblest servants in its spiritual progress. Civilization finds its greatest factor in home and motherhood. The church would be helpless without the mothers and the civilization that supplants home with State institutions is on the way to decline in national vigor and progress.

Doing things for the good of others is the keynote of Christian motherhood, and the home must ever be the fountain head of progress. Combined with Church and State, these three are complimentary forces in developing character.

The superintendent, Mr. W. Fred Fallis, presided at the Sunday School session in the afternoon, when the special "Mother's Day" programme issued by the Ontario Religious Education Council was taken up. An effort had been made through personal invitations given during the week to have all the mothers of the congregation present, many taking their cars, both in village and country, and driving them to the church and home again.

Rev. J. Wilks gave the opening invocation, "A Blessing to Mothers," and also delivered an address appropriate to the occasion, offering the "Good wishes of the school to the mothers present and to mothers everywhere," and emphasizing the fact that "everyone born of woman ought to think and speak well of the relation, do homage to the station, and be grateful for the gratuitous, abundant and loving attentions of a mother."

Marshal Fallis recited "My Mother," Jean Burnham "Mother Mine," and Mrs. B. R. Raper led in one of the responsive readings. "Home, Sweet Home" was sung at the request of Miss Hetherington's class, and Mrs. P. Stinson gave the concluding recitation, 'The Mother.'

There were nearly two hundred present, and the offering was unusually generous.

NEW COTTAGES GOING UP IN CHEMONG PARK

An Interesting Budget of News From Bridgenorth, Chemong Park and the District--At the Fox Farm

BRIDGENORTH, May 14.—Mr. J. K. Hughes has great faith in Chemong Park as he is building a new cottage between George Hutchinsons and J. M. Brooks. This is the third cottage which he has built. Mr. Thomas McColl and Garner Nicholls have charge of the carpenter work and are rushing it along. It will soon be ready for the parties.

Peter Gettas Back

Peter Gettas has arrived and is busy at the pavillion cleaning up and getting it in shape for an early opening.

New Foxes Arrive

Mr. Jack Pattee may be seen any day travelling up and down the Chemong Road making regular calls at the Fox Farm where some 65 young pups are being cared for.

Had A Blow Out.

Mr. Ed. M. Elliott who had charge of a party of road overseers had a blow out in Bridgenorth on Tuesday afternoon. A defective tire was the cause. A hurried call in to the city brought a repair car to the scene.

Had A Bad Fall.

Mrs. Thomas Block who received a bad fall a few days ago while house cleaning is able to sit up. Dr. Max Yelland has been in attendance. Mrs. Block's daughters have been keeping house in the meantime.

Spring Cleaning.

Rev. P. H. Nevilee while cleaning up around his garden at the back of the church last week left a fire burning during the afternoon. In the evening a strong wind fanned it up and it spread towards the gasoline tank which is used for lighting purposes. Had Mr. Wallace Nicholls not arrived just in time with a few pails of water it might of been serious.

Navigation Open.

Navigation opened on Wednesday. The steamer Ajax came through the swing and took on a load of coal at the wharf. Mr. Block had the swing all in readiness and there was no delay. The colored light is out now each night to guide any stray vessels to safety.

A New Wagon.

Mr. Melville McWilliams surprised the people in the village the other morning. In fact they thought one of Mr. G. A. Gillespie's milk wagons had wandered out to Bridgenorth. Mr. McWilliams delivered milk to his customers out of a new covered wagon which is painted cream and striped in black; also lettered "J. McWilliams, Lakeview Dairy." It is very attractive and reflects a great deal of credit to the builder, Mr. Robert Touchburn who conducts a shop in the village.

Fuel Saving.

There are three grades of gasoline sold in Bridgenorth and it seems as if there were as many more, there would still be room for a new one. An automobile owner in the village who was a crank on fuel saving put a new fangled carburetor on his car. It was guaranteed to save 20 per cent on gasoline. Next he added special sparg plugs that were good for another 20 per cent. To save another 20 per cent an intake super lister was put on. Then the crank case was filled with an oil that would add 20 per cent more. Next he installed a patent rear axle good for 20 per cent and finally equipped the old bus with high pressure cases that would bring another economy of 20 per cent. Now that he has a fuel economy of 120 per cent it is necessary for him to stop every 100 miles and drain the gasoline tank to stop it from overflowing

Wharf Building.

Mr. Henry Grovelle can be seen any of these mornings with his punt and scow in tow making his way towards some stone pile where he is engaged building a pier at the park. If any of the cottage owners of the water front are afraid of their lots being washed away Henry has a remedy, build a breakwater.

A Cedar Fence.

Dr. Carmichael of Peterboro has had a cedar fence erected around his cottage at the park, which has cut off a portion of the roadway which has been travelled for a number of years. Motorists will have to drive carefully when making the shap turn.

Cottages For Sale.

A number of cottages are offered for sale in the park and applications for "to rent" seems to be rather slow but perhaps it may be the cold and wet spring which have a tendency to keep people in the city.

At the Cemetery.

The cemetery is not getting the annual spring trim up which has been customary during the past years.

Personals.

Mrs. (Rev.) P. H. Neville had charge of the service in the Methodist Church on Sunday.

Mr. Eli Burstov has installed a telephone in his home.

Mr. Frank Young, formerly of Bridgenorth but at present living in Ennismore has rented Dan Sullivan's house and lot in the village and intends moving in sometime soon.

Purchased Cottage.

Dr. M. Yelland has purchased a cottage in the park and intends spending the summer there.

Mrs. J. D. Tully is occupying her cottage for the past week.

Mr. J. K. Hughes has leased one of his cottages to Mr. A. W. Belleghem for the season. Mr. Belleghem is making some repairs to the verandah before moving in.

Mr. H. J. Boyle is at present in his cottage and has put on new roof also some other repairs which add greatly to the appearance in general.

Mr. A. Blade accompanied by his wife were at the park this week looking over some cottages. Mr. Blade thinks Chemong Park would be an ideal place to spend the summer.

Predicts End of British Liberals

NEW YORK, May 14 (Canadian Press). — Disappearance of the British Liberal Party, owing to the success of the Labourites, is augured in discussions now taking place throughout England, John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, said yesterday on arriving on the Majestic from Paris, where he presided at the annual meeting of the League of Red Cross Societies.

"Prime Minister MacDonald has a real hold on the country," Mr. Payne added, "and is meeting the responsibilities of his great office in a strong, forceful manner, while the Budget taxation scheme presented to the House of Commons by Chancellor Snowden has, with the single exception of the so-called McKenna duties, completely disarmed criticism, and has placed the Liberals in a position where they must follow." ....

CENSOR GOWNS.

ATHENS, Greece, May 14.—Fashionable women in Athens are being terrorized by a local organization which terms itself "the Zealots of Christ." The members of this organization have taken a vow to compel modesty in women's dress by force. Women with bare arms or wearing low-necked gowns are often roughly handled and the exposed parts of their persons are smeared with tar.

DOCTORS FOR 224 YEARS.

LONDON, England, May 14. — The death of Dr. William Curtis, 87, in Alton, Hampshire, has snapped the last link of an unbroken chain of family doctors. For 224 years, and through five generations, fathers and sons have practiced as doctors in the same picturesque seventeenth century house.

LIVE IN SAND DUNES.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 14.—Ensconced among the sand dunes near the mouth of the Santa Ana River are the homes of three men who have much in common with Robinson Crusoe. Their little houses are set behind a stockade of bamboo. The men claim they have not found in modern cities and towns the best chance for self-realization.

FRUIT TREATMENT HEALS KIDNEYS

Concentrated Fruit Juices Give Astonishing Results

Anyone who has suffered with Weak or Irritated Kidneys—with the accompanying miseries of pain in the back, splitting headaches, swollen hands and feet, rheumatism and constipation—ought to try the Fruit Treatment for their trouble.

To those who use intensified fruit juices—"Fruit-a-tives"—for the first time, it seems almost impossible that the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes combined with tonics, could relieve Kidney Trouble.

But a short treatment of "Fruit-a-tives" gives quick relief and the regular use of these intensified fruit juices or "Fruit Liver Tablets" prove their marvellous virtues.

Get "Fruit-a-tives" today and begin the Fruit Treatment. At all dealers; 25c. and 50c. a box; or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

A FREAK CALF.

GALT, May 14. — (Canadian Press).—John Tutton, a farmer from Pleasant Grove, in the city yesterday, reported that he had a calf, normal in body, but with freak head, resembling a bulldog from the eyes down. The calf's nose is turned to one side, the lower jaw protrudes, and, coming up to a point of the nose, makes it difficult for the animal to drink.

INTERNATIONAL AMITY SOUGHT BY MEANS OF YOUTHFUL CONTACTS

Friendship Trips Through Europe By Groups of American Boys.

NEW YORK, May 14.—(Associated Press).—Embarking June 21 on a "friendship trip" through Europe, 20 American boys will constitute the first group of this kind to advance international amity in accordance with a resolution adopted by the League of Nations Assembly. The tour, which will occupy ten weeks, will be under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Associations of North America.

The boys, ranging in age from 16 to 19 years, are selected on the basis of outstanding leadership qualities. The choice, for the most part, has been in the hands of State and local Y.M.C.A.'s and Hi-Y Clubs, although other groups, including the Grand Council of the Order of DeMolay, Hill School of Pottstown, Pa., and the Brick Presbyterian Church of New York, are sending representatives. The DeMolay Council is choosing its delegate, whose name will be announced early in June, from a group of fifty boys from various chapters whose records show special achievement and a promise of unusual leadership. His expenses will be paid by the order. In nearly all other cases the trip will be financed by the boys' families. Special arrangements have materially reduced the usual cost of such a tour.

Seventeen boys have already been selected. They are Henry J. Harding of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Robert L. Harding, also of Brooklyn, who attends Amherst College and will represent Massachusetts; Harding Mott of Flint, Mich., attending the Hotchkiss School in Lakeville, Conn., who will represent Connecticut; Stuart E. Hockenbury, Harrisburg, Pa.; Howard S. Kennedy, 2nd, Troy, N. Y.; James Edward Rice, Jr., Trumansburg, N. Y.; Will S. Mitchell, Jr., Little Rock, Ark.; Robert M. Shafer, New York City, representing the Hill School of Pottstown, Pa.; William Ballenger, Jr., Flint, Mich.; Lowell E. Frautschi, Madison, Wis.; Allan B. Wright, Rockville Centre, L. I.; John Alden Behnke, Appleton, Wis.; David S. Hunter, Brooklyn, N. Y.; James Lyman Bidwell, Hartford, Conn.; Dallas Webb Dort, Flint, Mich.; John Jacob Gunther of New York City and the Gunnery School of Washington, Conn., representing the Brick Presbyterian Church of New York, and William Gorman McMillan, Baltimore, Md.

The tour has been arranged as a result of plans made at last year's World Conference of Workers Among Boys, at Portschach, Austria. It is part of an effort to help establish better understanding and more friendly relations among nations, as well as being a new feature in the educational work of the association. J. A. VanDis, Boys' Work Secretary of the International Committee of Young Men's Christian Associations, who was Executive Secretary of the Portschach Conference, is general director of the trip. He will be assisted by Harry J. Center of Flint, Mich., and Ernest P. Roberts of Brooklyn, N. Y., both experienced in boys' work as well as in foreign travel.

Invitations have been sent to twenty European countries asking that each select, through its national Y.M.C.A. secretaries, a representative boy to accompany the American travellers on a 20-day cruise through the Norwegian fjords, including a trip to North Cape. It is believed that through this contact with various nationalities, by means of daily companionship with boys of their own age, these possible future leaders in their respective countries will gain a broader outlook and develop a more sympathetic understanding of foreign points of view. Assurances have already been given of the hearty co-operation of the countries to be visited.

The itinerary includes, besides the Norwegian cruise, trips to England, France, Belgium, Holland, Sweden and Denmark. Outstanding features will be visits to Oxford, Stratford-on-Avon and the British Empire Exhibition in England, the Olympic Games in France, and the International Boy Scout Jamboree which is to be held in Copenhagen from August 15 to 20.

Future similar tours are planned if this summer's experience is successful. At present it is expected that there will be two optional tours offered for 1925, one taking in northern Europe, and the other the principal countries of southern Europe.

Other plans under consideration call for an educational "friendship trip' 'of older boys to Japan and the Far East, tours in the United States for European boys, and a possible cruise around the world occupying an entire year.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

HOUSE RENTS.

To Editor of Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In connection with housing conditions in this city, I would like to tell a little of my experience. When asking the rent of what might be taken for a cheap kind of old house, I am asked how many of a family and many other questions. Would anyone call this a really good country to bring up a promising family; to clothe, feed and educate them properly, when one is asked for so much as $17 to $20 a month for old, unsanitary property, built about sixty or seventy years ago and paid for many years back in rent. A visit to some is a sight to behold, as many are in a disgusting condition.

I take it for granted that others situated as myself would welcome a system of rent control in this great country, as through want of means to get away we are forced to remain. CITIZEN.

ST. PAUL'S ANNIVERSARY.

To Editor of Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I wish to make a slight correction in your reference to the history of St. Paul's in your notice of the anniversary services. The Rev. J. M. Roger, its minister for over forty years, came to Peterborough in 1833. If the history is dated from the beginning of his work in Peterborough, then the congregation is 91 years old. Though he preached from the date of his coming, no formal organization took place and no elders were appointed till the 3rd of February, 1835. If that is the date which is celebrated in the anniversary, then the congregation has been in existence for over 89 years. You are right in saying the congregation moved into its present home in 1859. But the church of 1859 was renovated and greatly enlarged to its present dimensions in 1885. The reopening services were held on May 3rd, 1885. It is this anniversary which is really observed each year in the month of May. Speaking correctly, therefore, our anniversary of last Sunday was the 39th of the reopening of the present building, and the 91st of the founding of Presbyterianism in Peterborough.

Very truly yours,
ROBT. POGUE.

Wife's Maintenance Claim Disallowed.

SARNIA, Ont., May 14.—(Canadian Press).—In the case of Mary McLean vs. Clarence McLean, instituted under the Deserted Wives and Children's Maintenance Act, Magistrate Woodrow ruled "that the applicant cannot succeed in obtaining an order where she has voluntarily left him and taken the child with her from his custody. Were the application granted I could conceive of a case where a stranger in blood could keep a man's child away from his care and custody and apply for and obtain an order for maintenance on the ground of desertion."

Raw Sugar at Lowest Price Since Feb., 1923.

NEW YORK, May 14. — Raw sugar sold yesterday at the lowest prices since February, 1923, refiners buying 20,000 bags Cuban at 3 3-4c, cost and freight.

Although refined granulated made a new low for the year at 7.15, there was little demand at this level, owing to the bad weather, which has reduced consumption.

MINISTER AT NORTH BAY.

NORTH BAY, May 14. — Hon. James Lyons, Minister of Lands and Forests, spent yesterday inspecting road and other public improvements requested in and around North Bay, and last night as the guest of a banquet tendered by the town council, Board of Trade and Rotary Club at the Pacific Hotel.

REVOLUTION ENDED.

KINGSTON JAMAICA, May 14, —In response to inquiries concerning the safety of Jamaicans, the British Minister at Havana sent a message to-day saying the revolutionary movement in Cuba was virtually ended. He declared that there had been complaints indicating danger to life or property of British subjects and the Cuban Government had the situation under control, with many of the insurgents giving themselves up.

VANCOUVER BEER VOTE.

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 14.—A beer plebiscite will be held at the same time as the provincial election on June 20, was the definite announcement made by Attorney General A. M. Manson, to-day. He pointed out that the liquor plebiscite calls for submission to the voters of the simple question: "Do you approve the sale of beer by glass in licensed premises without a bar under government control?"

SERVICES AT THE CATHEDRAL

At the service last night Father Crowe spoke again to the usual large congregation, on the Christian family. He delivered a remarkably able instruction, during the course of which he urged his hearers to constant solicitude for the welfare, happiness and sanctity of their homes.

The Christian family is the oldest institution in the world and is the all-important unit of society in both church and state. When all is well in the homes of a nation her people are at peace and prosper. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, hence if the sanctity of the home begins to wane, society begins to totter at its very foundation. God in His infinite wisdom raised the marriage contract to the supernatural dignity of a sacrament, and the church has placed around this sacrament every possible safeguard, because the bond and tie of marriage is essential to the preservation of the family. "What God has joined together, let no man put asunder." Hence the church allows of no divorce where marriage has once been validly contracted.

The husband of course, is destined by God to be the head of the family, his nature fits him for this position; he is stronger, more courageous, more deliberate and freer from emotions. Have you ever, my dear men, stopped to consider what a noble, sacred, responsible position you hold in God's divine plan? Do you often try to realize how very necessary it is for you to prepare yourselves by prayer, good works and self-restraint in order that you mayknow God's will in this sacred trust, and that you may perfect the sublime mission entrusted to you?

The father, it may be said, represents justice in the family. His is the task to mould the minds of his children after they have left the nursery. By the wise dispensation of Providence children put implicit trust in their father. He is their ideal of strength, courage, honesty, truth, goodness. They never doubt in him for the smallest fraction of a second. They never suspect him. He can do no wrong. Oh men! prove yourselves worthy of that unwavering confidence! The mother represents mercy in her home. She understands well the dispositions, and the little difficulties of the children better than the father can. Therefore she is more given to sympathizing and consoling the little nest in the sorrows. However, she must be prudent and maintain her husband's authority. Justice and mercy can never be at variance, but must always work together to help poor humanity along the hard road of life.

Fathers, you have to toil all day long ,it is true, but your task is not as exacting nor distracting as that of your faithful wives. Every moment of her time is taken up with the multitude of little duties which arise during the day. She must bear up under that constant strain upon her charity, humility and patience. So, husbands, be cheerful in your homes! Be patient and always kind to the mother of your children! Be thoughtful and hence be particular to manifest to her the eternal marks of respect, appreciation and love. Your home will be happy, your children more than cheerful, and God's blessing will be over all if you are manly, kind husbands. Oh! what a diabolical thing it is when children first begin to suspect that all is not well between parents!

Young men, beware of long company-keeping and mixed marriages. The church frowns on both, with all her powers of disapproval. Marry young and God will bless the union. Respect the young girl of your choice just as you would have your own mother and sisters respected by other men. Let your conduct be such that you and your fiancee will increase Gods' love for you and then He will shower down His blessings upon you. Your lives will increase daily in happiness and in good works.

Father Crowe concluded his instruction by a cogent appeal to all men to remmeber the sublime position they hold under God, as fathers and heads of the Christian family.

Pool-Room Explosion Caused Property Loss.

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man., May 14.—Following three terrific explosions, flames enveloped a local pool room and spreading to adjoining property, caused damage estimated at $60,000.

The blaze was one of the most spectacular in the history of Portage, the fire fighters being handicapped by a strong north wind, which swept the town. The cause of the explosion which preceded the outbreak is still unknown.

FARM YOUNG PEOPLE MEET.

The regular monthly meeting of the Peterboro branch of the United Farm Young People of Ontario was held last evening in the Simcoe Street rooms, with a good attendance. The meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada," followed by the reading and adoption of the minutes.

It was decided to hold a strawberry social, the date to be announced later. Mr. Clifford Hancock, of Smith, has kindly consented to allow the club to hold the affair on his grounds.

The business session was followed by a musical programme, in which the following took part: Reading, "Useful Precepts for Girls," Mrs. W. R. Shields, also readings by the Misses Pearl Petrie and Ivy Petrie, and Hazel Ackison; piano solo, Mr. Neil Stewart; vocal solo, Mr. Alan Milburn; harmonium selection, Arthur Simpson. The meeting closed with service of light refreshments and the singing of the National Anthem.

8 PER CENT. INTEREST IS TOO HIGH FOR FARMERS

Rate In West Higher Than Any Other Agricultural Country in the World, Asserts Grain Grower at Economic Conference — Cheaper Money Essential

REGINA, Sask., May 14.—(Canadian Press).—"Get together," was the advice tendered by Premier Chas. A. Dunning at the economic conference which opened here yesterday.

Premier Dunning said there appeared to be a danger of each class represented at the conference getting up and blaming some other class for the conditions to which they were trying to find a solution. That would not get them anywhere, he said, but an effort to get together might prove helpful.

Through the work of the Provincial debt adjustment bureau, he had been impressed with the overlapping in the matter of sales and collections. He would venture to suggest that the manufactured cost of an article was not more than 75 per cent. of the ultimate price, but the highly competitive system of salesmanship and collection increased the price of the commodity to be sold. He offered as a suggestion for discussion that the time had come when some arrangement should be made between manufacturers and distributors similar to that made by the British Board of Trade in connection with the British export trade following the war, by which the cost of competitive overhead was cut down. He explained how there was one representative in Canada for the British textile industry instead of a representative for every mill that wanted to do business with Canada.

Central Agency.

He suggested that the large creditor classes in the province might be able to establish one central collection agency for all. It would then be possible for the Debt Adjustment Bureau to deal more easily with both the creditors and the debtor to advantage of both.

Presenting a paper on "The Agricultural Problem," Mr. George F. Edwards, president of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association, under whose auspices the conference was called, said the interests of the various groups represented at the conference were so far identical that they should be able to and could find common ground on which to take action to restore prosperity to the agricultural community in Canada.

Purchasing Power.

"The thing of most importance at the present time is to restore the purchasing power of the agricultural community so that not only the farmer but also the factories and other industries and services dependent upon him may each have their measure of prosperity," said Mr. Edwards. "We have also in this western country the handicap of having had to pay more for the money that we have borrowed to develop our farms, than any other agricultural community in the world. We claim we cannot afford to pay eight per cent. interest in either short or long term loans, and we believe that something must be done, and done very quickly, to assure the western agriculturalists of money at as low rates of interest as are now available in the United States. I cannot emphasize too strongly the absolute necessity of reducing production costs and, among other things, that I believe will have that effect is a system of long-term loans under the amortization plan, so that individuals engaged in farming operations will have some hope of paying off their existing obligations over a long term of years."

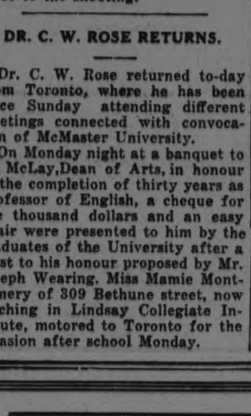
MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.



In order to get a bargain in buying an article, it is necessary to consider more than just price: Value must be considered.

From an economic standpoint, price refers to what anything will exchange for in terms of money. Value refers to what something will exchange for in terms of anything.

The price of a bushel of wheat might be $1. Its value might be two bushels of corn, and if corn was selling at 50 cents a bushel, the price and value would be the same.

Consequently price is value expressed in terms of money and they are usually the same. However, the man who thinks of value rather than price is usually the best buyer.

TRIPLE MURDER OLD MAN'S JOB.

The Accused Are W. F. Crawford Aged 70, Taylor Downs Aged 75, and William H. Downs Aged 52, the Latter's Son.

By JACK JUNGMEYER.

LOS OLIVOS, Calif., May 14.—It was a job for old folk, for old men edging toward the grave into which they were to blast a superannuated neighbor.

Such, according to confession and a triple murder charge, was the decision of patriarchs of this little town when they assembled and conspired to annihilate the village smith, hated and feared recluse, about whom had grown a dark, medieval legend of menace.

Three elders, leading citizens of Los Olivos, are awaiting trial at Santa Barbara for the death of J. J. McGuire, 75, in the dynamiting of his hermitage last December.

The accused are W. F. Crawford, 70, and Taylor Downs, 75, wealthy ranchers, and the latter's son, William H. Downs, 52, postmaster.

Arrests were made only recently when Harvey Stonebarger staggered the town by confessing, according to District Attorney Clarence Ward, that he and the trio facing trial had planned the death of McGuire following a lethal lottery in which many oldsters had participated. He confirmed his story at the preliminary hearing, securing State's evidence immunity.

Supporting testimony revealed a strange tale of village fury and repeated nocturnal debate by community leaders on how they might eliminate their execrated townsman whose gloomy eye, they charged, fell too often upon the women and children.

The aged smithy had become a dread. He lived alone in a little hut at the edge of town. Irascible, eccentric, fumed with the sulphurous glow of his forge, his rheumy eyes blazed with evil portent, so the village gossip went.

Women spoke of how McGuire had molested them, using profanity and threats. Children whimpered of having been frightened. Some of these children in turn indulged that fearful nagging of those they mark for ogres, so like the harassment of witches in elder times.

Attempts were made to persuade him out of town. He, feeling himself the abused, would not go. On one occasion, according to residents, he threatened to kill Postmaster Downs and his family, flourishing a pistol. That got him 90 days in jail for disturbing the peace.

Again his smithy bellows hissed defiance, and to the knell of hammer on anvil gossip fanned the civic fury anew. With nothing to lay a legal finger upon, the town's patriarchs determined to sit in grim judgment upon him.

A death lottery was called. The citizen getting the fatal slip was to shoot McGuire, so Stonebarger's confession ran. Young men were excluded. This was no time for hot adolescent passions, but for the grave deliberation of senescence. But the very timors of age frustrated the lottery. The man elected told his wife, and she would not let him shoot.

There was an interval of a month. A smaller number of elders, moved by a weird sense of sacrifice for the public good, lit the fuse of hatred. McGuire groaned a name as he lay dying in the debris of his shack—a clue which led to the recent arrests.

America to-day has more single women proportionally than in Colonial times.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Funeral of Well Known Resident of the District --Personal Mention.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 14.—Gone to her rest at the age of almost 94, Mrs. James Sloggett, of Seymour, who has been confined to her bed for about six weeks, died at her home on Friday morning, May 9. Had she lived till June, she would have reached the age of 94. The funeral was held on Sunday, service being held at the house, and interment took place in Trent Valley Cemetery.

Rev. W. Elliott, pastor of the Methodist Church, conducted the service. He took for his text part of the twenty-third Psalm, "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me. Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me." His words of sympathy were a comfort to those of her loved ones who are left and a help to all present. The funeral was largely attended as she was known in town and district.

The pall-bearers were her three sons, two grandsons and a son-in-law, Messrs. Joseph Sloggett, Richard Sloggett, Phillip Sloggett (with whom she lived), Cecil Sloggett, Cyril Sloggett and A. S. Free.

The flowers from the family and others were beautiful.

The late Mrs. Sloggett, whose maiden name was Jane Pethick, was born in Devonshire, England, on June 26, 1830, and was baptized in Werrington Church. She was twice married. In England she married the late John Aggett, who was an officer in the British Army, and saw service in the Crimean War. He became ill through exposure and was discharged from duty.

With his family he came to Canada and settled near Picton in Prince Edward County. Very shortly after coming to Canada he died, leaving his widow with one little daughter, five years old, and a son just a few months old. Just a week later the little daughter died.

The son, by the first marriage, Mr. Courtland Aggett, lives in Youngstown, Alberta, but was unable to be present at his mother's funeral.

In 1858, Mrs. Aggett married her second husband, the late James Sloggett, who predeceased her about seven years ago. They lived in Prince Edward County for some time, then moved to Seymour Township on the present homestead about 55 years ago. The surviving members of the family are: Courtland Aggett in Alberta; Joseph Sloggett, of Campbellford; Richard Sloggett, of Warkworth; Phillip Sloggett, on the homestead in Seymour, and a daughter, Mrs. A. S. Free, of Campbellford.

The late Mrs. Sloggett was a life-long member of the Methodist Church. She was a loving mother and a true friend to others and always had a warm place in her heart for her church.

Through all the sorrows and changes in her long life, she kept herself cheery and bright as well as industrious, and will be missed by her loved ones and friends.

Those from a distance who attended her funeral are: Mrs. Wood, a cousin, of Toronto, and four grandsons, of Toronto, Messrs. William, Lewis, Harold and Ernest Sloggett.

Church Service

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning. There was a large congregation present, and a large number partook of the sacrament. During the service 26 new members, mostly young people, were received into the church. A quartette, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," rendered by Messrs. G. Lucy, C. Maguire and Misses Ruth and Jennie Taylor, was given.

As Sunday was Mothers' Day, everyone wore a flower in honor of their mothers and the church was decorated with beautiful carnations and other flowers.

Mothers' Day

There was a special Mothers' Day service in the Sunday school. The programme was taken from the printed forms sent by the Ontario Religious Educational Council to the Sunday schools.

A special feature at the afternoon service was an orchestra. Those in the orchestra were: Mr. Lucy, piano; Leslie Clegg, saxaphone; Everett Thomas and Mr. Sutton, clarionettes, and Miss Nellie Hoover and Harry Boyd, violins. The choir, under the able leadership of Mr. Lucy, sang an anthem, the duet part being taken by Misses Ruth and Jennie Taylor.

Recitations were given on "Mother" topics by Harriet Potts, Irene Jeffs and Jack Boyd. Special prayers and Bible readings were given by Mr. Kingston and Mr. Abernethy.

Mr. Kingston gave an address in the form of a story.

Rev. W. Elliott and some of the teachers were unable to be present on account of the late Mrs. Sloggett's funeral, which was held at the same time.

The regular meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. I. Stillman, Rear Street.

Mrs. T. Church and little daughter, Betty, of Orillia, who have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hoover, for a month, returned to their home on Saturday.

Dr. H. J. Beatty, of Toronto, came to Campbellford last week and will practice with Dr. H. O. Richardson, Bridge Street. Mrs. E. Williamson, who spent the winter with her sister, Mrs. Clarke, in Rochester, returned home last week, and in a short time intends returning to Rochester to live with Mrs. Clarke. She will be missed by her friends and by the Methodist Church as she has been an active worker and also in the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Mr. Ralph, medical student in Toronto, is spending his holidays at his home on Sebastapool Street.

Mrs. Searl Chessell, who has been with Mr. Chessell for a few weeks, has returned to Campbellford to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Johnston, Paliser Street.

Mr. Walter Hogg left on Saturdy for Renfrew, where he has accepted a position. His family will remain in town for some time yet.

TO PUNISH "LISTENERS-IN"

BERLIN (United Press). — A reprimand, followed by a promise of amnesty, was given to each of Germany's radio pirates personally by Under Secretary of State Dr. Bredow. In the midst of the entertaining broadcasting, the voice of Dr. Bredow was heard telling all illegal listeners how badly they behaved toward their country by not paying the five dollar fee for a license. He promised to send each one of them to jail unless they immediately "came across."

COWBOY KNIGHT DIES.

WESTCHESTER, Pa., May 14.—William (Buck) Taylor, famous circus cowboy, whose favorite stunt of picking up a dime from the ground while travelling at top speed on horseback became known throughout America and Europe, died recently in a hospital here. He was six feet seven inches tall, weighed nearly 300 pounds, and was known as "the knight of the cowboys."

The Eiffel Tower, in Paris, 1000 feet high, is almost double the height of the second tallest building in Europe, the Colgone Cathedral.

Now for fun!

School's out, and now for romping play!

But in the course of play, young hands touch many things — sometimes dirty, grime-laden, and germ-covered. Disease germs lurk in all dirt and are carried from hands to face, to mouth and food.

What mothers must do

You cannot keep children from this ever-present disease-dirt. But you can, and should, do everything possible to prevent its serious effects.

Children need the rich, purifying lather of Lifebuoy with its wonderful health ingredient to go down deep into the pores and combat the germs ever present in dirt.

The health odour of Lifebuoy proves its antiseptic power.

MARMORA MAN HURT BY FALL

Unconscious Two Hours From Effect of Striking Head on Road When Getting Off Truck — Mother's Day Celebrated

MARMORA, May 14.—Mr. George Burns had a narrow escape from a very serious accident Saturday morning. He was riding on the rear of the roadster automobile belonging to Mr. Herbert Wright, returning from the twelve o'clock shift at Deloro. In attempting to get off, he fell and struck his head on the hard road surface. He was unconscious for two hours, but as far as is known, he suffered no serious injury.

Visited Parish

Rev. Father Traynor visited northern points of the parish over the week-end, and Rev. Father James, Kingston, was his substitute in Marmora. Father James will likely be the priest stationed in Marmora during the summer as Father Traynor is leaving for a visit to Ireland next month.

Mrs. Wm. Hughes was in Peterboro' on Saturday.

Messrs. Wm. Sweet and Ross Sine made a pleasure trip to Peterboro' on Saturday.

Mothers' Day

It was pleasing to the eye to note that so many of Marmora's citizens remembered their mothers Sunday by the wearing of choice blooms. Carnations and sweet peas predominated.

In the Methodist Church at 10.30 the regular Mothers' Day service was held. However, to the regular programme were added several selections, "The Home-Folk" and "My Mother's Prayer," by a choir of girls and a duet "Voices of Childhood" by Miss Alma Osborne and Miss Margaret Clare.

The address on the subject of "Mothers," was splendidly given by Mr. Woods. The "Busy Bees" Sunday School class had charge of the decoration of the church for the occasion, and the result was very pleasing.

A large number of mothers were present at the service. Special effort had been made during the preceding week by the Sunday School teachers to get the mothers of her pupils out to Sunday School.

An attendance of 180 was recorded, and the silver collection amounted to over $12.

In the evening the service was taken by the Rev. S. F. Maine, M.A., B.D., Professor of Albert College. Sunday was the educational anniversary of the church here and Professor Maine took as his text the question, "What is Truth?"

He said there were two kinds of truth. Truth has been changing during the centuries. In the past, people gave up their lives for the truth, and yet since that time what they believed has been proven false.

One writer said that what a person really believed, was truth based on veracity. For example, a child sees something he thinks is a bear, so when he says he has seen a bear he is speaking the truth as far as he is concerned. The second kind of truth was the truth which is undisputable.

Then Professor Maine spoke of the value of education in teaching the truth. He spoke of the college life in Albert College, and mentioned some of the results seen in individual cases.

The Sunday School choir aided in the music for the evening, and Professor S. Anglin, professor of music at Albert College, sang the solo, "Jesus, Thou Art Standing."

The visit of Bishop Bidwell to this parish, which was originally fixed for May 27, has been changed to Monday, May 26.

Mr. Alex. Kennedy has been ill for several days.

Miss Dora Osborne, Miss Hill, Mr. Elwood Garbutt, and Mr. Alan Taylor motored from Warsaw and spent a short time at the home of Miss Dora Osborne on Sunday.

Mr. Horace Leonard, Miss Gertie Potts and Miss Mae Rose went to Stirling and Belleville, Sunday afternoon.

Miss Irene Heath ,Miss L. Heath, Mr. Frank Grant and Mr. C. O'Connor, motored to Havelock on Sunday.

Mr. Ross Sine and Mr. W. Sweet visited Peterboro' on Saturday.

Miss Nancy Wright, who has been visiting her parents in Deloro for several weeks, returned to her duties as nurse in Toronto General Hospital on Saturday.

Rev. S. F. Maine took the morning service in Deloro on Sunday.

CRIPPLED VETS HIKE.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—Two Spanish-American War veterans—one blind and the other crippled—recently arrived in San Francisco from Los Angeles after 31 days of hiking. The crippled soldier guided the expedition from his wheel chair, which was pushed by his sightless comrade.

NEWS TRENT RIVER AND THE DISTRICT

TRENT RIVER, May 13.—Mothers' Day service was fittingly observed Sunday afternoon at the church with the pastor, Rev. E. O. Seymour, in charge.

A special order of service, with programme supplied by the Ontario Religious Education Council, was closely followed.

The pastor called upon the oldest and youngest mother present to come forward (Mrs. John Waters and Mrs. Fred. Cook respectively), and each were presented with a bouquet of carnations.

Rev. Mr. Seymour gave a very appropriate address on "Mother," which was much enjoyed by the large congregation present.

Rev. Mr. McLaughlin, of Keene, will take the services here Sunday next.

Fell From Attic.

Mrs. George Russel met with an accident Saturday morning at her home, Havelock road, when she fell from the attic over the kitchen. She remained unconscious for a short time, but fortuntaely no bones were broken. Her many firends wish her a speedy recovery.

The water is rapidly rising to normal again after having been low for a week.

A number of motor boats are out on the river daily. Fishing for pickerel is the sport with the anglers. Quantities of mountain trout are hauled in nightly.

An orchestra from Belleville have engaged the Sedgwick pavilion for the season and are having the interior re-decorated for the opening towards the end of the months.

Mrs. Roy Burgess has returned to Toronto from spending a week at the parental home, "Cedar Lodge."

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ketts, who have had charge of Mr. E. H. Fairbrother's summer home and farm for a few years, are leaving June 1st for their home at Oshawa.

VITAL FACTS FOR WOMEN

Sooner or later almost every woman is brought face to face with the fact that she is a victim of some weakness or ailment peculiar to her sex. It may be the young woman suffering from pain or irregularities, a mother who has brought on some weakness or displacement from overwork, or the middle aged woman pasing through the most critical periods of her life. For each of these trying periods Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved the greatest boon ever given to women, and there are women living in every town and city in the country who testify to its value.

REFUSED TO BUDGE.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 14.—An irresistible force met an immovable object at a downtown corner here and the donkey refused to budge. A policeman was kicked and traffic on one of the busiest street sections in St. Paul was held up thirty minutes.

The irresistible force was the traffic law, which forbids parking at corners, but the donkey had never read the law. Motorcycle Patrolman George Murphy was kicked in the mid-section as he leaped from the hoofs the donkey presented in place of the halter he sought to grab. He was not seriously hurt.

The law won in the end by lassoing the beast and staging a tug of war, but police say the victory was of dubious value, since the owner of the balky donkey has not called for his animal.

HEARTS AFIRE

by May Christie

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Prudence Page—a pretty country girl has awakened from a brief and unhappy love affair with unreliable

Be(t Traymore—a fascinating philanderer, guest at the home of Mrs. Vansittart—a wea'thy woman, owner of Winston Towers. Another of her guests is

Virginia Dale—a blase beauty, who has brought about a forced engagement between herself and

Peter Armstrong—a brilliant, young inventor, who cares for Prudence, but thinks she is still fascinated by Traymore. Virginia has been thieving from her hostess, has flung the blame of one theft on Prudence, and now the latter finds her in the woods, digging up valuables which prove to have Mrs. Vansittart's initials on them. How do you account for these? demands Prudence, pointing to the initials.

Virginia begs Prudence to keep her guilty secret, and Prudence, to save Peter disillusionment, agrees. Janet Mercer

Janet Mercer—a trained nurse, who is masseuse to Mrs. Vansittart's delicate child, is in love with Will Ogilvie.

Janet's happiness is dashed when she learns the engagement-ring Will had just given her is the property of Mrs. Vansittart.

CHAPTER LXIX.

"I'm Through With You!"

"Yours? Impossible! I tell you, Will's just given it to me!"

And Janet stared from the ruby up at her employer and then back again at the lovely jewel.

But Mrs. Vansittart held her ground.

"I'd wager five thousand dollars to a dime that's my missing ring! Where did your Will get hold of it?"

Janet drew back. Any aspersion on her beloved was worse than a direct aspersion on herslef.

"Are you insinuating——"

"Now, don't be foolish." Mrs. Vansittart patted her arm. "Be a sensible girl and let me see the ring. There's an inside marking that's so faint you can hardly see it, but I'll bet it's there. That will prove beyond a doubt to whom the ring belongs."

"You want me to take it off?" From hautiness, Janet's voice became almost a wail. "Don't you know that's awfully unlucky?"

"Nonsense, girl." Mrs. Vansittart's manner was as cool and bracing as a breeze from off the sea." Here, slip the thing off a minute and let me have a look at it."

Janet, to clear her beloved Will, had to comply. She did so reluctantly.

Mrs. Vansittart took the circlet over to the window and examined its inside closely, turning and twisting it about.

Then she gave an excited cry.

"The marking's there, right enough. Come here, Miss Mercer." She took a small magnifying glass from her pocket. "I'm so short-sighted that I usually carry this about with me. I'll look through it. Ah, yes! Quite distinct! See!"

Janet peered through the glass, and did observe some tiny signs inside the circlet, very faint. One undeniably was the letter 'V.'

"The ring was a gift from my late husband. He scratched his initials here. I remember he looked quite sentimental," rambled on the older woman. Then, returning to the mystery: "And you say your sweetheart gave you this to-day? But where did he get it from, I'd like to know?"

Janet bit her lip.

"You can ask him yourself. He's calling for me in a few minutes' time."

Mrs. Vansittart seemed embarrassed at the approaching interview.

"Kind of awkward, isn't it? As though I were taking him to task! Nor, of course, that he has anything to do with the mysterious disappearings that are going on!"

"How do you mean?"

The other nooded sagely.

"Something queer about this house. A sort of 'jinx' on it. Things walk off by themselves."

"Nonsense!" Janet was eminently practical. "You mean there's thieving?"

"If you'd call it that! D'you know"—lowering her voice—"I never could believe the little Page girl tried to steal that money and the diamonds that were in her sash!"

"Of course, you couldn't," Janet flared, in quick defence of her friend. "She's as honest as the day. Some spiteful creature who had 'had a down' on her, or who was afraid of being caught themselves, did it, I'll wager every cent I possess that Prudence didn't."

Ensued a pause. Janet kept turning the ring nervously in her fingers. What would Will say when he saw that she had taken it off?

Will was so touchy. Their love-affair had had its stormy passages. Indeed, it seemed as though the squalls had considerably outnumbered the spells of sunshine.

And now—to-day of all to-days—trouble boded.

She knew Will. Quick-tempered, super-sensitive, on the look-out for 'slights,' it was the irony of fate that the ring he'd given her, which should be the happy token of a happy furure, was to be made the subject of an inquisition that was bound to be distasteful, if not actually leading to a quarrel.

Mrs. Vansittart slipped out of the nursery just as Will's shadow appeared at the open French windows.

"Ready, Janet?" His usually rather moody face was smiling. "What d'you say we go to the movies to-night? I hear there's a funny one about married life, and we'd best be forearmed."

"Sh-h! Lucia's sleeping." Janet stepped out to the lawns, and laid a hand upon her lover's arm.

His quick glance rested on the bare fingers.

"Where's the ring?" The question came with the sharpness of a pistol-shot.

"I—there's something funny about it," stammered Janet; Will's sudden change of manner putting her at a disadvantage. "Where did you get it, Will?"

This wasn't what she meant to say at all. It was badly worded, brusque.

"Oho!" He drew back. "So it isn't good enough for you? Is that it?"

"No, no; it's lovely. But tell me where did you get it?"

For answer he drew from his pocket a little satin-covered case bearing the name of the best jeweller in the vicinity.

"Isn't that guarantee enough?"

"You—you're positive you bought it there?" persisted Janet.

Will flushed darkly. He completely misunderstood the reason of these queries.

"She thinks I've been tight with my money—that the ring's cheap. She's like all women—wanting to look a gift-horse in the mouth!

Aloud he said, sarcastically:

"Maybe you'd like to go back to the store and change it? Or maybe the money would be more useful to you? Eh?"

"Don't be angry, Will." She bit her lips to steady them. "I know it's abominable of me—questioning you—but I must know if the ring really did come from Rogers Bros."—consulting the name on the satin box.

"And if I won't tell you—then I suppose you'll tramp straight there and find out for yourself? Have—have women no decency at all?"

"You don't understand, dear." She tried to touch him on the arm again, but he drew back, resentment on his face.

"I understand only too well. You value what I give you only by the grandeur of the store it comes from Well, I won't keep up my pitiful attempt at deception, since you've been too clever for me! The satin-box from Rogers Bros. was my mother's—I liked it because it was so pretty, and she let me take it, and the ring looked fine in it—but the ring itself I bought for sixty dollars in a pawnshop—yes, a pawnshop! You can laugh all you want to, for I'm finished with you, Janet!"

He snatched the ruby ring from her fingers and hurled it with all his might and main far into the bushes!

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

THE KING OF THE GOLDEN TOUCH

"How do you do?" he said.

The next place the Twins went to in Once-Upon-a-Time Land was the castle of King Midas of the Golden Touch.

The little automobile bore the three travelers past seven vineyards and seven orchards and pretty soon they came to the famous castle.

The castle was on top of a high mountain and the only way one could get to it was by a narrow stone stairway cut out of the rock.

"My goodness!" panted Nancy when she reached the top, "I'd hate to live up here. If I had to climb these steps every time I did an errand for mother, there wouldn't be anything left of me."

"I don't think much of it myself," added Mister Muggs, shaking his legs one at a time to get the cramps out.

"Sh-h-h-h!" whispered a voice close by. "Please don't talk so loud. His highness might hear you and it would make him hopping mad. Come into this summer house and I'll tell you a secret."

So Nancy and Nick and Mister Muggs went into the little summer house, and there sat a funny fellow with bells all over him, adding up sums.

"How do you do?" he said, bowing until all his bells jingled. "I am Hop-Skip-and-Jump, the court jester. It's my job to make the king laugh. It is also my duty to keep trouble away from the king. That's why I see all visitors first. Please sit down."

"I saw you coming miles away," said Hop-Skip-and-Jump. "I was looking out of my window. I can see around the world from here. So I always know when visitors are coming. Will you do as I tell you?"

"Certainly," said Mister Muggs.

"All right, then," said Hop-Skip-and-Jump. "Take off your gold rings and gold watches and gold pins and everything that is gold about you. King Midas has a conniption fit if he sees so much as a gold tooth. It is one word he can't bear. Gold! That's why I add up the accounts out here, because he can't even think of money."

"Why?" asked Nick curiously.

"Well, once upon a time King Midas was poor. But a kind fairy said she would grant him one wish. So he wished that everything he touched would turn to gold."

"And so it happened. His wish was granted, and everything he put his fingers on instantly turned into gold. Even his daughter turned to gold when he kissed her. When he touched food and water it also turned to gold, and he was starving. I don't know what would have happened if the fairy hadn't come back and taken away the gift she had bestowed, and put things to rights.

"After that he moved here, away from the gold glitter of the world, so he would not be reminded of his folly. That's the story. Now I shall take you to the king."

King Midas was a fine jolly king, and asked them to stay to dinner. But even the spoons were of wood—no silver or gold was to be seen anywhere. Which showed that King Midas, like ther people, did not like to be reminded of his foolishness.

Office Dispute About Open Windows Leads to Shooting of Three Clerks

Fresh Air Agitators Insisted on Having Windows Open--Old Worker Suffered From Cold and Packed Revolvers to Office--Tragedy

CHICAGO, May 14.—(Canadian Press)—The age old dispute between men of different ages and health conditions, working in the same office, as to whether windows shall be open or closed, flared up in the casting room offices of the Illinois Malleable Iron Company, yesterday, resulting in the death of three men, but the question was not settled.

John C. Gardner, 60 years old and suffering from chronic cold objected to open windows and cold drafts through the room. Younger men working in the room insisted upon the cold air and lots of it. They began opening the windows in January. Gardner was considered an old crank and it is said he was about to be discharged. The animosity, increasing hourly, began to prey on Gardiner's mind. He fancied a conspiracy to ruin his health and deprive him of his livelihood. Yesterday Gardner came to the plant carrying three revolvers. He found R. Wilcox and H. Krause two of the "open air" advocates together. They had made all the trouble for him. Without warning he drew two pistols and opened fire. Scores of employees leaped for cover as the bullets splintered the desks and partitions and shattered the transoms.

Krause tumbled dead across the threshold leading into the plant and Wilcox shot twice fell dying beside him. Gardner paused long enough to reload his pistols and then fled, pursued by a dozen employees armed with crowbars and hammers. He turned and halted them, then put the pistols to both sides of his head and fired. The third pistol was found in his pocket.

QUAKE PROOF HOUSES BUILT IN COSTA RICA

Cities Recently Damaged Will Be Re-built — Use Bamboo.

ANCON, Canal Zone, May 14 (United Press). — Reconstruction in the cities of San Jose and Alhajuela, Costa Rica, severely damaged by earthquakes in March, has been begun with determination and courage, travellers arriving here report.

It is estimated that the property damage in the two places was approximately $2,000,000, and that 60 per cent. of the houses in San Jose will require work, ranging from the minor repairs to complete rebuilding. Most of the new supplies imported will come from the United States.

Cartago, which lies on the slope of Irazu Volcano, above San Jose, was only slightly damaged by the quakes. This is because after the destruction of the city in 1910 the rebuilt houses were made as near earthquake-proof as knowledge and materials would permit.

The favourite construction is a wooden framework with walls of bamboo poles, among which is placed plaster or concrete. It may be characterised as reinforced concrete, mostly reinforcement, or as bamboo encased in concrete. The bamboo is strong, tough and elastic, and under the stress of earthquake movement the house adapts itself to the motion in a way impossible for a more rigid structure. Finishing over the plaster or concrete with a smooth plaster or stucco finish gives the houses a very satisfactory appearance.

In the Guatamala quake of 1918 the only houses which stood the racket quite unharmed were the few of reinforced concrete, using steel reinforcement according to American and European standards, or light frame structures which shook like aspens, but did not go down.

The Costa Rican model construction is an adaptation of both these types, combining some of the solidity and permanence of concrete with the economy of timber.

Baby Chicks

The present cold, wet weather is very unhealthy for the baby chicks. Keep them in well-ventilated and draft-proof buildings until late in the morning or until the sun warms the atmosphere, and do not let them out at all on rainy days until they become a few weeks old.

Preventing Hens Setting.

Put the hen or hens into a new run of poultry. The change of companions may have good results, and the loss of the favorite nest at the same time completes the cure. Dipping hens in water and putting them in solitary confinement, on short rations, is cruel and unnecessary. Another good way which is more applicable to farm flocks, is to construct a slatted coop, including bottom, tie up to a beam or limb in the form of a swing. A few days of this treatment will suffice to put the hen off setting.

It is the only thing that will make it go fast, and get it to the front—a moment's supply that will always take you to the front get away. We have a REMINGTON AUXILIARY on our counter waiting for you.

GONE

The Russian army lost 11 million soldiers during the war by deaths, wounds and sickness. So reports the Soviet, shoving its adding machines aside.

The 1922 famine killed about five million more.

The typhus epidemic attacked 12 million Russians, with heavy mortality.

With all these catastrophes, one begins to realize that Russia's woes are not all of political origin, not by a long sight.

FARM LIFE AND ITS PROBLEMS

LATE SPRING DOES NOT MEAN CERTAIN FAILURE SAYS EDWARD STEPHENS

A Pioneer Campbellford Farmer Declares Reverse Is Often True—Year that Promises Well May Prove A Thief.

SLEIGHING IN MAY.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 14.—The farmers of this district have not yet lost hope for the future on account of the lateness of the season, and are not predicting a crop failure this year because a good deal of the spring grain has yet to be planted. In the light of years of experience they know that early sowing does not always mean a bountiful harvest. Everything depends upon the condition of the soil when the crop is put in, and the weather which follows the spring season. As a general rule the time of seeding is a secondary consideration.

Some Early Seasons

In order to demonstrate that early sowing does not mean a good harvest it is not necessary to go further back in the records than 1915. In the spring of that year the seeding was completed almost generally throughout Ontario in the month of March. The weather at the time was intensely warm for the season and the soil was in excellent condition. A long period of dry weather followed and growth was slow until nearly the normal time for the harvest. Then, there were excessive rains and the farmers' returns that year were far below the average.

One of the most dismal crop failures in recent years in Ontario was that of 1921, and the seeding of that year was unusually early, being completed in the month of April. Dry weather during the growing season was the explanation. Hay was an almost total failure, grain headed out when the straw was only a few inches high and the yield in some cases was less than the seed actually sown. That was the year when so many farmers in the outlying districts of the province were obliged to dispose of their stock at a loss, having no fodder to carry them through the winter.

What Farmers Say

Two of the oldest retired farmers in Campbellford are Josiah Tinney and Edward Stephens, the latter especially being one of the pioneers as he was in his day the most progressive and successful farmer in the Township of Seymour. Mr. Tinney says that he is not disposed to regard as hopelessly late any season in which the seeding is completed before June. He has seen good and bad harvests in his day following late plantings.

Mr. Stephens will be 94 years old on May 26, but his memory is still as active as ever, and his mind is a veritable storehouse of farm history. He was the champion cradler and wood chopper of his day, although his height was only five feet two inches, and he never weighed over 145 pounds. Larger men tried conclusions with him in the harvest field and in the woods, only to come out second best in the competition. Mr. Stephen's vitality, in spite of his age, is demonstrated by the fact that he has this winter cut into stove lengths with a buck-saw, nine cords of wood, two cuts to a stick.

Sixty-five years ago Mr. Stephens recalls that there was a heavy frost in June that nipped the fall wheat, which was the farmer's staple crop at that time. It was feared that the wheat on the low land, which suffered most, was entirely destroyed, but in the end, it turned out better than that on the high land which was comparatively uninjured. The growth of the former was retarded, the straw was short but the grain was well filled. The high land wheat was destroyed by the weevil.

Frost In September

About the same period, Mr. Stephens had 45 acres of spring wheat which gave promise of a bountiful yield. On account of the ravages of the weevil, farmers had to give up raising fall wheat altogether. The Fife variety of spring wheat was the most popular for years.

Frost on September 20 of that year struck Mr. Stephen's wheat just as it was ripening. From the 45 acres, all of which he cut with the cradle, he threshed 25 bushels of grain that was of any real value, and all of this grew on the high places in the field. The rest could be used only for chicken feed. Other years he had better luck and has cut in October spring wheat that turned out 60 bushels to the acre.

Sleighing In May

Farmers in those days had their trials and tribulations. Mr. Stephens recalls one season when seeding operations were stopped by a fall of over six inches of snow on May 6. For three days after that date he used a sleigh in taking his milk to the factory. The harvest that year was ahead of the average.

Learning By Accident

Pioneer farmers in Seymour were slow in the matter of adopting new methods. The idea of harrowing fall wheat in the spring, to break the crust, and give the plant a fresh start, was hooted at for years.

Then an accident convinced the farmer that the plan was practical. A neighbor of Mr. Stephens' was sowing his spring grain when a spirited team of horses attached to a harrow ran away and broke into a field of fall wheat that was several inches high. Before the animals were caught they had made tracks with the harrow all through the field and it was feared that in these places the crop was ruined. The reverse proved to be the case, the harrowed wheat making more rapid growth than that which had been missed by the runaway horses. After that the harrowing of fall wheat in the spring became general throughout the district.

Believes In Waiting

Whether the season is early or late, Mr. Stephens believes that the proper time to sow grain is when the soil is fit. It is useless to attempt to raise a crop on land that is worked when it is wet. In his time he has sown in June wheat and oats and had a better yield than some of his neighbors who put in their grain weeks earlier.

The Local Situation

The season here may be backward and the weather unfavorable for spring work but so far the soil is in excellent condition, and seed already in has made a good start. There has been considerable rain but after each fall the weather has been cool and the land has not baked. Fall wheat—what there is of it—and clover meadows, blanketed by snow as they were all winter, have home through in fine shape and a good yield of hay an essential in a dairy district, is assured.

Domestic Science Is Useful in Farm Home

"I often found her out in the kitchen making wonderful dishes out of nothing—by 'nothing' I mean things most folk throw away. When I watched her one day put some red apple peelings in a small saucepan to cook, I thought she was carrying her economical methods too far, but when I saw the little glass of pretty pink jelly which resulted I was simply dumbfounded! When she explained to me how that little economy would save her opening up a fresh sealer of fruit, because she would use the jelly in a trifle for dessert for the following day, I began to see that the phrase 'Domestic Economy' stood for something."—Lilian D. Milner.

THE FARMER'S WIFE

"It is impossible to place a money value upon the presence of the mother in the home and the spirit of the service which she gives, and it is difficult to judge of the real value of outside work to obtain additional income if one honestly faces the fact that such work means partial withdrawal of the influence of the mother from the home life."

Summer Lunches.

In planning the school lunch for the summer months consider these sandwich combinations:

Whole wheat bread, brown bread, graham, rye, raisin or white bread used with such sandwich fillings as ground raisins, ground meat, lettuce and boiled salad dressing, peanut butter, sliced or grated cheese, lettuce and chopped nuts with salad dressing, jam or jelly. Any of the dark breads spread with good butter make satisfying sandwiches.

Milk drinks may be carried in the lunch pail if suitable containers can be provided. Empty bottles, thoroughly cleaned, and fitted with good corks are much more satisfactory than fruit jars because the milk does not spill.

Cabbage slaw or apple and celery salad is just as appetising for the school lunch as for the school picnic. Save the empty porcelain jars from the medicine chest for containers for the salad.

Fruit, fresh, dried or canned, should be included in the school lunch. Dried or canned fruit may be packed in the porcelain jars just mentioned. Whipped cream may be added to fruit desserts. Oranges or apples are fine for recess lunch.

Oatmeal cookies, molasses cookies and bran cookies are better for the children than rich cakes and are much more easily packed in the lunch pail. Make drop cookies instead of rolled ones and save time as well as energy.

Healthy Hogs Have High Market Price.

The health of hogs from farrowing to selling time is by far the greatest factor in determining whether the enterprise is to make a profit or a loss. From this standpoint the loss is usually figured on the basis of those that actually die from accident and disease. The fact of the matter is that, excepting those cases where a considerable proportion of the herd is wiped out by a pestilence, such as hog cholera, the greater loss cannot be so estimated. The larger loss in an average herd is the difference between what the herd actually made and what it should have made under the same circumstances, in a state of health.

Fall Wheat Healthy On All Keene Farms.

KEENE, May 14.—The general farm conditions in the vicinity give promise of a good yield. In the majority of cases, the fall wheat and clover are in a healthy condition. A few farmers are all through sowing, and the warm sunshine is all that is necessary. Eggs are plentiful at prices ranging from 19c to 21c a dozen. Butter is not so plentiful, owing to the fact that farmers are either shipping away their cream or sending it to local factories. The prices for dairy butter are from 31c to 33c a pound, and creamery 36c a pound.

Factory Closed.

Mr. George Weir has closed his cheese factory at Lang, and will work for Mr. Albert Jung, at Indian River, this season.

Armenians Fill Want of Labor at Cobourg.

COBOURG, May 14.—Several farmers in the Newcastle district, where the farm help situation is acute as in other places, have engaged young Armenians to help out. They are stated to be bright, intelligent appearing boys, and it is hoped that they will make good on the farms.

Watery eyes and other eye trouble among chicks usually trace to dusty litter.

NEW MILLBROOK POULTRY PLANT IS UP TO DATE

M. McDowell Has Commercial Poultry Plant That Shows Constant Expansion -- Scientific Breeding Followed and Best Methods Used.

250 EGGS A DAY

MILLBROOK, May 14.—Mr. M. McDowell, who moved to Millbrook from Cavanville about one year ago, has established a commercial poultry farm on his property next the mansion grounds, and is rapidly increasing his plant and the number of fowl kept, the latter being of the White Leghorn variety.

Two incubators, of a capacity of 250 eggs each were brought into use the beginning of March, and by hatching and purchase, Mr. McDowell now has about 650 little chicks house in two brooders. These brooders are built on skids and can later be moved farther to the rear of the lot as according to a bulletin issued by the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, "it is best to rear chicks on new ground each year, and never to brood two lots on the same ground in any one year." A third, and probably a fourth brooder is to be built in the immediate future as Mr. McDowell's ultimate object for this spring is 1,000 chicks, and at least that number of fowl will be kept over next winter.

The brooders are heated by coal and the temperature kept around eighty degrees. The little balls of yellow fluff, lined up each side of the shallow wooden feeding troughs, make an attractive picture. Sour milk and water are supplied in containers so arranged that there is only room for the chicks to dip their beaks along the edge, the raised centre preventing any deaths by drowning.

To keep his flock practically of the same age, thus lessening labor and otherwise getting better results, Mr. McDowell sells the later chicks from his incubators and buys in exchange those hatched about the same time as the ones now in the brooders. From one to two hundred are shipped out, and brought in, at a time, in pursuance of this plan which has been found most satisfactory.

Quite a large number of the little chicks will presently be shipped to the city for broilers which pay well, especially as usually fifty per cent. may turn out to be cockerels.

At the O.A.C. the plan is followed of moistening the chicks' first feed with canned tomatoes, the second with eggs, and the third with minced liver, but Mr. McDowell has obtained good results with a prepared feed which has been found quite satisfactory and apparently combines the qualities in a scientific manner which make the O.A.C. process successful.

A Big Plant

The main plant on the McDowell property is a building, 144 feet long, with six compartments each 24 feet in length, where at present 400 pullets and older fowl are housed. This building is up-to-date in every particular, glass fronts, canvas-covered frames, on hinges, which can be dropped in front of the roosts on cool nights, and hooked up to the roof in the daytime. Grit is always easy of access, while such evils as mouldy feed, dirty feeding troughs, and musty litter are carefully avoided.

About sixty per cent. of the older fowl are laying, 250 and more eggs being gathered each day. If from 35 to 40 per cent. lay during the winter months, returns are considered satisfactory, according to the Department of Agriculture, which also states that outside a few small special lines, generally speaking, dairying, sheep raising, and poultry raising have been the only successful branches of agriculture during the past year. These points were emphasized when the live stock train made its visit here recently. But the persistent low prices for produce seem to have invaded the egg market also since twenty cents is all that is offered locally at present, with prospects of a further drop in the near future. Combined with the sustained high prices for supplies, the man engaged in any branch of agriculture would seem to have need of forbearance, and experience considerable difficulty in maintaining a spirit of optimism.

Previous to entering upon the poultry business from a commercial standpoint, which he has done during the past two years, Mr. McDowell kept a few Silver Lace Wyandottes for exhibition purposes. As practical tests teach experience, his venture will broaden out and financial gains be increased.

In connection with poultry raising it is interesting to note that at 7.30 each Saturday evening the results of the Canadian and Ontario Egg Laying Contest will be broadcasted from Ottawa, so radio owners will learn the standing of the various pens almost as soon as they are received.

This egg laying contest is one of the biggest things yet undertaken toward the improvement of poultry in Canada, the ultimate objective being the registration of standard bred fowl of high productive ability. Of the two contests being conducted by the Experimental Farm at Ottawa, one is open to breeders throughout the world, and the Ontario one is open to breeders in this province only.

BETHANY FARMS.

BETHANY, May 14.—Farmers are complaining about the continued cold, wet weather. Some fields are yet unseeded, and grain already sown is very backward.

Keep chicks housed on chilly, disagreeable days, to avoid roup.

John Douglas (72), of Medford, still cultivates his farm with an ox team.

Pen broody hens apart and feed them only mash and milk or mash and water.

Pigs Can Be Kept Clean and Healthy Says United States Helminthologist

Dr. B. H. Ransome Has Laid Foundation For Aggressive Onslaught on the Round Worm—Give Young Pigs Clean Start.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—It has taken a helminthologist of the U.S. Department of Agriculture to show farmers of the United States that the hog can be a clean animal.

A helminthologist is a person who specializes in the study of worms, especially parasitic worms. This helminthologist in particular is Dr. B. H. Ransom.

Due to Dr. Ransom's tests and discoveries farmers are in a position to raise better and healthier pigs than ever before. The result, say members of the Bureau of Animal Industry here, may be production of a greater pork supply with fewer hogs and less food. Money in the farmers' pockets.

Dr. Ransom has laid the foundation for the downfall of the round-worm, the pig's greatest enemy. This intestinal parasite thrives in filth and carelessness.

To destroy this pest, Dr. Ransom has developed a system of raising pigs under such clean conditions that they would have no chance of acquiring the eggs of these worms. This is the plan:

Before the pigs are born, prepare a farrowing pen by cleaning out all litter and scrubbing it thoroughly with lye and boiling water. Use only clean bedding. Thoroughly scrub the sow with soap and water before she is put into the pen.

From this time on the game is to keep the mother and her litter away from other hogs and from old hog lots and pastures which are pretty sure to harbor the eggs of round-worms. Keep the family in the pen for a few days, depending on the weather. Then move them to a clean pasture where they will associate only with other pigs as clean as they are.

In the pasture there should be portable colony houses, one for each sow and litter. The pasture fence should be tight enough to keep the little pigs getting out and picking up worm eggs from pigs that have not had the advantage of a clean start, or from infected soil. Kept under such conditions until they are three or four months old the pigs will gain a good enough start to fight off worms successfully.

First application of this system was made by farmers in McLean County, Illinois. All through the middle west farmers are adopting the idea. But the great majority of hog raisers have yet to try it.

ALFALFA IS USED FOR TWO REASONS

Increases the Necessary Chemical Content of Soil and Provides Protein Food For Stock.

By Prof. George A. Olson.

Alfalfa is grown for two good reasons. First, for the purpose of increasing the nitrogen and humus content of the soil. Second, as protein food and mineral source for stock. The only known methods of increasing the nitrogen content of soil is either to supply it in the form of fertilizer or obtain it from the air through the aid of organism which can convert and fix nitrogen which previously was uncombined. Those organisms which live in nodules located on the roots of the legumes combine the nitrogen with sulphur and other elements and make an albuminous substance from them.

Obviously there must be ample sulphate sulphur present if this albuminous substance is to be made. For every pound of sulphur utilized there is a possible fixation of about 14 pounds of nitrogen. An application of 200 pounds of agricultural gypsum per acre should therefore make it possible for the organisms to prepare an amount of albuminous material contains about 448 pounds of nitrogen per acre. Based on the nitrogen composition of proteins I have calculated that there would be prepared on an average of 3200 pounds of dry albumin. It is almost unbelievable yet it is nevertheless possible. The plant would use it or some modification of it as quickly as it was formed.

In practice, losses occur and some of the agricultural gypsum applied is washed away while some is lost through leaching. For this reason maximum production is not always possible. In tests where I have increased the yield seven tons per acre in two years with 200 pounds of agricultural gypsum the nitrogen contained in the increase has amounted to 336 pounds. Some of the nitrogen has remained in the nodules and roots. Based on soil composition there is at least 80 to 100 pounds of nitrogen fixed which has been left in the soil. The average increase of nitrogen obtained in both the soil and alfalfa crop is therefore approximately 425 pounds per acre, or within close estimate of what might be expected from the use of 200 pounds of agricultural gypsum.

Over $85 worth of nitrogen at 20c per pound has been obtained through the activities of the nitrogen-fixing organism and agricultural gypsum. The value of the alfalfa as hay should be worth this much to the farmer even if he had to turn it under to increase the nitrogen and humus content of the soil.

Alfalfa is conceded to be good stock food. It contains more protein than do cereals and is largely used as a protein supplement. It also contains an abundance of minerals. The vitamines which the alfalfa also carries add to its value. The combination of alfalfa with grain should therefore prove to be both a valuable and economic combination to feed.

Sloughs and ponds are rarely a desirable source of water for the livestock. They are usually thick with mud and decayed vegetable matter and are a harboring place for germs. Foot-rot in sheep and cattle is frequently caused by such places.

Home mixing of fertilizer saved $10 a ton for some farmers last year.

BUY BABY CHICKS WITH GREAT CARE

More Important Than Most People Think — Insist On Accredited Stock.

The buying of baby chicks is a far more important problem than most purchasers realize. Baby chicks constitute the foundation stock of the future layers and breeders and, therefore, too much care cannot be exercised in deciding upon the hatchery from which to buy.

Practical poultry raisers and farmers are relying upon the hatcheries more and more each succeeding year for their chicks. In other words, each year sees fewer chicks hatched under hens and the mamomth hatcheries are taking the place, to a certain extent, of the smaller incubators which are commonly operated on the farms. Due to the fact that farmers are buying baby chicks from the commercial hatcheries in such large numbers poultry specialists feel the necessity for urging them to exercise great care in deciding where to buy this year's supply of chicks.

At the same time it should be pointed out that many farmers, perhaps the majority, will still find it more economical to do their own hatching. This is especially the case where the farm flock is of good standard quality and has been bred for egg production. A farmer hatching his own chicks knows the quality of chicks he can expect.

The commercial hatchery business has developed to a very remarkable extent in the last two years. Some of the hatchery men have estimated that practically double the number of baby chicks will be hatched in mammoth hatcheries this year compared with last. There is a great increase in the number of hatcheries, each varying in capacity from a few thousand to several hundred thousand chicks.

The question of importance to a purchaser of baby chicks is the source of supply of eggs for the hatcheries. Many of the hatcheries have their business well organized and are able to guarantee the quality of the chicks. Some of the hatcheries, however, are not so particular where they purchase the eggs they use and are not able to guarantee high-quality chicks.

Purchasers of baby chicks would be well advised to make sure of purchasing from a reliable hatchery. Only pure-bred chicks should be bought and in addition to this, the purchaser should insist upon a satisfactory statement from the hatchery man as to the quality of the eggs used. Were the eggs from a standard-bred flock with trap-nested records and was the flock in good breeding condition? Purchase baby chicks with great care. It is better to pay a few cents more for good quality chicks that can be guaranteed.

RAIN HELPS MARMORA.

MARMORA, May 14.—A number of the farmers have finished their seeding and were getting discouraged by the lack of growth. However, the rain of the latter part of last week has made a change in the prospects.

In town, work is being done in the gardens, especially those which are at a high enough level to drain quickly.

The rain has greatly helped the pasture lands, and a number of cows are already placed in their summer pastures.

Corn Rheumatism Curable Disease That Means Loss

What oddly corresponds to a human disease, agricultural experts tell us, is the cause of yearly losses in our corn production. This disease is due to faulty nutrition, the same as rickets in children, but in the case of corn, however, the seat of the trouble being located in the joints, Professor Hansen calls it "corn rheumatism."

Hidden drains on the human system are often hard to locate. Likewise, many a corn grower must have been puzzled at the sight of normally tall plants that somehow refused to ripen ears properly, even under the best weather conditions. Unknown to him, however, accumulations of certain metals in the joints of the plants were causing the trouble.

"Corn rheumatism" is said to be easily recognized and quickly curable, once the facts about it are known. It is now scientifically established that just as an unbalanced diet may develop rickets in children, so may an unbalanced plant diet, one lacking in available potash, cause "corn rheumatism."

The investigations found only one remedy for this cause of "corn rheumatism"—more potash applied to the soil.

By slitting a few of the corn stems lengthwise it can easily be detected whether or not "corn rheumatism" has set in. If present, the interiors of joints are considerably darker than the remainder of the stem tissues. This shows that iron and other metals that break down the tissues of the joints have collected, thereby clogging the food transportation systems of the corn plants and causing poor yields.

Potash is the natural element of rich soil which normally prevents this harmful nodal accumulation of metals. Corn soon exhausts the soil of potash unless the farmer keeps refunding it each year. Extensive field experiments proved time after time that potash was as effective in restoring normal corn crops as the proverbial cod liver oil in curing rickets.

KING'S WHARF CROP COMES ON QUICKLY

Beautiful Fields of Green Grain--Fall Wheat Best Yet.

KING'S WHARF, May 14.—During the last few days the farmers have got along well with their seeding, but now the rain has put a stop to it again. It will be a few days before they will be able to work on the land again, as there are ponds of water in the fields now.

The meadows are beginning to look well and the grass is green, but the fall wheat in this locality is the best yet. On the road to Bobcaygeon the passerby will see a number of beautiful fields of wheat—all green with not a patch that was killed.

Messrs. Daniel, Michael and William O'Neill and P. Perdue delivered a fine bunch of cattle this week to Mr. McDonnell, south of Lindsay, for which they received a very good price, and signs are that there will be an improvement in the cattle market.

Mr. Joseph Guiry shipped a fine load of hogs on Friday to Mr. Herbert Graham, of Lindsay, at $8.25 a cwt.

Mr. Joseph M. Lucas purchased two very valuable Holstein cows at Fannings sale on Saturday. Mr. Lucas intends going into the dairying with the right kind of stock.

Messrs. J. Collin and W. Collin were through here recently buying horses.

Potatoes are a great scarcity here on account of the potato failure.

New Lakefield Bridge Will Benefit Farmers

LAKEFIELD, May 14.—Work will be begun very shortly on the new cement bridge over the Otonabee river. Preparations are being made to improve the road from the High Level bridge to the dam, which will be used during the summer as a temporary bridge. The new bridge will prove a benefit to farmers who found it unsafe to move heavy tractors or loads over the ancient structure that spans the river now.

Rain Retards Work

The rain of the past week has had a retarding effect on the work on the farms. The lower fields are almost submerged and even the high land is too wet to be worked to any advantage. Warm sunshine would send things on at a remarkable rate. The warmer weather on Saturday and Sunday advanced the growth splendidly.

Fraserville Weather Disagrees With Crop

FRASERVILLE, May 14.—Owing to the rainfall of the past week, seeding has become completely stopped, and it will be some time before any seeding can be done on the low land. Some of the fall wheat on the lower land is suffering from the wet. Clover and other grass seeds are looking fairly good, regardless of the late and back ward spring.

There is some of the spring grain in the vicinity up and looking fairly good.

Mr. W. A. Wood, shipper for U.F.O., South Monaghan, shipped a carload of hogs and calves to Toronto last Monday.

A good time to replace scrub stock with purebreds is when price of livestock is low.

Urge To Use His Own Intelligence Is Best Advice Farmer Can Obtain

(By ALEC. McGREGOR.)

It was a queen of France, if memory serves us, who, when told that the rebellious peasants in her domain were unable to get bread in all innocence asked, "Then why don't they eat cake?" Her Majesty was neither sarcastic nor officious. Her suggestion was offered in perfectly good faith. The trouble was that she had no knowledge of the situation as it really existed, and spoke from the wide expanse of her inexperience.

Individuals, with no better qualifications for their self-imposed task, have essayed to advise the farmers of Ontario as to the best means of improving their conditions, or of how to meet an emergency in their affairs when adverse weather conditions, crop failures and low prices combine to threaten them with bankruptcy. These voluble advisers include representatives of different classes. There is the politician who takes this method under the delusion that betraying an interest in rural problems will make him votes among the tillers of the soil. There is the armchair farmer, who, seated in a swivel chair and with his feet on a desk, dreams of plans for saving the universe in at least a temporal sense. Worst of all, perhaps, is the synthetic agriculturalist whose information is of a purely academic nature.

It is little wonder that the farmer is timid unto death, or it may be resentful of advice. He has been for years the victim of altruists and busy-bodies. No farmer, in his senses, would think of dropping in on a merchant and, without solicitation on the part of the latter, undertaking to advise him in the management of his business. Or, supposing he so far forgot professional ethics as to do so, how would such suggestions be received?

A favorite form of advice is to encourage a farmer, when one line has failed him, to undertake another, without making it clear that the new venture is likely to show any better results. If there is no profitable market for one product, is there any probability that the price available for another will be any better?

A few instances in which farmers have been misled may be given by way of illustration. Back in the years before the early nineties, the farmers of Ontario had a good market for their barley in the United States, a grain that was eminently suited to the soil and climate of this Province. Then the McKinley tariff of 1891 imposed a duty of 30 cents a bushel on Canadian barley, a duty that was prohibitive, and exports to the United States were stopped. The farmer found one major source of income suddenly cut off, and, naturally enough, was disposed to rail against the politicians who preached high tariff as the panacea for all economic ills.

The politicians in Canada suavely sought to appease the farmer by advising him to send his barley to the British market, adding that to do so would be a practical expression of loyalty to the Empire. In those days the expression, "No truck or trade with the Yankees," had not been coined as a campaign slogan, but the spirit which inspired it had already been born.

The barley wanted in Britain was a different variety from that grown in Ontario. Some of the farmers who tried it proved, to their cost, that it could not be successfully produced here, and so another enterprise, fostered by political necessity, fell through.

It was a Government official in Ontario who, a few years ago, advised the farmers to go into the raising of sweet potatoes, in competition with the planters of the south. Thousands of dollars, they said, were sent every year to the United States in payment of these imported comestibles. Why should not the farmers of Ontario keep the money at home?

Some imitative agriculturalists in New Ontario actually did venture as advised, but if the results were not disastrous they were at least unsuccessful. In the Southern States, with their semi-tropical climate, sweet potatoes grow almost as freely as do weeds. A bed is set out, and from this the tops are taken, cut into small pieces, and thrust into the ground.

There is, however, some advise offered the farmers, coming, as it does, from reliable authority, that is valuable. Department experts have shown him the benefit to be derived from improving his stock. It costs no more to maintain a revenue-producing cow than it does to carry one that, in the very nature of things, can never earn her keep. The farmer has been shown how to keep individual records of his dairy herd so as to ascertain which are assets and which are liabilities.

The farmer, too, has in his own interests, been advised how to improve and grade his produce so as to hold his own in competition in the markets of the world. This is especially true in the case of cheese and bacon, which are sent to the British market. When it comes to disposing of these, there is no sentimental preference shown for them over the same articles from Denmark or other foreign countries. It is the high-class product that commands the price. When a Britisher purchases cheese or fruit bearing the Canadian brand, he wants the assurance that the article is in every respect as recommended.

Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture in the Provincial Cabinet, is an actual rather than a synthetic farmer. He has, by his own efforts, made a success of his vocation. He is ready and willing to give his fellow farmers the benefit of his experience, and invites them to apply to him for information at any time. At Peterborough recently, he delivered two addresses which should be included in every handbook on agriculture. In one of these he dealt with the question of dairy cows and of the care that should be taken in preparing for marketing all sorts of farm produce. Here was a man speaking from actual experience, and talking, not as a politician, but as a farmer, both of which facts should inspire his hearers with confidence in his utterances.

Mr. Martin is one of the few successful poultry men in Ontario, and he is convinced that by the use of intelligent methods, the raising of hens can be made one of the best money-getters on the farm, a line that will produce revenue every season in the year.

The ambition to raise chickens comes to every honest man once in a lifetime, whether he resides in town or country, just as does the firm conviction to the farmer that he can make a backyard garden pay.

If a man makes either venture and fails as so many do, it is not because the basic idea is wrong, but for the reason that in nine cases out of ten he is taking up a line about which he knows little or nothing.

Law of the Harvest Applies In Manvers.

JANETVILLE, May 14. — On the high land of Manvers a great deal of sowing has been done, but the continual wet weather, and the condition of the low land, is causing some uneasiness. There is a law governing seed-time and harvest. The law is this: that the August sun will ripen the crops whether they are mature or not; so that the grain that is sown late has never the same chance as the early sown. Farmers are already beginning to plan for buckwheat, corn, roots, and later crops. The hay and fall wheat are giving great promise of an abundant crop.

HIGHER FARM WAGES.

OTTAWA.—The average wages of farm help showed a slight advance for 1923, as compared with 1923, according to a bulletin prepared by the Bureau of Statistics. For Canada the average wages per month of farm helpers during the summer months of 1923, including board, were, for men, $61, as against $59 in 1922, and for women $39, the same as in 1922.

Bailieboro Farmers Showed Good Wisdom.

BAILIEBORO, May 14.—So far, there has been sufficient farm help in this district. The majority of the farmers had hired their help during the winter months, so that they would be sure of their help when they needed it. Many farmers who are working one hundred acres of land, have not hired an extra man for the season, but are hiring a man by the day when they find it necessary to have any extra help.

The acreage of spring grain that is being sowed this season in the majority of cases is considerably more than last year although there was not as large an acreage of fall wheat sowed by the farmers of this district last fall.

The prices of farm produce locally are—20c per dozen for eggs and 25c for butter. Oats are selling from 50c to 60c per bushel

REFEREE FOR RUGBY FINAL

Sam Freethy of Wales Accepted As Arbiter By French and United States Teams.

PARIS, May 13.—Sam Freethy, of Wales, has been accepted as referee of the France-United States match in the final game for the Olympic rugby competition next Sunday by both Samuel Goodman, manager of the United States team, and Captain Lesserre, of the French team.

The clash between the French and United States team is given unusual prominence in the press and is the subject of all conversations in rugby circles. An official communique issued by the French Olympic committee this evening declares

"It was the unanimous opinion of experts who witnessed the Rumanian-United States match last Sunday that the United States players did not play the rough game which critics were wont to predict they would.

"Those who still, despite these proofs, continue to proclaim that the United States team will employ especially rough tactics and rely on brute force to smash their way through the French team on Sunday are mistaken. The United States team expect to win through superior athletic form and physical condition, and their wonderful ability to pass the ball without fumbling."

BOWLING.

BELMONT CLUB TOURNAMENT STARTS TONIGHT

The Belmont Club five pin tournament starts tonight at Solomon's Alleys and over forty bowlers will take part. The bowlers will use four alleys and will start at 7 o'clock sharp. This is a straight tournament, no handicap being given.

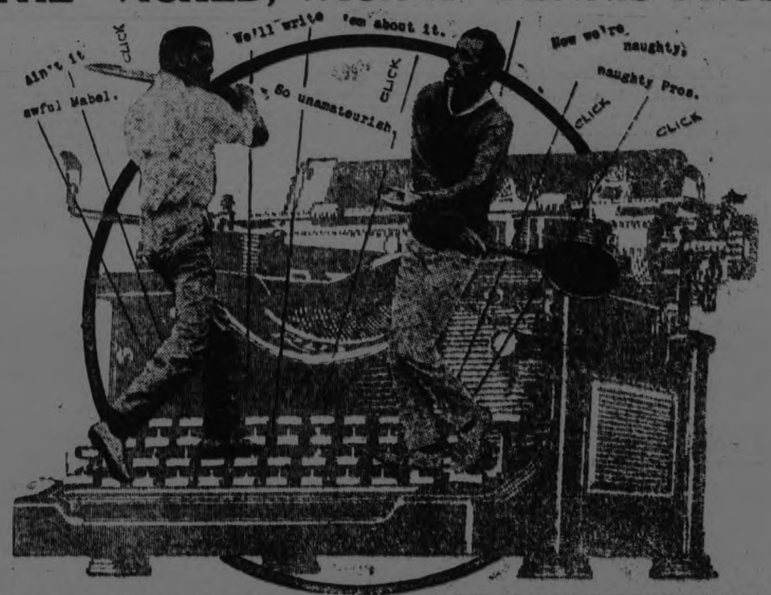
BIG GAME THURSDAY

The High Rollers and the DeLaval hook up Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the most important ten pin game of the season. If the DeLaval lose one they are tied with the Lawn Bowlers for second place. If they lose three they are out of the prizes, but if they win three they win second place and the Lawn Bowlers will get third, while the High Rollers will fade entirely out of the picture.

DEFAULT THREE.

The Examiner team defaulted their game to the C.G.E. last night. The Examiner team finished in last place.

THE WICKED, WICKED TENNIS PROS!



RICHARDS, LEFT; TILDEN, RIGHT, AND THE TYPEWRITER THAT SPLIT THE TENNIS WORLD WIDE OPEN.

AS SOME TENNIS OFFICIALS SEE IT:

You Are An Amateur—

If you were born in Newport with a silver racquet in your mouth, if you give all your time to tennis and never besmirch your delicately manicured fingers with work, if you spend your winters at the gay southern resorts and your summers at the fashionable beaches, if you wear your white flanneis with a Prince of Wales touch, if you do nothing at all and do it well, then you are an amateur in excellent standing—a noble, inspiring figure with the power to exert a tremendous good in athletics.

You Are a Professional:—

If your name does not appear in the blue book, if you stoop to such gross vulgarities as work and enterprise, if you devote part of the pay to building for the future, if you so much as express the belief that there are other things in the world more important than a foot fault or overhand serve, if you look upon tennis as a recreation instead of a life pursuit, if you are possessed of a healthy ambition to be a business success, then you are a professional— an "evil influence," and altogether a terrible thing.

The Warwick-Notts schedule was not played owing to rain.

JUNIOR SOCCER

There was a full attendance at the Junior Executive meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms on Monday evening. There were representatives from Campbellford, Lindsay, Lakehurst and North Dummer, and the Executive decided to play the County Cup ties later in the season to oblige the clubs from the district.

The league schedule was drawn up. The first game takes place on Thursday evening on King Edward Park. Kick-off at 6 p.m. The contesting teams will be the C. P. C. Juniors and C.P.C. Greybirds. His Worship the Mayor, Mr. J. J. Turner, will kick-off and Mr. Kellar will referee the game.

The team to represent the Greybirds will be selected from the following players: J. Jenkins, Lindsay, H. Bradley, H. Hotson, Feeley, Batley, A. Anderson, J. Edwards, T. Foster, J. Lynch, Cross, Kilenbeck and P. Vinet.

The C.P.C. Juniors will select from the following: T. Montgomery, J. Downer, H. Curtis, J. Soutar, Halliday, Mitchell, James, Strudley, Carmichael, Billingsley, Jack Montgomery and Stanley Willis.

On Saturday afternoon on King Edward Park North Dummer will play their first league game in the city when they meet the White Bros. crack junior team, the Masseys. Mr. Louis Yeotes, the donor of the League Cup, will kick-off at 2 p.m. Mr. S. Callidine will referee.

LINDSAY MIDGETS IN THE JUVENILE SERIES

LNDSAY, May 13.—Classics of the East Ward, who won the Midget League last year and played home and home games against Peterborough in the O.B.A. almost to a man will play again this year and although the majority of them can qualify for the Midget Series, they have decided to step up a round in the ladder and will compete in the Juvenile series.

It was decided not to enter the Midget series of the O. B. A., as some of the players in the Juvenile series will likely play in the Midget series as well.

DIAMOND DUST

Final preliminaries were arranged for the Mercantile League at a meeting held last night in Cressman's store. President H. W. Cressman was in the chair and every club was represented.

Various items were discussed and the schedule, as arranged, was adopted. All games will be played at Riverside Park.

The same constitutions will govern the league this year as did last with the exception of one new clause which stops the C.G.E. team from using any of their Midland League players. The C.G.E. representative assured the meeting that the C.G.E. Mercantile team had nothing to do with the team that is in the Midland League. It is an entirely different team.

Mr. Cressman pointed out that the teams must get away on time this season. He stated that all games were scheduled for six o'clock, with the exception of the games the Quaker Oats figure in and they will start at 6:15. This gives the Quaker Oats a chance to get over to the grounds as most of their players work until six o'clock.

The entrance fees have all been paid but two and they will be forwarded immediately. No team can start unless their entrance fee is paid.

A motion was adopted that all club secretaries must forward a list of their players to the secretary of the league before the opening game. If a new player is signed after the season starts the league secretary is to be informed and his name added to the list.

Mr. Harry Cobb was the unanimous choice for official league umpire with the privilege to pick his assistant.

The Mackey's ball team will practice Thursday evening at the new Exhibition Park diamond. All those wishing to try out should be on hand at six o'clock. Bob hold hopes for his team in the East Peterborough League this season and has lined up a nifty team, but there is still room for a few hustling ball tossers. "Hip" Hardill has been out with the breadmen and will likely lineup with Bob and cover the initial sack. "Hip" covered first base for the Bankers and then the Adanacs in the past and did yeoman service in reaching for the wide ones.

"Jeff" Hardill, the brother of the above-mentioned "Hip," is out with the C.G.E. this season and will likely take his turn at slanting them across for last season's champs. "Jeff" has moved up from junior ranks where he kept company with the Adanacs and did their pitching.

MERCANTILE NOTES.

"Hip" Hardill will be allowed to play one game for the Bankers if he desires and then must finish the season with the Western Clock, where he will take a position on June 1.

The Quakers Oats will use Howard Kirn for catcher and Clayton Turner for pitcher. This will likely be their battery for the season.

The Bankers will lose "Jeff" Hardill's services as a pitcher, as he is going to work at the C.G.E. and play for that club in the Midland League. The Bankers, however, are not worrying, as a new pitcher arrived from Kingston today, and they say he is a beut.

TUNNEY AFTER FRENCH BOXER

Will Follow Carpentier to Michigan City Armed With Contract and Assisted By Lawyer.

NEW YORK, May 14. — Georges Carpentier, French light heavyweight, and his manager, Francois Descamps, who arrived Tuesday on the Majestic, evaded Billy Gibson and a coterie of lawyers, and is now en route to Chicago to fill his engagement to meet Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul, in Michigan City, Ind, on May 31, according to word received from Jack Curley, Carpentier's United States representative, from Philadelphia.

Gibson, Gene Tunney's manager, who says he holds a contract for Carpentier to box Tunney in New York before the Frenchman fulfills his contract to meet Gibbons in the west, met the party when the Majestic docked at noon and made an appointment to meet Descamps in a Broadway hotel later in the afternoon to settle the controversy without the use of legal pressure.

Curley, according to word he sent from Philadelphia, induced the Frenchman to abandon the idea of meeting Gibson and rush to Chicago before the legal machinery, to which Gibson threatened to resort, had been set in operation.

Gibson, in the event Descamps failed to agree to meet Tunney first, had threatened to serve a summons on the Frenchman and his manager for alleged breach of contract, and fight any attempt made to stage the Gibbons-Carpentier match in Michigan City.

Tunney's manager and a coterie of lawyers waited for two hours in the hotel lobby for Descamps' appearance and when he failed to appear announced that he would start west immediately and instigate legal proceedings there.

Carpentier appeared a trifle heavier than when he met Jack Dempsey in Boyle's Thirty Acres in 1921. He looked in fine condition and his right hand, which was broken in the Dempsey bout, apparently had healed to his satisfaction.

He was accompanied by Paul Fritsch, European lightweight champion; Charles Ledoux, European featherweight champion, and Johnny Sullivan, welterweight, in addition to his manager, Francois Descamps, and his trainer, Gus Wilson.

LACROSSE TEAM NEEDS PRACTICE

Rain for the Past Week Has Kept the Campbellford Boys Off the Field.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 13.—The lacrosse players have been unable to practice on the evenings allotted to them to se the fair grounds—Friday and Monday—on account of rain on both days, but if the weather permits, they will be out tonight. A game has finally been arranged for the celebration on May 24, when the visitors will be an all-star team from Trenton. Special handbills announcing their new members, were put out yesterday. The game will be called at 1 o'clock sharp so as not to interfere with the football and baseball matches, the hours for which were set before a lacrosse game was decided upon.

An effort will be made to get on a return match with Trenton on May 26, or June 3, if a celebration is held on either holiday in that town. If neither day is observed in Trenton, a holiday game with some other team will be arranged.

Meeting Postponed

A special meeting of the town council called for last night to deal with the sewer question on the west side, was postponed until Thursday evening, as some members of the council were unable to attend.

TILDEN DISPUTE NEARS SOLUTION

Player-Writer Controversy In Tennis Circles to Be Reconsidered By U. S. Tennis Association.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Speedy solution of the tennis player-writer controversy that has evolved for the past week about the racquet and pen of William T. Tilden, II., was predicted last night by both sides to the controversy. The feeling of satisfaction in both camps followed the action of President George W. Wightman in paving the way for a special meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association to reconsider the whole player-writer question. This step preceded publication of a statement by Tilden asserting his readiness to abide by the decision of such a special meeting and adding that, on the day it is called, he will withdraw his resignation from the United States Davis Cup team.

Tilden's friends hailed President Wightman's as the first step toward victory for ther viewpoint. Some asserted advance knowledge of Tilden's staement promoted the apparently hasty decision of Association officials and confidently expressed the belief that sentiment, crystallizing in favor of Tilden, would result in rescinding or radically revising the player-writer rule at the proposed special meeting.

THE KIWANIS CLUB HAD PARTY

The local Kiwanis Club had a very enjoyable party, with cards and dancing the order of the evening, in the Peterboro Club, last evening. Over two hundred guests were present, including several carloads of Lindsay Kiwanians. The big dance hall and the lounge room were used for cards, and cleared later for dancing, which took place from eleven o'clock until two. The rooms were decorated in very artistic and attractive fashion with the Kiwanis colors of blue and white, in long festoons of crepe paper on the walls and basket effects on the chandeliers, carried out by designs of Mr. Harold Jeffries. Patronesses for the occasion were Mesdames J. R. Marshall, J. A. Jeffries, C. Cook, E. H. Wood, J. A. McKone. The men's committee was composed of Dr. E. H. Wood and Messrs. J. A. Jeffries and J. McKone. Excellent music for dancing was furnished by Ken. Blood's orchestra from Port Hope. First and second prizes for cards at the fifty-five tables were: Bridge, Mesdames W. E. Conway and J. A. McKone and Messrs. J. Mills and C. Browne. Prizes for five hundred were won by Mesdames T. G. Loudon and F. Whitehouse and Messrs. Detcher and C. McLean.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. C. Adair, Mr. and Mrs. Ford Turner, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Conway, Mr. and Mrs. C. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. J. Dewart, Mr. and Mrs. G. Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. J. DEFUNCT BANK CASE UP AGAIN

Last Minute Effort to Save the Wrecked Bank

OTTAWA, May 14.—(Canadian Press.)—"I do not think that policy of recompensing depositors and taking over the wreck of the bank would appeal to the government," said Commissioner H. A. McKeown this morning, during the Home Bank inquiry, Commissioner was listening to argument by R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., one of depositors counsel, and was trying to ascertain whether or not it would be possible to discover approximate amount necessary to meet depositors loss. While he was asking questions to this end, suggestion was made that government might consider not only reimbursing depositors, but also taking over the wrecked bank.

Counsel for depositors agreed that with affairs of the bank in their present condition it was almost impossible to determine the amount which would be required to pay depositors.

Hon. James A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, was examined this morning when the Royal Commission investigating the Home Bank, resumed its hearing here.

In answer to H. J. Simington, counsel for government, Mr. Robb said that he was acting for Finance Minister Fielding in August, 1923, when J. F. M. Stewart, one of the directors of the Home Bank, came to Ottawa to try and get help for the Bank. Mr. Robb told of conference at home of Prime Minister and stated that next day he had a conference with R. P. Gough, vice-president of the Bank and Casey Wood, one of the directors. Messrs. Gough and Wood had gone to Montreal on the noon train. "I followed on the afternoon train because I wanted to keep in touch with the matter," said Mr. Robb. Mr. Robb said he was present when the directors had an interview with Sir Vincent Meredith, President of the Bank of Montreal. They made frank statement of conditions of the bank and Sir Vincent "did not give them much hope."

However he had promised to consider the matter and see if an advance could be arranged to tide over until the question of arranging an amalgamation with another bank was considered. Mr. Robb said that he had informed Sir Vincent that he (Mr. Robb) was there merely as an onlooker although the government was anxious to avert failure.

Hon. T. A. Crerar, former director of the bank, was recalled to the stand for a few minutes and Sir Thomas White gave evidence in regard to the payment of $1,500 to him by the bank shortly before it failed.

Argument will be continued this afternoon.

OSHKIGMONG NEWS

OSHKIGMONG, May 14.—Last Sunday Mothers' day was observed in the village. The church was attractively decorated for the occasion with flowers and streamers. At the morning service Mr. H. E. Hawley, of Peterborough, preached to a large and attentive congregation from the insiring words, "Lift up your eyes and look on the fields, for they are ready to harvest." The Mississauga band rendered several sacred selections which enlivened the occasion. Inthe afternoon the children, with their mothers, came to the Sunday school wearing flowers. In the evening Kezickabetong spoke to the young people on "Devotion to Mothers."

Friday and Saturday of last week were set apart for a general cleaning up. Maple trees were planted in front of the church and school, the playground was levelled off and the trees if they take root will give an attractive appearance.

Mrs. E. Bigeanoe, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Wilfrid Jacobs, has gone home to Jackson's Point, near Sutton West.

The ferry has been repaired and is ready to do good service for the summer.

HERRIOT WANTS STABILIZATION

Poincare Plans a Vacation and Andre Tardieu Will Enter Business in United States.

(By Miller—United Press Staff Correspondent).

PARIS, May 14. — The first preoccupation of a Government of the Left should be to assure financial stability with a regime of internation entente and peace, Edward Herriot, leader of the Radical socialists, and likely successor to Premier Poincare, declared to-day.

It is considered probable that Herriot will be the first invited to form a Cabinet when the present Government resigns on June 1st.

Poincare is planning to withdraw from public life for a while and may ask a vacation from the Senate.

Andre Tardieu, who was defeated in Sunday's elections, intends to abandon politics and go to the United States to enter business. His newspaper, The Echo National, will suspend publication on Friday.

COBOURG PLANNING FOR OPENING GAME

Raybestos and C.G.E. of This City Will Make Their Debut at Cobourg on the 24th of May.

COBOURG, May 14 (Special).—Cobourg fans are planning for the opening of the baseball season at Horse Show Park here on May 24. The grounds are being put in good shape for the event. The Canadian General Electric and the Raybestos are to play here that day.

The Cobourg Kilties Band will be in attendance and will head the parade of players and officials who will leave the armouries at one o'clock for Horse Show Park. Upon arrival at the park there will be the opening ceremonies and the hoisting of the league pennant, which is to become the property of the championship team.

The band will give a short concert before the first game which is called for 2 p.m., when the local Canadian National team will try conclusions with the Canadian General Electrics. At 4 p.m. the Raybestos team will meet the Cobourg Dye Works. The local teams are looking for the same generous patronage as was accorded the Central League team last season.

BODY GUARD OF WORST ENEMIES

Prince Regent of Ethiopia Takes No Chances of an Insurrection.

MARSEILLES, May 14 (United Press). — When Ras Taffari, Prince Regent of Ethiopia, travels, he takes no chances of an insurrection. He carries his enemies along as a bodyguard.

Arriving here en route to Paris today he was accompanied by four chieftains, all of them his bitter enemies.

"Unlike the late President Wilson of the United States, I am bringing my lodge and hitchcock with me," he explained.

The Prince is a member of the world's oldest royal family, tracing his ancestry bask to King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.

He is heavily laden with magnifilent gifts for th Europan rulrs, incent gifts for the European rulers, including lions and zebras for President Millerand and King George.

He also has many polished elephant tusks as gifts.

He will be received with royal honours and entertained at the Quai D'Orsay.

FOOTBALL.

The League game between the Vets. and the Canadian Woollens will be played at the King Edward Park on Thursday night, May 15, at 6 o'clock. Will the following Woollens players be on hand early: Hillman, Read, Perry, Quinn, Monkman, Ward, Sayers, Mitchell, Chambers, Wylie, Gaskell, Roberts, Jackson, Jones.

PETER SMITH REMANDED.

TORONTO, May 14.—(Canadian Press).—Peter Smith, former Provincial Treasurer, was remanded for eight days when he appeared in the Police Court this afternoon on ten charges of conspiracy to defraud the Province of Ontario.

H. H. Dewart, K.C., counsel for Mr. Smith, made another unsuccessful attempt to secure particulars on the charges against his client. He maintained that the Attorney-General of Ontario should have allowed the information to be given out.

APPOINTED REGISTRAR.

TORONTO, May 14 (Canadian Press). — Thomas Crawford, former Speaker of the Ontario Legislature, and now member for North-West Toronto, will, it is understood, be appointed soon as Registrar of Deeds for Toronto in succession to the late J. W. Curry, K.C.

CONSIDER REPORTS FIRST.

LONDON, May 14. — Prime Minister MacDonald told a questioner in the House of Commons to-day that he would not consider calling a conference on the interallied war debt until conclusions have been reached regarding issues raised by reports of the experts' committees.

JACK DEMPSEY

The Messrs. Willard, Brennan and Firpo, among others, are quite willing to admit Jack Dempsey is a slugger of no uncertain power.

At present the heavyweight champion is doing some slugging of a different sort out on the coast, where he keeps in training working out at intervals with the Los Angeles players in the Pacific Coast League.

'Tis said the champ takes a mean cut at the ball.

SAYS BOOTLEGGERS' PLEA WAS FAKED FOR PURPOSE

WASHINGTON, May 14 (Canadian Press). — The recent petition from the Bootleggers' Union of America, protesting modification of the Volstead Act to permit the sale of 2.75 per cent. beer, was assailed to-day by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, before the House Judiciary Committee, as "a sample of the lengths to which the opposition goes to make people believe that Prohibition is a failure."

He branded the petition as a fake. Wheeler told the committee, which resumed the hearings on the Bills proposing modification of the Prohibition law that "there never has been as determined and widespread effort by bootleggers of beer, rumrunners, breakers, and their allies to discredit any policy of Government, as that used to break down the enforcement of Prohibition."

NEGRESS BEATS POLICE MATRON TO DEATH IN CELL.

WILMINGTON, Del., May 14.—Annie Lewis, negress, accused of beating to death Mrs. Mary T. Davis, police matron, in a station house here last night, was re-arrested today.

The negress was arrested last night on a charge of carrying a pistol.

Later, a woman brought to the police station a bunch of keys she found on a sidewalk.

They were identified as the matron's keys.

Mrs. Davis was found dead in a cell.

FURTHER EFFORTS MADE TO PREVENT EXCLUSION

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(Canadian Press).— Further steps were taken by United States Government to-day to obtain postponement of Japanese exclusion. The President is understood to have presented again the administration's view that Japanese exclusion should be postponed until diplomatic negotiations can be conducted with Japan.

DR. SUN YAT SEN DEAD

HONG KONG, May 14.—(Canadian Press.)—Dr. Sun Yat Sen, President of South China Government, is dead.

CANNOT USE OWN JAVELINS.

Athlete Must Throw Those Furnished by Committee in Olympic Trial

BOSTON, May 14.—Only javelins furnished by the games committee will be allowed in the final American Olympic track team tryouts at the Harvard Stadium on June 13 and 14, William C. Prout, Chairman of the committee announced to-day. Athletes competing in the other field events may use their own implements.

Any discus which complies with the specifications of the International Amateur Athletic Federations rules may be used, but the committee recommends that competitors familiarize themselves with the Finnish discus, which probably will be used in the Olympic Games.

The committee also recommends that shot-put competitors familiarize themselves with the use of iron hot upon which the International Committee insisted on at Antwerp in 1920 and may insist on at Paris in July.

TAKES OLYMPIC OATH.

PARIS, May 14.—Georges Andre, one of France's best high jumpers, has been selected by the Olympic Executive Committee to take the Olympic oath at the ceremonies opening the 1924 games at the Colombes Stadium. Andre in 1922 was the French champion in the 200 metres hurdle race, and was also a member of the Racing Club's relay team that won the French championship that year.

CHILDREN'S AID HELD MEETING

Delegates to the Annual Convention in Toronto —Accounts Passed.

The regular monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held yesterday afternoon in the board room of the Chamber of Commerce, with the following members present: B. F. Ackerman, chairman; Messrs. J. Edgar, G. W. Powell, J. Abraham, W. J. Hopwood, W. Stocker, F. H. Dobbn, Rev. Dr. Blagrave, Rev. W. H. Young, Mesdames Gibbs, Fanning Knox, Hill, Hodgson, Welsh, Devey.

The secretary, J. Edgar, read the minutes of the previous meeting and also gave the matron's report, showing a total of 22 children in the Shelter during the month of April, two brought in, nine sent out, and one sick with the quinsy.

Mr. G. W. Powell, the agent, gave his report, recording three applications for children; children returned to parents, five; wards visted, four.

Mr. Powell also spoke of the annual convention of Children's Aid Societies being held in Toronto today, to-morrow and on Friday, and referred to a letter received from the National Railways offering reduced rates to the convention for parties of ten. Mr. Powell attends the convention yearly as a governmental representative. It was decided to send one of the lady members of the Board to Toronto as a delegate, and Mrs. J. S. Fanning was chosen. Mrs. Fanning spoke of her intention of motoring to Toronto, and asked that another lady accompany her, whereupon Mrs. J. Welsh was nominated.

Among the letters forwarded by J. J. Kelso of Toronto, to the agent here, was a communication from an enthusiastic agent in another section, recording the purchase by his board for his use of a sedan car. This excited some humorous comment from Mr. Powell.

Mr. Kelso also wrote, asking that certain trust funds held by the society for wards formerly in their charge, now resident in Hamilton, be forwarded to him, for use in the maintenance of the family at Hamilton.

After some discussion it was decided, on motion of W. Stocker and F. H. Dobbin, to transfer the bonds, amounting to $700.00 and accrued interest, to Mr. Kelso, as requested.

In the course of the debate on this question, and after Mr. Powell had informed the Board that the society now holds bonds to the amount of $10,000.00 in trust for various wards of the organization, the information was vouchsafed by Mr. W. J. Hopwood that banks and bankers are not legally empowered to personally handle such bonds for safe keeping unless placed in their care in a safety deposit box.

It was announced that $500 of a bequest of $1000 from the estate of the late Miss Lundy had been paid in to the treasurer.

A motion was passed to forward the fee of $10 to the treasurer of the annual convention in Toronto.

Mr. Powell threw out a suggestion that now was an acceptable time to renew the supply of little pigs that added to the joy of life at the Shelter last year and grew up to provide some good meals for the wards during the winter months. He also spoke of the advisability of disposing of the two or more tons of hay at present stored in the Shelter barn.

A motion voiced by Mr. F. H. Dobin, that the secretary make arrangements to sell the hay recoiled on its maker's head, when Mr. Edgar countered with another motion to place the matter in the hands of the Property Committee, of which Mr. Dobin is the chairman. The latter motion was passed.

Mr. Ackerman announced that Adjutant Smith had offered the services of the Salvation Army junior band to provide a concert for the wards at the Shelter, and a suggestion made that the offer of the army be accepted and the occasion turned into a strawberry festival later on, was agreed upon. The ladies of the Board were requested to look after the arrangements for the festival, to take place about the end of June.

An inquiry by Mr. Dobbin as to the satisfactoriness of the new Shelter premises during the cold weather, brought an opinion from the ladies, voiced by Mrs. Gibbs, that it was a very comfortable and warm building. A little more expense had been entailed this winter by reason of the measles epidemic and the resultng quarantine, which required extra coal for heating purposes. The quarantine is now lifted.

The report of the purchasing committee was given by Mrs. W. H. Gibbs, as follows: J. C. Turnbull, $7.93; G. W. Powell (expenses) $7.16; D. Rogers (apples) $1.25; J. M. Heard (milk) $7.25; Woolworth Co., $3.60; Peterboro Milk Products, Ltd., $8.91. J. A. Curry (apples) $1.50; R. Denne, $2.25; Warne Drug Co., 65c; Bond drug store, $2.50; P. S. White Co., $15.85 Howden & Evans (shoes) $5.15; telephones (two) $6.17; Mackey's Bread Co., $12.07; Veteran Bread Co., $9.09; Higgins Hardware Co., $3.90; W. H. Hamilton, $1.45; Peterboro Lumber Co., $6; total $105.68.

Donations were received as follows Downeyflake Tea Rooms, doughnuts, St. Paul's church, clothing; Knox church, cake; Mr. Mahood, meat, George street church Bible class, cakes and pie; Mr. Gray, sandwiches. St. Paul's church, meat, bread, butter, pie; Flower Guild of Trinity church, cake and candy; St. James' Methodist church, cake; Mrs. Hodgson, hats; St. John's bazaar, clothing, hats; Mrs. Edgar, print and yarn Oddfellows' Hall, cake; J. Bickell 1 bag turnips; H. Girven, 1 bag of turnips.

CROUCH-RICHARDS FOUR OFFER NOVEL PROGRAM AT CAPITOL TO-DAY

To-night is the last opportunity Peterboro will have of hearing the Crouch-Richards Four in their novel musical offering, entitled "Colonial Days," in which this gifted quartette offer a snappy line of jazz selections on banjos, saxaphones and the 'cello.

AUSTRALIAN WHISTLERS, COMEDIANS AT CAPITOL THURS., FRI., SAT.

The Australian La Merts, a clever team, will offer their specialty whistling, singing, imitations and pianologues at the Capitol Theatre the last three days of this week. This act is considered one of vaudeville's best entertainments and will go over big with Capitol patrons. The feature, Strongheart, in his best picture, "The Love Master," assures a good evening's amusement.

DOG BATTLES WITH AN UNSEEN SPECTRE

If you fear death—and who doesn't?—go to the Capital on Thursday, Friday or Saturday and see Strongheart, the wonder dog, in a play called "The Love Master." There is a scene in it that will make you believe that if you can get a dog as wonderful as Strongheart, who will be as loyal to you as he is to the David of the screen play, death can never come near you.

It is a daring scene Director Laurence Trimble has asked Strongheart to play, and, all honor to this canine actor, he makes it seem convincing. Briefly, while humans are waiting for Strongheart's master to die, with the end expected momentarily, Strongheart sees something, invisible to the audience, enter the room. His whole attitude shows that it is something that threatens his master, and, while the watchers see life ebbing out of the master's eye, giving way to death, Strongheart begins his battle. It is a physical battle waged with an unseen presence, and he wins.

It sounds like motion picture hokum—a brief recital of this scene, but it is impossible to watch it and not believe that death is a tangible thing that a dog's loyalty and bravery can drive away. Perhaps you will laugh at the idea, but in the theatre this scene will get to you so that you will sink back in your seat with a sigh of satisfaction when this wonder dog sits down on his haunches and traces with his eyes the flight of an unseen spectre over the horizon.

AT THE ROYAL

TOURNEUR'S "TORMENT" IS FINE PHOTOPLAY

Noted Director's Latest Production Proves the Most Absorbing He Has Yet Given Screen.

Maurice Tourneur's love for the picturesque, the thrilling and the unusual is again given full sway in his screen production of "Torment," the First National picture which begins an engagement at the Royal Theatre to-morrow.

More than that, it is the most vivid, fascinating film that he has yet contributed to the silent drama—which is saying a great deal when one considers the consistently good contributions that he has made in recent years with pleasing regularity.

Bessie Love, as the sweet and simple heroine, has the leading feminine role, with that capable actor, Owen Moore, giving a strong characterization opposite her. Jean Hersholt is to be seen in a role similar to that of his "Servant in the House," while important parts are taken by Maude George, George Cooper, Morgan Wallace and Otto Lederer. With this well-chosen cast to aid him and his story, Tourneur has achieved a splendid result.

The story moves swiftly and dramatically. It begins with the seething of the Russian revolution, involves the theft of the crown jewels, and ends with the great Japanese earthquake as the powerful climax. In between there is a sea voyage, with many scenes of beauty, such as those for which Tourneur is noted, and a thrilling hold-up of an American express train.

Owen Moore has the part of an American crook, reformed in the end through love of Bessie Love, who portrays a servant-girl on the yacht of the American head of an international band of thieves. The love of Boris, the Russian prince, portrayed by Jean Hersholt, for his fellow man, is a theme running through the play around which much of the action revolves.

Tourneur has a knack of pleasing his audiences with pictures. In none has he succeeded better.

SOME INTIMATE INTROSPECTIONS

Players at Royal To-night: Cut-Backs on the Careers of the Nine Known "Names" Whose Cameo Characterizations Form a Feature of the Super-Special, "Don't Marry For Money."

House Peters used to be a "Soldier of the Queen." He served with great gallantry during the Boer War, and was a sergeant of the "Transvaal Tigers" after "Oom" Paul Kruger decided it took the British to beat the Dutch.

The "Transvaal Tigers" was formed after the war to keep down the Kaffirs and Hottentots, and was considered, in point of efficiency, second only to the Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

House Peters is a native South African. (Not African—the 'South' makes a difference.) Movies have made him so much money he can afford to buy up a diamond field or two in his native land should he ever return.

Rubye De Remer used to be a chorypheе in the Ziegfeld Follies. "Third from the end, and one with the dimpled knees" was all the public knew of her then.

Cyril Chadwick used to play a "silly hass" Englishman in vaudeville and musical comedy.

Wedgewood Nowell used to be an orchestra leader in musical stock.

Aileen Pringle studied Voice with De Rezke in Paris.

Christine Mayo used to play wronged heroines in melodrama. When the manager skipped with the salaries one snowy evening in Missesota, Christine declared herself wronged for the last time and that's how the movies captured her.

George Nichols is a pioneer Biograph actor.

Hank Mann used to be with Mack Sennett.

Charles Wellesley used to be with Vitagraph.

AT THE REGENT

"WAY DOWN EAST," AN OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT.

The special engagement of D. W. Griffith's wonder spectacle "Way Down East," now playing at the Regent Theatre to-night only.

This is the outstanding achievement of the theatrical year and to miss it is to pass by the event of the current season.

"Way Down East' is a new art form combining drama, motion picture and music into a combination of stirring appeal, passing through the four seasons in New England and bringing back those quaint and delightful folks who made stage history when Lottie Blair Parker and Jos. R. Grismer introduced this familiar drama to stage land. D. W. Griffith picked up the well known tale where the original dramatists were content to climax it and carries the action forward so intensely that it culminates in the most thrilling scene ever revealed in a theatre in the world. For sheer beauty of landscape and for its realism of atmospheric surroundings "Way Down East" in his hands becomes a classic and its engagement is sure to arouse the same wonderful interest that has attached to it in every quarter where it is now being presented with a measure of success that is not short of astounding.

SIOUX FALLS BANK CLOSES.

Suspension Is Said to be Due to Depleted Reserves.

SIOUX FALLS, S.D., May 13.—The Dakota Trust and Savings Bank of Sioux Falls, a State bank, suspended business yesterday, and was placed in the hands of the State Superintendent of Banking.

No reason was given for the closing in a statement posted on the door, but bank officials intimated that the suspension was made necessary by depleted reserves, caused by withdrawals.

The bank's statement for April showed deposits of $1,048,000, a decrease of $112,000 from those of December.

Powerful A. C. Bedford, executive genius of Standard Oil, pleads: "Relief such as offered by the Mellon tax plan is needed to free capital for investment in new industries and in expansion of that existing. It has been working under a cloud so long it has become timid."
Getting to be an old story. Public is bombarded with it daily. But taxes have to be raised some way, that's sure. If the burden is lifted from one class, it must be transferred to another. How about a little relief for the ultimate consumer who pays taxes indirectly, tacked on to his cost of living? Capital has no monopoly on "tax burden."

OBITUARY.

ALEXANDER ELLIOTT.
Yesterday afternoon the death took place of Alexander Elliott following an illness of over a year. Mr. Elliott was born in Warkworth seventy-one years ago and came to Peterborough when a young man. At one time he was associated with Mr. Harry Rush in the grocery business of Rush & Elliott and later entered the wholesale liquor business. He was a member of Corinthian Lodge, A.F. & A.M., and a member of the Peterborough Club. The deceased was also actively connected with the development of Chemong Park. His wife survives.
The funeral, which will be private, will be held on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock from the family residence, 351 Park street, to Little Lake Cemetery. Dr. R. C. Blagrave will officiate.

MRS. MARY FOX.
The death occurred last night at 10 o'clock of Mrs. Mary Fox in her 78th year. She was born in Montreal, but for the last 10 months she has resided in this city at 179 Bethune street. She was a faithful member of the Methodist church all her life.
There are left to mourn her loss, one sister, Mrs. A. Wigmore, of Hamilton and one adopted son, Mr. H. D. Hutchinson, of this city.
Funeral announcements will be made later.

ISRAEL GOHEEN.
COBOURG, May 14 (Special).—The interment took place on Friday, at Bethel Grove, of an old resident of Hamilton Township in the person of Mr. Israel Goheen, who died at his home in Port Hope at the good old age of eighty-five years. Mr. Goheen was born in the township and lived there until some few years ago when he retired from active agricultural life. Mr. Goheen was married first to Miss Tennyson, of New York State, and after her death, some fifteen years ago, he married Mary Jane Baxter, of Canton, who survives him. Mr. Goheen was a devoted member of the Methodist Church. Besides his widow, he leaves three sons—John, of Bethel Grove, Hamilton Township; Ralph, of Deckerville, Michigan; and Henry, of Hope Township; also three daughters—Mrs. Andrew Cassidy, Toronto; Mrs. H. Williams, of Rochester; and Mrs. Richard Jordon, of Hamilton Township. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. Wood, Baptist minister, and Rev. J. W. Baird, Methodist minister.

Canadian Stock Exchange and Mines | New York Stock Exchange and Curb Prices

TO-DAY'S QUOTATIONS AND OPINION AND REVIEWS OF THE MARKETS.

MINING LETTER.
The mining market worked to lower levels this morning i practically all issues in which any deals were made. There was no urgency in the selling but at the same time support was utterly lacking.
The Toronto and Montreal markets were quiet this morning. Sellers sold consistently at and there seemed to be a good demand for this stock at these figures. The balance of the list was steady.
The New York market was dull, and sentiment was mixed this morning; the rails and shipping stocks were firm, and in some instances fair advances were scored from the opening prices. Advices from New York all indicate that this is a buying market and that a forward movement is not far away.

Wales Bros.: Until the outlook clears up we would confine purchases to the rails and buy them a scale down.
Hornblower and Weeks say: When stocks are being accumulated for the long pull, as seems to be the case, the most buying is done during the last five points decline.
Bache and Co. say: We believe that the buying of good stocks in the period ahead of us will be of much better character than the selling.
Hirsch, Lillienthal and Co.: The development of the last few days is not very encouraging, but do not forget that stocks have had a big decline and that the public are carrying very few.

Clean Your Paint Brush Where It Will Do Good.

When you are painting the kitchen cabinet this spring, paint a few of the cans or jars which serve as containers and paint the bread box to match. A woman gets as much pleasure out of freshly painted furniture as a man does from the bright new coats on his barn or implement sheds.
Then, in order to clean off the paint from the brush, just paint the lower step of the cellar stairs. This may save you a fall some time.
Little white or light colored rings painted around the nails in the utensil cupboard help you to hang the pans or skillets easily for the bright spots show up the nails in the dark closet.
Save the egg money and the cream check so that you can have that window cut in your kitchen or buy that pressure cooker which you will need for vegetable canning during the summer.

BUYING LINEN.
When buying linen it is well to allow two dozen napkins to each table cloth since the napkins receive more wear than the cloth.

ELECTIONS IN B.C.

VICTORIA, B.C., May 14.—Within a few days the elections in British Columbia will be in full swing. With nearly six weeks remaining before polling day, all parties are rushing preparations, and before the end of this week it is expected that the leaders will leave on a speaking tour which will take them to forty-eight ridings.

Clubs Support Musical Festival

The Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs of the city are uniting solidly in support of the Community Festival to be given in the Grand Opera House on Friday evening. At the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club on Monday of this week, practically every member purchased tickets for the event, while President John R. Marshall of the Kiwanis Club, states that his organization is whole-heartedly behind the coming Festival. President Marshall is emphatically of the opinion that achievements of local musical organizations and soloists are deserving of recognition and support from every class in the community.
At the Friday night Festival, the second vocal soloist will be Mr. M. H. Park, who, like Mr. Browne, gained a first and second prize, of gold and bronze medal, respectively, in two tenor competitions. Mr. Park's gold medal was gained as first prize in the operatic work, which class has two interesting test pieces, the aria, "O Vision Entrancing," from the "Esmeralda" of A. Goring Thomas., and Walther's "Prize Song," from the opera, "Die Meistersinger von Nurnberg" (The Mastersingers of Nuremberg), by Richard Wagner. In this opera, the young knight, Walter von Stolzing, falls in love with Eva, the daughter of a jeweller of Nuremberg, whose father vows that he will give her in marriage to the winner of the prize at the mastersingers' concert. The love song of Walther, unacquainted with the rules of poetry or music, but inspired by love and springtime, captures the prize and the maiden.
The aria "O Vision Entrancing" is from an opera by a talented English composer, Arthur Goring Thomas. It was based on a libretto written by Victor Hugo for the French composer, Louise Angelique Bertin, and composed by her, and was written by Thomas from a book on the libretto ,arranged by Theodore Marzials and Alberto Randeger. Produced at Drury Lane in 1883, and afterwards translated into French and German, it met with great success, the originality of the idea, the skill of treatment, as well as the beauty of the theme and the grace of many of the songs, making its very popular.
In the tenor section, in which Mr. Park received second award, the selections chosen were "Brindisi," from the "Cavalleria Rusticanna" of Pietro Mascagni, and "Come, Sweetest Death," by Bach. The first number is from Mascagni's very popular opera, which opened at Rome, in May 1890. The story of the opera is elemental. In it, two peasant women are rivals for a man, and a killing results. Turiddu loves Lola, and goes to the wars. In his absence the fickle Lola weds Alfio, the village carter. Turiddu, returning, still loves Lola, but consoles himself with Santuzza. However, Santuzza becomes enraged at his continued attentions to Lola, and informs Alfio, who kills him. The "Brindisi" selection is the drinking song in that portion of the play where Turiddu and Lola, careless of fate, make love, and Turiddu invites the company to drink with him.
The Bach number is one of the many compositions of the great contrapuntist, of whom it was said that he "was one of the most severely conscientious artists that ever devoted himself to music." An English critic said "His music is beyond that of any other composer difficult of comprehension, but its measureless beauties will ever repay the pains of the student who unravels them."
It was Bach who was the first to use the thumb and the fourth finger on the pianoforte keyboard. He was by no means partial to the piano at first, giving a decided preference to the clavichord, and saying that the piano could only be played "by the devil or its maker."

VOICE OF PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner:
Dear Sir: The directors of the Agricultural Society are doing their very best to give the people of Campbellford and the surrounding country a big day chuckful of sports on Friday, the 23rd of May next. There is to be a—
2:15 trot or pace.
2:20 trot or pace.
2:30 trot or pace.
From present appearances those races will be well contested.
There is to be a baseball match between Lakefield and Campbellford. Manager Davidson's guarantee is back of this match; that speaks volumes.
There is to be a football match between Peterborough and Campbellford, and the Campbellford men are training hard knowing that they have a big job ahead of them.
The tug of war between Percy and Seymour should be a hummer as Seymour feeling that they have an unbeatable team, are not confining Percy to the Percy limits.
The Northumberland Regimental Band is to furnish the music.
To please the lacrosse fans a lacrosse match between Trenton and Campbellford has been arranged.
This is not on the bills and so as not to interfere with the time table of the other sports it is necessary to face the ball for this match at 1 o'clock sharp. This should be a first class game as we feel Campbellford has the best junior lacrosse team in Eastern Ontario and they are all to the "manor born."
Now, Mr. Editor, we appeal to you and all lovers of good lean healthy sport to aid all you can. Have every one come, and leave their troubles behind them. Yours respectfully,
John Locke, President

BEAUTIFYING GROUNDS.
The green sward about the fountain in the lot adjoining St. Peter's Cathedral is being broken up at various points just now, to allow of the placing of the flower beds which will give a touch of colour to the big enclosed space this year. This will be a welcome innovation. The expanse of lawn has always been kept trimly clipped, but the addition of flowers will make it all the more attractive. H. J. Moore, the Governmental expert, who superintended the placing of the trees at the Armour Hill Park, has been supervising the arrangement of the beds. The Cathedral close will have a new fence this year, and the Rectory fence is being renewed also.

All the national cemeteries in the United States have a total area of 153,160 acres.

HON. ARTHUR MEIGHEN ASSERTS THAT GOVERNMENT JUGGLED FIGURES TO SHOW REDUCTION IN DEBT LAST YEAR

Liberal Claim to Decrease of Thirty Millions in Canada's Net Debt Offset By Guaranteeing Railway Bonds to Amount of $72,500,000, Leaving Net Increase of Forty-Two Millions In National Debt—Financial Analysis By the Leader of the Opposition, Who Doubts the Present Tax Cut As Unwarranted.

PREMIER TO REPLY TO-DAY.

OTTAWA, May 15.—Debate on the Budget, which has dragged along over a month, found new life yesterday in the speech of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the opposition. A house which, for days past, has scarcely had a quorum, was filled; the which, for days past, has scarcely had a quorum, was filled; the public galleries were crowded.

Mr. Meighen challenged the statement of the Acting-Minister of Finance in his Budget that last fiscal year had shown an increase in debt of $30,400,000. Now, the previous year showed an increase in not debt of $31,000,000. Therefore, according to the budget statement, said Mr. Meighen, there must have been an improvement in net debt of $62,000,000.

What were the facts? Here Mr. Meighen went into a detailed analysis of the financial position of the Dominion. He held that, outside National Railways and Merchant Marine,, the improvement for the year had been only $870,701. The most claimed in newspaper reports in National Railway net earnings—Mr. Meighen continued — was twenty millions. But examination of returns made to the railway commission showed an operating improvement of $12,000,000 while fixed charges had increased $5,798,000, leaving a net railway improvement of rather more than six millions.

Bonds Guaranteed.

Mr. Meighen took up the question in another way. In the fiscal year previous, Mr. Fielding advanced $98,000,000 out of the treasury to the National Railways, but last year only $25,000,000 was advanced out of the treasury. In 1923-24 however, Mr. Meighen continued, the device was adopted of guaranteeing bonds and this was done to the etxent of $72,500,000, or practically the difference between the cash adavnces of last year with the year before. Therefore, to compare with previous years, the whole of the $72,500,000 in guarantees should be added to the national debt less the thirty millions of "alleged surplus."

This would leave a net increase in debt of $42,090,000.

Figures Juggled.

"We are going into debt over forty-two million dollars," declared Mr. Meighen, "and by juggling of figures endeavoring to persuade the country that we are reducing debt by thirty million dollars/and giving this is an excuse for reducing taxation."

Mr. Meighen doubted if next year's Budget would balance unless the same bookkeeping methods were employed as last year and questioned if the Acting Minister of Finance had any right to reduce taxes at all. He argued that for Canada free trade would be disastrous, and spoke of the tariff reduction as a carefully calculated scheme to get Progressive support at the sacrifice of the least possible number of votes.

Mr. Meighen continues his speech to-day when the Prime Minister also speaks.

A division is expected to-night.

Capital Cost of War.

Speaking of the charge that the late Government would not pay any of the capital costs of the war, Mr. Meighen questioned the use of the phrase capital costs.

The Prime Minster asked if Mr. Meighen contended that the Government was still paying the capital cost.

Mr. Meighen replied that pensions and the upkeen of military hospitals were just as much capital cost as the immediate war expenditures. During the war period $49,925,054 were spent by Government in pensions. In 1919 and 1920 the Government spent $49,062,779 for soldiers' settlement and civil re-establishment.

The Prime Minister asked whether Mr. Meighen regarded soldiers' settlement as capital costs.

There was practically no difference between the cost of making the wound and the cost of curing it, replied Mr. Meighen. The late Government also bore the cost of getting the loans of money with which to carry on the war. During the actual war period the Government expended $43,998,107 for that purpose. A total payment of $184,525,415 was made by the late Government in direct payment of war obligations during the years of the war.

Highest Profits Taxes.

Mr. Meighen pointed out that during the five years of war there were in reality only four years of special taxation. In the spring of 1917 the Government put on the highest profits taxes in the world. They were so high that several of those at present in the Government protested against them as being unfair. Now they were inclined to say: "You didn't tax enough, you let the profiteer go." Having regard to the unique position which the country was in, the Government then went as far as was reasonable under the circumstances.

Mr. Meighen wondered how the acting Minister of Finance could justify the reduction in taxation. Revenue was going down. It was doubtful if the sales tax would bring as much next year as it had this. Mr. Meighen doubted if he would balance his budget next year unless the bookkeeping methods were employed as were used this year. He doubted if the Acting Minister had any right to reduce taxes at all. To a small degree the sales tax and the business profits tax were fair methods. He wondered how the Progressives would reconcile themselves to the abolition of the sales tax on farm impdements after they had so long pointed to special privileges.

Reference to Protection.

Mr. Meighen believed in the protective system and when this country would have it, it would be balanced, equitable and just and there would be no "gerrymandering." Protection was in use the world over. The common judgment of humanity for centuries indicated its worth.

Son of Murdered Couple a Suicide

FORT FRANCES, Ont., May 15. —(By Canadian Press)—Grief-stricken and despondent since his parents were brutally murdered at their farm near here on April 23, Axel Sward, the only son, took his own life at Graceton, Minn., Tuesday.

He, in company with a friend, was preparing to go on a trip and while his companion left to attend to the horses in the stable Axel shot himself with a rifle, completely blowing off the upper portion of his head.

In one of his pockets was a note which read: "I have nothing to live for. Do not know anything more about the killing of ..... than anyone else." He avoided reference to his mother or father in the note leaving a dash for their names.

Joe Visnaw, who was to have appeared yesterday afternoon for preliminary trial in connection with the slaying, was remanded until today, his counsel being absent from town.

FLOUR RATES ARE REDUCED

Specific Order From the Railway Board to Canadian Railway Companies Applies to Charges From Ontario Points.

OTTAWA, May 15.—(Canadian Press).—By an order of the board of railway commissioners for Canada, issued Wednesday, the railway companies of Canada have been directed to reduce the flour rates from Ontario points to Montreal Quebec and Atlantic seaboard ports such as the Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Portland, Boston, St. John and Halifax.

Under the order the rates from Collingwood, Depot Harbor, Goderich, Midland, Port Colborne, Port McNicoll and Tiffin, Ont, to Montreal will be 17 1-2 cents, instead of the present rate of 18 cents and to St. John, West St. John, Halifax, Portland and Boston the rate will 18 1-2 cents, instead of the present rate of 19 1-2 cents. These rates will also apply on ex-lake grain milled in transit at other Ontario stations and include stop-off charge of one cent.

From the above points to Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York, the rates will vary from 24 1-2 cents at Depot Harbor to 18 1-2 cents at Port Colborne. These rates plus stop off charge of one cent, will also apply on ex-lake grain milled in toransit at other station within Canada.

FRUIT POOLING SALES.

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 14. — Pooling of fruit sales under the Associated Growers' Limited of British Columbia will continue and 83 per cent. of the tonnage in the Okanagan Valley actually has been signed up, according to a statement by the diretcors to-day.

The association will be in much better position to control the market during the coming season.

Women Rowers Must Wear More Clothes At Thames Regatta

LONDON, May 15.—(Associated Press).—Some of the members of the Skiff Rowing Association are shocked at the costumes, or lack of them, worn by women at regattas. At the annual meeting of the association it was announced that complaints had been received of several rowing women wearing too scanty attire, being stockingless, with shorts or skirts only reaching half-way down the thighs.

There is apparently no objections, said one official, to this apparel while the girls are in the boats, but when walking along the tow path or in the enclosure more clothing should be adopted.

SAYS SPINSTER THREATENS SEX

Maiden Ladies Have Gained Immediate Objectives But Won't "Demobilize" —First Envy Then Pity Their Married Sisters.

LONDON, May 15—Spinsters are threatening England with a sex war.

F. C. Greaves, president of the National Association of Schoolmasters, makes this charge.

Greaves, who has recently complained against the movement for "the canonization of the spinster,' warns the English people that they must awake anew to the glory of motherhood.

"The real feminist battle has been won,' said Greaves. "It was for a cause which deserved and rightly secured victory, for it was the cause of woman as a whole. Women have secured emancipation, equal rights, and, so far as nature and physiology will allow equall opportunity.

"The advertised objects of the feminist campaign having been secured, it is not surprising that the army is showing a tendency to disperse. There are many, however, who are determined not to be demobilized. They have already deflected the feminist movement, it is an embittered and a dangerous one.

Born in Wrong Sex.

"Many of its advocates, shall we say, are not so young as they were, and their advocacy is not weakened by undue maidenly scrupulousness. The ultimate grievance, however, is against Nature—they have been born in the wrong sex. They are beginning to realize this, and they are drifting into sex war Their attitude toward society is not that of the willing servant but of the relentless litigant out for damages.

"Their married sister they first envy, then despise and finally claim to speak for. They appear to regard anything related to domesticity as rather degrading. They pity, rather than honor, the married woman and regard her as one to be rescued by their good offices from the tyranny of husband and home, and to be put on contractual wages and State relief.

"The natural aim of a maid, as of a youth, is marriage. The highest joy of both should ultimately be parenthood. It is because the spinster feminist is striving to transfer to herself the halo that belongs to the mother and child that she is dangerous. Teachers, above all, should have a high conception of family relationship.

"Runabout" or "Pram."

"To suggest to our marriageable youths and maidens that the married state is the irksome state, that the full and free life is the single life, that a "runabout' is a better acquisition than a perambulator is to do ill service both to them and to the State,

"The sex war, should it develop, will be a product of the Great War with its huge manslaughter. Could we import a million eligible men into the country we should see no further evidences of its existence, Failing this, however, we must not forget the last word will be with the married woman. When she assets herself the spinster will cease to domineer and that will be, perhaps, when the evolution of the new movement is almost complete and the first bill for compulsory polygamy is introduced."

GORDON DRAFTS COMPROMISE TO UNION MEASURE

Provision Suggested For Non-Concurring Congregations to Remain Outside Union Fold and Possess Church Property —Proposal Designed to Settle the Differences Between Disputants.

MEMBERS TO DECIDE.

OTTAWA, May 15. —(Canadian Press)—A compromise designed to settle the differences between the Unionists and anti-Unionists over the Church Union Bill, has been made public here. Deputy-Speaker George Gordon of the House of Commons was asked as an outsider to suggest amendments to bring the two parties together and a series of amendments, chiefly dealing with non-concurring congregations was drawn up by him.

The first of these amendments provides that if any congregation of the Presbyterian, Methodist or Congregational Churches within six months before the coming into force of the other sections of the act shall decide not to concur in the union, then the property of such non-concurring congregation shall be held by the existing trustees or by other trustees elected by the congregation, for the sole benefit of the congregation.

Should a non-concurring congregation decide later to enter the union then the Union Act shall apply to such congregation from the date of that decision.

Only Members Vote.

The persons entitled to vote at a congregational meeting for the purpose mentioned above, according to a second amendment is to be limited to members, except that others may vote where permitted to do so by a provincial act.

A third amendment authorizes the non-concurring congregations in communion with the Presbyterian church in Canada to use the name "the Presbyterian Church of Canada," or any name other than the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

Number of Petitioners.

In order to have a meeting of the congregati called for the purpose of voting concurrence or non-concurrence in the union, the amendments provide that a petition of ten members should be secured in a congregation of one hundred members, of twenty-five members in congregations up to 500; of fifty members in congregations up to 1000, and of 100 members in congregations over 1000.

The date of the first meeting of the general council of the United church is under the amendments to be April 15, 1925, instead of October 1, 1924, as mentioned in the bill. Instead of the present clause in the bill ratifying the basis of union as a whole, a new section is proposed which ratifies that basis and declares that "in so far as the terms and provisions thereof relating to polity, the ministry and administration" are not inconsistent with the provisions of the bill, they shall have the force of law.

Effective April 1st, 1925.

The date of coming into force of the bill is placed at April 15, 1925, instead of May 31, 1924, except that the provisions regarding non-concurring congregations are to come into force on the day that the bill receives the royal assent.

A final amendment proposes to drop the appendix relating to law out of the schedule.

Absence of Deputies Surprised Leaders

PARIS, May 14.—The newly-elected Deputies, who filled the lobbies of the Chamber with their enthusiasm to-day, were astonished at the absence of the leaders, and at the scarcity of real news concerning the formation of a new government.

The only fact disclosed during the day was that the Socialists would abstain for the moment from participation in the government and that they will support a Herriot Cabinet on certain conditions.

DEATH FROM BROKEN HEART "PIFFLE" DECLARES DOCTOR

NEW YORK, May 15.—Does worry kill?

Can a person die of a broken heart?

Tuesday's papers told how Mrs. Carmelo Andredis, sixty-five, of No. 30 Lincoln place, Lynbrook, died from worry over her son's arrest in a $1,300 safe robbery.

Another news item was that John Korzinek, designer in a Passaic cotton mill, was on his way to court to press an action to compel his wife, Florence, who had divorced him, to permit him to see their little boy. Distress over his marital unhappiness is said to have caused him to drop dead in an Erie Railroad station while waiting for a train. When his case was called in court he was declared to have "died of a broken heart."

The questions revived by these tragedies were put to experts yesterday, with the following results:

DR. A. A. BRILL, Noted Psychologist—There is no such thing as dying of a broken heart. Worry resulting from a broken heart cannot even succeed in weakening the action of that organ. Mental troubles can effect the individual's physical condition, but it cannot, and never has resulted in death.

PROFESSOR ROBERT S. WOODWORTH, Head of the Department of Psychology at Columbia University—Worry of any kind including that due to troubles resulting in a broken heart are often the straw that breaks the camel's back. Often a person has illnesses of which he is not conscious, then some worry comes into his life and he breaks under the strain. But it was not the worry in itself that caused his death. I have never known a case in all my experience in which a person has not recovered from a broken heart—providing his health was good.

DR. H. McM. PAINTER, Prominent New York Physician — Oh piffle — whoever heard of any one dying of worry! It is utter nonsense. On the surface, it may appear to be death caused by worry, but if any insight were made into the case it would be found that there were many other complications.

ASPHALT AND CONCRETE FOR THE CITY STREETS DECIDED AFTER DEBATE

Board of Works Put in Long Session in Discussion of Relative Merits and Decided on Half of Each -- Aldermen Came to Blows.

DAY LABOR REJECTED

Towards the end of a three and a half hour discussion of paving problems last night, when the nerves of the members of the Board of Works were becoming frayed by the difficult question of "concrete or asphalt," an unfortunate argument between Chairman Robert Morrison and Alderman McIntyre developed into a fistic encounter. Discussion had progressed amicably if wanderingly until Allerman McIntyre took exception to a ruling of the chairman on a motion presented by Alderman Jones, and accused the chairman of "running" things. Alderman Morrison resented the implication and left his chair. Mayor J. J. Turner endeavored to prevent a physical encounter, but over him and beside him the aldermen exchanged blows that left their mark. The overturning of chairs and the crashing of the furniture attracted attention in the police station next door, and Sergeant John Deannard appeared, just as peace was being restored, with a gentle "Now gentlemen."

When the combatants had been separated, business was resumed and the contentious motion put by the chairman and carried, giving the contract for paving 14,344 square yards to the Warren Company, who will lay bithulithic pavement, and for paving 12,560 square yards to John Carroll, who will lay concrete. This decision will come before a special meeting of council for ratification.

There were present at the meeting Mayor J. J. Turner, Aldermen Robert Morrison, Nagle Phelan, Robert N. Jones, M. J. Maher, M. McIntyre, J. O. Fife, J. W. Meyers, Joseph Crowe, Walter Stocker and E. M. Turner. Alderman Turner left the meeting early.

Asphalt or Concrete?

Two mistakes were pointed out in tenders received, an offer from the Brennan Paving Co. to lay asphalt for $1.23 a square yard being obviously impossible, and another from R. Sheahy and Sons for $2 being disowned by Mr. Sheahy. The former was corrected to read $2.34

Ordinary Looking Royalty Unnoticed

HALIFAX, May 15—(Canadian Press).—Royalty visited Halifax yesterday afternoon and spent an hour strolling through the streets and visiting the shops when the steamer carrying Prince Erik of Denmark and his bride of a few months formerly Miss Lois Booth of Ottawa ,from Copenhagen to New York called here to disembark passengers.

Scarcely half a dozen people knew of their presence, however, and the couple walked around unnoticed. They arrived at noon on the Baltic American Liner Polonia and sailed later for New York whence they will go to Ottawa for a visit to the Booth home before taking up their residence on Prince Erik's California orange farm.

WEMBLEY MAY BE PERMANENT

British Empire Exhibition a Magnificent Success, Colonial Secretary Told the Commons — Guarantee Increased But May Not Be Needed.

LONDON, May 15— (Canadian Press).— The House of Commons yesterday without a division agreed to increase the government guarantee in connection with the British Empire Exhibition from £100,000 to £600,000 after a motion to reduce the extended guarantee had been withdrawn.

William Lunn, parliamentary secretary to the Overseas trade department, explained that the cost incurred by the exhibition authorities up to the opening day was $2,823,000, less revenue totalling £594,0000. A further £378,000 was required to complete construction of buildings and equipment. He said it was expected that the millioneth visitor would have passed in to the grounds yesterday. The exhibiton opened on April 23.

J. H. Thomas, secretary for the colonies, replying to critics, expressed the presonal hope that that it might later be decided to continue the exhibiton as a regular feature of Empire development. The exhibition, he said, had been a magnificent success. He did not believe a penny of the new guarantee asked for would be required.

Mrs. Wintringham (Liberal) moved a resolution urging the employment of more women on the Wembley police force.

Mr. Thomas in reply denied that there was any evidence whatever that special protection for women was necessary at the exhibiton because of the presence of colored men. He said more women police would be employed if required.

Replying to further criticism Mr. Thomas said every one of the Dominions was spending more on the exhibition than the British Government.

Mrs. Wintringham's motion was rejected.

HEARING CLAIMS OF DEPOSITORS NEARING CLOSE

Chairman of Royal Commission Investigating Home Bank Discourages Suggestion That the Government Should Recompense the Depositors —Hon. J. A. Robb Gives Testimony.

FIRST PHASE ENDS.

OTTAWA, May 15 (By Canadian Press).—The Royal Commission investigating the Home Bank entered upon the last stage of the first phase of its inquiry yesterday. This phase is concerned entirely with the claims of the depositors against the Dominion Government, and R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., one of the depositors' counsel, occupied a part of the morning and the whole of the afternoon sitting in submitting argument on their behalf. Mr. McLaughlin had not concluded his argument when the commission rose He will be followed today by W. T. J. Lee, also representing the depositors, and possibly A. J. Browning, K.C., will also speak for the depositors. As Sir Thomas White, who is appearing in his own behalf and R. A. Reid who represents shareholders are both to submit argument in addition to Crown Counsel Eugene Lafleur, K.C., and H. J. Symington, K.C., it is now almost certain that the inquiry will go over until next week.

Government Assumption

Yesterday's sitting was featured by a statement from Royal Commissioner H. A. McKeown that he did not think the idea of recompensing the depositors by taking over the wreck of the bank would recommend itself to the Government. It was during Mr. McLaughlin's argument that the point arose. Mr. McLaughlin had pointed out the difficulty of ascertaining the exact amount which would be necessary to pay the depositors, and Mr. Lee had suggested that the commissioner might recommend that the Government take over the bank, pay the depositors and reimburse itself out of the salvage.

"I would not think that the idea of recompensing the depositors by taking over the wreck would recommend itself —I don't think so," remarked the commissioner.

Mr. McLaughlin: "That is, of course, what we hope the Government will do."

Commissioner McKeown: "Well, it may. I have no right to say it won't."

Mr. McLaughlin pointed out that if the Government took over the bank, in ten or fifteen years it might be worth a good deal.

Final Efforts

In addition to argument, Commissioner McKeown listened to the testimony of Hon. J. A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, who told of the last-minute efforts to save the bank from failure. Hon. T. A. Crerar, a former director of the bank, was questioned by Mr. Reid in regard to the sale of stock of the Home Bank in the west, and Sir Thomas White, former Minister of Finance, gave evidence about the payment of $1,500 which was made to him by the Home Bank a few days before its failure.

Evidence Reviewed

R. J. McLaughlin, counsel for Home Bank depositors, reviewed documentary evidence before the royal commission, at the afternoon sitting. He stated that the correspondence, of which copies had been put in, showed that for a year and a half before they finally appealed to Sir Thomas White, the western directors had been trying to get information regarding the conditions of the bank, without success. It showed that Mr. Kennedy, one of the officials of the bank, had been suspended because he refused to sign a false return, and that directors for the bank were appointed by the general manager without reference to the full board. It showed also that the Barnard loan of $411,000 was an "absolute nullity", being secured by Home Bank stock, and that the loan to the Prudential Trust was not made to this organization but to the New Orleans and Southern Railway Company. It showed that this loan had been wrongly reported to the

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Ottawa, May 12, 1924.

J. M. Greene, Esq., Secretary
Peterboro Symphony Orchestra
Peterboro, Ont.

Dear Mr. Greene,—In view of the notable success of the Peterboro Symphony Orchestra and the Male Voice Choir in Toronto, there can be no question of the prominence of Peterboro as a centre of music in Canada.

The efforts of Mr. Rupert Gliddon, the conductor, yourself and other active members of the Executive is very gratifying to those who desire to see a greater development of music in a growing city like Peterboro.

Mr. M. H. Park has always been an outstanding soloist, and it is a great pleasure to know he has won so admirably such splendid recognition in the Music Festival.

Mr. R. A. Brown's success, while perhaps not a surprise to many, has indicated how high he stands as a soloist.

I trust that any further efforts of the Orchestra, the Male Voice Choir and other organizations will be encouraged by the splendid success which has already met those promoting the Orchestra and the Choir and that they will be most heartily supported from all quarters to promote a scheme which, for the welfare of the community, can hardly be overestimated.

You may be assured of my heartiest support, and I trust all our friends will join in the effort to continue such a movement for the benefit of the city.

Yours faithfully,
G. N. GORDON.

CANADIAN TERRITORY IS HOT SPOT FOR A PEPALL

TORONTO, Ont., May 15. — (Canadian Press).— Anticipation of the return of Andrew Pepall to Canadiain territory, which would permiit his arrest by the Provincial authorities in connection with the bond scandals, was the feature yesterday in the Ontario Government circles. The news of the arrest of Pepall in California upon a charge of illegal entry into the United States was accepted non-commitally and with interest—non-commitally in fact that the Premier, Attorney General and Police authorities refused to admit any connivance with the United States authorities in move, and with interest because it was generally regarded as ensuring Pepall's return to Canadian soil.

PRICE OF MONEY LOW IN CANADA

Not a Pioneer Country In World Developed on So Low a Rate of Interest, Says a Prince Albert Banker.

REGINA, Sask., May 15.—(Canadian Press).—Presentation of the banks and mortgage companies' cases featured the morning session at the second day's proceedings of the economic conference here Wednesday. A. J. Reynolds, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Prince Albert, spoke for the banks, and W. R. McConnell, for the mortgage companies.

Mr. Reynolds took issue with George F. Edwards regarding his remarks Tuesday on the high price of money in Canada. He did not think there was a pioneer country in the world that had been developed on as low a rate of interest as Canada.

Proceeding, he said Canada's future was fundamentally the finest. Asked whether the banks more readily accommodate mixed farmers than wheat growers, Mr. Reynolds declared they did because they were comparatively safer risks.

Premier Charles Dunning asked Mr. Reynolds if he could say whether or not the banks would be willing to attend a conference with a view to making some arrangement whereby there could be one representative for all to sit on a case in conference with the Debt Adjustment Bureau.

Mr. Reynolds replied he could not speak for the Bankers' Association, but personally he thought the idea was a good one.

Answering questions, Mr. McConnell said he deprecated the entry of the Government into the loan field, because experience had always shown that borrowers took the view that the Government could well afford to wait for their money. He said that the mortgage companies in Saskatchewan had more than $100,000,000 invested in loans made on the basis of fifty per cent. of the value of the property.

STANDARD OIL HAD BIG YEAR

Company's Turnover Surpassed Total of Any Previous Year—Earnings Up Ten Millions.

NEW YORK, May 15.—(Canadian Press).—Despite the depression in the oil industry last year, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey increased its total earnings more than $10,000,000 to $56,295,282, A. C. Bedford, chairman, reported to the stockholders yesterday. Gross income from operations totalled $287,334,410, and the surplus at the end of the year amounted to $231,424,069, a gain of $22,283,461 over 1922. Dividends disbursed during the year amounted to $34,611,821.

While the results, notwithstanding adverse underlying conditions, reflected an improvement, Mr. Bedford said, the prevailing level of market prices was insufficient to provide a return upon the capital investment commensurate with the hazardous character of the enterprise.

The over-production of crude oil last year was to some extent counterbalanced by the growth in consumption, he added.

"The company's volume of turnover in 1923 surpassed by a considerable margin any previous year in its history, its business as a whole being twenty per cent. in excess of 1922, with its gasoline sales increasing 24½ per cent. over that year."

MOTOR RESTRICTIONS IN BRAZIL

No privately-owned automobile in Rio de Janiero, Brazil, may be painted white or red. These colors are used exclusively by the city for its municipal cars. All of the ambulances are white, and the fire department's machines are red, to make it easy for the traffic policemen to distinguish these cars, which have the right of way.

There are 800,000 factory workers in the United States who cannot speak English.

JUDGE HUYCKE HELD A COURT CAMPBELLFORD

Friendly Dispute Before Division Court--Judgment Reserved -- Vandals Damage Newly Planted Trees.

NEED A TROUGH

CAMPBELLFORD, May 15.—His Honor Judge E. C. Huycke of Peterborough, presided at an adjourned session of the Division Court here Wednesday, when the case of Covert versus Covert, was completed, a hearing that excited a good deal of interest owing to the prominence of the parties rather than to the importance of the point at issue. D. J. Lynch appeared for the plaintiff and George A. Payne for the defendant. Miss M. E. Moore, court stenographer of Peterborough, was present to make a verbatim report of the evidence submitted.

A Family Affair.

Walter Covert, owner of the skating rink, sued his half-brother, Sam, proprietor of the bus line, to recover certain money and chattels which were willed the plaintiff by their father, A. Covert, who died a few years ago.

The second wife of the deceased, the defendant's mother on her death, willed to Sam the brick residence which he now occupies on Rear St. on condition that he would board and lodge her father and provide him with clothes and medical attendance for the remainder of his life. So far as any evidence showed to the contrary these conditions were faithfully carried out by the defendant.

Father Changes Residence.

Some time after the death of the mother, the father went to reside with his son Walter, and while there made a will leaving Walter all money or goods of which he might die possessed and also naming him as executor. A writ was issued against the brother Sam to recover certain property of the father which it was alleged Sam held.

Returns to Sam's House.

Before the case came to a hearing the father returned to Sam's house to reside and the case against the brother was dropped, Sam taking the father in a car to Brighton, where H. Langdon, a lawyer of that village was instructed by the father to file a notice of discontinuance. In the interview between lawyer and client the son took no part but remained in the car outside while it was in progress.

Paid Funeral Expenses

When the father died, Sam, who swears that he had no knowledge of the existence of a will and feeling that it was his duty to attend to the funeral arrangements, purchased a casket and paid the other burial expenses.

Then the will cropped up. The deceased had owned a number of pigs and Walter claimed the money received for these A fur overcoat, a morning coat, and every day suit of cloth and a diamond ring are among the articles sued for the entire amount at issue being less than $300.

Judge Huycke reserved his decision stating that he wished to read a transcript of the evidence taken at both hearings. In the meantime Mr. Payne will furnish His Honor with the original or a certified copy of the will upon which the case is founded.

Barrister Langdon of Brighton, started to cross-examine Sam Covert after Mr. Lynch had finished his cross-examination but to this Mr. Payne objected and his objection was sustained by Judge Huycke A parallel point arose recently during the hearing of the Small will case in a Toronto court the presiding Judge on that occasion making the same ruling as that of Judge Huycke yesterday. Mr. Langdon, was put on the stand to tell of receiving instructions from the late Mr. Covert to have the suit against Sam discontinued.

Vandals at Work.

At his own expense Councillor Redden planted five maple trees along the street running past the government wharf on the west side. This involved considerable labour and outlay of money as it was necessary in order to provide a resting place for each tree, to excavate large holes in solid rock and to fill these with loam which Mr. Redden had to haul for a considerable distance, a waggon load being required for each tree.

The trees gave every promise of surviving the transplanting process and of flourishing in their new situation until one night last week a sense of humor or actuated by purmalice, uprooted two of the trees.

Councillor Redden believes that this is a matter which should be looked into by the police.

Councillor Redden believes that a party of visitors, with a distorted drinking trough for the benefit of the farmers driving to town with teams, should be established on each side of the river. At his instigation the Town Council has instructed the committee on Roads and Bridges to have the water main near the Government wharf tapped so that a drinking place may be installed at that point. If the Council does not care to go to the expense of providing the necessary trough Councillor Redden agrees to furnish one of cement at his own expense. He believes that similar action should be taken on the east side of the river and that water should be piped to the stock yards at the deport.

Oddfellows at Stirling.

About 25 local Oddfellows, conducted by R. H. Dunk and including the Nishitory Degree team, went to Stirling last night to initiate seven new members of the lodge there. A team from the lodge at Picton put on the work of the first degree.

HASTINGS AND THE DISTRICT

Suckers Run From Eight to Ten Pounds in Weight

HASTINGS, May 15.— A large catch of suckers, which averaged from eight to ten pounds each, were brought home by Mr. William Wellman, of Hastings, on Tuesday morning. The fish were caught in the "Scoot Waters at Brunson's Rapids," about eight miles north of Madoc in Hastings county.

Exhibition Game.

An exhibition game of baseball was to have been played on the athletic grounds on Wednesday afternoon, between Aeene and the home team. The visiting team were on hand to play sharp on time, but the wet weather prevented the game, hence it was postponed.

WITNESS FROM AFAR TO GIVE EVIDENCE.

One From Virginia to Advise Parliamentary Committee on Banking.

OTTAWA, May 15. — (Canadian Press)—At least one witness before the parliamentary committee on banking and commerce has come a long way to testify, it was revealed in the house yesterday, when Thomas Vien moved on behalf of that committee that it be permitted to sit while the house is in session.

Right. Hon. Arthur Meighen objected to the motion, Mr. Vien explained that witnesses were coming from far off, and one from the State of Virginia was coming voluntarily to advise the committee. Unless the committee could sit in the afternoon this witness would be held for an extra day, to his inconvenience. Mr. Meighen said he did not approve of bringing people from the ends of the earth to tell Canadians how to run their banking and commerce, but since it had been done he would withdraw his objection. The motion then carried.

EUROPEAN STUDENTS VISIT ON VACATION.

Swap Homes With Object of Becoming Better Acquainted.

PARIS, May 15.—During the Easter vacation period the National Union of Students' Association of France sent several hundred young Frenchmen off to foreign lands, and in return has entertained in Paris and other university centres several hundred young foreigners sent here in exchange to get acquainted with the French students.

Fifty French university youths went to England, whose great universities always have exercised a particular attraction for Gallic students. A like-sized contingent set out for Budapest, a former enemy capital, to be sure, but a city boasting a proud old institution of learning. A similar delegation went to Verviers in Belgium, and almost simultaneously the Latin Quarter of Paris was filled with young Englishmen, Hungarians and Belgians. When the summer vacation comes, it is hoped to add Poland to the list of countries exchanging students with the French associations.

The plan, roughly, calls for an even trade. That is, the family of a British university man, for example, agrees to take in and be sponsor for a youth from the Sorbonne for a certain period, provided their own hopeful is similarly given hospitality in a French famly. In some cases student clubs may take the place of families. The authorities of the University of Paris and its allied schools are enthusiastic over the growth of the movement.

MOTORS CLAIMED TWO MORE LIVES

Toronto Was Scene of Two Fatalities--One Man Fell From Bicycle

TORONTO, May 15.—(Canadian Press.)—Motor traffic claimed more lives yesterday, when two men were killed on north Yonge street. Both accidents happened within twenty minutes of each other and occurred within a distance of a mile. The dead are Fred W. Graham, aged 35, and John H. Adkins, aged 18. Bursting out in a mass of flames when a street car struck it head on, a truck driven by Graham turned completely over and Graham was pinned at the wheel. Graham was injured internally and also was badly burned. He was rushed to the General Hospital where he died at about seven o'clock.

The second fatality was recorded when John H. Adkins fell from a bicycle and was run over by a truck. Wheels of the truck passed over the boy's body, killing him instantly.

CANADIAN HEAVYWEIGHT WINS FROM NEW YORKER

PROVIDENCE, May 15.—(Canadian Press.)—Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight champion, scored a technical knockout victory over Joe Whyte of New York, in the seventh round of a scheduled twelve round bout at the National A. C. here last night.

Renault tallied knockdowns in the second and third rounds and had White on the verge of knockout, when the referee stopped the bout.

HEARING CLAIMS

government, the bank claiming that it carried no current loans outside Canada.

Loan Looked Crooked

"This whole loan looked so suspicious and crooked that there are some things about it we don't know, even yet," Mr. McLaughlin said. It showed also that the securities for the Pellatt account, which amounted to over two millions, were "notoriously insufficient."

Mr. McLaughlin contended that all the information furnished to Sir Thomas White in regard to the large loans of the Home Bank was in the form of ledger statements. This information which, Mr. McLaughlin claimed, could not possibly show the real condition of the loans, apparently satisfied Sir Thomas, in spite of the fact that he had been appraised of the dangerous state of these accounts by letter, and was aware that some of the directors were much worried about them.

Act on Necessity

Referring to section 56A. of the Bank Act which empowers the minister of finance to investigate a bank if he sees fit, Mr. McLaughlin stated that the language of this section had been interpreted as giving the minister discretionary, not obligatory, powers. He stated that the use of the word "may" in the section, instead of "must" or "shall" had led to the argument that the minister was free to act or not, as he saw fit. But, said Mr. McLaughlin, looked at from the larger point of view, the intention of the act was clearly that the minister should act when the necessity arose. It was not customary to use the words "must" or "shall" in connection with references to a cabinet minister in drafting a statute, Mr. McLaughlin said.

Hon. J. A. Robb Called

Hon. J. A. Robb, acting Minister of Finance said: "The first intimation I had of the Home Bank being in difficulties was when Mr. Stewart, one of the directors, arrived from Toronto. The Hon. Mr. Graham telephoned me and asked me to see Mr. Stewart. He came to my room and explained the situation. As a result of that conversation, we located the Prime Minister who was out at dinner and agreed to meet him at his house at eleven o'clock that night."

"The testimony of the Premier as to what took place at that meeting was substantially correct except that the Hon. Mr. Low was not present, and that Mr. Saunders, Deputy Minister of Finance, was present. Next morning, Mr. Casey Wood and Mr. R. P. Gough arrived. They were urging the Government to make a deposit, one reason fro this being that the Ontario Government was issuing cheques to meet payments of school funds due.

Absolutely Refused.

"I need not say that we absolutely refused to make any deposit. We would not have been justified in so doing, but we were anxious to have the bank steadied, if possible. The directors represented that they had consulted with the banks in Toronto, and had been advised to go and see some of the larger banks in Montreal. They went to Montreal on the noon train. I went to Montreal on the afternoon train as I wanted to keep myself posted as to the progress they were making. It had been arranged to have a meeting with Sir Vincent Meredith.

Talked With Meredith.

"I met Mr. Spinney, Sir Vincent Meredith's confidential man, who came down to the Ritz. The directors presented their position very frankly to Sir Vincent Meredith, and I made it clear to him that I was only there as an onlooker and interested as acting for the Minister of Finance, to know just what position the bank was in, and what could be done to save the situation.

"After looking into it fully, Sir Vincent did not offer much, but said he would look the position over again until the morning, and if there was any possibility in any way he might be able to help them out until they could arrange an amalgamation with another bank. Generally speaking, he thought they should take advantage of the provisions of the Bank Act, and appoint a curator, which would give them ninety days in which to arrange amalgamation."

Sir Thomas White had a question or two to put to Mr. Robb. He said:

"In your evidence you said that the report presented to you was my report. I wish you to recall the circumstances to your mind very clearly. Was it not a letter of advice which I gave upon the Calvert report?"

"Yes, that is so."

No Such Statement.

"Just one other thing you did not touch on. The report said that I had advised Mr. Stewart or the deputation to lay the facts before the Government and Bankers' Association, but it did not say that I had advised anybody to ask for a deposit from the Dominion Government."

"I made no such statement."

"Your recollection is that my advice was to lay before the Government and Bankers' Association?"

"Yes, freely and frankly."

RHEUMATISM A MYSTERY

Some diseases give immunity from another attack, but rheumatism works just the other way. Every attack of rheumatism invites another; worse than that, it reduces the body's power so that each attack is worse than the one before.

If any disease needs attention early it is rheumatism, but there is scarcely any disease more difficult to treat successfully. When a medicine does relieve rhematism therefore it is worthy of special notice. Medical authorities agree that the blood becomes thin with alarming rapidity as rheumatism develops. Maintaining the quality of the blood is therefore a reasonable way of preventing and combatting rheumatism. That it works out in fact is shown by the beneficial effects which follow the treatment of rheumatism, acute, muscular and articular, with that great blood tonic, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

That thousands of people who have taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their rheumatism have been benefited is a fact beyond dispute. That rheumatism does not return as long as the blood is kept rich and red is equally true. If, therefore you are suffering from rheumatism in any form you should lose no time in giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Hanging Was Ruse Covering Murder

THE PAS, Man. May 15—The man found here two days ago hanging from a tree with his skull crushed and shot through the head was identified as John Wheme, railway employee, formerly of Moose aJw, at the coroner's inquest held yesterday.

Credence is given to the opinion that Wheme was beaten badly in a fight which ensued over a card game. Not expecting Wheme to live, and in order to cover up their deed, the assailants are suspected to have carried him from the shack in which the crime was committed and hanged him to a tree. This, it is believed was done in an effort to show Wheme had committed suicide.

HON. ARTHUR MEIGHEN

Brome) pointed out that the common judgment of humanity for centuries decreed that the world was flat.

Mr. Meighen replied that a man who put commercial practicability together with astronomical facts was hardly to be relied upon.

Free trade, said Mr. Meighen, might work out in a country which had long business experience, huge population and vast resources of banking and finance. It might be better for such a country if the rest of the world would be pleased to follow suit. For Canada it would be disastrous, when the United States denied us access to its markets for any but raw materials which they need to make money.

John Miller (Progressive, Qu-Appelle) asked if the United States did not make their markets available for Canadian implements and boots and shoes.

U. S. Duty Uncertain.

Mr. Meighen retorted that no manufacturer would reckon on a United States market for such products, knowing by previous experience that the duty was likely to be raised at any time and make his capital expenditure a loss. Apparently, however, the Progressives thought the United States tariff was to be reduced soon and if Canada did the same it would accelerate that movement. The former member for Red Deer (Dr. Michael Clark) had predicted a lower United States tariff for years. There was not much sign for it. He had left his mantle to the member for Brandon (Mr. Forke) who now believed that he could influence the United States in tariff matters by bringing about lower Canadian tariffs.

"If he lives long enough," said Mr. Meighen, "he will learn that we must make our tariffs to suit ourselves."

Mr. Forke interrupted to point out that in his speech on the Budget he had said Canada must shape her tariff policy solely to suit herself. Mr. Meighen said that he hoped Mr. Forke would remember that when reciprocity became an issue again.

Liberals Insincere.

Referring to the various arguments for reduction in tariff which had been made during the debate, Mr. Meighen said that he did not believe one in ten of the Liberal members really believed their own arguments. The member for Quebec county had been ready to vote the tariff off agricultural implements, but had said openly to the Government: "Keep your sacrilegious hands off boots and shoes." This "tariff for revenue" Government was taxing a product of which only five per cent. of Canada's consumption was imported. One of the Progressives had estimated that for every dollar collected by the Government in customs duties, another dollar was put on to the price of Canadian products and went to the manufacturer as excess profits. If this was true the Government in imposing a tax on boots and shoes was causing Canadians to pay nineteen times as much as they collected. This if all their arguments were sound.

Ministers Interested.

If the Progressives really wanted to test the sincerity of the Government in its attiude to tariff reduction, let them demand a reduction in the tariff on boots and shoes and see the Minister of Justice (Hon. Ernest Lapointe) assume the defensive. He wondered if the Hon. Jacques Bureau, who was willing to "vote disaster" to Hamilton and Toronto and Branford and all these industrial centres would be so philosophical if it be industries of Three Rivers were at stage. Also wha would the Minister of Railways (Hon. George P. Graham) say if Brockville's lawn mower industry was attacked.

Mr. Graham commented that the tariff reductions affected a number of things in Brockville.

"Yes, but I am on lawn mowers now," answered Mr. Meighen. It was, he said, all a carefully calculated scheme to get the Progressive support at the sacrifice of the least possible number of votes.

Mr. Meighen's speech was unfinished when the House adjourned at six o'clock.

SLUGGISH LIVER DURING SPRING CAUSES POISON!

This is the time of year when your liver becomes sluggish and your intestines become clogged up with poisonous waste. Your liver does not properly purify blood that flows to your skin. The result is sallow complexion, dark circles and pimples, coated tongue and bad taste mornings. As these poisons continue to flow your resistance is lowered, you feel dull and tired and sick.

Make this test! Cleanse and tone your liver with Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup. Contains pure ingredients prescribed by Physicians. Helps Nature strengthen your stomach, soothe tired, and overtaxed nerves, brace up system, and purify your blood. Notice quick difference in way you look, eat, sleep and feel. You, too, will be satisfied, as others have, or no cost.

Dr. Thacher's is sold and recommended by J. P. Bond, McDermid and Jury and the Warne Drug Company, Limited, in Peterborough; the Tanner Drug Company in Lakefield, and by leading druggists in every city and town.

A SUGGESTION.

The sleeve of an old coat or worn-out pair of overalls is handy as a means of protecting the arm when doing some small job on the car that requires reaching to a greasy locality. It takes but a moment to slip on such a sleeve over the regular shirt or coat sleeve and it saves a lot of laundering and cleaning.

TOMORROW'S FESTIVAL.

The Community Festival tomorrow night in which the Peterborough Symphony Orchestra, the Male Voice Choir and Messrs. E. A. Brown and M. H. Park, Peterborough's prize-winning representatives at the Ontario Festival of Music, will be heard in the test numbers used on that occasion, is being endorsed by the citizens generally, and it is to be hoped that these favourable references to the event will be backed up by an attendance in proportion to the splendid showing made at Toronto.

Such organizations as the Symphony Orchestra and the Male Voice Choic are community organizations that deserve well of the citizens generally.

They are non-commercial and interdenominational, originating from a love on the part of their members for good music.

If they had never won a prize at the Ontario Festival they would be worthy of general support, because of the part they play in developing in the city an interest in musical culture.

That fact, coupled with the favourable publicity won for their home city by reason of their performances at Toronto, should be emphasized by a capacity attendance at tomorrow night's function.

There are expenses in connection with each organization that it is hoped will be wiped out as a result of the Community Festival—another good reason for liberal patronage.

VALUE OF PLAYGROUNDS.

In a recent note on the value of recreation facilities in United States cities, appearing in the New York Sun, the writer opines that when imitating a monkey on the flying rings at the community playgrounds, says the St. Catharines Standard, Johnny is indulging his sense of adventure and activity as a safer way than hopping motor trucks or roller skating in the car tracks. Mary, one of a laughing circle who are being initiated into "Looby Loo," by the play leader, is unconsciously gaining rosier cheeks and firmer muscles. Bill, who before the playground opened was well-known to the juvenile court because of his propensity to petty thievery, is so busy stealing bases on the playground diamond that, as the juvenile judge put it, "He hasn't had time to steal anything else."

Playgrounds under leadership build health and good citizenship, prevent street accidents and cut down juvenile delinquency, which so often is the result of lack of normal outlet for the play instinct. This is why more and more cities are finding them a paying investment and would as soon dispense with their school teachers as the play leaders.

According to the 1923 Year Book of the Playground and Recreation Association of America, just issued, the average American child has a much better chance to receive play education than ever before. Six hundred and eighty towns and cities reported that they employed 12,282 recreation leaders to direct the activities in their public playgrounds and recreation centres. During the last ten years the number of directed playgrounds and recreation centres increased 175 per cent., 2,402 being reported in 1913 and 6,601 in 1923.

UNNECESSARY PRINTING.

It has been intimated from Queen's Park that an editorial committee to superintend all Government printing is to be appointed.

The benefit of such an organization has been so thoroughly demonstrated at Ottawa by a similar committee appointed a few years ago that it is remarkable that the Federal example has not long since been followed by the Provincial administration.

The Ottawa Editorial Committee found out what everybody had suspected, that a vast amount of unnecessary printing was being done by the Government, and the list of publications was thoroughly scrutinized and trimmed down, effecting an annual saving of considerable proportions.

That the situation in regard to Provincial printing is much the same as at Ottawa before the Editorial Committee was appointed is apparent.

Ontario is paying too much for her printing.

Too much of it is being done; there are tons of blue books and pamphlets published every year that could be scrapped.

Almost daily the mails bring these official reports and documents into the Examiner office.

Many of them are of little value to the public, and those whose information might be of service would be not only much cheaper but much more serviceable if they were reduced in size and their findings and statistics condensed.

A revision of the list of Provincial publications by a committee would undoubtedly result in the elimination of much of the deadwood and in the substitution of compact reports in place of the voluminous blue books that are turned out at the expense of the public, only to find oblivion in wastepaper baskets.

The Government will find a good chance to save in a reform of its printing services.

WORTH CONSIDERING.

There is much in the recommendation made by a Kingston coroner's jury, investigating the death of a Kingston boy who was knocked down by a motor car, that will appeal to many people as sensible.

The jury's verdict contained a rider that the Attorney-General be asked to see that the Highway Traffic Act be so amended that a person must be examined by a competent official before being given a license to drive a car.

It was inspired by the fact that the driver implicated in the tragedy, a young girl, who drove into a boy riding a bicycle, was handling a car for the first time alone when the accident happened.

The car was loaned to her by a friend and she had never before attempted to drive alone.

It is possible that the tragedy could not have been prevented even if a skilful driver had been at the wheel of the car, for the evidence was that the victim rode directly in front of the automobile at a street intersection.

That does not alter the fact, however, that the accident is a striking commentary upon the lax system under which this phase of the automobile problem is handled.

A man who discharged a rifle on the street would be instantly arrested as a menace to the public safety.

Yet our laws permit any fool, so long as he is of adult years, to take a ponderous piece of machinery, weighing several tons, and operate it upon the street, regardless of whether or not he knows anything about handling it in a manner safe for himself or the public.

There are people driving cars in every Ontario city who are as dangerous to the general safety as a madman with a couple of revolvers.

A MARATHON TALKER.

The most glaring example of the wrong kind of Budget speech that has been so far inflicted upon the House of Commons in the present debate was that provided by R. E. Finn, member for Halifax, who on Monday actually talked for three hours and forty minutes.

One newspaper correspondent reports that the long-winded member from the Atlantic coast "didn't say anything that could not have been compressed into one hour."

The Budget debate is turned into a farce by such marathon efforts as this, and most people will wonder how a man with so little sense of proportion and with so doubtful judgment could ever have been elected to Parliament.

The tariff—the logical subject of the debate—played little part in Mr. Finn's oratory.

Instead he dealt with parochial politics in Nova Scotia in general and his own constituency in particular, discussed the history of Confederation and the speeches of Joseph Howe, read a lot of his own speeches delivered in Nova Scotia Legislature and devoted a portion of his time to developing election material at the expense of the other member from Halifax.

If more business and less oratory could be developed in the deliberations of our public bodies it is more than probable that our municipal, Provincial and Federal administration would be found to operate more smoothly, efficiently and economically.

So long as members abuse the privileges of the House by talking for nearly four hours at a stretch, it is too much to expect our government machinery to run with the same efficiency as that of a well-managed private business.

It is not difficult to imagine the reception that would be given a member of the British Parliament who tried to inflict such a long-drawn-out exposition upon his fellow-members.

FRANCE VEERING ROUND.

The capacity of France to surprise the world is not exhausted. The result of the elections was not anticipated either in Paris or in London, and Berlin could never have dreamed it. The National Party, headed by Poincare, has suffered a severe defeat, and the Left, or moderate party, will be in control of the Chamber with either Herriot or Briand at their head. A turnover of a hundred seats apparently affords proof that the trend of French thought is veering round strongly towards a policy of amicable settlement in preference to the aggressive policy of militaristic operation M. Poincare has enforced. The very fact that the gains made by the Moderates have been made outside the regions affected by the war is the best proof that the French voter has been doing a lot of hard thinking and has come to the conclusion that there is nothing to be gained for France by a continuation of her irreconciliable attitude towards Germany.

The Moderates' victory does not necessarily mean the disappearance of M. Poincare from power. When the astute French Premier reorganized his Cabinet in March, he took into it several members of the Opposition, but this strategic move came too late to offset the growing dissatisfaction in rural France at the continued failure to arrive at a definite and satisfactory understanding with Great Britain over the reparations problem. France wants a real peace, and is resolved to have done with the militaristic domination that has been in power since 1919. Premier Poincare can still hold on, if he trims his sails to the changing wind, but he is not of the temperament to do this save as a matter of temporary expediency. The most probable sequel to yesterday's voting will be the establishment of a new regime with the adoption of a conciliatory policy towards Germany.

The result cannot but make for a better understanding between France and Britain, and will certainly be welcomed in Germany, both by the German people at large and by the new Government. Premier MacDonald's attitude of conciliation is evidently to the taste of the majority of the French electorate, and any sign of a smoothing of the friction between London and Paris will encourage the statesmen in Berlin who are working for a settlement. The abandonment of the provocative Ruhr policy would automatically eliminate many obstacles that have operated against headway in arrival at a working practical agreement over reparations, and in this sense the French nation has taken a step of profound international importance in voicing its desire that the old conservative attitude, so productive of friction, should be abandoned for one more likely to give the Germans reasonable ground for belief that the Allies are willing to afford them a fair chance to redeem their pledge.

There is some talk of the probable resignation of President Millerand as a further sequel to the overthrow of the Poincare Ministry. But it is too soon to speculate upon this. There is no reason why the President should resign, save the fact that he has been behind M. Poincare in his firm stand on the Ruhr occupation. He is a strong man and capable, and the French system of government renders it impossible for the President to pursue any policy contrary to the will of the people. Whether M. Millerand goes or stays, there is now a greater chance than before that France will make common cause with Britain for a policy of amicable and permanent settlement. —Montreal Star.

ORCHESTRA PLAYED 2778 TIMES IN DANCE MATCH

BRESLAU, Germany, May 15.—Police officials of Breslau have issued an order forbidding a repetition of the six-day dance which was recently compmleted in this city. Twelve couples participated, and alternated just as cyclists do in six-day bicycle races. Forty-six dancing teachers acted as referees and were on watch in relays. The dancing course was 200 yards long.

The shimmy was the favorite dance with the contestants, and the two bands which played alternately supplied 1,386 shimmies during the contest. The java was next in popularity, with 862. There were 432 tangoes and 98 Boston waltzes. The contestants objected strongly to the Boston, as they said the waltz music made the musicians sleepy and they played so sluggishly that there was little inspiration for the tired dancers.

A Thought

Here with a little Bread beneath the Bough,
A Flask of Wine, a Book of Verse —and thou
Beside me singing in the Wilderness—
Oh Wilderness were Paradise enow!

And strange to tell among that Earthen lot
Some could articulate, while others not:
And suddenly one more impatient cried—
"Who is the Potter, pray, and who the Pot?"

Neptunite—The New Varnish

Perfected after Two and a Half Years of Research

When a varnish can be subjected to the "Hot Iron", we think you will agree it is about as perfect a varnish as can be made.

A wet towel was placed on the surface of a table varnished entirely with Neptunite and ironed with a Hot Iron, until it was bone dry. This test was made in addition to the well known "Boiling Water" "Hammer", "Ammonia", "Ice", and "Water" tests—from all of which Neptunite emerged without injury.

You will gather from this that hot dishes, accidents, the wear and tear of feet or scraping of furniture will not spoil or mar the beauty of floors, woodwork or furniture varnished entirely with Neptunite.

Neptunite — by virtue of the excellence of its ingredients — gives that deep, lustrous, smooth finish so much desired by particular people and, by reason of its large production and durability is very economical.

Lowe Brothers PAINTS & VARNISHES

We are exclusive agents for all four Neptunite Varnishes; Neptunite Floor for Hardwood Floors; Neptunite Spar for Interior and Exterior Use; Neptunite Interior for Standing Woodwork; and where a dulled, rubbed finish is desired—Neptunite Rubbing.

UNITED STATES BOATS VIOLATE COASTAL LAW

Carrying Grain Between Canadian Ports on Great Lakes Contrary to Existing Law — Freight Rates Reduced Giving Benefit to Western Farmers.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 15. — Sweeping violation of the Canadian coastal law on the part of United States boats plying on the Great Lakes in charged in an editorial which appeared in the Manitoba Free Press to-day.

At present it is claimed that grain is being booked for shipment from Fort William to Montreal via Buffalo in United States vessels. The cargo, it is alleged, is then relayed to Montreal by either Canadian or United States Boats. This practice, the article contends, has resulted in a reduction in the freight rates on grain to the detriment of Canadian railroads, labor and ports.

The Free Press continues:

"Under the existing coastal law, American boats are not permitted to carry grain or other merchandise between Canadian ports. However, there is direct evidence that this law is being broken this Spring and although hidden to some extent, the business has now assumed such proportions that the Government must be, or should be, aware of what is taking place, as it is very questionable if this competition from American boats is legal.'

Many Boats Idle.

"Many of the larger American boats are now more or less idle, ness and are undercutting Canadian boats in the matter of rates, with the result that the rate from Fort William to Montreal has declared from 12 to 10 cents, and in some cases as law as nine and a half cents per bushel.

However, this competition is a direct benefit to the Canadian farmer as it reduces the cost of putting the grain into Europe, thereby enabling him to meet other competitive grains. But if the Government permits the present shipments from Fort William to Montreal via Buffalo, which in reality constitutes part suspension of the coastal law, they surely can have no excuse for not entirely suspending the coastal laws, which would greatly increase Canadian business through Canadian channels, by bringing in American competition to lower rates, which would in turn benefit the whole country, even if it were a detriment to a small class of boat-owners.

THE WEATHER.

Rain every day until the ground can not absorb any more, is undoubtedly discouraging to the agriculturist, to whom favorable weather conditions mean the difference between a good crop and a poor one. Should warm weather succeed the present damp, cool season growth would be phenomenal. Very warm weather now prevails in British Columbia, and 90 degrees in the shade is being registered. In the Prairie provinces it is cool with some showers. Yesterday's rainfall was .08, and last night .04 of an inch.—W.P.

Making wash day pleasant—

Just use Rinso where you used to use bar soap—for soaking, boiling, or in your washing machine.

THE hardest part of wash-day, rubbing, rubbing, rubbing, has given way to the new method of soaking the clothes clean with Rinso. This wonderful new soap gently loosens the dirt and a thorough rinsing leaves things white and glistening as you never could get them before.

Only spots where the dirt is ground-in, such as neck bands, cuff edges, and the like need a light rubbing, and a little dry Rinso rubbed on these spots quickly makes the dirt disappear.

Rinso is sold by all grocers and department stores

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Annual Meeting of the W. C. T. U. -- Personal Mention,

CAMPBELLFORD, May 15.—The annual meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held at the home of Mrs. W. I. Stillman on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. R. Weston second vice-president, presided. Fourteen members were present. The The strangers' secretary read three letters from the Immigration Department telling of three persons coming to Campbellford, and asking the members to look after them to see if they had arrived safely. The Department forwarded the names of the newcomers. The matter will be attended to.

The treasurer gave her report. About seventy dollars have been raised. Of this sum twenty-five had been sent to the Provincial treasurer for the budget, ten dollars to the Children's Aid Shelter at Port Hope, and several dollars to help the sick and needy through the winter.

The nominating committee, which was appointed last month, brought in their report, and on motion was adopted thus appointing the following officers:—

President—Mrs. R. Weston.
1st Vice-President—Mrs. R. Moore.
2nd Vice-President—Mrs. Hume.
3rd Vice-President—Mrs. Bibby.

Next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. S. Johnston, Palliser Street.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Stillman served the ladies to refreshments, for which a vote of thanks was tendered her.

Young People Meet.

At the Young People's meeting on Monday night, Rev. W. Elliott had charge for the evening, as the newly-elected president was unable to be present. Miss S. Nevin gave a splendid topic, "The Story of a Tree that was made into a Water Idol in China."

Leaving Town.

Mr. F. Hendricks has sold his house and lot on Balaclava Street and purchased a flour and feed store at Grimsby. He expects to leave town and take possession of his new business early in June. Mrs. James Porter, of Trent Bridge, purchased the property from Mr. Hendricks.

Captain Hyland, of the Regent Theatre, very kindly extended an invitation to the boys of Christ Church Sunday School to attend the picture at the Regent on Monday night. The boys gladly accepted the opportunity and enjoyed the picture very much.

Mrs. Claude Duncalfe invited about a dozen of her friends to her home on Monday evening, May 12th, in honor of her husband's birthday. After congratulations, the evening was spent in games and music. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. John Diamond, of Warkworth, spend Tuesday in town.

Mr. Charles Payne, of Belleville, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Payne, Frank Street, on Tuesday, and also attended the funeral of the late Dr. Macoun.

Mr. Charles Casement, of Tocoma, Washington, spent a couple of days with his brother, Mr. James Casement, Rear Street.

Born.—In Campbellford, on Monday, May 12th, 1924, to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Douglas, Corner Church and Kent Streets, twins, a girl and a boy.

Married.—At the Manse, on Wednesday night, May 7th, 1924, by Rev. C. F. McIntosh, Mr. Llewellyn Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Reynolds, Sebastapool Street, to Elizabeth Isabel Cochrane, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Cochrane, Kent Street. They were attended by Mr. Ralph Cheer and Miss Viola Reynolds, sister of the groom. At present the young couple will reside with Mrs. Reynolds' parents on Kent Street. Both the young people are well known in Campbellford, and their many friends wish them many years of happiness together.

AT EAST EMILY

EAST EMILY, May 15.—Mr. and Mrs. E. Jackson and daughter, Miss Olive, of Lakefield, spent Sunday visiting relatives in East Emily.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Lang and children, of Smith Township, were guests at the home of the latter's brother, Mr. Ira Switzer, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Ruth and son Clayton, of Peterboro', were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Lowes on Sunday.

Mrs. J. Irvine, of Manitoba, visited at the home of Mrs. Jos. McConnell in East Emily last week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Darling and children, of Smith Township, were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Franks on Sunday.

Mr. H. Braye attended the funeral of his nephew, the late Mr. L. Braye, of Cobourg, last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Wilson were visitors at the home of the former's brother, Mr. T. Wilson, of Dunsford, on Sunday.

Miss Law, graduate nurse of Peterboro', is attending Mrs. Ross Boate, who is confined to her room through illness.

Miss Marion Carey spent the week-end under the parental roof in Omemee.

Mr. and Mrs. V. Franks made a business trip to Peterboro', on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Darling, of Smith Township, were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Boate.

Miss Luella Nurse, of Toronto, is spending her vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Nurse.

Mr. L. McAughey, of Lindsay, spent the week-end at the home of his sister, Mrs. Wilbert Fee.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Webster and son, of Otonnbee, spent Sunday visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Wilbert Clarke.

Base pay of commissioned naval officers below the rank of rear admiral ranges from $1,500 to $4,000.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

District Sportsmen After the Trout -- Personal Mention.

MILLBROOK, May 14.—Messrs. W. E. Ball and R. H. Edmunds have completed their new double boat house at Pengelley's Landing, Rice Lake. The Thursday half holiday gave opportunity for Mr. Ball to remove his yacht, "Thelma," which has been repainted and otherwise renovated for the season, to the lake. Mr. Edmunds had his new motor boat installed in its summer quarters early in the season.

Quite a number of the local sportsmen have been luring the wily trout since the season opened, several reporting a goodly measure of success in this popular pastime.

Mrs. H. Walker, of Janetville, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rowan, Tupper Street.

Rev. S. T. Tucker made a trip to Toronto on Friday in connection with church business.

Mr. and Mrs. E. McConnell, and two children, Margaret and Bobby, and Mrs. Russell Howe, with little daughter, "Peggy", motored from Toronto on Saturday and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Nattrass. Mr. John Nattrass also came from the city on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Darling, and Mrs. Edgar Burnham, of Peterboro', were guests of Mrs. E. S. Burnham, on Sunday. Mrs. Burnham and her mother, Mrs. John Staples, who have been spending the winter in St. Petersburg, Florida, returned to Canada on Thursday.

Mr. Harold and Miss Jessie Fallis, of Toronto, were guests of his mother, Mrs. D. Fallis, Fallis Line, over the week-end.

There were many happy-hearted kiddies in Millbrook on Saturday afternoon, and Mr. Victor Lambert won a warm place in their affections by giving away ice cream cones from 2 to 3 p.m. to every child under twelve who applied. Needless to say there were no children under the prescribed age absent unless by illness to remain at home.

The plan, which has not previously been tried out here, was to mark the opening of Mr. Lambert's newly decorated ice cream parlors for the season. The entire staff was kept busy supplying the "waiting line" during the hour or more the demand lasted, and it is quite safe to say were the proprietor a candidate for municipal honors, and the children had the right to vote, his majority would be overwhelming. As it is,Mr. Lambert's popularity is unquestioned with the juvenile element after Saturday's liberality.

DYSPEPSIA WAS SO BAD Could Hardly Eat Anything

Mrs. C. Stone, Nanticoke, Ont., writes:—"Some time ago I had a very serious attack of dyspepsia, and was also troubled with gas on my stomach. I could hardly eat anything, and very often had pains after meals. I had used different medicine, but they didn't seem to do me any good. At last I happened to run on the track of Burdock Blood Bitters, and after using it for a short time I felt a lot better. I continued its use until I was completely relieved and now I am ready to recommend it to anyone troubled as I was."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

LIQUOR POURING INTO MOBILE

MOBILE, Ala., May 15.—(United Press).—Mobile has started agitation for a dry navy. Five thousand cases of booze are being smuggled into gulf port cities every month, according to figures given out by coast guard officials. h Mobile receipts alone run a shigh as 1,000 cases a month ,authorities declared. A "mosquito fleet" of half a dozen speed-boats and two destroyers will be petitioned for.

A dose at bedtime of DR. CALDWELL'S LAXATIVE SYRUP PEPSIN Made them feel jolly again

Good Health in Happy Old Age

THE chief concern of elderly people is their health, and that is best assured by regular daily bowel movement. There is no truth, however, in the notion that because you are old you need a "strong physic." In fact, just because you are old a mild laxative is better for you. The trouble with purges and cathartics and physics is that they shock the system and weaken it and make the muscles of digestion flabby. Mr. John Muse, 128 Prince Edward St., St. John, N. B., says Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin is the best medicine on earth and Mrs. George Luth, Pope, Man., who is in her 79th year, has found it easy to take, gentle in action and entirely satisfactory.

Does Not Gripe

You can be sure of satisfactory evacuations every day if you will take a spoonful of Laxative Syrup Pepsin at night when you retire. You will not need to take it very long as a few doses will soon encourage the bowels to act for themselves. The popularity of this wonderful family remedy has become so great that it is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. Because of its mildness and freedom from griping it is especially ideal for the extremes of ages, for children and for elderly people.

Effective at Small Cost

Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin at any drug store. The formula is on the package, and the cost less than a cent a dose. Take it when you feel heavy, sleep poorly, have headache or night cramps, for these are also symptoms of constipation. Give it to the children when they are restless, feverish or have a cold. Laxative Syrup Pepsin will keep you and your family free from constipation, a condition that lowers the vitality 25 per cent and raises the blood pressure 28 per cent. Freedom from constipation lessens the pain of kidney trouble, neuritis and rheumatism.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, May 15.—Property is still changing hands in town and country.

Mr. and Mrs. George Page have purchased from Mrs. Hayward her house on University Avenue, Cobourg.

The executors of the estate of the late Miss Sarah J. Wilson have sold to Fred. F. Rowe a house and lot on Matthew Street.

The executors of the estate of the late Miss Isabella Ross, Haldimand Township have sold part of lots 20 and 21 and 22, concession 2, Haldimand Township, to Miss Annie Heenan.

Mr. William R. Coyle has purchased a part of lot 16, con. 2, Alnwich Township, from the Indian Lands Department.

John R. Nichols has sold a part of lot 24, con. 2, Haldimand Township, to John D. Craig.

George T. Linton has sold a part of lot 34, con. 2, Haldimand Township, to William T. Robins.

Mrs. H. Hodgens is stated to have sold to Martin Phum, of Rochester, N.Y., a building lot on Rice Lake, and a similar lot to Mr. Albert C. Weber. On both of these properties summer cottages are to be erected.

Death at Burnley.

Miss Edna Harnden, daughter of Mr. John Harnden, and an esteemed young lady, passed away at Burnley following an illness with pleuro-pneumonia.

Tender Accepted.

The county Property Committee for the Counties of Northumberland and Durham, has accepted the tender of Pratt & Jennings, Cobourg, to supply coal for the Home for the Aged, the Counties Jail and West Northumberland Registry Office.

Mr. Wilfred Throop has been appointed caretaker of West Northumberland Registry Office, succeeding the late James Moyse, whose death occurred a few weeks ago.

The Late Mrs. Lindsay.

The death took place recently, in Toronto, of Mrs. Lindsay, a daughter of the late Mr. Harvey Reseveer, old resident at Precious Corners, near Cobourg. She was a lady who was held in very high esteem, and old friends here learned of her death with keen regret.

Plainville Young People at Centreton.

The young people of Plainville are winning laurels for themselves by the able presentation of the play, "The Dust of the Earth." Recently they put on this play at Port Hope, the following taking part:—Mr. Cecil Machlin, Miss Clara King, Miss B. Timlin, Mr. Clifford Wenley, Mr. Meredith Perrin, Miss Jean Bowman, Mr. Geo. Watkins, Mr. Fred Bowman, Mr. Ewart King, and Miss Alice Sweetnam.

A male quartette, also from Plainville—Messrs. Douglas Westington, Wilbur Cole, Clarence Wilton, and Clifford Manly—gave much enjoyed selections. Mr. D. Westington played violin solos, and Mr. Meredith Perrin recited.

Boy Scouts' Minstrel Show.

The local Boy Scouts put on a minstrel show on Friday evening that was much enjoyed. After a number of lantern slides, which showed various boys' camps, and gave good, descriptive information concerning Scout work, and some instrumental numbers, the curtain went up, showing some twenty "darkies." The boys sang a number of songs. Mr. Wilfrid Davenport, as interlocutor, did excellent work, and the end men were fully up to their role. The boys apparently enjoyed it and their audience much more.

Golf Tournament.

Golf bids fair to be very popular in Cobourg the coming summer; in fact, it is very much enjoyed at the present time. The Golf Club has a fine clubhouse and nice grounds, and many a social event takes place there. At present the club has a tournament in view. This is to be held on May 24, which bids fair to be a big sports' day in Cobourg. It will be open to both lady and gentlemen members of the club.

Former Cobourg Boy Dead.

The death took place at Rochester recently of W. J. Braithwaite, a former Cobourg boy. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Braithwaite, and, besides his widow, is survived by one sister—Mrs. Frank Curry, Toronto. He had been away from Cobourg for many years.

Ministers Exchanged.

Rev. W. A. Bremner, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, was at Norwood yesterday where he preached for the Rev. T. W. Wesley in the Presbyterian Church there. The latter took Mr. Bremner's work here very acceptably.

S. O. E. Euchre.

The Sons of England had an enjoyable euchre on Friday evening. The prize-winners were Mrs. George Brinning, Mrs. Martin, Master Gerald Brinning and Mr. A. Waller. It required nineteen tables to accommodate those present.

Choir Officers.

At the annual meeting of the Methodist Church Choir, of which Mr. Frank Parkinson is organist and director, the following officers were elected:—

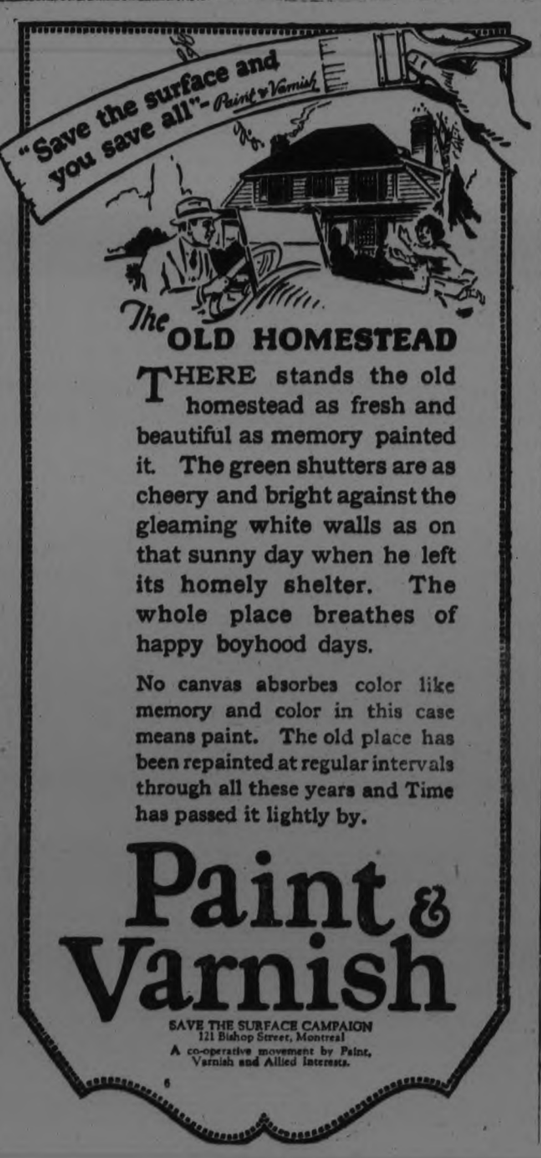
President—Mrs. McW. Sparling.
Assistant President—Mr. M. E. Hall.
Secretary—Miss Nellie Scarpe.
Treasurer—Mr. George Hall.
Librarian—Mr. Clifford Earle.
Assistant Librarian—Mr. S. Macklin
Supervisor of Vestments—Miss Jennie Sprentall.
Assistant—Mrs. D. Lansberry.

DISEASE, NOT LAZINESS CAUSE TROPIC LETHARGY

HONOLULU, May, 15.—Victims of the languorous life of the tropics are more to be pitied than censured, according to the view expressed before the Pan-Pacific club here by E. E. Baker, for ten years a resident of the Philippine Islands.

Mr. Baker asserted that there is little foundation for the opinion that the tropics produce laziness, adding that what is apparent laziness is nothing more than the effects of tropical disease. The control or elimination of these diseases will bring the people of tropical countries into a more even competition with those residents in temperate climes, he held.

Referring to the resources of the Philippines, Mr. Baker declared that one acre in a tropical land is worth two in a temperate country.



The OLD HOMESTEAD

THERE stands the old homestead as fresh and beautiful as memory painted it. The green shutters are as cheery and bright against the gleaming white walls as on that sunny day when he left its homely shelter. The whole place breathes of happy boyhood days.

No canvas absorbes color like memory and color in this case means paint. The old place has been repainted at regular intervals through all these years and Time has passed it lightly by.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Rebekah Lodge Held Progressive Euchre Party—Personals.

MILLBROOK, May 15.—The officers and members of "Golden Sheaf" Rebekah Lodge held a progressive euchre "at home" in the I.O.O.F. Hall on Monday evening, the wet weather making the attendance less than half what it usually is on such occasions. Fifteen tables were in use, very few guests being able to come in from the country, the majority being village residents.

The rules observed included a five-point game at the head table, the winning lady moving up one and the losing gentleman down each time the bell rang. Partners were not changed at the head table, the losers moving at the conclusion of the game.

Supper was served about 11 p.m., and dancing enjoyed for an hour or so afterwards before the gathering finally broke up. The prize winners were: Lady's first, Miss May Duncan; lady's consolation, Miss Ada Attwooll; gentleman's first, Mr. Basil Richards; gentleman's consolation, Keith Barnard. The prizes were a handsome jardinere of wickerwork, box of soap, box of cigars, and bottle of "ketch-up", respectively. Five ladies had to cut for the first prize and three gentlemen had also won an equal number of games, making a cut necessary for this prize as well.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. B. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bentley, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Fee, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ball, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ball, Mr. and Mrs. C. Garside, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston, Mrs. H. A. and Mr. Aubrey Fallis, Mrs. J. A. Vance, Mrs. B. R. Raper, Misses E. Grandy, Dorothy Armstrong, Hattie and Charlotte Barnard, May Byam, Kathleen Isbister, May Needham, May Duncan, A. Attwooll, L. Shaw, Irene Francey, Florence Larmer, C. Needler, J. Syer, F. W. Burton, Ronald Hutchison, Fred Barnard, S. Gilmour, Arnold Armstrong, J. Yake, Morley Black, W. Sayles, L. Henderson, D. Fowler, Keith Larmer, and others.

Dr. N. D. Buchanan, of Peterborough, was in town on Monday in connection with some operation cases at Dr. H. A. Turner's private hospital. Mrs. T. H. Bradley, and Miss Jessie Fallis, of Toronto, had their tonsils removed; both patients are doing well, the latter having been able to be removed to her brother's, Mr. L. W. Fallis, Fallis Line, and the latter expecting to be home again in another day or two.

Master Cameron Vance, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Vance, who has been quite ill for the past wto weeks, is now recovered and was able to be at school again on Monday.

Some little children who began school for the first time shortly after the Easter holidays were: Reg. Edmunds, Eric Abbott, Myrtle (Toy) Nattrass, and Margaret Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Williams, and son, and Mr. and Mrs. Will Davis, and son, of Peterborough, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred White on Sunday.

Mrs. J. McBrien, who has spent the winter with her son in Lindsay, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. A. Wilson, Main Street.

KIWANIS CLUB---ROTARY CLUB

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I wish to express, both for myself and for the other members of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club, the individual and collective interest which this organization is taking in the Community Festival to be given in the Grand Opera House to-morrow evening by the successful contestants at the recent Competitive Musical Festival in Toronto.

The Peterborough musicians who went to Toronto this year, duplicated, in greater numbers, the success of the vocalists and the orchestra who attended the first Festival in 1923. Peterborough's reputation abroad as a centre where interest and proficiency in music flourished, was enhanced this year by the presence at the Toronto Festival of local musicians in such numbers and of such ability. As well as being a live sporting town, with a reputation for pre-eminence in games, Peterborough, by its successes of two years at this Festival, has broadcast to the Province its ability in music. The debt which the citizens owe to advertisers of such merit and energy is a big one. Those who stay at home and reap the benefits in a civic way of such success should at least patronize the Festival given by the two organizations, both of whom are out of pocket by reason of their efforts to sustain the reputation of their city.

In line with the Kiwanis motto, "We Build," the club feels that its support and countenance of an event which will be a source of musical enjoyment is a duty as well as a pleasure, and proclaims itself whole-heartedly and unanimously behind the Community Festival of Friday evening.

Yours very truly,
JOHN R. MARSHALL.
President of the Kiwanis Club.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

At the last meeting of the Peterborough Rotary Club, an announcement was made of the Male Voice Choir and the Symphony Orchestra concert, to be given in the Opera House, on Friday evening, May 16.

Because the members of the Rotary Club appreciate the fact that the above named organizations are community enterprises the coming musical festival was approved of in a most practical manner, namely by the purchase of tickets by the majority of the members present.

As a member of the Rotary Club in Peterborough, whose objects and work are altogether for the benefit of others, I appreciate the fact that the Male Voice Choir and Symphony Orchestra are community enterprises, but of a different nature, and they are just as much worthy of the support and practical sympathy of the citizens of Peterborough as any of the other organizations in our city.

I, along with others, would much like to see the Opera House full to capacity on Friday evening, so that they may be helped in their finance. The members give personally of their time and money.

In addition to the fact that those who attend are helping something for the benefit of the community, at large, they will also hear a most excellent concert on the occasion.

Yours very truly,
REED WREN,

Peterboro Poultry Association

At the meeting of the Peterboro Poultry Association held last evening in the Farmers' Club-rooms on Simcoe Street, it was announced that Mr. J. W. Clarke, of Cainsville, who was to lecture the local association on "Young Chicks," was unable to be present on account of the death of his mother. A telegram from Mr. Clarke was received by Mr. W. J. Nesbitt, secretary of the association, late in the afternoon, stating that he would not be present but that he would be able to come and lecture in a week or a little later if it was suitable to the association.

It was approved by all present that a letter of condolence be sent to Mr. Clarke by Secretary W. J. Nesbitt.

James Ellis, president of the association, occupied the chair and gave a talk on ways to build up the association and liven it up a bit. He said that he though a good idea to get the different men in the city and surrounding district who are interested in poultry to turn out to the meetings would be to have a banquet, but after considerable discussion it was decided that the next meeting would be held in the form of a social evening, with refreshments, music and community singing along with any business that needed to be attended to. He said that the association had fallen away and that something else besides "chicks" had to be thought of if the association was to be a success. He also proposed that during the months of July and August the association should not hold any meetings and that they should start off in the fall with a big banquet or some kind of an entertainment to get the men together. It is the wish of the association that Mr. Clarke will be present at the next meeting to give them a lecture on something pertaining to the raising of chickens. Prices from different firms on chicken coops were read, and it was finally decided that two sample coops from a leading poultry firm in Toronto would be sent for, so that the members would be able to examine the coops before getting any more. From the price lists it was found that the coops were a little cheaper this year than last, and in one case a difference of 75c on each coop.

Secretary Nesbitt is to be issued a cheque with which to buy the two sample coops. President James Ellis said he wanted the association to make a new start and that if it got started in the right way it would no doubt be a huge success. He said that the present association was a great many years behind the times and that the association would have to wake up and put more life in their meetings if they expected to have successful meetings. It is hoped that all interested in this line will be present at the next meeting, which Mr. Clarke will likely address.

SIX MONTHS HARD LABOR FOR STEALING A WREATH

REGINA, May 15. — (Canadian Press).—For stealing a wreath of flowers on May 9th from a grave in Mount Pleasant Cemetery at Swift Current, Malcolm Munro, a laborer, was sentenced to six months' hard labor in the Regina Jail. In a statement to the police, Munro said that he had received an order for a wreath to send to a funeral at Lac Pelletier and he went to the cemetery, took the wreath and fixed it up, putting new flowers where the old ones had withered. The new wreath was sold for $15.

ORLAND BASEBALL FANS FORM LEAGUE

ORLAND, May 15.—The younger baseball enthusiasts met on Monday of this week and unanimously decided to organize a junior team here. They have secured some thirty recruits under the age limit. They have secured the grounds here used by the senior team, and from the formidable array of athletic recruits that have rallied they will be able to dispute honors with the seniors, which are conceded to be one of the strongest teams in the County League. Rumor has whispered that there is to be a trophy donated by a prominent man of this county to the winners of the pennant for the newly organized Junior League of Northumberland County.

So far Brighton, Colborne and Orland have placed teams in the field and will undoubtedly be followed by others.

SERVICES AT THE CATHEDRAL

Father McCann, in making the announcements last evening, told of the pleasure experienced by missionaries when they saw such large congregations of men so sincere in the business of the soul's welfare. It is most pleasing to God, he added, to accept the sacrifices so willingly made by men who work hard all day and have still many tasks to perform in the evening.

Rev. Father De Coste preached again in his usual effective manner on the practical and inevitable truth, "It is appointed unto me once to die."

Wealth cannot bribe, beauty cannot daze, nor can science cheat death. When, where, or under what circumstances we may die, we know not. If, twenty years ago, the congregation here were asked then from this pulpit how many of you will die in the trenches of Flanders, the question should have seemed absurd. Yet many of those who were here twenty years ago lie buried over there. We do not know when, where, or in what manner, but we do know if we die in mortal sin we are lost.

The natural impulse of man is to put off the thought of death, but human nature needs discipline. The saints and martyers realized this fact and were severe in self-denial. They always remembered the last act in the drama ofIife.

Our life is but a slow decay—a few years of growth, a few years of maturity, a few final, uncertain years of decay. Living, we move on and on toward death, striving toward him always, and yet fearful of the meeting. Life may have given us but little, yet we fear to think of death. Our attitude is like that of the old man in the fable who was trudging home with a large bundle of fagots. Weary and worn and desolate, he cast it down and sat upon it and called upon death to come and deliver him. Death came straightway at his call and asked him what he wanted. "Pray, good sir," said he, "help me up with my burden again."

Nevertheless, it is necessary and salutary to meditate often on death. Man may love the world with its heat and its light and its joy; he may wish to linger here always, yet a moment's reflection will teach him how impossible it is, for that fell sergeant, Death, is strict in his arrest. He is no respector of persons—the young, the old, the rich the poor, the prince and the peasant must obey his summons and do his bidding.

Death greets us many times a day and we pay but little heed. Even when his scythe swings mightily in war, pestilence, or dread catastrophe, we are but little impressed. Yet we know that at the very moment when life seems pouring into our hearts death stalks close by.

The pagans of old liked to picture death as the twin-brother of Sleep. They could not avoid him, they could not spurn him, so they decked him out, therefore, in gorgeous attire and greeted him with strains of soft music. In the Middle Ages, when faith was strong and vigorous, men called him the grim reaper, and pictured him as a skeleton, with an ugly grin, scythe in hand, cruel, merciless, mockingly inviting his quailing victim to dance with him. This may, of course, be another extreme, but is, nevertheless, a sign of vigorous faith and trust in God, for these men recognized that death at its worst is only a physical evil, the worst physical evil that may afflict man, but, as such, is not to be feared. We must fear moral evil, for it alone offends God.

What is the attitude of the world today toward death? Are we not going back to the pagan standard? When you read such expressions as, "he went away," "he joined the vast majority," "he passed into the great beyond," one fears for the lively faith of the present day. Here, then, let us face the issue squarely and be always prepared.

Who knows under what circumstances he may die? In solitude, forsaken, or surrounded by friends? Will the sunshine linger over him, or will the darkness of night enshroud him? Shall he die a natural or a violent death? One thing we do know—As we live, so shall we die. Strive, then, to serve God faithfully, and He will befriend you at the hour of death. The impenitent sinner must leave all behind him—the world that beguiled him, the friends who deceive. He must leave all but his burden of sin, which will cling to him and effect his eternal damnation.

Father De Coste concluded his instruction by insisting that every prudent man keep his worldly affairs in order against the hour of death. He will have his will always made, and in that last testament he will remember the welfare of his own soul. He will also give back to God some of the goods with which a generous Providence blessed him. He will remember generously God's church, and her institution, in which she cares so tenderly for the sick, the aged, and the orphans—God's dearest children. In doing this he will manifest his faith and love for God and edify those who remain.

AUTO DRIVERS ARE WARNED BY POLICE

Forty-five Citizens Parked Cars in Prohibited Areas or Left Them Without Lights.

Forty-five citizens were warned by Chief of Police Samuel Newhall last night for parking their cars in prohibited areas and without lights. It was considered that sufficient notice had not been given of the police intention to enforce the highway traffic act in this regard, and the Chief Constable was glad to extend the privilege of a caution on this occasion. He made it clear, however, that this is the last warning, and the police will insist upon cars being parked in the authorized area, and when left standing elsewhere they must have the lights required by the Act.

The most important phase of the new enforcement seems to be the prohibition of parking a car on the street where a street railway switch broadens out the railway tracks. When a car is standing beside the sidewalk there is not room for another to pass between it and the track.

A fallacy that has gained ground is the idea that a business man may leave his car standing outside his office as long as he likes. The regulation prohibits the parking of cars on a street longer than for a reasonable time for the transaction of business. To comply with the law, a man who drives to his office must park his car on the market square in the morning and leave it there until he requires it to drive home. If he merely calls in his office for fifteen minutes, and then has calls to make, as many do, he is permitted to leave his car near his office.

As for parking lights, the rule is simple. No car may be left standing on any street without a parking light as permitted by the act, or if this is not installed, two headlights and a tail light burning. The only place where a car may be parked in Peterborough, besides private property, where lights are not required after nightfall, is the market square.

SOCCER NOTES.

Owing to the heavy condititon of the grounds at the Oval and King Edward Park the game scheduled for to-night has been called off. Canadian Wollens and Vets players please note.

TENNIS NEWS.

The Peterboro Tennis Club are preparing for a real tennis season for 1924.

Courts Nos. 1 and 2 are now open and some of the members are already getting into shape.

Courts Nos. 3 and 4 are started and will be finished up as soon as weather permits.

One hundred and five applications have been received by the secretary.

The woodwork, posts, etc., around the courts have been painted the club colors, green and white.

A ladies rest room has been added to the courts this season and is now ready.

The Oshawa, Port Hope and Cobourg Tennis Clubs have been written to, asking their opinion and suggestions regarding forming a Central Ontario Tennis League. A favorable reply has been received from Oshawa.

Members of the Peterboro Tennis Club please note that courts Nos. 1 and 2 are ready and can be played on, weather permitting.

A tennis tea will probably be held when courts Nos. 3 and 4 are finished and ready for playing.

ESCAPE FROM GALLOWS.

MONTREAL, May 15. — Within less than 24 hours of the gallows, Joseph Frelier, sentenced to death and slated to hang to-morrow morning for the murder of Mrs. Bergeron over two years ago, was granted a stay of execution to-day until October 21st.

Canadian Stock Exchange and Mines | New York Stock Exchange and Curb Prices

TO-DAY'S QUOTATIONS AND OPINION AND REVIEWS OF THE MARKETS.

The mining market this morning was weak, only three advances were recorded. Indian up to 24 and Wettlaufer 23 1-2. The bulk of the trading was in West Dome Lake, Tech Hughes, New Ray and Everett.

The Toronto and Montreal markets were composed almost entirely of Smelters, which opened at 39 and sold up to 41. The trading was very heavy and demand was persistent at this level. The balance of the list with the exception of a few was unchanged.

The New York market was firmer this morning with the whole list showing moderate activity and toward noon was inclined to move up. Trade news was very much mixed and until there is a definite line on business in general there can be no big market. There is great speculation at present whether the slowing up will continue or whether it is a seasonal condition.

Recipe For Reforestation

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(United Press.)—A recipe for the continuous production of timber in the United States, menaced by consumption which is outstripping the natural rate of growth of forests, has been drafted and given to Congress by Representative John D. Clarke (R.) of New York.

It is entitled "Presto—a national forest policy—a recipe for bringing about the continuous production of timber in the United States."

"Take ninety-six Senators and 435 members of Congress," the recipe runs. "Mix well with pictures of the denuded bills of China and its population with the lowest standards of living. Add a panoramic view of our now fast disappearing forests, due to the absence of a national forest policy. Place into this mixture the leaven of an aroused public conscience, demanding a national forest policy adequate to the requirements of the United States.

"Knead into six loaves, embodying the following points based on reciprocal laws and the co-operation of each of the States with the Federal Government:

1. More funds for patrol and lookout stations to prevent and put out forest fires;

"2. Just forest taxation laws to encourage private owners to grow trees;

"3. Substantial additions to the already existing areas of public-owned lands;

"4. More assistance to the private forest owner, both in aiding reforestation and in the proper management of existing woodland;

"5. Adequate appropriation for investigation and research in order to utilize and standardize and get the most out of our forests;

"6. Permission for owners of private forest land who actively cooperate with the Government to deduct a certain percentage from their income tax returns, the same principle as is now followed where the individual makes charitable contributions.

"Repeat the same process with the Legislatures in each of the Forty-eight States. Bake quickly.

"Result: Forty-eight States cooperating with the national Government and the children of all the tomorrows singing the praises of all those who joined in accomplishing this long-desired end."

GIRL SHOT IN CHURCH DIES.

Wounded When Pistol Dropped From Her Father's Pocket.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 15.—Wounded by a bullet when a pistol fell fom her father's pocket and was accidentaily discharged in an East Pittsburgh church on Sunday night, 14-year old Thelma Klingensmith died in a hospital to-day. William Klingensmith, the father, said he carried the pistol for protection against highwaymen.

During the church services the pastor called upon the congregation to stand and sing a hymn. The pistol dropped from Klingensmith's pocket as he arose.

Sky-Riders.

A flying flivver will be placed on the market by the Dietrich firm in Germany. The price, it's said, will be less than a motorcycle with side car. The speed will be 70 miles an hour, gasoline a cent a mile.

Comparatively safe flying flivvers probably soon will be for sale. Inventing and manufacturing will not be difficult. But inducing people to buy and ride will not be as easy. It's 100 times as hard to get people to adopt a new device or idea as it is to create it. However, you may yet have your own airplane, and years sooner than you think possible.

More than 200,000 automobiles were stolen in 28 principal cities of the United States in the past six years. Of this number nearly 25 per cent. have not been recovered

VICTIMS WANT FULL JUSTICE

Depositors Would Have Been Protected by Liquidation in 1916.

OTTAWA, May 15.— (Canadian Press).—That it is intention of counsel for depositors of Home Bank, in event of favorable report by Commissioner McKeown, to ask government for bill which will give depositors "full justice" was announced at this morning's sitting of royal inquiry commission announcement was made by W. T. J. Lee(one of depositors counsel, when opening his argument in support of depositors claim, Mr. Lee informed commissioner that counsel for depositors were anxious for an interim report on this phase of case as early as could reasonably be expected, if report was favorable, government would be asked to bring down bill. Mr. Lee followed R. J. McLaghlin, K.C., who opened argument for depositors yesterday and concluded this morning. Mr. McLaughlin emphasized the point that Liquidator Clarkson had stated that if Home Bank had been forced into liquidation in 1916 the depositors would have received 100 cents on dollar. This payment could have been made out of assets of Bank in 1916 together with reasonable application of double liability. Mr McLaughlin took ground that, even if finance minister could not have forced Canadian Bankers Association over bank he certainly could have forced the bank into liquidation. All he had to do was to give information in his possession to public when, liquidation would have inevitably followed, "is bank to be allowed to go on taking money from public when facts are known to trustees of people which, if they were known to people, would prevent them from depositing" Mr McLaughlin asked. He attached no blame to Sir Thomas White personally, pointing out that former finance minister had been working at high pressure under war conditions and that his mind was occupied with many things. He knew that even the suggestion of bank failure would have been powerful argument in the mind of Sir Thomas against inspecting bank. Before minister was probably only too glad to trust M. J. Haney, and get Home Bank off his hands. Mr. Lee quoted at length from correspondence to show that condition of bank was thoroughly impressed on Sir Thomas

He will continue this afternoon.

At opening of sitting, W. T. J. Lee, cousel for depositors drew attention of commissioner to an intimation in certain newspapers that depositors would not be reimbursed. This was based on remark dropped by commissioner when trying to ascertain from R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., and Mr. Lee, approximate amount required to reimburse depositors.

This remark was to effect that he (the commissioner) did not think idea of reimbursing depositors by taking over bank would recommend impression had been created in some papers by this remark.

Mr. Lee said that apparently false itself to government.

Commissioner McKeown said that he had certainly not intended to leave impression which Mr. Lee referred to." It would be farthest from my intention to suggest course which government will take" he said. He had merely been endeavoring to draw distinction between two methods which might be adopted in dealing with claim of depositors.

MISS MARY ALLEN IS A STRIKING FIGURE

TORONTO, May 15.—(Canadian Press).—Miss Mary Allen, O.B.E. commandant of the Women's Auxiliary Police Service of London, England, which is a voluntary body and training school for police women, has arrived in this city, in the course of her tour of the cities of this country in the interests of the police work and women's courts.

Miss Allen is a striking figure in her masculine uniform, including riding breeches and regulation army cap, which is her regular style of dress. To-day Miss Allen paid special attention to the women's court here, under Magistrate Margaret Patterson. A series of receptions and other honors are being tendered to Miss Allen here to-day.

BLONDE CHINESE FOUND IN KANSU REGION ASIA

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(Canadian Press).—Blonde Chinese with curly yellow hair and women who keep no account of their ages have been found by an expedition of the National Geographical Society sent into the unmapped Kansu region of Asia. Reporting to society's headquarters here, Frederick R. Wulsin, leader of the expedition, told of the trip on Yellow River on a raft made of 72 Yak Skins. The "Toguns" meaning "Earth Men" were the most interesting people encountered, he said and it awas among these that the question of age had no importance. He added that unmarried women wore from 20 to 40 braids of hair.

POWER PLANTS FROM THE SEA

Tests Are Being Made of New Invention in Europe.

(By Carl D. Groat.)

BERLIN, May 15. — (United Press.)—A floating power plant for the exploitation of the energies of the sea has been constructed, it is claimed, by Wodenitsharoff, citizen of the South Bugarian town of Sliwen.

Reports from Burgas on the Black Sea, where tests are being made, are extremely optimistic. They claim that the efficiency of Wodenitsharoff's method has been established, beyond dispute by these tests, the results of which have induced the Bulgarian government to finance them further.

Wodenitsharoff's method differs fundamentally from all previous experiments to exploit sea energy. He utilizes the energy of the waves proper, while, heretofore, inventors have chiefly tried to utilize the energies of the tide.

After many failures during the last ten years—the model tested at Burgas is the fifth—Wodenitsharoff succeded in constructing an apparatus fitted for his purpose.

The construction of his "Stihia" —the Bulgarian for goblin—is simple:

Not far from the shore, a platform rests on a foundation of iron piles with a float suspended between the piles. From this float the movements of the waves are transmitted to a special arrangement of wheels above the platform. These wheels are arranged in a manner permitting of revolution in one direction only, thus creating power.

It is claimed that the tests with the "Stihia" have proved that 1,333 horse power can be produced per second with a float of 100 tons water displacement.

An apparatus of that character costs approximately the same as a Diesel motor, producing only 1,000 horse power per second.

CROP REPORTS

The following is a summary of returns made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Catchy weather during the usual time of seeding has greatly delayed sowing. It is estimated that at the end of the week from 65 to 85 per cent. of the spring grains had been got in, and on high and well-drained farms the full acreage. A few complaints are made of the land being rather grassy, but in most cases the ground has worked very satisfactorily. A number of farmers have got in some of their roots.

Fall wheat has been helped by the spring rains, although growth has been rather slow owing to the cool weather. It is looking well, and very little has been plowed up.

Clover, like fall wheat, is a promising crop, the moist spring ensuring a good start.

The Huron representative says that a good acreage of beans will be planted this year.

Fodders have been more largely drawn upon in May than usual, owing to the backward condition of pastures. Live stock owners have been fortunate in having a good supply of hay on hand. Some animals are already on grass, but the bite is so far rather small.

There has been much activity this season in pruning. Spraying preparations are on a larger scale than usual.

Northumberland reports considerable planting of fruit this year, both orchard trees and such small fruit as strawberries, raspberries and currants.

Bees made a heavy drain on stores owing to the late spring, and have been comparatively lide on account of the wet raw weather.

Dairy cows are selling at from $60 to $70 in Dundas, and from $40 to $60 in Leeds.

Eight carloads of hogs and two hundred calves were shipped from the county of Haldimand last week.

Perth.—It is a common thing while driving along the road to see a sign on a farmer's mail box, advertising young pigs for sale. These are selling at from $5 to $6 a pair.

Wellington.—Export cattle have been leaving the county weekly for three months, some weeks as high as ten cars. Ten carloads or more of horses weighing from 1200 to 1700 lbs. have left the county in the last eight weeks. The price goes pretty much according to weight, the heavier the better. Good heavy horses sold at $200 each.

Prince Edward.—The most outstanding feature of the live stock situation is the increase in the number of sheep kept, and particularly the attention given to feeding, docking and castrating. The proportion of lambs seems to be above average and the tendency is to increase the flocks.

South Simcoe.—Last week a farmer at Avening disposed of fourteen steers, averaging 1,025 pounds each, for $7.50 per cwt.

Bruce.—Considerable grass cattle have turned out during the week. Generally speaking they are in excellent condition. Grass cattle weighing from 1000 to 1100 lbs. are being purchased from $6 to $6.50. Pigs 6 weeks to 2 months of age are selling from $2.50 to $4.50 each, according to quality.

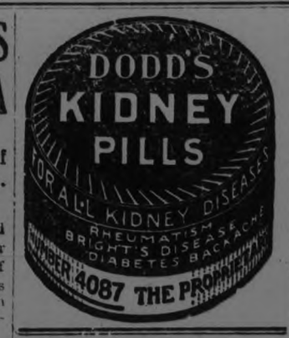
Waterloo.—Heavy steers are being shipped out every week now. A lot of good stuff is being shipped from the shipping points in this country.

Waterloo.—Heavy steers are being shipped out every week now. A lot of good stuff is being shipped from the shipping points in this country.

Fort William.—A carload of horses was brought in from the west into Slate River. A number of farmers are picking up farm work horses locally from the sales stables and lumber companies at prices ranging from $160 to $275 a team.

Wellington states that the Danes and Finns who are working as farm laborers in that county are giving good satisfaction. Hastings and Port Arthur also speak highly of the Danes as agricultural workers.

The German farm laborers in Bruce are also much appreciated. They are still coming in large numbers. They are working for minimum wages, around $12 and $15 a month.



At 80 Years of Age Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath Palpitation of the Heart And Fainting Spells

Mrs. M. O'Connor, Whitestone, Ont., writes:—"I have been troubled, most of my life, with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and fainting spells. I was advised by a friend to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, which I did, and at once found relief, and I have never had a really bad spell since.

I am 80 years of age and always keep them in the house, and when I feel any symptoms of my old trouble coming on all I have to do is to take a few doses. With the help of your Pills I expect to see many years yet. I always recommend them to any one who is suffering from heart trouble."

FRENCH ADMITTED TO LEARN ENGLISH

British Labor Department Effects Arrangements to Receive 500 Citizens of France.

LONDON, May 15.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—A question asked by a Liberal member in the House of Commons yesterday disclosed an interesting Labor government arrangement to admit a maximum of 500 French citizens to England annually to learn English.

Thomas Shaw, Minister of Labor, said the arrangement was concluded with the French Minister of Labor last January whereby these French citizens could come to England for employment to perfect their knowledge of the English language and English commercial methods subject to the granting of a permit in each individual case by the British Minister of Labor, if the application was endorsed by the French Minister of Labor.

The arrangement would enable the Minister to exercise more effective power in the issue of permits, and he had reserved the right to limit the grant of applications in light employment. He was not aware that there was any limit to the number of British subjects permitted to enter France to learn the French language. Under the new arrangement the policy of the minister of labor was not to allow French citizens to enter England if there was any danger of British subjects being thrown out of work thereby. The question of the length of their stay in England, said Mr. Shaw, would dpend on circumstances.

WOMEN POLICE ON THE INCREASE

GENEVA, May 15.—Women police are increasing throughout the world, notably in the United States and Great Britain, according to an investigation made by the permanent League of Nations commission for the suppression of the international traffic in women and children. The commission voiced its satisfaction at this development, recording its opinion that the appointment of women as members of police forces would have a beneficial effect in the protection of the interests of women and children throughout the world.

FRANCE LOOKING FOR NEW LEADER

Dissension Over the Spoils of Political Victory.

(By Webb Miller, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, May 15. — Dissension over the spoils of political victory is increasing daily in the ranks of the left wing.

Many of the Socialists will have nothing of compromise with the Radicals and the Communists disdain affiliation with any party.

For the purpose of government a combination of parties of the Leit is necessary. No one political group is with a hundred seats of being able to control the chamber for a single day.

Politicians recognize this and are quietly arranging the necessary compromises in the interval before Premier Poincare resigns. Edouard Perriot, Mayor of Lyons, who is spoken of as the likeliest successor to the premiership, has gone to the south of France. He has carefully refrained from revealing his attitude, but the newspaper Quotidion announced to-day that Perriot would accept the task of forming a cabinet.

Leon Blum, one of the leaders of the Socialists (Perriot is a Radical Socialist) announced opposition of his party participating in a cabinet with Radicals of "any bourgeois party."

The Socialists have summoned a congress for June 1st to consider participation in the next government.

WILL REORGANIZE THE DEPARTMENT

Premier Is Looking For Another Big Man to Meet Public.

TORONTO, May 15. — Premier Ferguson is contemplating reorganization of all the varied social departments of the Ontario Government under one administrative head, which are now scattered among the departments of the Provincial Secretary Goldie, Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey and other Ministers.

"My idea," he said, "is to get a big man, with administrative capacity, who can go out to the public and make an appeal for support, enlist the cooperation of outside social organizations and of churches and who is able to look after the general administration. He will have supervisory charge of all delinquents — feeble-minded, under-privileged and all classes of welfare work.

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package. Tanlac wiped out

Ring Stolen in Social Call Betrayed Thief.

SARNIA, Ont., May 14.—Fred S. Phelps, 17, of Sarnia, was to-day sentenced to a month's imprisonment in the county jail for theft of a diamond ring. Phelps was searched by the police on suspicion with being concerned in a local burglary and the ring was found in his possession. Its ownership was traced and it appears that Phelps annexed it from a Brock street home one evening when he was calling on a young lady at the house. Phelps pleaded guilty when taxed with theft. The family was unaware that the ring was missing until the police communicated with them.

"..... She had been whirled through a gloriously happy evening, passed from the arms of one partner to another, withstood the attentions of ardent admirers —and yet she looked fresh; even after all the heat and excitement, just as radiant and unruffled as, though she had that moment stepped away from her dressing table....."

MONTREAL, May 15.—Schedule negotiations between the Canadian Pacific Railway and engineers and firemen employed on the Canadian Pacific Railway covered by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Brotherhood of Locomotive Enginemen and Firemen have been adjourned indefinitely after nearly four weeks of negotiation, to permit the men's committee to attend the triennial convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Enginers opening in Cleveland, Ohio on June 2.

The negotiations which opened on April 21, were adjourned without a settlement having been reached.

About 70 delegates from Canada will attend the Cleveland convention

COLOR COMBINATIONS FOR TAGS

There are 50,000 readily discernible and legible color combinations available for auto license plates, or enough to supply every State in the Union for 143 years. The Princeton colors of orange and black, which a number of States have used for auto license plates ,makes the most satisfactory combination from the police department's point of view that have ever been used. This is so because of the great visibility of orange and the legibility of the black lettering against the orange background.

Another Decline In Sugar Price

MONTREAL, May 15.—Another decline in Canadan refined sugar was reported by refiners here yesterday of 15 cents per 100 lbs. for all grades, making a net reduction of $1.30 per 100 lbs since Feb. 9. Extra granulated now sells at $8.60 per 100 lbs. in bags number I yellow at $8.20 extra ground at $8.80 and powdered at $8.70 per 100 lbs in barrels.

"Child's Eyelids Inflamed Stuck Together and Bled"

Mr. E. P. Kimball, Entwhistle, Alta., writes:

"Our little girl from birth was troubled with inflamed eyelids and in spite of several remedies, grew worse until at the age of sixteen months her eyes could not be opened after sleep without bleeding, a waxy discharge sticking the lids together and adhering with great tenacity. The child's grandmothers were consulted by mail, and both responded with a little sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. These were used as directed, and lasted until we could obtain a further supply from Edmonton. Improvement was very marked from the first application. The waxy discharge was easier removed and did not reappear. Inflammation subsided and has not returned."

ITEMS OMEMEE AND DISTRICT

OMEMEE, May 13.—The monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church was held in the Sunday School room last Wednesday afternoon. There was a splendid representation of members, also a number of visitors present, and before the meeting two quilts were quilted and a third finished later in the afternoon for the annual sale to be packed in August.

The devotional meeting commenced at four o'clock, the President in the chair, assisted by Mrs. M. J. Parsons, who conducted the opening exercises, using the word "Faith" for our consideration. All members responded to the roll-call by a passage of Scripture containing this word. Mrs. L. A. Mahood read an interesting chapter from the study book, entitled "The Pathfinder of North Formosa."

Three new members were added to the roll. Refreshments were served at the close by the hostesses—Mrs. Sandy, Mrs. Parsons, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Kelly and Mrs. Mahood.

Mr. Ernest Bushnell, one of our talented singers, now of Toronto, is to be congratulated on his having become a member of the Adanac Choir, which will leave Toronto on June 12th on a six weeks' tour through the Canadian West. He has been granted leave of absence from his employers, The National Stationers Ltd., for that time.

Mr. Brick, of Lindsay, spent Wednesday with his daughter, Mrs. William Irwin.

Mrs. B. McQuade and daughter, Mrs. L. McBride, were visitors to Peterboro on Friday.

Mr. Robert Williamson was a visitor to Toronto on Monday to see his wife who underwent a serious operation in St. John's Hospital.

Mrs. Burns left for her home in Chicago on Sunday after spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. M. D. Earle. Mr. and Mrs. Earle, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Gowans, motored her to Port Hope, where she took the train.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. McConnell and children, of Toronto, visited the former's mother, Mrs. Robert McConnell, on Sunday.

Mr. R. J. Patterson, M.P.P., was a visitor to Toronto on Friday.

Mrs. Pascoe, of Bobcaygeon, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Walter Magee.

Rev. E. W. and Mrs. Rowland and family motored to Lindsay on Saturday.

Mrs. J. J. Magee has returned home after an extended visit with her brother in the West, owing to the illness of another brother, Mr. William Tully, of Peterborough.

Mrs. Robert McConnell and daughter, Mrs. Irvine, were the guests of Mrs. Joseph McConnell, of East Emily, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Jones and sons, of Peterboro, were the guests of the former's sister, Mrs. J. A. Black on Sunday.

Mr. Cunningham, of Peterboro, was in town last week and tuned the pipe organ in the Methodist Church.

Mr. George Morton has returned home to resume his school studies after a short stay in Detroit.

Mr. J. Stone, a local farmer, delivered a quantity of shrubbery last week, filling orders received some time ago.

Mr. Thomas Osborne, of Lindsay, was a visitor in town on Sunday.

Mr. J. Cottingham, of Woodstock, was in town on business on Tuesday.

Entertained by League.

On Monday evening the cast of characters who presented the play, "The Dust of the Earth," and also the chorus girls and others who assisted on the programme, were right royally entertained by the members of the Epworth League, of the Methodist Church, in the Sunday Schoolroom.

After a short but varied programme, consisting of the following numbers, Mothers' Day chorus by several girls, entitled "Pilgrims"; a reading by Mr. Rowland and an encore, which was responded to by a solo entitled "Peg Away, Lad"; Misses Ida Shea and Lillian Race rendered a piano duet, and Miss Jean Sandy gave a paper on "The Grace of Laughter." A dainty lunch was then served, consisting of ice-cream and cake, after which a humorous contest followed and the gathering was divided into groups, each family being asked to contribute a number, and, as a result, many good selections followed. All enjoyed a pleasant evening.

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Prudence Page—a pretty country girl has awakened from a brief and unhappy love affair with unreliable

Bert Traymore—a fascinating philanderer guest at the home of Mrs. Vansittart—a wealthy woman, owner of Winston Towers. Another of her guests is

Virginia Dale—a blase beauty, who has brought about a forced engagement between herself and

Peter Armstrong—a brilliant, young inventor, who cares for Prudence, but thinks she is still fascinated by Traymore. Virginia has been thieving from her hostess, has flung the blame of one theft on Prudence, and now the latter finds her in the woods, digging up valuables which prove to have Mrs. Vansittart's initials on them. "How do you account for these' demands Prudence, pointing to the initials.

Virginia begs Prudence to keep her guilty secret, and Prudence, to save Peter disillusionment, agrees. Janet Mercer

Janet Mercer—a trained nurse, who is masseuse to Mrs. Vansittart's delicate child, is in love with Will Ogilvie.

Janet's happiness is dashed when she learns the engagement-ring Will had just given her is the property of Mrs. Vansittart.

CHAPTER LXX

Like a Distant Thunderclap

Peter Armstrong worked incessantly in his laboratory.

It was the one love that remained to him in this disturbing, 'topsy turvy universe.

Time and again he wanted to tell Virginia—gently, for he couldn't bear to hurt a woman—what a stupid blunder their engagement was!

But Virginia's facile emotions had been definitely touched. Conceited as she was, she knew that Peter's heart had not yet melted towards her, and—like that type of woman—the 'out of reach' had wondrous charm for her.

"I am in love with him," she told Mrs. Vansittart and her friends. "He's the one man in the world for me. I never look at anybody else."

"Take care he doesn't!" Mrs. Vansittart had teased her. "The old rules of the game, as played by you, my dear, won't always work with an unknown quantity like Peter Armstrong. He's different."

"It's his very difference that attracts me," said Virginia, for once speaking the truth.

"Plus his in difference," supplemented a candid friend, sotto voce.

It was lucky that Virginia didn't hear, for the lady's temper was none too good, of late. The course of true love, with various bumps en route, had jangled her nerves considerably.

And—slippery and unreliable herself—she couldn't quite credit the Page chit with keeping her promise not to tell about the elm tree episode!

She—Virginia—had taken the boxes off in her little car, despatching some of the things to New York, and burying the remainder at the bottom of a cupboard in her bedroom at the Towers. She had locked the cupboard carefully, and was trying to replace the stolen goods, cautiously, one by one, when no one was about.

It was a risky and a thankless job but done it must be, for who knew at what day or hour the prying Page chit might march in to see if the promise had been carried out!

Meantime, Peter was distressingly inattentive!

"I told you I wasn't a lady's man. I'm sorry, Virginia, but the leopard cannot change his spots!" He had laughed apologetically, though his heart was far from light.

"Perhaps the leopard would like to change his lady-love?" she had suggested, furious within, but trying to seem arch.

He had been unflatteringly silent, then. She had hit the nail too neatly on the head.

There was no word about a wedding day. Of course, that was the bride's prerogative, wasn't it?

She broached Mrs. Vansittart on the subject of marriage settlements.

"Not having a mother of my own, I'm sure you'll do it for me?"

"Do what, Virginia?"

"Arrange with Peter about the money he must settle on me, dear. A heart-to-heart talk."

"Hand to pocket, you mean!" The older woman had laughed brusquely. "No. No. I'm not old enough or wise enough to be your mother. And I'm sure you'll strike a much better bargain yourself. I'm no good at haggling."

Virginia had been furious, but had to bottle up her wrath, as free board and lodging at Winston Towers 'wasn't to be sneezed at', to use her own poetic phraseology. Beside, it was the only place that she could stay at, in the neighborhood, and it was near Peter.

She set off for Pear-Tree Cottage in her auto, looking very fetching in a lavender organdie gown.

Peter was, as usual, hard at work.

"You can't stay long. In a few minutes, I shall be doing rather a risky experiment," said he bluntly. "I'm sure you don't want your hair and eyebrows singed away."

Virginia gave a startled squeal.

"You wouldn't be half as handsome with your hair burnt off. Oh, do be careful Peter darling."

"Peter darling' looked rather grim about the lips.

"I thought you were keen about money, Virginia. An inventor in this special line has got to take a heap of risks. As a matter of fact, my invention is practically complete, and only waiting risks. As a matter of fact, my invention is practically complete, and only waiting to be patented, but today's work may mean a vast improvement. See?"

"Financially?" Virginia was all agog. Money did talk. And what did Peter's hair and eyebrows matter, weighed against tone of cash!

Peter nodded, a measuring flask in one hand, and pipette in the other.

"Run along now."

Virginia lingered. This man somehow made her feel so small and ingorant.

"You never tell me anything. How do explosions happen, for instance?" (She'd like to blow the Page chit sky-high, and quite a lot of other people!)

Peter, in a bored manner, and in a school marm's voice, droned, for her benefit:

"Explosion is the violent expansion taking place as the result of a chemical action between substances existing in close admixture and having a highly exothermic action on combination. It is started by the application of heat, or of concussion to the mixture. Accidental laboratory explosions are usually due to the formation of two substances in contact with one another, such substances combining exothermically with such violence as to form rapid evolution of gases——"

"Stop! Stop!" Virginia put her two hands daintily to her ears. "I don't understand a word of it. I'm off. You'll dine at the Towers tonight, Peter?"

"Yes, if I've finished in time," said Peter absent-mindedly, his thoughts quite evidently not on the young woman before him.

She went away, chagrined, careering at top speed in her car through the country roads.

"What's that?" A dull, muffled roar, like a cannon going off, caused her to pull up sharply, jum pout and examine her tires. "They're all rights and yet I could have sworn one of them had burst!"

Climbing back into the seat, she decided that the noise had been a distant clap of thunder, for the day was sultry.

Little did she guess that at that moment her fiance, Peter Armstrong, was lying, an inert and helpless mass, upon the floor of his wrecked laboratory!

Killed His Aunt For Thirty Dollars And Tells Jury How He Did the Deed

WINNIPEG, May 15.—(Canadian Press).—Without hesitation Harry Taternuik last night related to Coroners jury how he had killed his aunt, Mrs. Peter Symtchesn here last Thursday afternoon, when she interrupted him while he was in the act of robbing her home. He told of knocking the woman down, beating and kicking her, and how he tied her hands and feet, and then placed gag in her mouth.

The jury found that the woman's death was "Due to Aphasia partly or wholly caused by abuses at the hands of Harry Taternuik."

Taternuik had not worked for three years and lived by street begging.

The robbery netted him thirty dollars.

MAKING MAKE MONEY MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

The coinage of pennies indicates the trend of trade conditions.

The director of the United States mint reports that the number of pennies coined furnishes an accurate index to business conditions throughout the country from year to year.

The period leading up to and immediately preceding 1907 was one of unusual commercial activity, and during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907, the coinage of pennies for the first time in the history exceeded $1,000,000. This boom culminated in a panic which was followed by extreme depression in all lines of business, and during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, only $334,429.87 in pennies was coined.

Then better times prevailed, and for the year 1910 it was necessary to coin $1,528,426.18 in pennies. The amount gradually declined, then, and coincided with the period of business depression just preceding the outbreak of the European war.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid" indigestion.

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis, accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with

NEW SCANDALS FOR PROVINCE

This Time It Concerns the Highway Department of the Government.

TORONTO, May 15.—(Canadian Press).—Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Provincial Minister of Public Works and Highways, admitted yesterday, that Ontario has what appears to be a brand new scandal on its hands — a Highways Scandal, says a report here.

For months department has had investigators out working on roadways built during last four or five years, with results that may prove to be serious. Investigations are being carried out not only on paved roadways but on gravel roads where Mr. Henry's information is that province has in some cases not received proper returns for money it paid out.

Department as been working quietly, measuring thickness of concrete roads and comparing the measurement with contractual undertaking and making similar calculations on less expensive roads.

VIADUCT AT WATER-FRONT STILL WORRIES TORONTO

TORONTO, May 15.—(Canadian Press).—In appearing before the Central Council of ratepayers last night and explaining why he is a hundred per cent. in favor of the viaduct method of solving the water-front problem, as opposed to the railways' alternative system of bridges, Et. Cousins, engineer of the Harbor Commission, explained that it was the future of Toronto which he was considering. At the same time he took exception to the claim of the railways that there would be a saving of $13,000,000.

According to his figuring, the saving would be more nearly $7,500,000.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

THE ABSENT-MINDED FISHERMAN

"Hello there, everybody!" he cried

"Let's go to see the fisherman who found the funny bottle," said Nick. "Doesn't he live in Once Upon a Time Land?"

"Right o!" said Mister Muggs.

So they all climbed into the little car and away they went over seven times seven frog pounds and seven times seven minnor brooks until at last they came to a great, great big ocean.

And there was the fisherman's cottage And sitting in a little boat was the fisherman himself, trying to catch a herring for his dinner. When he saw that he had company, he rowed his little boat to shore.

"We came to see your queer bottle!" said Nick.

"What queer bottle?" asked the fisherman in surprise.

"The one you fished out of the water one time," said Nick. "It had a bad giant in it, and when you took the cork out he came out, too, like smoke. That's what the story said."

"By the great horn spoon!" cried the fisherman. "So it did! Only it all happened so long ago I had forgotten about it. I only got that bad fellow back in the bottle by fooling him. I put the bottle away in a cupboard and I've kept it ever since. I plumb forgot I had it."

The fisherman hauled it down, but in doing so the stopper fell out and as quick as a flash a thin stream of smoke started to come out. It soon grew to an enormous size, floating up to the ceiling, and a giant appeared.

"Hello, there, everybody!" he cried. "Where am I? I must have been asleep!"

"You have," said the fisherman. "You've been asleep for year 'n' years."

"Oh, I remember," said the big fellow. "And you played a trick on me to get me back in the bottle. Well, that won't happen again, for I'm too smart for you. The first thing I'm going to do is to swallow the sea so you can't catch any more fish. And the second thing is—"

But he didn't finish for just then a marvelous thing happened.

Mr. Muggs opened two windows and the wind rushed in at one window and blew the bottle giant out of the other, because he was only smoke, anyway—or something like it.

"OO oo oo! I want back in my bottle!" they heard him say away off in the distance.

But it was too late. He was gone for good.

"Well, I guess I'll sleep better now," said the fisherman. "It isn't very comfortable to have a giant 'round the house."

"Why, I thought you said you had forgotten about him!" cried Mister Muggs.

"Well, I guess I forgot that I had forgotten," said the fisherman. "Oh, but I am getting absent minded! Do you know whether I caught a herring or not when I was fishing?"

"No, you didn't," said Nancy. "There were none in the boat."

"Well, then, if you'll excuse me," said the fisherman, "I'll go and get one for my supper. I do feel better not to have a giant in the house. Or was it a dwarf? I forget already."

"Goodby!" called the visitors as they rode away.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 15.—(United Press).—Roger Rahn, 28, a chinese delegate to the Methodist Episcopal General Conference, committed suicide to-day by drinking cyanide of potassium in a hotel room here.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FURTHER INQUIRIES

TORONTO, May 15.—(Canadian Press).—Controller Cameron will suggest to the Board of Control that the home form of legal inquiry be undertaken by the city in order to permit the presentation of full evidence in connection with the Fred. H. Richardson examination.

Since it would appear that while Liquidator Clarkson was concerned from the standpoint of the Home Bank only, the names of several civic officials and representatives have been mentioned in connection with the affair, it is felt at the City Hall that full opportunity should be given to these men officially to present their views. Already most of the officials concerned have expressed their willingness to so testify.

JUDGE JAMES FOLEY IS TAMMANY LEADER

NEW YORK, May 15.—(Canadian Press.)—Surrogate James A. Foley last night succeeded Charles F. Murphy as leader of Tammany Hall. He was elected by the executive committee of the Tammany organization practically unanimously after hours of uncertainty as to his acceptance, and his election was hailed with rejoicing not only in the meeting of the committee, but throughout the hall and in club houses throughout Manhattan.

Fighting every step of the way, Foley, whose wife was much opposed to his taking the leadership, finally gave way when Governor Smith and National Committeeman Norman E. Mack not only exerted their influence but practically told the Judge that he owed it to the organization and to friends who had helped him to shape his career to take the job.

COULD HARDLY DO ANY WORK

But Since Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound This Woman Feels So Well

Keeseville, N.Y.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly for the good it has done me. I was so much troubled with female weakness I could hardly do any work. I saw your advertisement in the paper, and read it to my husband. He said, 'You had better try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound', so I bought six bottles, and by taking it I am not troubled as I was. I am gaining strength and getting fleshy. My female troubles have vanished and I have never felt so well. The Liver Pills are the best I ever took. If you think my letter will encourage other sufferers you have my permission to use it as an advertisement."—Mrs. SARAH BLAISE, Box 177, Keeseville, N. Y.

Doing the housework for the average American family is some task, and many women lose their health in so doing. If you, as a housewife, are troubled with backache, irregularities, are easily tired out and irritable, or have other disagreeable ailments caused by some weakness, give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. Let it help you.

HON. E. C. DRURY IS IN TORONTO

His Business in the City Concerns United Farmers' Co-operative Company, of Which He is a Director.

TORONTO, May 15.— Hon. E. C. Drury, former Premier of Ontario, arrived in Toronto yesterday. Mr. Drury's business in the city concerns United Farmers Co-Operative Company of which he is a director.

The first meeting of the directors who are here for a three day session lasted until a late hour last night. Hon. Mr. Drury at conclusion of conference expressed his satisfaction with condition of company.

Mr. Drury was extremely loath to discuss political matters, preferring to state any of his opinions at public meeting rather than through the medium of the press, he said.

Questioned concerning rumors that he was to be head of party, Mr. Drury merely smiled and suggested that it would be much wiser to wait until he was asked. In connection with the arrest of Peter Smith, he felt that as the matter was subjudice, it would be entirely improper to say as much as a word with regard to matter.

STATE BALL ENDS THE ROYAL VISIT

Rumanian Royalty Ended Call on British Monarch --Brilliant Gathering.

LONDON, May 15.— (Canadian Press)—Last state function in honor of the visit of King Ferdinand and Queen Marie of Rumania to London, was a brilliant state ball at Buckingham Palace last night. The guests numbered about two thousand peers, ministers and distinguished personages of all ranks. The ball room and other apartments were banked with flowers and famous gold plate of royal denown was on display in a georgeous decorative scheme.

King George and Queen Mary and the Roumanian sovereigns having opened the ball by leading in a formal quadrille d'honneur much of the evening was given over to dancing. The dances, however, were confined largely to waltzes, there were no modern dances, such as fox trotting, in the programme, which was arranged by Queen Mary herself.

MR. GEORGE FARLEY

On His Feet Again After Thirty-Seven Years Suffering

Dreco Helps Mr. Farley's Weakened System Despite His 59 Years and the Long Standing Nature of His Troubles.

Mr. G. Farley, of 426 Gunns Road, Toronto, had scarcely known a well day for thirty-seven years. To-day he is a different man, thanks to Dreco.

"For the past 37 years," says Mr. Farley, "I have suffered from the effects of pleurisy. This trouble has kept my system run down. I tried many remedies right along, but the best I ever received from them was temporary benefit. I always felt weak and tired out, and my rest at night never seemed to refresh me.

"Dreco has benefitted me wonderfully. My system in general is much stronger. I sleep better and feel greatly refreshed in the mornings. I no longer have that tired out feeling, and feel more energetic than for years. Dreco is the best general builder for the system I have ever heard of, and I do not hesitate to recommend it."

Dreco regulates and restores the weakened organs so that they properly digest the food, retaining all the nourishing values to up-build the body. Dreco also purifies the blood. It contains no mercury, potash, or habit-forming drugs, being a thoroughly reliable remedy of purely vegetable content.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterborough by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold as follows:
Lakefield—E. H. Northey
Campbellford—J. E. Birks

CONSERVATIVES ATTACK KING'S TARIFF POLICY

TORONTO, May 15.—(Canadian Press).—At a meeting of the Toronto Conservative Club last night Russel Nesbitt, M.L.A., and J. A. McCausland, M.L.A., made a slashing attack on the tariff policy of the King Government.

"Workmen," said Mr. Nesbitt, "should make a determined stand to see that a government was returned to power that would put a protective tariff into operation."

Mr. Nesbitt mentioned that in Galt a thousand people had been forced to leave for the States to secure employment.

Mr. McCausland predicted that the decision of the Supreme Court to-day would be in favor of allowing liquor from Quebec to be imported into Ontario. "We want to spend our money in Ontario, though," he said, "and I believe that within the next two months you will have an opportunity to vote on the question."

Don't delay! Go to any of the stores listed below and select your Gold-Seal Congoleum Art-Rugs today if possible; for remember the Sale ends Saturday.

Beautiful Patterns for Every Room

Gold-Seal Congoleum Art-Rugs are famous for their beautiful patterns. You will find elaborate Oriental designs in warm, rich tones for living room and dining room—dainty flowered patterns that bring a fresh attractiveness to bedrooms—and a fine range of conventional patterns for kitchen, bathroom and pantry. Or, if you prefer to cover the entire floor, you will find attractive designs in Gold-Seal Congoleum By-the-Yard.

Waterproof and Easy to Clean

Gold-Seal Congoleum Rugs are made all in one piece on a durable fabric-felt base. They are waterproof, germ-proof, and accident-proof. Neither dust, dirt, nor spilled liquids can penetrate the smooth, seamless surface. Unlike woven rugs, they require no tiresome sweeping or beating. A quick going-over with a damp mop makes Congoleum as clean, fresh and spotless as when new.

Lies Flat Without Fastening

Here is another important feature of Gold-Seal Congoleum: no tacks, nails, or cement are ever required to hold it in place. It literally "hugs" the floor and never "kicks up" or curls at the edges or corners.

New, Genuine, Guaranteed Goods

All the Gold-Seal Congoleum offered in this sale is fresh, new goods, just received from the factory. All of it carries the famous Gold Seal pledge of "Satisfaction Guaranteed or Your Money Back." Look for the Gold Seal on the face of the goods. It protects you against inferior imitations of Gold-Seal Congoleum.

YANKEES' CELEBRATION SPOILED BY ST. LOUIS

Hoyt Hammered For Five Runs and Pipgrass Yielded Another Quintette In Next Inning — World's Pennant Raised and Ruth Received Diploma.

NEW YORK, May- 14—The New York Yankees suffered their worst defeat of the season here to-day, losing to the St. Louis Browns, 11 to 1. Hoyt was knocked out of the box in the fifth inning when St. Louis scored 5 runs. Pipgrass, a youngster, was hit hard in the sixth when five more runs were scored. Shocker held the Yanks hitless until Pipgrass singled in the sixth. The game was preceded by a parade and the raising of the world's championship pennant won by the Yankees last October. Judge Landis presided at the ceremonies.

Babe Ruth was presented with a diploma for being selected the most valuable player in the American League. Score.

DAVE JOHNSON

MONTREAL, May 15.—Canada will be represented in the Olympic games by what Alfred Shrubb declares "one of the greatest quarter milers in the world."

Dave Johnson of Lachine, Quebec, born in 1902, matriculated from Lachine High School to McGill University with the highest percentage of all scholars. At McGill he developed as a track runner and cleaned up in all the shorter distances in the intercollegiate competitions.

Sports did not interfere with his studies and he won a Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford University and also became a gold medalist. At the English seat of learning his latest achievement in the world of sport was the winning of the quarter mile intervarsity race between Oxford and Cambridge and in this event he defeated Stevenson, an American quarter miler with a big reputation for speed.

The Canadian Olympic committee immediately put him on the track team. He is a strong starter and maintains a steady pace that is heartbreaking to his rivals.

TENNIS QUEENS OFF TO EUROPE

Helen Wills and Molla Mallory Sail In Quest of Olympic Title — Mrs. Mallory Represents Norway.

NEW YORK, May 15.—America's 1924 tennis invasion of Europe got under way to-day when the two top ranking women stars—Helen Wills, National Champion and Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, who lost the title to the California girl after having won it seven times—departed for abroad, Miss Wills sailed on the Benegaria and Mrs. Mallory on the Paris.

Upon the sturdy shoulders of Miss Wills rests the country's chief hope of international laurels, for the western star plans a campaign which she hopes will lead to a match for world honors with Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, French wonder-woman of the courts, in the Oylmpic Games at Paris.

Mrs. Mallory, despite her long residence here and marriage to an American, is lost to the United States for the Olympics, in which she will compete for her native land, Norway.

CHECKER CHAMPION.

NEW YORK, May 14. — Sam Gonotsky, 22 year old Brooklyn clerk to-day won the natonal checker championship when he defeated Alfred Jordan of Kansas City, Kas, the former British title holder, in the final round of the tournament that has been in progress for nearly three weeks.

Gonotsky clinched the title and first place money of $500 when he won one of the eight deciding games with Jordan. The remaining seven were tied. Jordan received $350 for second place honors.

CARPENTIER IN GOOD CONDITION

Bigger and Healthier Than When He Fought Dempsey—Followed By Crowd In Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 15....After spending a day fighting crowds that followed him everywhere, George Carpentier ring idol of France departed last night for Michigan City, Ind., for a few days rest before starting training for his ten round contest with Tommy Gibbons there May 31.

There is a vast difference in the Georges Carpentier of 1924 compared with the Carpentier of 1921, who came to the United States to fight Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight championship. Carpentier appeared to be bigger, more robust and more healthy and weighs about eight poundes more than he did three years ago.

The French light heavy-weight in broader of shoulders, deeper of chest, clearer of eye, and skin.

"I am bigger and am stronger,' he said, I feel better than when I fought Townley in Vienna. I trained hard for that fight and I trained on the ship coming over. I shall rest for a few days in Michigan City, and then start about two weeks of training.

"Do I think I will knock Gibbons out?" he repeated with a confident smile. "That I cannot say, but I think I will win. I am punching harder than when I fought Dempsey."

Manager Descamps said Carpentier would go through with his match with Gene Tunney on any date agreeable. He said if the match could not be arranged for the week of June 16, Carpentier would remain until after the Fourth of July to accomodate Tunney.

Descamps, exhibiting a copy of the contract for the Tunney match said there is nothing in the document that forbids the Frenchman engaging in a contest before June 1, and that the only clause that is binding states that Carpentier must be in this country before May 16.

PINCH HITTER STARTS RALLY

Giants Take First Game From Cubs After Losing Whole Series With St. Louis — George Kelly Drove In Four Runs.

CHICAGO, May 14.— Pink-hitter Terry started the final rally of the Giants which gave them the first game of the series to-day with Chicago, 6 to 4. Young's triple sent Terry home and Young scored on Frisch's single. George Kelly drove all four of the League champion's previous runs home.

Charley Hollocher, Cubs' shortstop,, celebrated his return to the game by banging out three hits, one of which was a homer, and making two spectacular plays. Score:

DO YOU KNOW BASEBALL?

By BILLY EVANS

QUESTIONS

1. What must be done to penalize the mistake when a batter hits out of order?

2. Can a player who has hit safely, and believes there is a chance that he may get to second, run more than three feet out of the line as he rounds first?

3. If a fielder throws the ball to the first baseman wide of the bag, yet in plenty of time to get the runner, and the first baseman fails to touch the bag, how is the play scored?

ANSWERS

1. The attention of the umpire must be called by the team in the field before a ball is pitched to a succeeding batsman.

2. He can round first base as wide as he desires in order to make a good turn at the bag.

3. The first baseman is credited with an error.

QUITS PINCH PITCHING, BIG WINNER

VETERAN STAR, ALEXANDER, DISCOVERS WAY REJUVENATE ARM

BY BILLY EVANS

Is it wise to use a veteran star pitcher as relief man when some pitcher is faltering?

Managers of major league clubs appear somewhat divided on this question. Some throw their veteran pitching ace into the breach any time it seems his presence on the rubber will save the game.

Others use the star of their staff only as a last resort and in games where the winning means much to their pennant chances.

It is doubtful is there ever was a greater relief pitcher than Ed Walsh, now acting as coach of the White Sox pitching staff. For a shot time Walsh tried umpiring and was doubled up with me.

"How does it feel to be trotted out as the relief pitcher with the bases filled, knowing a base hit just about means the game for the opposition?" I once asked him.

"The feeling is none too pleasant at the time and often worse after it is all over," replied Walsh.

"I have worked, say three innings at top speed in order to save a game, and felt far more tired than after working a regular nine-inning affair.

Relief Work Is Hardest

"Usually the relief pitcher is pressed to hold a scant lead. Often he doesn't get a chance to properly warm up.

"Acting as relief pitcher for three or four innings in a tough ball game takes twice as much out of a pitcher as a game he starts."

Grover Cleveland Alexander, famous pitcher of the Chicago Cubs, is a good example of what pinch pitching exacts on the arm.

Alexander is one of the outstanding pitchers of all time. When in his prime, acting as relief pitcher was part of the regular program. If a game was to be saved in the old pinch, the job was invariably slipped "Alex."

Then there came a time in his career when he began to lose some of his effectiveness. He couldn't do so many things as easily as 10 years back.

Alexander's Theory Correct

Last season Alexander apparently decided that pinch pitching was no longer his forte, that it was enough for him to start and finish games.

No doubt Manager Killefer concurred with Alexander in his views. Only once during the season was Alexander called upon to finish a game.

Given his regular rest of from three to four days between starts, Alexander, a star since 1911, had one of the best years of his career.

He worked in 38 games and of these won 22 and lost only 12, a most remarkable record. In all he worked 305 innings and didn't hit a batter, proof of his great control.

It is said that Manager Tris Speaker of the Cleveland Indians intends to adopt such a system wth his veteran spitball star, Stanley Colvelskie, this year.

"Covie" was once a glutton for work but appears to have passed that stage. If it works as well with Covelskie as it did Alexander, the Indians will profit greatly.

CARPENTIER TO ENTER AUTO RACE

It is reported that George Carpentier, the French fighter, who was idolized in America both before and after his historic battle with Jack Dempsey, may drive in the international 500-mile speed classic at Indianapolis, Ind. May 30. He is competing in the opening of the French season at Lyons.

GOVERNMENT HAS SCHOOL FOR AN ALASKAN FAMILY

SEATTLE, May 15.—Uncle Sam has opened a school to give an education to one family of 15 boys and girls, the largest in Alaska, according to Jonathan Wagner, chief of the Alaska division of the United States Bureau of Education, who stopped in Seattle en route to his headquarters in the Northern Territory.

"Nikaly, Indian cheif of the Kniks tribe of Central Alaska, heads the largest family in the territory," declared Mr. Wagner. "Owing to a government ruling a school must be provided where there are 15 or more persons in one district.

"Several years ago Nikaly and his family, which was slightly smaller in number then, settled near the Matanuska coal fields. No natives had previously located in that district. But when Nikaly's family increased to 15 the government was compelled to establish a school for the chief's benefit."

MADE EYELIDS OUT OF PATIENT'S ARM

LONDON, May 15.—A remarkable surgical operation has been successfully performed on a man at the Royal Infirmary, Liverpool, England.

The patient, who was employed in a munitions factory, lost both eyelids through the bursting of a tube of sulphuric acid seven years ago.

Seven weeks ago he entered the infirmary and the head surgeon made him new eyelids out of portions of skin taken from the patient's arm.

The eyelids have grown and the man is now able to close his eyes, the first time for seven years.

LEAFS MISSED RICH CHANCES

Failed Twice With Bases Full—Reading Win Only Game Played In International Parks.

TORONTO, May 14. — Reading made it two straight from the Leafs by winning the first game of to-day's double-header 4 to 3. The last four innings were played with a fine rain rain falling, and fog enveloping the field, the second game was called while Toronto was at bat in the second inning and Reading leading 1 to 0.

Reading batted Thomas out of the box in the third inning of the first game and Reynolds finished, pitching good ball, but his team-mates fell down badly at bat in the pinch and twice were turned back with the bases full.

The score:

Reading—	210 001 000	4	8 1
Toronto	000 200 010	3	12 2

KENTUCKY DERBY NEXT SATURDAY

Number of Entries Expected to Exceed the Twenty-One Starters of Last Year

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 15.—Undaunted by tales of the prowess of western thoroughbreds that have performed well this spring, Eastern owners have signified their intention of coming to Louisville in an attempt to capture the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs next Saturday and the rich prize of $50,000 in added money.

Trainer Sam C. Hildreth yesterday wired that he is sending the Rancocas Stable colts Bracadale and Mad Play, which finished third to Nellie Morse and Transmute in the Preakness, and that his charges would arrive here within the next 48 hours.

With the western colts and fillies that will start in the fiftieth renewal of the race, the field is expected to outnumber that of last year when tweny-one faced the barrier in the event.

EXCLUSIVE CLUB OPENS DOORS TO DENIM CLAD

LONDON, May 15.—The Carlton Club, said to be the most exclusive club in the world, a citadel of aloofness which houses the noblest of the land, has opened its doors as a host to a party of 30 laborers. These men have been engaged for the last year in refacing the front of the club house in Pall Mall.

Lord Younger, as chairman of the house committee, presided at the luncheon and delivered a short speech in which he said the time had arrived for a more congenial feeling between various classes of Englishmen, and closer cooperation for the good of the empire.

The Carlton Club is the only London Club which does not admit strangers.

FRIENDS OF YOUTH MEET AFTER 30 YEARS, WED

KALAMAZOO, Mich. May 15.—After a courtship of two months, Frank H. Munn, sixty-three, a retired business man and Mrs. Alice Whitcomb, fifty-eight a church worker, were married by Probate Judge John L. Hollander. They were friends in their youth but until recently they had not met in nearly thirty years.

Billy Evans Says

"After 18 years I still regard my fast ball as my one best bet."

That was the remark Walter Johnson made to me after he had won his first two stars, in which he allowed only one run.

When Walter Johnson broke into the American League speed was his only asset. He was versed in that style of pitching only.

Since that time he has developed a good curve ball and a fine change of pace, but he still regards his fast ball as his best pitching weapon.

"When I am fast, and it doesn't take me very long to know whether my speed is worth while, I have a feeling of confidence in myself that is otherwise lacking.

"I am inclined to think the question of my speed also receives much consideration from the opposition.

"If at the close of the first inning the players on the rival team go back to the bench, saying Johnson looks as fast as he ever was, I am sure the psychology so created has much to do with the outcome of the game."

There is no doubt in my mind but that Johnson has his pitching status of today correctly sized up. The question of his speed is the determining factor.

In the first game of the season, in which Johnson blanked the Philadelphia Athletics, he looked just as good as ever

I umpired that game and marveled at the speed he showed in his first start after 18 years of strenuous major league campaigning.

The opposing players seemed to view the situation in the same light. As they came up to the plate, Johnson's great speed seemed to be the one thing that impressed each and every visiting athlete.

As inning after inning passed and Johnson continued mowing down the opposition, registering a strikeout an inning, the opposing players seemed to take it for granted that beating Johnson was pretty much out of the question.

On the other hand, if Johnson's speed appears just ordinary, and the rival team is convinced that he isn't right, the players start hugging the plate and stepping into the fast one with a reckless abandon.

So it seems that Johnson spoke real logic when he said that after 18 years his fast ball was still his one best bet.

His curve and change of pace are very essential to success but the zip on the fast one is what gives him the edge and makes his other stuff effective.

The knowledge that Johnson appears as fast as ever, serves as a threat to the opposing players that works to a decided advantage in many ways.

Among the ancient peoples of the east there was a deep-rooted belief that a man's glory lay in his beard.

WEATHER PLAYING JINKS WITH PLANS

Kingston Team Have Been Kept Under Cover During the Last Week on Account of the Heavy Rains.

KINGSTON, May 15.—(Special).—(Special).—The weather man is playing high jinks with the plans for the opening of the baseball season here on Saturday. It has rained every day this week, and as a result, Kingston's team in the Central Ontario League has had no chance whatever to get out on the field as it is covered with water. An exhibition game has been arranged for Saturday with the Ottawa Senators, but unless there is a sudden change in the weather the game will have to be called off as it will need some fine warm weather to put the playing field in good shape. Lack of practice will also be a serious handicap to the team, but the rain seems to be quite general, so it is likely that all the teams in the League are up against the same conditions.

ASPHALT AND CONCRETE

and Mr. Sheahy had pointed out that his tender at $2 was not intended to be made.

Aylmer street, from McDonnel to Dublin, was withdrawn from groups one and three, it being the intention of the council to pave this with tarvia.

Alderman McIntyre, supported by Alderman Crowe, favored the city's doing all the work, and Alderman Stocker said $5,000 would purchase all the plant required. The city could only undertake concrete paving, however, and a petition was presented by 27 property owners on Water street asking for bitulithic pavement and specifying Warren construction. This petition represented a frontage of 6,350 yards, on which there are 45 owners of property. Aldermen Fife and Maher favored receiving the petition without action, and Alderman Phelan remarked that the council is elected to carry on the business and should use its own judgment. Alderman Maher said for the same money that it would require to pave with bitulithic the city could lay one-third more permanent concrete roadway.

Mayor Turner proposed that asphalt or bitulithic pavement be laid on Water street from Brock to Dublin; Water from Antrim to Smith; McDonnel from Aylmer to Reid and Argyle from Water to Sunnyside, an area of 14,344 square yards; and that concrete be laid on Water from Smith to the C.N.R. and on George street south, an area of 12,560 square yards. This motion carried.

Aldermen McIntyre and Stocker proposed that the concrete pavement be laid by day labor under the city engineer. Saving $20,000 on the outfall sewer, Alderman McIntyre said, the city could save also on the paving. The plant could be rented and it would not be necessary to purchase one this year. "We are behind the times in not going into paving," he declared.

Aldermen Phelan and Maher moved anamendment that the work be let to a contractor.

The amendment was lost, being supported only by Aldermen Phelan, Maher and Fife. The only four voting for the motion were Aldermen Crowe, McIntyre, Stocker and Meyers.

Appeals For Co-operation.

Alderman Fife appealed for a little give and take and a get-together spirit that would accomplish the work before the board. This suggestion was prompted by demands from two or three that the meeting adjourn as no progress was being made, the majorities for the motions not being sufficient to carry them in council, where a two-thirds vote is required.

Alderman Maher: "It seems to me that we have been led into this trap by trying to satisfy twenty-seven people on Water street. It seems unreasonable that a few persons should lead the council around by the nose."

Mayor Turner pointed out that the people are paying 60 per cent. of the cost and the city is paying 40 per cent. Alderman Maher replied that they were paying that on their own frontage, but the council was adding ten thousand square yards in other sections in order to make it worth the while of the bitulithic firm to come to the city, without extending to these property owners the privilege of choosing which kind of paving they required.

An amendment that concrete be used instead of bitulithic, to be laid by city labor, was lost. This was moved by Alderman Crowe and seconded by Alderman Maher.

Alderman Phelan introduced a motion to award the two sections to contratcors, but several aldermen declared the motion out of order. Alderman Jones and Phelan moved to rescind the previous motion giving the construction to the city engineer. Appeals to the chairman were made, and he allowed and put the motion, when it carried. Alderman McIntyre left his seat at this point and donned his overcoat, and the altercation with Chairman Morrison ensued.

Final Decision.

Alderman Crowe rose to a point of order when business resumed, declaring the chairman had distinctly given him to understand that the section voted to the city engineer was to stand, despite the motion introduced ltaer. With this the chairman agreed, and Alderman Fife said the whole fracas arose out of a misunderstanding, Alderman Morrison not realizing that the motion he was putting trampled on the previously passed resolution as to the safety of which he had assured Alderman Crowe.

On again putting the motion as introduced by Alderman Jones and Phelan, rescinding the day labor section of the paving programme, it carried, with supporters in Alderman Jones, Phelan, Maher, Stocker, Mayor Turner and the chairman. Alderman Phelan and Jones proposed that the contracts be awarded by the two companies named, and the motion was carried by Aldermen Phelan, Jones, Meyers, Stocker, Fife and Maher.

The meeting adjourned at 11.10.

"AFTER SIX DAYS."

You've never heard of this picture? It hasn't been released yet in your town?

Probably not. But it ought to be shown in the biggest theatre in every city in the United States and Canada, for it is one of the most meritorious screen productions ever made.

Here is a film which traces the story of the Bible from creation to the time of King Solomon, when the wise king sang his song of songs to his lily of the fields. And this picture is the Bible, without ornamentation, told baldly, shocking sometimes in its very baldness. "After Six Days" is not a mere movie. It is an historical record.

Before your eyes you see Eden, you see Cain slay Abel, you see a graphic portrayal of the flood, of the Ark riding the flood. You witness the building of the Tower of Babel, the confusion of the peoples when they wake to find each man with a foreign tongue on his lips. You go with Joseph in his wanderings, you follow his brethren into Egypt where Joseph is the righthand man of the Pharaoh, and you enjoy the magic story of Joseph's revelation of himself to those who had left him in the hands of the robbers. And then Moses appears on the screen, a mighty Moses, leading his people out of the wilderness at the order of God, and you sense the tremendous drama in Moses' gesture of Godhood, which results in his own abasement before the God he forgot for only a moment. Then Solomon lives before your eyes, and the beautiful love story of the Bible is told sharply, in quick, clarifying strokes, ending the sequence of scenes of the Old Testament's story.

"After Six Days" is a tremendous picture. It is said that it required five years in the making. Apparently tens of thousands of persons appeared in it. The number of leading characters runs into the hundreds. The settings defy description. Battles, pestilence, pageants, movements of whole peoples, flit and pass on the screen like frail shadows.

Children will understand the Bible better for having seen "After Six Days." Older folk will recall their Sunday School lessons, and will turn once again to the pages of the immortal book. And everyone will find thrills, romance and entertainment in this film, which ranks high among the great pictures of the screen. If "After Six Days" has not been shown in your town, write to your theatre and ask the manager to book it. He will profit thereby and so will you.

EXCITING ESCAPE IN TOURNEUR FILM

The escape of a Russian nobleman from the ruthless band of outlaws at the time of the overthrow and murder of the Russian Czar, furnishes one of the exciting incidents in "Torment," the First National picture that is thrilling photoplay patrons at the Royal Theatre now playing.

With him this nobleman, one Count Boris, portrayed by Jean Hersholt, takes the crown jewels, intending to use them to bring relief to revolution sufferers. The conspiracy of a band of crooks to steal them forms an important part in the plot, in which Owen Moore is introduced as one of the clique, whose reformation is brought about through his love for a maid and the effect that the splendid character of Boris has upon him.

Excellent characterizations are also given by Bessie Love, Joseph Kilgour, Morgan Wallace, Maude George and George Cooper.

THRILLING FILM DELIGHTING FANS

Movie patrons are getting the thrill of their lives this week at the Royal Theatre, where "Torment," M. C. Levee production, directed by Maurice Tourneur, is showing.

With a reproduction of the Japanese earthquake, scenes depicting the Russian revolution, and a dramatic sequence in the vault of a wrecked Yokohama bank, where crooks, seeking a fortune in gems, are trapped with their victims, it presents a stirring love story and may be regarded as one of the most remarkable films of recent months.

The production, a First National release, with Owen Moore, Bessie Love, Jean Hersholt and other players of note, will continue at the Royal Theatre until Saturday night.

AUSTRALIAN LAMERTS IN NOVEL OFFERING AT CAPITOL TO-DAY

The Australian Lamerts will offer their novel musical, whistling, and pianologue act at the Capitol Theatre to-day, Friday and Saturday. This act, which comes direct from Australia via the big-time vaudeville circuit, is considered one of vaudeville's most unusual and versatile audiences, and falls in line with the Capitol's policy of presenting selected vaudeville acts at each performance.

STRONGHEART IS PROUD FATHER OF FIVE GREAT PUPS!

All to be Movie Stars Like Father, Says Wonder Dog.

If babies are a blessing then Strongheart, the wonder dog of the movies, is blessed above any other star or any other personage of importance anywhere.

For instead of a single blessing his bride of a year presented him with quintets, for there were a complete set of triplets and then, for good measure, twins, all at the same time.

The five-ply arrival, however, was not the cause of unalloyed happiness, for Strongheart's bride was in danger of death for weeks after, due to the occurrence, and for a time it looked as if the puppies were also doomed.

Strongheart and his bride were working on the production of "The Love Master," the latest First National picture starring the wonder dog, which will be the attraction at the Capitol Theatre for three days, beginning to-day. Mrs. Strongheart, whose screen name is Lady Julie, makes her screen debut in this picture.

Work was progressing satisfactorily when the expected arrival caused Laurence Trimble, director of the Strongheart, to decide that a less rigorous climate than that of the Canadian widernesss in which they were working would be advisable for Lady Julie. Accordingly a hurried trip was made to Southern California.

One of the crack coast liners running out of Seattle was taken for a part of the trip, and it ran head on into a sleet storm. Lady Julie was left alone in Mr. Trimble's stateroom when he went to the dining-saloon. When he returned Lady Julie had vanished. A careless steward had left the stateroom door open.

A search of the ship, in which crew and passengers joined, was started immediately, and Lady Julie was at last discovered crouching by the railing on the open deck. She was unconscious from her exposure to the sleet, but nestling under her, still comfortable from the fast ebbing heat of her body, were the puppies.

The captain turned over the best suite on the liner to Lady Julie and her family. Mr. Trimble had his hands full nursing the mother, and passengers and stewards fought for the privilege of looking after the puppies, which, of course, had to be bottle fed.

Lady Julie developed double pneumonia. The strength she had given her babies militated against her, but when Strongheart returned from location she was so well on the road to recovery that a short time afterwards she was able to appear in the studio scenes.

A MIGHTY STORY BASED ON GREAT THRILLS OF POEM

The South Seas, New York, and the Yukon Afford Vivid Backgrounds. Read it for Yourself. See How the World's Most Popular Tale of the North Goes on Screen.

After two years of varying success in touring South Sea Islands, the musical comedy troupe, of which Lou Lorraine is the leading dancer, and her husband, Jim Alliott, is orchestra leader, scores overnight success when the director of the company stages a "ship cabaret" in an old sea-going vessel stranded on the South Sea shores.

Lou becomes a big favorite, but the squalor of the place nauseates her, and she tells Jim they must leave, at least for the sake of their two-year-old boy. Jim's quiet emotional nature is mistaken for indifference by Lou; although he loves his wife and child dearly.

She Meets Dan McGraw.

One night at the resort, Lou meets a slick gambler, Dan McGrew, who tells her she could make her fortune if she would do her act in New York under his management. Her husband suspects McGrew's designs and forbids Lou to go.

But Lou is made desperate through the hardships that her child has to endure, and decides to take a chance on big city success in order that the boy may be brought up in decent comfort. She leaves with McGrew, who contrives to have the child left behind at the last minute.

In New York, through McGrew's shrewd management, Lou captures the town as an entertainer in a fashionable cabaret. She sends money for Jim and the boy to join her and Jim cables that they are on their way. But McGrew intercepts the cable and forges another in its place, in which he says that the child has died through Lou's neglect and that Lou and McGrew can go to hell together.

The Broadway Fire.

McGrew's Idea in the forgery is to make the way clear for turning Lou over to Jake Hubbel, an Alaskan millionaire, who has promised McGrew a $50,000 bonus if Lou is persuaded to become Mrs. Hubbel.

Lou is in a frenzy of despair at the forged cable and is ready for any madness. But that night she has to appear as usual at the cabaret.

Jim, meanwhile, has arrived in New York. He breaks into the cabaret and attacks McGrew, but, as they are fighting, the cabaret catches on fire. It is a terrible blaze and Lou is overcome by smoke. Hubbel rescues her, and, dazed by the horror of her experiences, she agrees to leave with Hubbel and McGrew for Alaska.

In the Malamute Saloon.

In their trip over the snows, McGrew, fearing he won't get his $50,000, kills Hubbel and robs him. He then establishes himself in a Malamute saloon, where he becomes known as "Dangerous Dan," an invincibly cool gambler and gunman. Lou drifts into liquor-drinking peroxide despondency.

Jim, meanwhile, recovering from the burns he suffered in the fire, is visited at the hospital in New York by a girl named Flo Dupont, who has been jilted by McGrew, Flo tells Jim of the forged cablegram that drove Lou to desperation and Jim swears vengeance.

One night a stranger wanders into the Malamute saloon, covers everyone with his gun, and says: "One of you is a hound of hell, and that one is Dan McGrew." The lights go out. Two guns blaze in the dark. Dan is dead when the lights go up, and Lou clasps the stranger, whom she recognises as Jim, her husband. Their boy, little Jim, arrives to complete the family reunion.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION BANQUET DRAMATIC CLUB

A very enjoyable banquet was tendered by the Athletic Association of All Saints' Church to the members of All Saints' Dramatic Club, who recently presented the Comedy Drama "Deacon Dubbs". After the inner man had been well satisfied complimentary speeches were made by Rev. Mr. Patterson, Mr. H. E. Ashmore, and Mr. Jas. Price. A vote of thanks to the Dramatic Club was moved by Mr. C. Jay and was responded to by most of the members. A short programme followed consisting of readings by Mrs. H. Connolly, Mr. J. John and vocal solos by Miss E. Tucker interspersed with community singing. The gathering then dispersed after singing Auld Lang Syne and God Save the King.

FRANK BIGGS MAKES AN EMPHATIC DENIAL

TORONTO, May 15. — Canadian Press. — Frank Biggs, former minister of public works, gives an emphatic denial to the charge of "gross carelessness" made by Hon. George Henry in the construction of highways under the Biggs administration of department. The highways, both water bound and cement were built under contract, he said, and after the contracts were let no official or engineer of the department, or connected with contractor, ever approached him to obtain permission to skimp any work. He had always impressed upon members of the department the public must be protected to the utmost.

STANLEY HALAM GETS TWO YEARS IN CLINK

TORONTO, May 15.—(Canadian Press.)—Stanley Hallam, formerly an Ontario Temperance Act enforcement officer, was to-day sentenced by Mr. Justice Lennox to two years less one day in common jail for obtaining money by false pretences. He was recently found guilty of five charges. His plan was to induce to invest money with a view to getting jobs as truck drivers. Hallam had expressed willingness if allowed out, to go to work and pay twenty-five dollars a week till amounts he was charged with obtaining were paid off.

ARMED BANDITS STEAL TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 15. — (Canadian Press.)—An armed bandit who held up Samuel Schasstein and his wife Celie, as they stepped into the porch of their Brookiyn home on returning from the theatre early to-day, escaped with ten thousand dollars worth of rings and jewels and four hundred dollars in currency. The bandit helped Mrs. Schasstein remove he. valuables.

TUNING THE CAR FOR SPRING.
Whether a car has been in use all winter or in "dead" storage, it will need a certain amount of attention to put it in proper condition to drive. To begin with, the car should be cleaned thoroughly—engine, body, top, interior and chassis. Remove all rust with kerosene and cover spots with enamel. Repack bearings with grease. Drain old oil from engine and refill with a fresh supply. Inspect brakes and renew brake linings if necessary. Blow out "gas" line, vacuum tank and main tank, and also flush the water system thoroughly. It may be necessary to supply new hose connections. The ignition and carburetor may need little attention, except perhaps the latter unit, which may take a leaner adjustment for warm weather. Look over battery and clean the terminals.

SHIFTING GEARS ON HILLS.
When an automobile is permitted to labor while going up a steep hill, the sudden blows of the explosion, acting against the resistance of the slow-moving crankshaft, tend to flatten the bearings, shortening their life, wearing them out and making the engine knock long before it should under proper use. Do not crowd the engine to see if it can possibly make the top of the hill without shifting gears.

Before prohibition approximately 130,000,000 gallons of whisky were consumed in the United States every year.

Society

Miss Ethel G. Stevens, Ashburnham, home teacher for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, left for Chilliwack, Vancouver, and Victoria, B.C.

Mrs. A. H. A. Robinson, of Gilmour Stret, who has been visiting in Ottawa, has returned home.

Miss Ethel Stevens, 364 Mark st., left this afternoon for an extended trip of some months to the coast. On her trip to the West she will visit friends in Chilliwack, Vancouver and Victoria, returning through the United States. Miss Stevens, who is on rest leave will be gone two months at least probably longer. Her work as district visitor for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind has been organized for the next two months, most of the blind workers in this vicinity being able to look after themselves during that period. Later, some assistance may be available from the Kingston district.

District names appearing in the list of graduates at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, exercises, last evening, include those of Norine Kane and Marie E. Robbins, Orillia, Gertrude M. Mulhall, Carmelita L. Delanty, Cobourg, and Lula A. Walker, Bobcaygeon.

Mrs. (Dr.) R. Sheehy is visiting friends in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stratton leave to-morrow for Montreal. They will sail from Montreal on Saturday on the White Star liner "Megantic" for an eight-week trip to England and France, spending some time at the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley.

The Misses Gertrude McFadden and K. McAuley returned yesterday from a brief visit to Toronto.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce has disposed of the house formerly occupied by the local manager, W. H. Dunsford, at 784 Water Street. Mr. Dunsford and his family have taken up residence in the duplex house into which the home of the late Dr. J. T. I. Halliday has been converted.

About twenty-five of the girl friends of Miss Mary Lonergan were present last evening at a miscellaneous shower given in her honor by the Misses McCarthy, Park Street. Miss Lonergan received a number of lovely gifts. During the evening, pretty vocal solos were given by Miss Eileen McCabe and Miss Ermestine McManus, with accompaniments by Miss Florence Giroux.

Miss Dorothy Engel, who has been in Nicholls Hospital for the past ten days, has sufficiently recovered to leave for her home, where she will recuperate before resuming her duties as soloist of St. Andrew's church.

JAY WALKERS, BEWARE!

OBITUARY

W. J. HAMILTON.
The Toronto Globe carries the following account of the death of W. J. Hamilton, of Fort William, formerly well known in the city, where he occupied the position some 25 or 30 years ago of principal of the Ashburnham school:

W. J. Hamilton, Inspector of public schools, Fort William, died suddenly of heart failure last evening at Redditt, where he had arrived preparatory to inspecting the school.

He was 62 years of age and was prominent in fraternal societies, being Grand Master of the I.O.O.F. for Ontario, in 1921, Grand Warden in 1919, and Ontario delegate to the Cincinnati convention in 1923. He was a Freemason, member of the Scottish Rite and Rose Croix, and was a prominent Rotarian. He had been inspector of public schools since 1912.

During the war he was given the rank of Major and was appointed Area Commandant in the war zone in Belgium, being decorated for his services by the Belgian and French governments.

He is survived by his widow. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

MONTHLY BUSINESS OF ST. JOHN'S AUXILIARY

The usual monthly business and devotional meeting of St. John's W. A. was held on Tuesday, May 13, the president, Mrs. A. W. Turner, in the chair. The meeting was opened by Dr. Blagrave.

After the usual business was concluded very excellent reports from the annual meetings held last week in Toronto were presented by Mrs. A. W. Turner and Mrs. Cridland. Mrs. Devman also reported for the juniors. She is to be congratulated on the success achieved by 17 of her young members, who have received certificates in the recent examination in mission study.

Tea was served by Mrs. Knight and Mrs. Mann.

CROWN ATTORNEY OFF TO WASHINGTON TO-DAY

TORONTO, May 15.— Canadian Press).— Assistant Crown Attorney J. C. McRuer has gone to Washington in connection with arrest in Los Angeles of Andrew Pepall named in conspiracy charges against Peter Smith, former treasurer of Ontario. It developed to-day that Mr. McRuer was in Washington last week and set in motion wheels which led to Pepali's apprehension.

TORONTO TEAM HERE SATURDAY

Lakeviews Will Clash with Queen City Intermediate Outfit at Riverside Park.

Although the K. and S. team of Toronto are unable to make the trip to Peterborough on Saturday, and it was impossible to secure another senior team to take the place of the Tyre crew, leaving the Central Ontario Leaguers without a game, the fans will not lack for baseball entertainment on Saturday, as Manager Lew Lebarr of the Lakeviews, has booked a Toronto crew to do battle with his Lakeviews, the Ontario junior champs. The visitors are being selected by Bill Duncan, of the Spalding League and will be of intermediate rather than junior calibre, so that it will be a real test for the Lakeviews, and the fans are assured of a real game. The fixture will bet under way at 2.30 o'clock to give the Central Leaguers a chance to practise afterwards.

DRIVING IN HEAVY TRAFFIC.
It is a good plan to stop about eight feet back of the car ahead when traffic halts, and when almost ready to start, allow the car to begin creeping in "low," and then switch to "second" as the line starts moving. This saves the clutch and is much better than making a habit of starting off in "second."

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORIAM
In memory of Margaret A. Dobbin who left us, May 15, 1922.
You have gone across the river,
To shores forever green;
We long to see your dear face
But the river flows between.

But the truth you taught, will guide us,
In our work, day by day;
And the memory of your goodness,
Will ever with us stay.

Flowers may wreath in garland,
Gold may link a chain.
But love will form a clasp
Unbroken and remain.

And our love, for you dear Mother,
Will follow you, where you roam;
Over the hills of God,
The beautiful hills of home.

DIVISIONS BREAKINC OUT IN RADICAL RANKS SOCIALISTS ISOLATED

Successful French Parties Like Flock of Sheep Without Leader—New Grouping Expected But Socialists Appear to Hold Key to Situation—Herriot In His Garden.

BRIAND FISHING.

PARIS, May 16.—The Socialists are beginning to wonder what they fought for in the recent elections, and what good their victory is going to do them. The Radical leaders are holding quite aloof from them, and divisions are breaking out in their own ranks over the future policy of the party.

Paul Boncour, who was Minister of Labor once, and Pierre Renaudel, who succeeded M. Jaures as leader of the party and was beaten four years ago, have now returned to the Chamber and have ministerial ambitions. They are opposed by what are called the "Pure Socialists," who stick to the theory that the Socialists are the party destined to fight the battle of the classes.

Moderated By Power

They point to the case of Millerand, Briand and Viviano, who, after a taste of power, ceased to be Socialists in the extreme acceptation of the term. When the Socialists' national convention meets, June 18, the proposed participation in governmental power will be combatted, perhaps voted down, under the leadership of such men as Leon Blum, one of the most ardent of the party.

The friends of M. Boncour say, however, that M. Blum may change his mind before that date and accept an offer of the Ministry of Finance if made to him, as suggested by some of the more active promoters of the coalition.

The Radicals need the Socialists votes in the Chamber to make up a majority; accordingly they are in favor of Socialists accepting Cabinet positions, although at the same time they are rather apprehensive of the result of Socialist co-operation on their own party, a section of which is very moderate and stoutly opposed to some of the principal tenets of the Socialist doctrine. The Socialists for the moment appear to hold the key to the situation. Without them the Radicals cannot count upon a majority.

Split Own Forces

With them, however, they will be obliged to follow a policy likely to drive part of their own forces away, thus reducing the majority to a precariously low figure.

The opinion of political experts now is that the formation of a new government will be a long, laborious affair, with many pitfalls confronting those who take the responsibility of governing on a mixture of the Radical and Socialist programmes. M. Herriot still is in the country, but is expected to return to Paris Tuesday next.

M. Briand, whose name has been most prominently mentioned in connection with the premiership, is on a fishing trip off the coast of Brittany, while M. Painleve is resting in Paris and replies through the newspapers to all letters and telegrams.

In their absence the Deputies, who were calling at the Palais-Bourbon—the Chamber of Deputies—in ever-increasing number, resemble a lost flock without a leader.

Walter Mitchell Resigns Commons

OTTAWA, May 16. — (Canadian Press).— The resignation of Hon. Walter Mitchell from membership in the House of Commons was announced by Mr. Speaker Lemieux at the opening of yesterday's session. Mr. Mitchell has represented the St. Antoine division of Montreal since the general election of 1921 previous to which he was provincial treasurer of the province of Quebec for seven years. He is a Liberal.

His letter to the speaker, enclosing the formal resignation required by law, states in a few formal phrases his desire to relinquish his seat.

WAR THREATENED ALL OF GERMANY

Communists Demand Seizure of All Ruhr Mines—Promise Bloody Interference.

BERLIN, May 16. — (United Press.)—Red war was threatened in occupied and unoccupied Germany to-day. Communists increased their demands for seizure by the workers of all the mines of the Ruhr. At the same itme, their leaders promised "bloody interference" in a forthcoming Fascisti demonstration at Fuersten-Walde next Sunday.

In the occupied areas, Communist agitators ebegan a new campaign to prevent miners from acquiescing in the French demands for operation of a group of pits under the Micum agreement between French and German industrialists.

Strike negotiations in the Ruhr may be closed to-day with an Arbitration award.

METHODISTS UPHOLD CHURCH DIVORCE BAN.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 15.—No matter what are the laws of the state in which he lives, no Methodist preacher who is divorced can take unto himself a new wife, no Methodist preacher can marry a divorced woman, and no Methodist preacher can perform the marriage ceremony for a divorcee, the only exception being that of the innocent party where the divorce has been for unfaithfulness may remarry.

This was the pronouncement made by the Committee on Judiciary to the Quadrennial General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in a report presented by Judge Henry Wade Rogers of New York City, the Chairman of the Committee, and which was adopted after numerous attempts to sidetrack it, were defeated.

WHITE KNEW OF BANK CONDITION WHEN MINISTER

Danger Signals of Home Bank's Unsoundness Were Flying From 1916 to 1918 — Persuaded By Directors That Independent Audit Was Not Necessary.

HAD 'INSIDE' REPORT.

OTTAWA, May 16.—(Canadian Press.)—W. T. J. Lee, one of the Home Bank depositors' counsel, occupied the entire afternoon sitting of the Royal Commission Thursday in reviewing correspondence new in evidence, to show that Sir Thomas White, former Minister of Finance, was aware of the condition of the bank and should have ordered an independent investigation.

Mr. Lee took the ground that "danger signals" in regard to the condition of the bank were flying from 1916 (when the three western directors appealed to Sir Thomas for an independent investigation) until 1918, when W. A. Machaffie, formerly assistant to the president of the Home Bank, had written the Finance Minister making grave accusations.

Should Have Enquired.

"It became the bounden duty of the Minister of Finance, when this danger signal was thrown out, to make the proper inquiry," Mr. Lee asserted," referring to the Machaffie letter. This letter, which was sent to Sir Thomas White on August 29, 1918, stated that the dividends paid by the bank in 1916 and 1917 weer based on the addition of interest to doubtful accounts; that actual cash disbursed in dividends during three years was furnished by the increase in deposits of the bank; that Section 153 of the Bank Act was being violated and "that Head Office officials of the bank unwilling to share the guilt are obliged to get out."

Two Monts Elapsed.

Instead of ordering an independent investigation immeditately, said Mr. Lee, the Finance Minister, had referred this very grave letter to the Board of Directors of the Home Bank. Two months had been allowed to elapse before the Home Bank directors replied to the charges made by Mr. Machaffie, and during that period the bank had gone on taking in the deposits of the people of Canada.

Finally they had replied by intimating that Mr. Machaffie's charges were inspired by the fact that he was discharged from the bank, and that they were untrue. They had also furnished Sir Thomas with information at that time which "was untrue if Mr. Machaffie's statements were true," said Mr. Lee.

Persuaded Minister.

"I will not use the word 'gullible'—it wouldn't be right," said Mr. Lee, referring to Sir Thomas White. However, he stated that the Home Bank directors seemed to have been able to convince the Finance Minister that no independent investigation should be held and one did not take place.

Demand For Inquiry.

"Could Sir Thomas White have wanted any greater requisition to do his duty by the people of this country," Mr. Lee demanded, "than that contained in these letters?"

There was no request that the bank's own auditor should make any investigation. The demand was for an investigation by someone appointed by the Minister.

Only Safe Course.

"Any sane man of business at this stage in the proceedings," Mr. Lee continued, "would have said there is only one safe course for me. I see a light in the distance. I will follow that light, and that light will lead me to do my duty by the people of Canada, and that is to make a full investigation of the affairs of this bank. I will have nothing to do with the members of the board. I will not pay attention to General Mason. I will not pay attention to any of these gentlemen. But did he do it?"

One of the letters which Sir Thomas should have regarded as having a bearing on the situation was one from the provincial secretary of New Brunswick asking for information about the condition of the Home Bank. To this letter Mr. Lee thought Sir Thomas had made a

SURPLUS FIVE MILLION MORE THAN GOVERNMENT HAD CLAIMED, PREMIER ANNOUNCED IN CLIMAX TO DEBATE

Weary Parliament at 7.15 This Morning Adopted Third Budget of the Present Government By a Majority of 165 to 53—Three Liberals and One Progressive Voted Against the Budget—Members Broke Into Song Following Division—House Sat Over Sixteen Hours—Hon. Arthur Meighen and Premier King Conclude Debate.

OTTAWA, May 16 (Canadian Press). — After a continuous sitting, with the exception of a dinner recess, of 16 1-4 hours, a weary House at 7.15 this morning adopted the third Budget of the present Government by a majority of 165 to 53, a majority for the Budget of 112.

The majority was but one less than the record one to 121 secured by the Government on the Address. Three Liberals—Messrs. Euler of North Waterloo, Raymond of Brantford, and Marler of St. Lawrence-St. George, Montreal—voted against the Budget. The only Progressive to vote against the Budget was Elliott of South Waterloo. F. N. McCrea, Liberal, of Sherbrooke, who attacked the Budget during the debate, did not vote.

With these exceptions, all the Liberals and all the Progressives present voted for the Budget. The Conservatives voted solidly against it.

The end came after the debate, which for length and number of speeches has probably not been surpassed in th history of the Canadian Parliament.

The Budget was brought down over a month ago, and with intervals there has been debate thereon practically ever since.

It was not expected that the vote would come before midnight, but the early morning hours came and went, and the speakers still kept on and on, till one weary member pleaded with the Progressives to "have a heart and cut it short."

Miss Agnes MacPhail was the last speaker. Her speech, loudly cheered, lasted just two minutes. With a touch of irony she informed the House that when there were more women members "nights like this would be unknown," and Miss MacPhail discarded the 35-minute speech she had prepared.

As the division bells rang out the members broke into song after song. There was much amusement as W. A. Boys, the chief Conservative whip, led the Quebec members in the singing of "Alouette," his effort being greeted with laughter and cheers.

The first vote came on the amendment moved by J. S. Woolisworth, Labour member for Centre Winnipeg. The amendment called for an immediate and substantial reduction in the tariff on necessities of life, heavier income tax on land and unearned increment, exemption from taxation of unimproved land values and for graduated inheritance tax on large estates.

The amendment was defeated by 204 to 16, a majority against of 188.

The sixteen consisted of two Labour men, Shaw, Independent, of West Calgary, and 13 Progressives, among whom was Miss Agnes MacPhail.

Supporters of the amendment also voted later for the Budget.

Then came the vote on the main Budget motion, its approval by a majority of 112, and a few minutes later the adjournment of the House.

Tariff Changes For Consumers

(Excerpt from Canadian Press Report of Premier King's Speech)

In the tariff changes, the Government had in mind not only the producers but also the consumers of Canada, Mr. King asserted. If you freed the consumer from taxation you assisted the producer who had more money to expend. On the other hand, if you freed the producer from taxation, he was in position to produce more cheaply. The Government was seeking to make psosible devolepment of the natural resources of the country in a way which had not heretofore been possible. It would be just as logical to place a tax on the immigrant coming to Canada as to tax the implement he must use for working the land.

It has been asserted that the Budget discriminated against industries. This was not the case. It had always been the policy of the Liberal party to endeavor to reduce taxation on the basic industries. The whole industrial life of the country was built up on the basic industries and in the Budget the Government was trying to make possible a larger production in agriculture, mining, lumbering and fisheries. In doing this the Government knew that the manufacturing interests and transportation interests of the country must inevitably be benefitted.

C.N.R. REPAIR SHOPS TO BE SURVEYED

First Step In Co-operative Effort to Eliminate Waste and Increase Efficiency.

MONTREAL, May 16 (Canadian Press). — At a conference yesterday between S. J. Hungerford, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways, O. S. Boyer, Jr., consulting engineer of the shopmen's employees organisations, and the latter's representatives, arrangements were completed to make a survey of the principal repair shops of the system.

The proposed survey is the first step in the direction of developing a programme of more intensive co-operation between the management of the railway, its shop craft employees, and their unions for the purpose of eliminating waste, increasing shop operating efficiency, stabilising unemployment, improving working conditions and safety of operation, and bettering service to the public.

Mr. Boyer is starting on his survey next Monday, proceeding first to the Moncton shops in New Brunswick, and then going westward.

Japanese Apartment Fire In Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 16.—More than three score persons were driven to the street in their night attire early Thursday when fire destroyed a Japanese apartment house in the east end of the city and partly destroyed a row of twenty-two cabins. Some of the occupants were overcome by smoke when rescued. The damage will not exceed $10,000.

SALESMAN WANTED

HON. ARTHUR MEIGHEN—"There should be an end of sectional thinking, of setting east against west and Moose Jaw against Toronto. Let Canada think in terms of Montreal against Chicago, of Toronto against New York, of Vancouver against the Pacific coast states, and let Canada admit that it must stand against the tremendous handicap of United States industrial opposition. Only in that way could Canadian unity be achieved."

OTTAWA, May 16 (Canadian Press). — Galleries were crowded yesterday afternoon for the Budget debate.

Resuming his speech, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Opposition, referred to the statements made by R. A. Hoey (Springfield) regarding those made by Lincoln on the subject of protection. It was sufficient to know, said Mr. Meighen, that Lincoln supported protection throughout his life.

Mr Meighen could not accept the opinions of John Stuart Mill as applied to conditions to-day, though he had regard for his views on economic questions of his own time.

Speaking of a letter read by Mr. Hoey giving information regarding the industrial situation in Renfrew in the textile industry there, Mr. Meighen said he was informed that the product turned out there was a particular line of material which was free from British competition.

Mr. Hoey rose to point out that the cream separator industry was working full time.

"Don't rely too much on the cream separators when you are managing a dominion,' replied Mr. Meighen.

PREMIER KING—"The Government was able to come before the people this year, having practiced economy and say that it was now able to relieve the burden of taxation to the extent of $24,000,000. The total capital costs of the war had been met by loans by the late Government. Not a dollar of it had been met by taxation. That was the reason why the Government had not been able to reduce taxation as soon as it had wished to."

OTTAWA, May 16 (Canadian Press). — Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie-King took the floor amidst applause from the Liberal and Progressive benches, which merged with the round after round that followed Mr. Meighen's speech.

The Prime Minister said that joining with the many expressions of regret which had been voiced concerning the absence on account of illness of the Minister of Finance (Right Hon. W. S. Fielding) he was glad to be able to convey to the House on the eve of the division on the Budget that Mr. Fielding stood four-square with the Government in its present Budget.

It was not surprising that the leader of the Conservatives had found the Budget disturbing. He had been preaching disaster so long, had told so many stories of impending disaster and bankruptcy for Canada that he had come to believe these stories himself.

When the Government produced the first surplus in ten years, and reduced taxation, Mr. Meighen had been at sea and had called to his command all the pessimistic agencies he could quote. His incapacity to adduce "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth" was evi-

Doctor Nonchalant In Narrow Escape

DURHAM, Ont., May 16. — Dr. W. P. Ellis, veterinary, Holstein, survived without injury a peculiar experience. Answering a call from Archibald McPhee, who had a horse severely injured in a runaway, stopped his car in high gear at McPhee's barn. Being ing informed that the horse was back in the field and that he could motor there, he cranked his car which at once leaped forward.

The doctor grasped the bumper and was dragged beneath the car as it jumped through a gate, over a pile of wood then turned and struck the driving shed. All the while the doctor was trailed beneath the car.

When it stopped he crawled from under and when Mr. McPhee asked him if he were hurt, replied: "Where is the horse."

ENTIRE NATION WILL MOBILIZE

President Coolidge Authorizes Defence Test In United States On September 12 — Everyone to Participate.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—President Coolidge has authorized the War Department to proceed with project for a national mobilization test to take place on September 12, the sixth anniversary of the battle of St. Mihiel, it was announced to-day.

The demonstration of the national defense system will be the largest manoeuvre ever staged by the army, and will take place on the day before General Pershing returns as general of the armies, retires as general of the armies.

Every branch of the Regular Army, the Reserves, the National Guard and other military organizations will mobilize in every city and village to put to actual test the new defense system conceived by the general staff from lessons learned during the World War.

Fruit of Six Years

The manoeuvres will actually demonstrate the speed which a war time fighting force could be mobilized in an emergency and will test the plan on which General Pershing and his staff have worked for the last six years.

Secretary of War Weeks issued today the following statement:

"The object of the demonstration is to represent the national defense policy. The defense test should inform the public of the plans and methods by which American armies will be raised in the event of any national emergency.

"We have no need as a nation to conceal our military purposes. They have no hostile object and our plans contemplate actual mobilization in our own defense. It is vitally necessary for the success of those plans that they should be known and understood in advance by our people.

All Agencies Used

"Our programme provides for individual and community co-operation and the exercise of decentralized authority by so many elements, national, State, municipal and private, that it is desired to portray the functions and missions of each of these agencies, civil as well as military.

"The defense test should illustrate to citizens and communities the initial services required for national defense. It is designed to make plain how the Government plans to utilize and combine community units and energies so as to obtain the maximum orderly results in conformity with the thoroughly democratic character of our militar policy as laid down in the National Defense Act of 1920."

Secretary Weeks declared that the demonstration will not involve any increased expenditure of public funds and that practical arrangements would be left to the discretion of local civic committees.

AMENDMENTS TO UNION MEASURE ARE DENOUNCED

Proposed Concessions Are Empty and Illusory, Says Statement From Presbyterian Church Association — Minorities Not Protected; Injustice Not Removed.

NOT CONSTITUTIONAL

OTTAWA, May 16.—(Canadian Press.)— "The concessions which the amendments appear to offer are therefore, in our view, empty and illusary," says a statement issued last night by the Presbyterian Church Association, reviewing the proposed compromise amendment to the Church Union Bill.

The statement says the amendments may appear upon a superficial reading to make substantial concessions to those opposing the bill. In reality they do nothing to remove or modify the fundamental objections to the bill as introduced.

Injustice Postponed.

The basic injustice of the bill, adds the statement is merely postponed. It is not removed. The statement continues:

"The vital issue between the promoters of the bill and its opponents is this: We desire to preserve the Presbyterian church in Canada. The bill would destroy it. Upon this issue the amendments make no concession whatever. The bill as amended wipes out our church on the 15th day of April, 1925, just as completely as the original bill would have wiped it out on the 31st of May, 1924.

"After the 15th of April, 1925, non-concurring congregations will be in no better position under amendments than under the original bill. They will be separate and isolated units, belonging to no church; for their own church will be gone. Any church which they may organize must be a new church, with a new name. To some the difference in name may seem trifling. But 'the Presbyterian Church of Canada' would mean, and the Unionists intend it to mean, a new organization 'the Presbyterian Church in Canada' would mean the old church, and that is why the Unionists are not willing to allow us to use it.

Fate of Minorities.

"The amendments leave unchanged the fate of the minorities in the concurring congregations. On the 15th of April, 1925, they will be swept into the United Church. If, as individuals, they withdraw from it, they withdraw naked, without

BUY COAL NOW

ASH HEAP OR BANK ACCOUNT?

—You can save considerable money by putting in your winter supply of Coal now while prices are low—that is an admitted fact. The question is, will you take advantage of the opportunity that is offered? If you do, you can put the difference between prices now and prices later on in the Bank of Satisfaction, where it will draw substantial interest in the shape of comfort all next winter.

On the other hand, if you let this chance to save go by, your next ash heap will have cost more money and be not one cent more valuable.

The purchase of Coal now is an investment without a trace of speculation to it.

Hon. Arthur Meighen

Loss of Reputation.

Mr. Hoey had followed a bad precedent in his presentation of emigration figures. His years had all ended in June and he omitted the "disastrous months" between June and December, 1923. Mr. Meighen's figures from Washington were to the effect that 181,973 Canadians had entered the United States during 1923 and up to the year ending March 31, 1924, 200,816 Canadians had entered the United States.

Mr. Hoey asked if Mr. Meighen had the figures for Americans entering Canada.

"When we fixed 200,000 going out of the country it is pretty hard to rejoice over 22,000 coming in," answered Mr. Meignen.

Glass Factory Closed.

Mr. Meighen spoke of a big glass factory in Canada, capable of producing two-thirds of Canada's requirements, which had been forced to close its doors in 1923 because Belgium placed a forty per cent. discount on its products. This factory had given employment to about six hundred people. It had given Canadian railways big freight tonnage. After it had closed its doors, because this government refused its appeals for help, Mr. Meighen said that Belgium removed its discount allowances and the net result was that Canada paid the 18 1-2 per cent duty asked for to Belgium instead of to Canada. The duty would have involved an average of $3 on a $5,000 house. But an important industry was allowed to go to the wall for the sake of that. The same thing would happen to other Canadian industries.

Rolling Mill Hit.

Then there was the attitude of the member for Winnipeg (Hon. A. B. Hudson), who said no country could be self-contained and therefore Canada should buy in the cheapest market. Well, the west was more industrial than he might be willing to admit. A letter from the Manitoba Rolling Mills said that a very small reduction in the tariff now would close its doors. Was the member for Winnipeg as willing to close out this important factory in Winnipeg as he now was to close out eastern factories?

Massey Harris Letter.

The government supporters had got much comfort out of the statement recently issued by the Massey-Harris Company regarding its post budget policy. That statement, carefully scurtinized, revealed nothing except a generous intention on the part of the company to refrain from charging the farmer the sales tax it did not have to pay to the government, and to carry on and make the best of the new conditions, which every Britisher generally did. There was very little else to justify the present budget.

Puzzled by Progressives.

The Progressives' support of the budget puzzled him, said Mr. Meighen. Last session the member for Brandon (Robert Forke), had brought in an amendment to the budget declaring no confidence in the government because it had not reduced taxation on the necessaries of life. The member for Brandon was not asking for special concessions to the farmers. He wanted all necessaries of life considered. This year, when the budget discriminated in favor of the farmers and against everybody else, Mr. Forke found his confidence in the government so tremendously restored that he was willing to vote against his own platform. Such an example of unselfishness was never seen before in the house.

Illogical Reductions.

Coming to the actual provisions of the budget, Mr. Meighen said he would like to point out that in 1911 he had advoted a reduction of tariff on agricultural implements. Then the tariff stood at 25 per cent. and the manufacturers had enjoyed years of prosperity. Now the tariff stood at ten per cent. and the manufacturers were badly off. The pressure of the agrarians for further reductions was as illogical as if a physician, called to treat obesity, should be condemned because he did not continue the treatment until the patient disappeared altogether.

Premier King

denced by his quotation from the Farmer's Sun editorial which preceded the Budget. He had not quoted one which followed it. This Mr. King proceeded to read, to show that the agricultural interests were satisfied with the Budget.

A sharp exchange between the Prime Minister and Mr. Meighen followed concerning the relative dates of the two quotations, amid laughter and cheers from both sides of the House.

Tax Cut Surprising.

The Opposition leader, said Premier King, could not get over the fact that the present government had succeeded in bringing about prosperity in the country and in reducing taxation. There had been three budgets under the present administration, and each had shown a continually improving condition in the national finances. During the war there were naturally additions to the debt but by the time demobilization had been effected, the country might reasonably expect a cessation in the additions to the public debt. Yet in the year 1920-21 the late government had added $91,000,000 to the debt, while in 1921-22, nine months of which was under Conservative rule, the addition to the debt was $81,000,000. In 1922-23, the second budget under the present government, the increase in the debt was only $30,000,000, and this year there was a surplus of $30,000,000.

Same Book-keeping.

The Prime Minister next took up the contention of Mr. Meighen that the guarantee of $50,000,000 to the Canadian National should be included in the public debt. He asserted that the present government had followed precisely the same methods of bookkeeping as the previous administration and that the figures given to the House were the same as those sent to the Cabinet by the officers of the Finance Department. In 1920-21, moreover, the late government had guaranteed $50,000,000 to the Canadian National and the Grand Trunk, but this has not been added to the National Debt. Again in 1921-22 there had been a guarantee.

Sir Henry Drayton interposed to say that the guarantees referred to by the Prime Minister were for refunding. The late government had paid for refunding out of current cash over $15,000,000.

Guarantees for Deficit.

Mr. King said that Mr. Meighen had tried to convey the impression that the guarantees were used for refunding, while as a matter of fact statements furnished by the Department of Finance showed that out of the 1921-22 guarantee, millions had been paid for operating deficit, for sinking fund, for property and materials and for new construction.

Mr. Meighen declared that this did not affect the question, as the refunding done out of cash had exceeded the guarantees by $15,000,000. Besides he quoted a report of the Canadian National Railways that the proceeds of the guarantee had been paid to the receiver-general to refund advances.

C. N. R. Improvement.

Mr. King retorted that the statements he had read were direct from the records of the Department of Finance, and he maintained that these figures proved conclusively that Hon. gentlemen opposite had not added guarantees to the public debt. Moreover, while under the late government, as the railways were in a bankrupt condition, guarantees might well have been added to the public debt, the condition of the railways had changed so that the government was now justified in believing that guarantees might be given the roads. In support of this view he stated that in 1921 the operating deficit on the government railways was $11,000,000, while in 1922 there was a surplus of $2,800,000, in 1923 net revenue of $30,236,000, and for the present year Sir Henry Thornton anticipated a surplus of $30,000,000, and believed that in two years the National roads would produce a dividend.

Followed Precedent.

Again, proceeded the Prime Minister, in not adding guarantees to the public debt the government has mere ly been following the policy of Canada for 25 years or more. From 1896 to 1911 there were guarantees of $124,000,000, with nothing added to the public debt. From 1911 to 1923, there were guarantees of $170,000,000 with nothing added to the public debt —why then should that policy be changed?

Hon. R. J. Manion (Conservative, Fort William) asked if from 1896 to 1911, the guarantees had not been given for private railways that were paying interest upon them.

"Not paying interest on them," interjected Hon. G. P. Graham.

The accounts of the government had been made up in a perfectly regular way, the Prime Minister insisted. Not only did the Federal government follow this method but it was also used by the provincial governments. The system used in presenting the statement this year was one that had been in use by government for the last half century.

Under-Estimated Surplus.

The Acting Minister of Finance had fixed the surplus for the year at $30,000,000. "As a matter of fact it was larger than that. The complete returns at the time had not been available and the Acting-Minister had over-estimated the probable expenditures with the result that the surplus for the year 1922-23 was more than originally stated by $5,000,000.

"So that surplus we have to-day is not $30,000,000 but $35,000,000," announced the Prime Minister amid prolonged government applause. Of the $50,000,000 guarantee to the Canadian National and the Grand Trunk there were $17,000,000 in the treasury which had not been drawn. There was $35,000,000 surplus in actual cash in the treasury of the country.

There had been a reduction annually in the total disbursements during the past three years. In 1923 the disbursements were $483,652,436; in 1923 the total disbursements were $454,452,341, and in 1924, $370,313,651. That said the Prime Minister, was where the surplus came from. For every nine dollars the late government spent of the taxpayers' money, this government had spent seven dollars.

Trade Increasing.

External trade of Canada disclosed an improvement in the total value of trade and a favorable balance was shown by the excess of exports over imports. In the Budget of 1922 the excess of exports over imports was $6,122,677. In the budget of 1923 it was $142,830,794, and in that of 1924, the excess of exports was $185,217,800 over imports. In the last year of the late government the excess of imports over exports was $29,730,763.

Consistent on Tariff.

The Premier replied with detailed citations to the charge that the government was not consistent and that it had been guilty of "betrayal and inadelity" in its policy on the tariff, and that it had "sacrificed to the Progressive God." He quoted from the Liberal platform of 1919, from the Fielding amendment of 1920, and from the Fielding amendment of 1921, emphasizing the references to them all to reduction in taxation with a view of diminishing the cost of living and the cost of the instruments of production in the industries based on the natural resources of Canada He quoted in the same sense from speeches made by himself in Toronto and in western Canada in 1920 and 1921 for the purpose of showing he and the Liberal party had been consistent in the tariff policy.

"I would like to tell the leader of the opposition," he declared, "that there are men in this house who are as sensitive to their own honor as he is himself."

Opposed Progressives.

The Liberals, he pointed out had opposed the Progressives in the election of 1921. They had opposed them because they thought they were going too far in the direction of free trade, though they had found out during the campaign that the Progressives did not intend to proceed to extremes.

"I would like to say to the members of that party," said the Prime Minister, "that the less we let hon. gentlemen opposite (the Conservatives) divide the forces that have the interests of the people at heart the better it will be for the dominion. From the moment that I had anything to do with public life I have tried to bring about unity of the forces that are making for national progress."

Liberal Policy.

The Prime Minister read from press reports of his own speeches in towns and cities in many parts of the Dominion to prove that he had advocated tariff reduction, especially on the implements of production. In Montreal and Quebec and Sherbrooke, he said, no less than in the rural districts, he had preached this doctrine of fiscal reform. In the former he had emphasized the tendency which the Liberal policy must take in conformity with the platform of 1919. Because of all this the government had felt justified in reducing the tariff at the earliest possible moment. Just as soon as it saw an opportunity of saving the taxpayers $24,000,000 a year, it had inaugurated its policy.

TORONTO BY-ELECTION TO BE HELD IN JULY

TORONTO, May 16 (Canadian Press). — The Hon. Thomas Crawford late yesterday afternoon resigned his seat as member of the Legislature for North-West Toronto, and will be sworn in to-day as Registrar of Deeds for Toronto.

A by-election will be held early in July, and the Government candidate will march in the Twelfth of July procession, it was stated in Conservative circles last night.

Mr. Crawford's last official act as member of the Legislature was to introduce to the Ontario Cabinet, of which he was a member without portfolio, a deputation of representatives of the Home Bank depositors who asked for the moral support of the Government in their fight for the reimbursement of their savings.

The Father of the House then asked for permission to withdraw.

He was deeply affected by the severance of the ties established by thirty years of service in the Legislature, and the tears welled in his eyes as he departed from the Parliamentary Halls.

AMENDMENTS TO

church, without congregation and without property.

"The provisions of the bill respecting property and the colleges are unchanged by the amendments. Presbyterian trusts are diverted to the benefit of the United Church.

"The amended bill is no more constitutional than the original. In principle and in detail it is beyond the powers of Parliament.

"We have no wish and no right to put obstacles in the way of Union for those who desire it. We ask for ourselves no more than we freely admit to them, the right to be iong to the church of their choice. What we resist is their claim that our church must be destroyed, because they have chosen another. Why should they insist upon destroying the existence and even the name of the church to which they no longer wish to belong, but which we seek to maintain and carry on?

Preserve Identity.

"Our desire is to preserve the identity and continuity of the Presbyterian church in Canada and to continue to worship in it. We shall not oppose any fair and constitutional bill which leaves us our church; but upon this fundamental issue we cannot yield.

"In this vital provision and in all the results which flow from it, the bill remains as it was. The concessions which the amendments appear to offer are therefore, in our view, empty and illusory."

The statement is signed by Daniel J. Fraser, president, and Thomas McMillan, vice-president.

You Can Eat Anything You Like And Not Have HEARTBURN

In all cases of heartburn there is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach attended by a disturbed appetite, as when too much food is taken into the stomach it is liable to ferment and become extremely sour, vomiting occurs, and what is thrown up is generally sour and bitter. When you are in this condition you will find that Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will give you relief right away.

Mr. Joseph H. MacDonald, Christmas Island, N.S., writes:—"Two years ago I suffered all the time from heartburn. I took one vial of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and have never been troubled since.

It is very nice to be able to eat anything you like and not have heart burn any more."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

TRUCK OWNERS RUIN HIGHWAY

Deputy Minister of Highways Tells Truck Owners' Association Heavy Truck is Destroying the Provincial Roads.

TORONTO, May 16.—(Canadian Pres).—"You can't expect taxpayers to keep up roads that you wilfully destroy." This was one of the pungent sentences in a remarkably frank address delivered by S. L. Squires, Deputy Minister of Highways, before the Ontario Motor Truck Owners Association, here last night. Mr. Squires complained of lack of co-operation of truck owners with the highways department and practically blamed the heavy truck for the ruin of the provincial roads.

Mr. Squires straight from the shoulder address made considerable opposition and several of the members rose to protest against what they considered unfair burdens or unjustified statements. Chief among the disputed matters was the question of overloading.

Morden Neilson, chairman of the meeting and of the executive committee, reviewed attempts of association to have the highways act amended to permit the use of trucks heavier than eight tons after January 1926, and submtited figures to show that the banning of such trucks would result in a loss to truck owners of $6,184,935. The only success he was able to report was an extension of time before which heavy trucks must be discarded to January 1928. Mr. Squires announced that there was not the slightest likelihood of this extension being renewed.

Methodists Resent Language of "Antis."

BROCKVILLE, May 16 (Canadian Press). — A protest against the "insinuating and sometimes insulting language employed by the members of the anti-union faction of the Presbyterian Church in regard to the Methodist attitude towards union was lodged yesterday.

At the meeting of the Brockville District Methodist Church by the chairman, Rev. G. W. McCall, who denied the assertion that the Methodists were attempting to "gobble up" the Presbyterians,

He further scored the lobbying tactics employed by both unionists and anti-unionists at Toronto and Ottawa.

Rev. A. S. Cleland, of Spencerville, was elected chairman of the District for the ensuing year.

Kellogg's Bran did more in two weeks than medicine taken in 20 years

Out of regard for your own health, read this letter:

Dear Sirs:

Your "Krumbled Bran," used by me as a cereal, has done more for me in two weeks than the hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine I have taken in last twenty years for constipation. It is wonderful, and it is so simple.

Yours truly,
Arlington H. Carman.
(Address on Request.)

Mr. Carman's experience has been duplicated in thousands of homes. Why does Kellogg's Bran succeed when drugs and pills fail? The answer is simple. Drugs have an unnatural effect upon the bowels. They irritate the intestines. The more they are used, the more one has to use. Finally, they have no effect at all.

Kellogg's Bran STIMULATES the intestines. It cleans, sweeps and purifies them. It acts exactly as nature acts. And it is never necessary to increase the amount eaten. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to bring permanent relief to the most chronic cases of constipation, or your grocer returns your money. For Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be so effective. That is why doctors recommend Kellogg's.

The wonderful, nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran is exclusive. It is delicious—totally unlike ordinary brans. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream and in the recipes on every package. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is made in Toronto, Canada. Sold by all grocers.

Poincare Letter to MacDonald Cordial

PARIS, May 16. — Premier Poincare has written a long letter couched in cordial and conciliatory language to Ramsay MacDonald, the British Prime Minister, defining clearly the present state of negotiations between France and Great Britain.

After expressing regret at his inability to go to Chequers Court to discuss the putting into oneration of the experts' reports, M. Poincare is understood to have observed that an agreement between the Allies appeared to him quite feasible on the basis of the experts' plan, unanimously accepted by the interested powers. He specifies the eventual clauses of that agreement, and concludes by hoping for a prompt settlement of the reparations problems in the interest of the reconstruction of Europe.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Tax Rate Fixed at 41 Mills After Late Session Last Night.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 16.—Sitting until midnight last night and with Town Treasurer Wood patiently figuring out every detail of receipts and expenditures, the Council struck the tax rate for 1924 at 41 mills, for public and Separate School supporters alike, one mill lower than it was in 1923. In an address to the electors published in the Examiner just before the last municipal election Mayor Meyers stated that despite the increased outlay for the new High School and for the construction of sewers he could undertake to promise that the tax rate would be no higher than it was last year. This pre-election pledge has been kept.

The tax rate would have been two mills less or 39 mills, but for an unforeseen circumstance that has arisen in connection with the first year's payment on the High School debentures, amounting to $,5448.67. It was estimated that about half of this would be paid by the county but it now transpires that the entire obligation must be met by the town this year. The county's share will be reecived later. This means that the tax rate is two mills higher for 1924 than it otherwise would have been.

Used Pruning Knife

The estimates were pared wherever possible one saving affected being in the amount to be expended on the streets. Last year a total of $8531 was spent and this year the sum set aside for that purpose is $7,50. This includes $1000 to be spent for new sidewalks and the cost of a new bridge across "the creek" at McKelvie and McCook's Mill, the construction of which was decided upon last year. It was decided to spend as little as possible upon the streets until some decision is reached with regard to putting down permanent paving.

The total amount to be raised this year is $55,903 on an assessment of $1,330,000. The sum of $550.00 is set aside for fire protection and of this $475.00 is required for the salaries of the members of the Brigade. The appropriation for High and Public Schools is $15,000.

The motion to set the rate at 41 mills was sponsored by Councillor Kingston and McDonald, and there was no dissent.

Sewer By-laws Passed .

The necessary by-laws to provide for the construction of sewers on the west side, plans for which were prepared some time ago, were put through their various readings. The estimated cost of this work is $33,000, with an additional $8,000 for putting in the water mains were required. The streets on which the sewers are to be built habe already been published.

George Hawthorne was engaged as superivsing engineer of construction, his compensation to be one per cent. of the actual cost of the work, the town to furnish him with an assistant, or rodman, when required.

These sewers will be put in by day labour under the supervision of Street Foreman Fox.

When Councillor Johnston, who is serving his first term on the Board, suggested that the town advertise for tenders, Mayor Meyers said that sewers had already been put in by day labour at a saving to the ratepayers.

To follow such a system really means starting a new industry in the municipality. If a contractor were given the work he would bring in men from outside in order to complete the work in a hurry but with the town building the sewers local laborers are given employment, men who otherwise might be forced to apply to the charity committee for assistance.

Oiling the Streets.

It was decided to purchase 10,000 gallons of 40 per cent. liquid asphalt for use on the streets, the price to be left to Mayor Meyers, Clerk McGregor and Chairman Cole of the roads and bridges committee. Last year the tmount used was 21,000 gallons but this year less will be required as so many streets on which sewers are to be put down will be closed to traffic.

Transient Trader's License

A merchant who came here recely from Toronto and opened a store on Front street appeared before the Council to ask that he be allowed to carry on business without the payment of the usual transient traders' license. His proposition was that in lieu of a license he pay for the store which he occupied a year's rent in advance $204, regarding this as sufficient guarantee that he would remain here permanently in business.

The majority of the Councillors expressed the opinion that no exception should be made in this case and the dealer will be required to pay up $175 ,which is really payment in advance of his business tax. The merchants who are steady taxpayers, it was signed by Councillor Cole and others are entitled to protection to unfair outside competition.

Campbelford for some years has charged for transient traders' licenses on a sliding scale, the maximum amount being $250.00.

On the motion of Councillars Redden and Cole, it was decided to have a new by-law prepared fixing the rate at $200.00 for all alike.

Ukranian "Reds" Lose Suit at Fort William.

FORT WILLIAM, May 16.—For the first time in a year the Ukrainian Presoita Society is to-day in full and legal possession of their hall in this city as the result of an order from Justice Kelly, instructing the sheriff to turn the hall over to the society. This is the outcome of a suit entered by them against the Red element of the Ukrainians, who attempted, by gradually swamping the original membership, to obtain possession of the hall and to use it as a center for revolutionary teaching and propaganda.

Unionists' Counsel to Meet Church Leaders.

OTTAWA, May 16.—G. W. Mason, K.C., one of the leading counsel for the Church Unionists and who was responsible, in part for the actual drafting of the bill to affect union of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches of Canada, left for Toronto last night. It is likely a meeting of the church union committee will be called at once to consider the suggested amendments to the bill.

THE NATIONAL RAILWAY.

The chief enemy of the Canadian National Railways is not the Canadian Pacific Railway, but is rather a combination of opposition by foes of public ownership and politicians who cannot resist playing party politics with a question that should not be involved in such an atmosphere.

The attitude of the average Canadian, regardless of his political affiliations, is that the National Railway is the property of the people of this country, that its administration represents a very grave financial problem and that it must be given every chance to succeed.

He is willing to trust to the judgment of the head of the railway rather than that of any collection of politicians who cannot be expected to know the requirements of the system or to decide important policies with the same accuracy as an expert railwayman.

In other words, the people of Canada want the entanglements of partisan politics removed from the National Railway, and this feeling on the part of the public is so pronounced that it is a miracle that all politicians do not realize it and act accordingly.

Sir Henry Thornton has measured up to his task and should have a free hand in the direction of the system; if his plans are interfered with for political motives it is not to be expected that he can produce the desired results.

TOURIST TRAFFIC.

It has often been said that the motor tourist traffic has become one of Canada's greatest industries, and figures given by the Canadian Grocer and quoted elsewhere in the Examiner go a long way toward establishing the truth of that statement.

For instance, it is recorded that during a nine-month period last year in Vancouver the total income from tourists was placed at $24,000,000.

As it is estimated that every $100 spent in a retail store by a tourist adds $65 to the turnover of the manufacturer and $75 to the turnover of the wholesaler, the effect upon business generally of a development in the tourist traffic is easily visualized.

The importance of communities like Peterborough doing everything in their power to encourage visits from motor tourists is emphasized by such figures as these, for it is apparent that every dollar spent by such visitors is directly or indirectly beneficial to the whole community.

And an army of tourists spend a lot of dollars during the season.

They have to be fed, they have to have gasoline and oil for their cars, they are huge consumers of ice cream and cool drinks, they buy souvenirs, postcards, magazines and fishing tackle in large quantities.

Other lines of trade also share in their business, although perhaps not to as great an extent as those mentioned—and the point to be remembered is that they put a lot of money into circulation, and when money is circulating business and industry generally prosper.

CLEAN IT ALL UP.

Further arrests in connection with the conspiracy charges involving Hon. Peter Smith are evidence that the Ontario Government is determined to probe to the bottom of the financial operations of the Drury Government.

For that, of course, they are deserving of credit; the people want the facts brought out and the guilty parties, if there are any, punished.

Unfortunately, however, the zeal that marks the efforts to get at the bottom of the Peter Smith transactions does not seem to extend to the events before he accession to office of the U.F.O. Provincial Treasurer.

The Public Accounts Committee suspended its activities at a stage that left an element of mystery and doubt surrounding those events.

The Assistant Treasurer, Chas. A. Matthews, who might reasonably be expected to know everything about both angles of this question, slipped through the fingers of the police, it is explained, and is now missing.

If there is any effort being made to locate and bring him back, the activity is not evident to the public.

Andrew Pepall, one of the men charged with having conspired with the former Provincial Treasurer, has been found in California, and it is evident that the Attorney-General, by an arrangement with the United States immigration authorities, is endeavouring to secure his presence in Canada.

Mr. Matthews, however, remains missing.

The people of Ontario will like to know that every possible effort to discover his whereabouts and to have him brought back to Toronto is being made.

If there were transactions of doubtful colour before Mr. Smith's regime, the Province wants to know all them.

THE HOBBY FAIR.

Something new in the way of community enterprises is the Hobby Fair, held under the auspices of the Rotary Club of London, Ont., and officially opened on Wednesday by Sir Robert Borden.

It is based on the idea that every boy and girl has a hobby of some kind, and the children of London are appealed to display what they do in their spare time and in their hours at school.

The result has been an exhibition with over 3,000 entries, a display filling the Armouries.

There are exhibits from the art department and manual training classes of the schools, and a variety of articles that afford the hundreds of visitors to the Fair a fascinating study of the child mind as demonstrated by the things in which the interest of the various youngsters lies.

One boy shows a remarkable reproduction of the Quebec Bridge, another the framework of a skyscraper.

Still another with meagre supplies to work with has fashioned a circus train.

There are displays of rocks and stones, collections of postage stamps and old coins.

In fact, the exhibition is a picture of the boys and girls of London, and is as educative to parents as it is full of interest to the children themselves.

Naturally the public has been attracted by the unique nature of the exhibition, and the attendance has been such as to make the event a financial success.

The Examiner brings the plan to the attention of local organizations as something worthy of imitation when ways and means of raising funds are being considered.

CLEARING THE AIR.

The more carefully the result of the French elections is considered, the clearer it becomes that one concrete outcome of supreme importance will be the consolidation of Anglo-French understanding and the strengthening of those bonds of sympathy that had become loosened under the continual friction of the pourparlers between London and Paris over the reparations scheme. Premier MacDonald had arranged for a conference with M. Poincare at Chequers Court on Monday next, but that is now cancelled. At the same time it has been revealed in London that its object was to fasten upon the French Premier responsibility for failure to reach an agreement upon the Dawes report. M. Poincare's stand upon sanctions and the Ruhr constituted a stumbling-block that seemed impossible of removal through the ordinary methods of diplomatic negotiation. That the solid mass of French public opinion has become convinced of this fact was made clear in dramatic fashion at the polls on Sunday.

Now the obstacle has been swiftly and effectively removed. The feeling of relief in London is reflected in official circles and in the comments of the press. The latter had almost given up all hope of an agreement upon the Dawes report. Now it sees agreement well within measurable distance of achievement. It is taken for granted that the new French Government, when it comes into office at the beginning of June, will be ready to accept the Dawes reparations report on the basis of the minimum reparations figure M. Poincare demanded, and which Mr. MacDonald is also ready to accept, so long as there is no more talk about sanctions and the Ruhr occupation bogey is definitely removed. Once this is made clear, there should be little difficulty in arriving at a final and definite working agreement for putting into practical operation the recommendations of the Dawes Commission. As soon as that is effected, the Allies will have taken the first real step assuring a settlement of the problems that have vexed two continents and affected three since the Armistice was signed.

The effect of the victory of the French Moderates will not end there, however, so far as Britain is concerned. It must be borne in mind that the voters who turned Poincare and his party out are the solid middle classes, the backbone of the nation, and the most powerful element in the nation. They have virtually given the world a pledge that their desire for peace is so great that they are willing to make very material sacrifices—for it cannot be forgotten that the abandonment of Poincare's policies does involve a very real sacrifice for France. But what she may lose in this direction she will more than make up by the added prestige she will acquire in the eyes of the other great Powers working for world-peace. And if her sacrifice be the price of a clearer understanding with Britain and the final sweeping away of the factors that have done so much to alienate the solid thinking British public's sympathy, then it will be well paid. The way may also be cleared for the adoption by France of a vigorous policy in support of the League of Nations on lines that will permit of united action with Great Britain, lending a tremendous new impetus to the work and influence of that body. The French policy towards Russia is also likely to be defined, and that in turn may lead to the opening up of fresh and highly important avenues of enterprise. The temporary reaction of the French franc may be discounted, as it is clearly a Bourse reflex of the upheaval of the moment. France has everything to gain by the determined attitude the electorate has taken, and even M. Poincare admits that the majority must have its will—and govern.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Ottawa Journal laments that there are few orators in Parliament. That may be true, but, unfortunately, there is no lack of talkers.

Smith Falls has been conducting a "Better English", drive. It is expected that henceforth residents of the Falls will be detected everywhere by their correct speech.

Now it is declared that a scandal in the Highways Department is brewing. Considering the brevity of its term of office, the late Government seems to have had a singular faculty for getting into trouble.

One way to discourage the popularity of the radio would be to broadcast some of the Budget speeches.

There is nothing more acrobatic than a Budget surplus when rival speakers start to juggle the figures.

Bobbed hair having been pronounced by a health expert as sensible, there will doubtless be less inclination on the part of the fair sex to have their locks trimmed.

A THOUG HT

GOOD TIMBER.

The tree that never had to fight
For sun and sky and air and light,
That stood out in the open plain
And always got its share of rain,
Never became a mighty king,
But lived and died a scrubby thing.

The man who never had to toil,
Up springing from the common soil,
Who never had to win his share
Of sun and sky and light and air,
Never became a rugged man,
But lived and died as he began.

Fine timber does not grow in ease;
The stronger wind, the sturdier trees;
The farther sky, the greater length;
The more the blow, the more the strength;
By sun and storm, by rain and snows,
In tree or man, good timber grows.

Where thickest stands the wooded growth
We find the patriarchs of both;
And they hold converse with the stars
Whose shattered branches show the scars
Of many winds and of much strife—
This is the well-known law of life.

—Carlos C. Hanks.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, May 15.—Last Wednesday a bunch of 1060-lb. choice butchers were sold at $7.75 a cwt. These had been held in the hope of getting last week's prices fully half a dollar higher. This was an extreme drop, but other sales showed a decline in coarse heavy steers not suitable for export. This morning two loads of export steers and heifers brought $8 a cwt. Choice butchers brought $7.75 a cwt. and good butchers $7 and $7.25. Medium butchers brought $6.50 and an odd good common went at $6.

Choice cows were firm at $6 to $6.25 a cwt. and medim cows sold at $4.75. Bulls were steady and one good bull brought $5 a cwt. A few mixed stockers sold to the specialists at $3.50 to $5.10 a cwt.

Calves close the week steady and there was no weakness on Wednesday.

Few recent lambs are bringing over $14 each. Handyweight sheep and old lambs are quite steady.

Hogs are down to the lowest prices for a decade, but the supply is heavy enough to keep the quote at $7 a cwt. f.o.b., although the buyers admit there is no money for the farmer in the present price. There is no change over the week end, but nobody seems to expect anything but an improvement in the early future.

SPANISH LOSE 500 IN MOROCCO FIGHT

MADRID, May 16.—According to accounts of recent fighting in Morocco that have reached Madrid, it seems that the affair at Sidi Messaud was very much of a repetition of what has too often taken place. The Sidi Messaud post was beleaguered by Moors for several days and nearly cut off when Spanish operations were undertaken to drive off the investing force and relieve the garrison. In this the Spanish forces were completely successful, with a loss estimated at about 500, all told, mostly native troops and members of the Legion.

PUT ALL CO-OPERATIVES UNDER ONE CONTROL IS WISCONSIN'S PLAN

MADISON, Wis., May 16.—(United Press).—Co-ordination of all farmers' co-operative organizations in Wisconsin into one parent association, controlling and advising the smaller societies for their mutual benefit, is being perfected here under the State Department of Markets.

Milk, cheese, potato, tobacco, fruit, livestock and canners' co-operative societies and pools, including practically every phase of farming in the State producing any considerable portion of the State's agricultural revenue are involved.

The organization will be known as the State Co-operative Council. Under the plan of organization, the district and local co-operative societies would elect delegates to an association having jurisdiction over individual farm industries in the State. These associations would then form the co-operative council through representatives elected by their membership.

While the co-operative council would have no actual power on its own account and would supposedly act in an advisory capacity only, the council is provided with State statutory backing through the Departments of Agriculture and Markets of the State. The Commissioner of Agriculture and the Commissioner of Markets and officials of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, who are sponsoring the new "pool of pools," are made ex-officio members of the council.

AMERICAN BOOKINGS ARE HEAVY FOR THE TAILTEANN GAMES

DUBLIN, May 16.—D. J. Burke, chairman of the publicity committee of the Tailteann games, has left for America to make final arrangements for the passage of the teams which will represent the United States in the games.

It is declared officially that information from America sets forth that 25,000 people have booked for Ireland and will some over this summer. The cabinet of the Free State has sanctioned a loan of $35,000 to the Tailteann games for organizing purposes.

SHORTER SKIRTS

Skirts get shorter as the days lengthen. From ten to twelve inches from the floor is now the correct length for tailored and sport things and from eight to ten for formal gowns.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Rebekah Lodge Held a Special Meeting-- Personal Mention.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 16.—The Rebekah Lodge held a very special meeting on Monday night, May 12th, in honor of Mrs. S. Easterbrooke, of Toronto, who was a visitor to the lodge. Mrs. Easterbrooke is the president of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario. Mrs. H. Johnston, of Trenton, district deputy, was also present, as well as others from Trenton.

The president addressed the meeting and Mrs. Johnston and others gave short addresses. There were some musical numbers as well. Instrumental sole, Mr. Lucy; vocal solo, Miss Hoover; reading, Mr. Maquire, and a vocal solo from Mr. Lucy. At the close of the evening a social hour was spent and refreshments served.

About twenty-five members of the Oddfellows Lodge, No. 248, comprising the degree team, went to Stirling on Wednesday night to put on the initiatory degree in the lodge there.

The nursing classes held every day since Monday afternoon are well attended. About sixty ladies were present on Wednesday in spite of the rain. Considerable interest was taken in the different lessons on Wednesday. The subjects were measles, diphtheria, and smallpox. The lessons will continue in the Public Library.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. H. Shore, Centre Street, leaves on Thursday to visit friends in Toronto on Friday. Mr. Shore and daughter, Miss Verna Shore, will meet Mrs. Shore in Toronto, and all go on to Port Colborne to the wedding of their son, Mr. Carl Shore, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Winters, of Brockville, are visiting at his parents on Wellington Street. They came to see his mother, who is very low after a lingering illness.

Mr. S. Winters, of Toronto, motored down on Sunday, and is visiting at his home also.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Shaw, of Toronto, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. Mitchell, Grand Road.

Mr. Ernest Skitch, of Toronto, nephew of Mr. E. Skitch, Rear Street, spent Wednesday in town.

A WORD TO WOMEN

A hundred and twenty-one thousand women would comprise a vast army. Yet a canvass was recently made among more than that number of women who had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for feminine ailments. The results proved that ninty-eight out of every hundred reported benefit from its use. This is most remarkable evidence of the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the ills of womankind and should influence every sick and ailing woman to try it.

NEWS OF BETHANY AND THE DISTRICT

Mr. and Mrs. M.Cornstock, of Bowmanville, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Porteous on Sunday.

Mr. R. Palmer was a visitor in Peterboro on Wednesday.

Mrs. W. Mulligan and Mrs. D. Driver were called on Wednesday to the bedside of Mrs. Mulligan's daughter, Mrs. J. Morris, Toronto, who is critically ill.

The W.M.S. held their quarterly tea in the basement of the church on Tuesday evening and same was fairly well patronized.

NEWS OF MARMORA AND THE DISTRICT

MARMORA, May 16.—A special meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church was held at the home of Mrs. H. Connor on Monday afternoon. Plans were made for the dinner which the ladies are to serve to the Masonic Lodge on Monday, May 19.

Mrs. D. R. Jones, Mrs. Rose, and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Jones spent Sunday with friends at Healey Falls.

Rev. Earl Sexsmith, of Queensboro, spent Monday and Tuesday at Marmora parsonage.

BRANTFORD PASTOR WAS INVITED HERE

At a business meeting, at which there was a large attendance, at the Park Street Baptist Church last evening, it was decided that a call be extended to Rev. N. R. McLeod, of Shenstone Baptist Church, Brantford, to become their pastor as successor to Rev. W. E. Morrow. Rev. McLeod is this year the president of the B.Y.P.U. for Ontario and Quebec of the Baptist denomination and is highly recommended.

EX-PRESIDENT LI MAY COME TO AMERICA

TOKIO, May 16.—Li Yuanhung, twice president of China and twice unceremoniously toppled from that eminence, hopes to vist the United States this year, according to dispatches from Beppu, a resort near Moji, where he is now staying.

China's former chief executive had been living in Tientsin since his flight from Peking last June, until he came to Japan recently for his health. He plans a tour of Japan during May, and in the summer may visit the United States and England.

EARTHQUAKE COOLED TOKIO BAY

TOKIO, May 16.—Water in the Bay of Tokio is colder this year than last, according to observations of the Marine Products Institute, the earthqquake of last September being blamed for a marked low temperature. The lower temperature of water along the coasts near Tokio is expected to handicap such industries as fishing for shell fish and gathering seaweeds, in which the workers are obliged to spend hours standing in the water.

INSPECTORS MADE TRIP TO COBOURG

Samples of Refreshments Taken From Several Hotels.

COBOURG, May 15.—The presence of several out-of-town inspectors and officials in town on Saturday evening awakened some curiosity, and not until afterwards was the significance of their visit made known. By carefully prearranged plans three local hotels were visited at the same time. Samples were procured from these, which were sealed and labelled in the presence of the proprietors. Afterwards a fourth hotel was visited and samples were procured in a similar way there. These were left in the hands of Inspector Goodrich to be sent away for analysis. Out-of-town officers who were here were Inspector Bompstead and Constable Atkins, Belleville, and Inspector Exley and Constable Thompson, of Naponee.

Hospital Day.

National Hospital Day was fittingly observed at the Cobourg General Hospital here on Monday, which was thrown open to the public from 3.30 p.m. to 5.30 p.m. A unique feature in connection with the gathering was the presentation of a birth certificate to every baby present that had been born in the hospital. As the afternoon was rainy a number of mothers could not turn out, and their babies are to receive certificates at a public gathering, which is to be held early in June. Tea was served upon the lower verandah, which was decorated with flags and great bowls of trilliums and scarlet geraniums. The Ladies' Hospital Auxiliary and the nurses looked after the guests, who were received by President Hayden, of the Hospital Board, and Miss Walsh, the lady superintendent.

IRISH BAN FOREIGN GAMES

BELFAST, May 16.—The Gaelic Athletic Association conference in Dublin has refused to remove the ban on "foreign games" including rugby, cricket, hockey and football, which has always been maintained by the association. The penalty for members who participate in these games or encourage them has been fixed at expulsion from the association.

RAISING FLEET AT SCAPA FLOW IS GREAT FEAT

Remarkable Engineering Problems Involved In Bringing to the Surface Ships Sunk By Interned Germans--Majestic Fleet Sold For Scrap.

NEW MACHINERY.

LONDON, May 15.—(United Press).—The biggest ship-salvaging job ever known is being attempted off Northeast Scotland—the raising of the interned German Fleet, scuttled at Scapa Flow by Admiral Von Reuter in June, 1919.

The hulks of sixty-eight war craft—once prides of the German fleet—have been rusting for more than four years, a tangle of junk, at the bottom of Scapa Flow. They were sunk simultaneously by their caretakers. They went down, dramatically, in a bunch, and they are jumbled together in 20 fathoms of water—and an English marine engineering concern has tackled the herculean job of getting them up.

Unprecedented engineering devices will be used in this job—a scheme of plugging up all holes in the biggest sunken battleships, pumping out the water, blowing them full of air, like a balloon, and thus causing them to float.

Eight or nine years will be required to clear Scapa Flow completely of the self-sunk German fleet. Within a year, however, the pivotal part of the job will probably be finished—that is the "raising by inflation" of the two largest ships. These, when brought to the surface, will be used as floating docks, upon which to place huge derricks to haul up the smaller ships.

Sold for Scrap.

And then the junk that was von Reuter's fleet—a fleet that committed suicide after surrender—will be sold for scrap and melted up and made into machinery and possibly some of the metal may find its way into ploughshares—and possibly into the fittings of newer British fighting-craft.

The biggest ships of the fleet are the Hindenburg and the Seidlitz, 27,000 ton battle cruisers, famous during the war. There were seventy-four vessels interned at Scapa Flow, including thirteen cruisers and fifty destroyers. Of this fleet, sixty-eight were scuttled by the Germans, most sinking in twenty fathoms of water.

The salvaging firm has built a huge floating dock about 400 feet long for use in the first stage of the operations. This will be moored above the scuttled fleet, and divers, using it as a base, will concentrate on the first job of locating every one of the many holes the Germans bored in the ships in order to sink them. The Hindenburg is supposed to be pretty much of a sieve now and months will be required to spot all the openings. Finally all will be plugged except two—one to pump air in and the other to pump water out. Then—if all the holes have been found—the Hindenburg will balloon herself up to the surface and be fitted out as another floating dock from which to prize up the other ships.

Seydlits Turned Over.

The Seydlitz flopped over as she sank, and is lying sideways on the bottom, instead of "standing up," as is the Hindenburg. Accordingly, a different technique is necessary for the Seydlitz. If she were "ballooned" the engineers figure she would turnturtle on her way to the top, and reach the surface bottom side up. So, an "underwater tank" has been built for use on the Seydlitz. It will be lowered to the wreck, workmen will go down into the tank through great pipe lines. Then compressed air will be forced into the tank and as the pressure becomes sufficiently strong, the bottom of the tank, which works on hinges, will be opened. The air pressure will be sufficient to keep the water out—in other words, the "bottom" of the tank will simply be water, and the workmen, who will be protected by extraordinarily strong helmets and diving suits, can go about their job conveniently.

Under Water Torch.

Among the numerous ingenious creations of special machinery and implements for this job is an "under-water" oxygen torch, which will melt any metal, even steel-armour, under water. The flame is projected under terrific air pressure—air pressure so strong that it forces away the water from around the nozzle of the torch, and from around the flame, leaving a clear space for the play of the jet of fire which cuts, or rather burns, its way through the metal.

The contractors have already spent several hundred thousand dollars in buying special machinery and making preparations for commencing work. They will spend twice as much more before the Hindenburg is floated, and if the job ended there, they would lose a lot of money. But they figure that the cost of getting up the Hindenburg and Seydlitz will be the greatest part of their expense; that thereafter it will be "velvet" to haul up the destroyers and smaller craft.

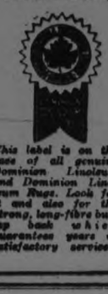
COOKING DOUGHNUTS

Doughnuts should not be turned more than once while cooking. If the fat is too cold the doughnuts will absorb some of it, and if too hot they will brown before they have risen sufficiently. Keep the temperature uniform.

Wouldn't You be Proud of a Floor like this?

The beautiful and the practical are happily combined in Dominion Linoleum. Its charming colors and patterns please the most fastidious taste. Its labor-saving features and sturdy indifference to hard usage appeal from the viewpoint of common-sense and economy. There's little wonder then, that Dominion Linoleum floor coverings are so popular, little wonder that housewives everywhere take such a pride in them.

Think of the hours of tiresome beating and sweeping you can save in your own home by adopting Dominion Linoleum floors. Think of the cheerful brightness of their unbroken surface—waterproof, germproof and sanitary. Then make up your mind to have them.



This label is on the face of all genuine Dominion Linoleum and Dominion Linoleum Rugs. Look for it and also for the strong, long-fibre burlap back which guarantees years of satisfactory service.

WAILING PETS LEAD TO DEAD MISTRESS.

Neighbor Listens to Cries Three Days, Then Calls Policeman and Body Is Found.

NEW YORK, May 16.—For three days and nights Charles Singler, an elderly man of 63 Classon Avenue, Brooklyn, had been disturbed by the whimpering of a dog and the wailing of a cat. Their cries drifted across the courtyard from Mrs. Nellie Millers' apartment in No. 61.

When he could stand it no longer he went to the door of the Miller home and knocked. He received no response, except the continued howling of the dog and the occasional, drawn-out wail of the cat.

Intuition that the animals' weird calling foreboded tragedy sent Singler hurrying to the street, where he told Patrolman Peter Coleman of the Clymer Street Station that he feared something amiss in the Miller apartment. They returned together. Knocks at the door received in answer the chorus of the cat and dog.

They tried vainly to force the door. Neighbors had no key to the lock, so Coleman went to the rear yard and climbed to the second-story window.

Looking inside, he saw a fox terrier guarding Mrs. Miller's body, which lay on the kitchen floor. The dog sprang at him as he entered, snapping at his legs and hands. Coleman rapped the dog on the nose with his nightstick. It reluctantly gave way before the stinging blows and again took up its position over the body. From there it would not move.

Coleman again resorted to the nightstick to force the terrier from its position. This only served to renew its attacks on him. It tore his coat and when he beat it off the dog made another leap and held onto his trousers until it tore the cloth. Repeated blows on the head finally forced the dog to withdraw.

But when Coleman bent to examine the body the terrier lunged at him again. Two shots from the patrolman's revolver eventually ended the unequal struggle. The dog crumpled in a corner of the room, vainly trying to crawl toward the policeman, and died.

As Coleman turned over Mrs. Miller's body a black cat, which had attended the three-day vigil over it's mistress's body, sent up another melancholy "meow." It had not moved from its position in another corner of the kitchen from which it glared at the policeman.

Coleman found the woman's body cold. Near her outstretched hand lay an unscratched match. On the kitchen table was a shattered oil lamp. She had apparently been about to light it when death overtook her.

Ambulance Surgeon Silverberg of the Beth Moses Hospital, summoned later, said the woman had died three days previously of heart disease.

Police, examining the room, found 63 cents in change and an insurance policy, but nothing to indicate whether the woman had any living relatives. Neighbors knew little about her except that she was employed as a dishwasher in a small restaurant at the Wallabout Market and had occupied the apartment for about three years.

She had never made the acquaintance of her neighbors, they said, and was known to have no companions but the dog and cat. The body was removed to the morgue, and the cat was taken by Coleman to be a fad at the station house.

Snowy Bed Linen—
fragrantly clean

Clothes washed with Sunlight Soap are naturally cleansed, not chemically cleaned. The pure Sunlight lather goes through and through the clothes, loosening dirt and restoring each thread to a natural state of cleanliness.

HOW sweet and wholesome is that welcome sense of fragrance which comes from well washed linen. How refreshing it is to lie between clean sheets, to rest one's head on a snow-white pillow case; to breathe deeply in an atmosphere of purity; to feel and to know that the things around you are absolutely clean.

To bring about this refreshing sense in the mind of guest or family is a triumph well worth the attention of any housewife. It is best accomplished by using Sunlight Soap.

To get bad clothes snowy white it is not necessary to boil them or rub holes on the wash board. The sure power of Sunlight Soap itself extracts every trace of soil while the things are soaking. In the rinse it all comes away—all the dirt and every particle of soapy matter, leaving not gray-whiteness, not yellow-whiteness, but snowy white purity and cleanliness.

Our Club Plan costs just a little more than weekly car fare.

Encourage Your Employees To Cycle To Work

IT will pay you to encourage your employees to ride bicycles.

A smooth, brisk ride to work in the fresh air is much more healthful than hanging on to a strap in a packed street car.

The cyclist makes better time. He has no long waits on street corners. He is not held up by vexatious delays. His bicycle brings him on time—smilingly fit for work. The car fare he saves will pay for his bicycle.

There are more people riding bicycles today than for many years. If there are not a large number of bicycle riders among your employees it is probably due to lack of proper and convenient parking accommodation.

Many, many more employees would cycle to work, but for one drawback—the lack of suitable, convenient shelters in which to park their bicycles.

It is very discouraging to have to leave wheels in odd corners, or piled in a heap somewhere in the yard, where they get scratched up, covered with dust and soaked with rain.

You have a place to park your car. Why not provide your employees with a handy parking station for their bicycles and encourage them to cycle to work?

It takes comparatively little space or expense. A neat bicycle shed and racks to accommodate from 50 to 200 bicycles can be erected in a small space for very little money, or wall hangers can be installed in an unused portion of a building for a trifling outlay.

The Choice of 8 Out of 10

It is estimated that eight out of every ten cyclists in Canada ride C.C.M. Bicycles. They know that C. C. M.s have real quality—C.C.M. Triplex Hanger, Frames of English Seamless Tubing, Bearings of flint-hard Steel, Gibson Pedals, Hercules Brake and other high-class equipment.

HATFIELD'S PRICE FOR MAKING RAIN

By HAROLD E. SWISHER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, May 14.—(United Press).—Rainfall is needed to make Nature flourish. It also brings prosperity to Charles M. Hatfield, man of science or fortunate fakir, according to one's individual opinion.

"Rainmaker" Hatfield has recently been washed into the limelight again on the crest of 8 inches of precipitation which descended in an arid district in Central California, just as he said it would.

Because he either guessed rightly or aided Nature in turning on the faucets of the skies, Hatfield is $8,000 richer, that being the amount promised him by distraught ranchers of the San Joaquin Valley district should his assurances be fulfilled.

For twenty years Hatfield has been doing this same thing—contracting to produce any desired minimum of rain wherever needed during periods of drought—and never once has he failed to make good, he says.

Believers say that Hatfield possessed the secret of teasing clouds to get together and deliver. The skeptical declare he is merely lucky.

The son of a San Diego County rancher, "Rainmaker" Hatfield took up his study of the skies in his early twenties. He was a sewing machine salesman, traveling about the country behind a horse in an old buggy. He used to watch the storm clouds gather, and kept pondering why they answered Nature's call and were so heedless of man's desires.

Then Hatfield dabbled in chemicals and in this study, he says, hit upon the mixture that makes it rain. No one knows what formula he uses. Those who have been permitted to approach the high scaffold which the "Rainmaker" mixes his solution in large pans says the whole mess has a terrible smell. That's as much as anyone except Hatfield knows about it.

$1,000 An Inch.

"No rain, no pay,' is the contract which Hatfield signs. Even the most dubious admit that it is a just one. One thousand dollars an inch is his price, set when he first started "rainmaking," and which has never varied.

His biggest cleaning was made in Alaska back in 1906. There was a long drought there and placer miners needed water to pan their gold dust. Hatfield was called up to see what he could do, and the miners put up a $10,000 purse. It rained rivers and he came back with the cash.

Two years ago Italy sent for the "Rainmaker", and he set up his pans near Naples. Southern Italy was flooded. Hatfield was hailed as a hero. Newspapers bannered his success, he was given the title of doctor, and a good sum for what he was credited over the whole of Italy with producing.

Hatfield guarantees a minimum, but he does not designate a maximum. This fact brought him disaster in San Diego in 1916. The Moreno dam, which holds San Diego's water supply, was nearly dry. The "Rainmaker" went down, installed his meteorological mixture of mystery—and the dam washed out. It rained 40 inches in some sections of the country

Hatfield says San Diego promised him $10,000. He filed suit for that amount and was greeted by a counter action demanding damages for the flood. The dispute has never been settled. Everyone admits, though, that it rained.

Hatfield lives in Glendale, near this city. He is a mild man, easy to talk to, and with all the quiet manner of the scientist and student. He does not try to convince people that he possesses the secret of rainmaking. He merely signs contracts to do so whenever any drought-stricken section of the world needs water.

RENTS TO RISE NO HIGHER

Rents for houses and apartments have stabilized—stopped rising—in three-fourths of the principal American cities. This is the belief of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, after a check-up. It accordingly notifies its members.

In 16 out of every 100 cities, the check-up showed rents are dropping. They're rising in only 10 out of every 100 cities.

This, however, may be only a temporary situation, not permanent. Queer things may happen to prices before long, rents included.

In May, 1920, after a long period of inflation, prices crashed and brought hard times. Or hard times came and made prices drop. Whichever you prefer. It's like the historic debate as to which came first, egg or chicken.

Then prosperity slowly returned. Prices started rising. Economists announced that a "secondary period of inflation" had started, running true to his torical precedent. When this secondary price inflation runs its course, prices will sag again—if history repeats.

* * *

The tendency of prices, through the centuries, is to travel in cycles of about 50 years apiece. Prices rise for, roughly, 20 years. Then they fall for 30 years. They don't fall steadily. Instead, they zigzag up and down—much like the teeth of a saw placed at an inclined angle.

Up and down, up and down—gradually sinking to normal.

That's what happened after the Napoleonic and American Civil wars. Changed conditions may (or may not) prevent a return to normal. For instance, our country's tremendous gold holdings. Gold tends to keep prices up.

No one knows the future. One guess is as good as another.

* * *

The real estate association reports that, in cities of 25,000 to 100,000 population, rents now average $15 a room for a month in the best structures in the most desirable locations. Half-way grade of accommodations averages $10 a room. The bottom-grade rents for $4 a room.

In cities of 250,000 population and over, monthly rent ranges from $25 a room down to $5, with $10 a room for second-grade housing. There's not much for rent between the $25 and $10 grades. The real estate association says this is because any one who can afford more than $10 a room is satisfied only with the very best.

Apparently the only thing that can drive rents down is building as many homes as are needed. The housing shortage still is with us, though vanishing steadily.

RICH WHO DODGE LAWS

An American exchange contained the following:

In China they still have an ancient law by which, when a bank fails, the banker is beheaded. This may seem barbarous to some Americans. But only one bank has failed in China in over 400 years.

Strict enforcement of the law, regardless of the wealth and influence of the lawbreaker, always has a tendency to prevent crime. And it makes the Government more substantial and enduring, for a Government is built on quicksands when the people do not have confidence in the integrity and impartial justice of courts.

We have in mind, in particular, the excellent public service performed by Judge Jesse D. Wall of Kansas in sentencing the convicted president of a defunct bank to 45 years in prison and $45,000 fine. This was the absolute limit possible under the law.

A few more judges like Wall would do more to strengthen our democracy and nip Bolshevism in the bud than a million years of flag waving, pious oratory and two-faced platitudes.

* * *

There can be no firm public confidence in the courts when the rich, by reason of being able to hire crafty lawyers who find loopholes in the law and methods of delay, have the advantage over defendants whose purse cannot afford such costly but effective dodging.

The courts themselves usually are theoretically impartial as to the wealth or poverty of defendants.

So are the laws.

The trouble is, the laws are made by politicians recruited mainly among lawyers. And most of these incline to frame a law so there will be loopholes. Thus assuring plenty of business for the legal profession.

These loopholes frequently are in the nature of intended safeguards for people accused of crimes. But, given a rich client, a shrewd lawyer can find enough of these loopholes to delay a case almost interminably. The poor man cannot afford such lawyers.

* * *

One great weakness of our laws—and a weakness that is employed to keep rich offenders out of jail—is our foolish procedure of abiding by technicalities of the law rather than the plain meaning and intent of the law.

By citing precedents and starting arguments, the rich man's lawyer battles over the interpretation and technicalities of the law itself, even more than the question of guilt or innocence.

We need simpler laws, quicker justice—and more judges like Wall, inexorably going hammer and tongs after offenders regardless of wealth and standing. The courts are fast enough, all right, when the defendant can't hire an army of skilled "mouthpieces."

SAMOAN CHIEFTANS REHEARSE FUNERAL CEREMONIES OFTEN.

When He Feels Like Such An Exercise the Chief Has His Family Go Through the Rites That Will Be Accorded Him—Makes Sure of Comfort In Tomb.

PAGO, AMERICAN SAMOA, April 15 (Associated Press).—Samoans of rank often hold rehearsals of their own funeral obsequies. Many chiefs have built their sepulchres, to be certain of a comfortable and becoming resting-place.

When a Samoan chief desires to review his funeral rites, he announces his intention to his family. He first selects and appoints his successor in title, and assures himself that after his death there will be no opposition to the new chief from members of the family. Preparations for the death ceremonies are then made. The retiring chief goes through a figurative death, looking on at the tribal mourning and feasting.

A few years ago a leading orator, named Mageo, decided it was time to die, and attended a rehearsal of his funeral. He still lives, walking about with a stately air and looking hearty for an old man. He spends most of his time reading his Bible and attending church services. He refuses to take part in affairs of a temporal nature connected with his family or village. He is a veritable example of a "living corpse."

The Samoans show great reverence for their dead. The ceremonies attending the death of even a person of low rank are elaborate and expensive to the family of the deceased.

In the days before the introduction of Christianity, in 1830, and for many years afterward, when the Samoans worshipped their tutelary gods, there was greater funeral ostentation than at present. Members of the family held vigil over the body, fasting in silence for several days. The body was wrapped in many folds of native tappa cloth, and to relieve any cadaverous appearance the face was tinged with tumeric. Outside the house, all the night before the funeral, there was lamentation and gashing of bodies with knives and stones, while the people kept up a dirge. Relatives and friends brought presents of fine mats or expensive cloths, which were piled on the corpse, so that the spirit of the departed would be justified in carrying to the unknown world the tidings of his importance on earth.

During the funeral of a chief the villagers barricaded all roads, cutting down breadfruit trees and cocoanut palms. After the funeral there was prolonged feasting, all the pigs and poultry of the deceased chief's family being slaughtered. Sometimes the feasting lasted fifteen days. Fine mats were distributed among the visiting relatives, and this ceremony was not without occasional bitterness, as the different ones contrived by strategy to obtain the oldest and hence most important mats.

The burial ceremonies of to-day are not much different. A departed chief is given a Christian burial, with the blessing of the One True God invoked instead of that of the tutelary gods of old. The custom of cutting down valuable trees for barricades and the traditional self-mutilation are prohibited under a law passed by the American government of 1905. In place of the nocturnal dirge of primitive chants, the people sing Christian hymns. The feasting and the distribution of mats are adhered to. The relatives go to great expense in buying foreign food, such as kegs of salt beef, cases of canned beef, tins of salmon and hard bread, to supplement the supply of native pigs.

Baseball Prospects

Mr. Field is an ardent baseball fan. He came here some time ago but has returned to Cleveland for a short time. Rumor has it that he will bring bats with him and some good players to form the nucleus of a team to be maintained on the farm, and as he never does anything by halves it can be taken as a certainty that that team will have no occasion to fear to face any team in the Northumberland or other leagues.

Mr. Kelly, who lives some distance from the centre of population of the farm, has a fine place, planned on the same general outline of the main buildings. Seeding operations, except on the high portions of the farm, have been delayed owing to the wet weather, but the prospects for abundant hay and pasture are excellent.

Wonderful as the place now is, it is felt that simply a start has been made and that further outlay will be practically unlimited.

FABLES ON HEALTH

The Mann baby had passed from babyhood's stage. Another came, and then another, and the first thrill lost quite a bit of its edge. The problem of the transient stage from babyhood to childhood was upon the Mann family's hands.

The second chapter of childhood is pictured as beginning upon the day that baby rises from its knees and begins to toddle across the room.

Then comes the period before the child reaches school age, when environmental responsibility fails heavily upon the parents.

Between the ages of 2 and 6 are years of utmost importance. Recent study has tended to impress the necessity of care in the rearing of the child. Not only is the mental life at this time to be carefully watched, but the physical life needs the closest scrutiny.

These are the formative years and character and frame are very likely to get definite foundations. The fact that the United States Department of Health has been concentrating on children is indicative of what the government experts think of this period.

Do a little more thinking about it yourself.

THE LONESOME TRAIL

Has it occurred to you that, as people become more civilized, they "keep more to themselves?" Our generation does not mix as much as was the custom years ago. It's a contradictory state of affairs that the trail becomes more lonesome for the individual as life gets more complex and population more congested.

This tendency is strongest, of course, in large cities. But it is noticeable also in small communities and on the farm. People occasionally congregate and pool their pleasures, but not as often nor as enthusiastically as in the past.

* * *

About this time of year, generations back, the cracker-barrel philosophers were discussing national politics at the crossroads store. They knew each other intimately. Deception was next to impossible, for the simple life has fewer opportunities for concealment.

Another famous congregating place was the livery stable. A third was the tavern bar. Periodically there were husking bees, corn roasts, clam bakes, quilting bees, sewing circles, church "socials," and so on.

To-day such gatherings are few, compared with long ago. Life has become rushed and complex. People are too busy hustling about their business, speeding in autos, hurrying to dark movie theatres, playing with radios.

We are becoming a race of isolationists. We keep to our immediate family circle, have fewer outside friends. Especially in cities, where families even live in the same building for years without ever knowing each other.

* * *

In the more primitive past, people hungered for companionship. Life was simple. Knowledge was limited. The craving for relief from monotony was second only to the desire for exchange of ideas.

In those times, people had to associate intimately and frankly to learn what was going on in the world and to get the other fellow's viewpoint.

Now, instead of spending an evening at the store discussing what Niagara Falls is like, we hop into our separate flivvers and set forth to see it in person.

Our generation has less physical companionship, but it is more firmly cemented by greater mental companionship than in the past. We, in effect, congregate and exchange ideas through newspapers and magazines, by radio, and by attending movies.

In thus getting our mutual companionship second-handed, we lose much—especially the human side. Let civilization develop to its logical conclusion, and we'll have a race of people keeping as much to themselves as turtles in their shells.

CZAR'S COUSIN NOW LIVES WITH SPIRITS

(By M. Therese Bonney)

Alexander, who under the old order Alexander, who unner the old order of events, might one day have ruled all Russia, has turned his back on things material.

To-day the murdered Czar's cousin next in line of succession to the Russian throne is living in the "—t world."

The man who once commanded the Russian fleets, and who was the centre of brilliant social groups wherever he went, has renounced all worldly splendour.

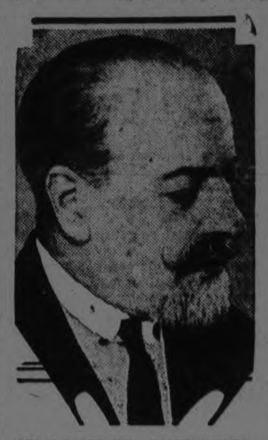
His many honorary titles have been forgotten. And his medal-bedecked, gold-braided uniform has given way to a simple sack suit and soft collar.

A few years ago he might have dreamed of being Russia's political "saviour." But these fantasies have fled long since.

To-day he confides his country's destiny to the spirits beyond the grave. He aspires to be old Russia's "spiritual dictator." He wants to bring about its "spiritual resurrection."

Every day and far into the night, he sits for hours at his work table, covering pages of foolscap with the "messages" from the spirit world.

These later are communicated to his "disciples."



GRAND DUKE ALEXANDER

Today Alexander is recognised as one of Europe's greatest spiritualists. He is a devoted friend of Conan Doyle, with whom he is in constant correspondence.

And he is planning a trip to America soon as a "bearer of a special message from the spirit world."

EIGHT-HOUR DAY BENEFITS SWEDE.

Less Jazz and More Reading Is Noticed — Less Drunkenness and More Gardens.

STOCKHOLM, May 16.—Less jazz dancing and more reading of good books, less drunkenness and more interest in private gardens, less gambling and greater excellence in athletics, are some of the conditions among Swedish laborers directly traceable to the reduction of the working day to eight hours, according to a report of the Workmen's Culture Association.

Replying to a questionnaire sent out by the main office of the association, 95 societies distributed throughout Sweden reported on the benefits of the added leisure obtained by laborers since the enactment of the eight-hour law in 1919.

One of the arguments advanced against the law was that the employees would probably use their extra free hours for piece work or other money making occupation. But that prediction was not fulfilled. Although many centers reported that the men did, indeed, find recreation in turning to other forms of physical work, the new occupations were such innocent things as planting and tending gardens, or making furniture and experimenting with the art of interior decoration. In the towns of Bofors they have even undertaken to build their own cottages, more than 500 home-made homes having been built since 1920.

HABIT FORMING AGE IS BEFORE SIX YEARS OLD.

At This Time There Should Be a Regular Monthly Weighing and Measuring of the Child.

By DR. RICHARD A. BOLT.

The pre-school age is the golden one for habit formation and character building. There are many health activities that the parents and guardians of children of this age should carry out with the assistance of the family physician and public health nurse.

There should be a regular monthly weighing and measuring of the child, keeping a careful record; consultations and health supervision by a physician, with a complete physical examination at least twice a year, or oftener when needed; follow-up work by the nurse in the homes, urging correction of defects, arranging for special care, and seeing that children return to health centers for regular examination; provision for dental care under dentists or dental hygienists; and inducting the child into health habits through its daily activities.

The pre-school child, that is, the child between two and six years, is peculiarly susceptible to infectious diseases, such as measles, whooping-cough, diphtheria and scarlet fever. He should therefore be kept away from other children who have these diseases. We should employ the successful immunizations against these diseases, vaccination for smallpox, toxin-antitoxin for diphtheria, anti-typhoid innoculation for typhoid fever and immune blood serum for measles.

The prevention of heart disease is another pre-school problem. Between 80 and 90 per cent of the cases of heart disease in childhood is due to infection from diphtheria and scarlet fever, the infection of the nasopharynx, chronic tonsilitis and any chronic diseased condition of the nose and throat. Thus, the use of immunizations are more important than ever.

Sunshine, proper food and hygienic general living conditions are the preventives for rickets. The tuberculization of a child also frequently starts in the pre-school period. It is the age of low mortality from tuberculosis but of high degree of infectivity. Ninety per cent of tuberculosis is acquired in childhood.

That is why we must take definite steps to prevent activity of tubercular germs among pre-school children. The young child must be given only pasteurized or boiled milk, and kept from the environment of adults who have tuberculosis.

Malnutrition often begins in the pre-school period from bad habits of eating, unwholesome or badly balanced diet, over-stimulation, or fatigue and too little rest.

Health efforts should begin with the baby. He should be kept out of crowds, and away from other children with baby diseases. He should not be promiscously kissed or fondled, his playthings should not be allowed to roll around in the streets and germ-laden pavements. He should sleep in his own bed and not with adults. He should have plenty of fresh, moving air.

The longer children's diseases can be deferred, the better for the baby because time will give him a chance to build up resistence.

HINTS TO MOTORISTS.

Brakes and horns should be tested before entering congested districts.

Lamps should have bulbs of equal candlepower, clean reflectors and be properly focused.

Mud should never be permitted to remain on a car any longer than necessary. If mud is allowed to dry, it is harder to get off and it stains the varnish.

When carrying two spare tires together, insert some kind of a wedge to hold the rims apart. Tires that are bound together will rub and holes will appear in the casing in a short time.

Because a top develops weakness from rough travelling and the heavy winds that a car encounters when driving through the open country, it is advisable to inspect this part to keep it in proper condition.

Keep the carburetor properly adjusted to insure gasoline economy. A rich mixture will overheat the engine and cause carbon in cylinder heads, besides losing power. A lean mixture will cause loss of power and may set fire to the carburetor.

BUSINESS WOMEN URGED TO ADOPT ORPHAN CHILDREN

To Be Successful In Business It Is Absolutely Necessary to Have a Comfortable Home.

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 16.—From office girl to general manager of the largest paper box factory in the world was quite a jump but Mary Cass of Buffalo cleared it successfully.

And automatically the slender, four-dollar-a-week pay envelope developed into a robust, healthy income—one of the largest achieved by any woman in this country.

Big business has never crowded out her home instinct but rather developed it, and she has some very definite theories about home life.

"To be successful in business, I think it is absolutely necessary for a woman to have a good, comfortable home and to surround herself with the comforts her feminine nature calls for," she says.

"Hall bedrooms, boarding houses and hotel rooms are all wrong for the woman who can afford better."

Miss Cass not only provides a home for herself but for the son she adopted when he was four and who it seemed necessary to provide a home for the husband and two children of her housekeeper in order to keep the housekeeper, Miss Cass did not hesitate to accept three more additions to the family.

"The unmarried woman in business who has a good income should adopt one or more children," she went on, "and train them to be good citizens.

"It is my observation that women who have been successful in business make excellent mothers whether the children they train are their own or not. They give a child his head and direct him rather than lay out his life.

"Any woman who has been an executive herself knows the qualities she looks for in others and realizes a child needs certain contacts and experiences by means of which he learns for himself. Without having learned through contact with many people the shortcomings that contribute least to success, a woman has a natural instinct to shield her child from the unpleasant angles of life.

"In business or domestic life there is one precept I place above all others, 'Rely on yourself. Use your own head.'"

Co-operation is another point she stresses.

"Give every person the full responsibility of his job," she advises. "Bear with his mistakes at first and teach him. But if he will not learn get rid of him and give the opportunity to someone who will improve it."

Miss Cass has about a thousand people workng for her, of whom more than half are women.

FLAMING RED IS FASHION'S LATEST

By HEDDA HOYT

Fashion Editor of the United Press.

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, May 16.—(United Press.).—

The color of Miladys' dress
Is one you could never guess.
When asked its shade she says,
By Gingo,
It's fashion's latest shade—flamingo!

Flamingo red is one of the newest and loviest shades of red that we have seen in years. It is neither a decided scarlet nor does it border on the brickish or rose tones. It is simply "red." One cannot describe it. Every gown house is showing this red either in entire gowns for evening wear, in sports jacquettes or sweaters, or as trimming or lesser brilliant materials.

Red dancing frocks are daily growing in numbers. These are mostly flamingo hued chiffon with simple, long-waisted bodices and full, fluffy skirts made of tiny gilt-edged ruffles. Again the full skirt may be adorned with rows of wide gold lace, instead of ruffles. But the red dance frock is always a fluffy one rather than a sinuous one.

Red is also one of the most popular sports colors this season, with green following a close second. Smart red box-coats cut on boyish lines are worn by many of the younger Palm Beach set, and will continue to be popular this Summer. Entire sports frocks of red flannel, piped in white gros-grain ribbon and trimmed in large pearl buttons, are extremely chic. Red and white-checked gingham is also a Summer favorite.

Blouses especially favor red, using this shade as a border of jabots, for monograms, to form buttonholes, buttons, etc. Red smocking is also in evidence, being used for blouses of peasant origin.

An unusual Summer frock which is displayed in a Fifth Avenue window is made of white silk crepe and has its entire skirt formed by ruffles of heavy,coarse, red lace, which begin at the low waistline. This, of course, is appropriate for dinner wear or for the informal dance.

To my mind, red is only becoming to the very dark-haired person with fair complexion or to the ash-blond. Drab-haired persons and those with sallow complexions are simply lost in bright red, as their drab coloring is magnified by the brilliancy of the red.

FASHION NOTES.

For the matronly figure the chiffon of soft clinging frock with the long paneled back, the panel either split up the centre or falling in one piece to the hem, is the slenderizing and new.

Powder blue flannel is used for many of the smartest sports costumes, ranging from three-quarter length coats to suits and jumper-blouse effects. Flannel in every shade is popular this season. A very effective sports suit which can be made of flannel has a short box-coat and plain two-piece or wrap-around skirt. The distinctive part about this suit is the trimming, which is merely a multi-colored silk ribbon, extending about the narrow up-turned collar, down the front sides of the coat and about the coat bottom. A band of the same ribbon extends down the left-side front of the skirt. A sleeveless flannel jumper of self-material may be worn beneath the jacquette.

Dancing frocks, beaded in beads of self-color, will be seen again this season. The beaded frock refuses to leave us for long and it is back again in all its glory for dress wear, if not for street wear. Colors most lovely when beaded in self-tones are white, pale yellow, Nile green, amber, rose and pale turquoise. These frocks are all very simple as to line, with low waistlines and narrow skirts, or else on straight, unbelted lines.

Long, black satin coats are already shoiwng their popularity. We see them in numbers as the first Spring-like days occur. Many of them are straight-lined and without any trimming save a narrow fur-band trim on the collar, while others are trimmed about the hems and on the cuffs and collars with bands of marabou of a brownish shade. Still others are very youthful, trimmed in bright-colored silk borders. Multi-colored Roman striped silk often extends about the hem and on collar and cuffs.

Light-colored woollen coats of full length are popular with the younger women. Colors most noticeable are rust, brick, Lanvin green and dull orange. These are trimmed in tinsel braid bandings, combined with bright-colored braids about the collar and down the front sides. There is a tendency towards three-quarter length sport coats of pastel shades.

TAGORE DENIES REPORTED DISPLEASURE WITH AMERICA

RANGOON, India, Sir Rabindranath Tagore, noted Bengali writer and educator who in 1913 was awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature, repudiates the recently circulated report which quoted him as saying that he did not intend to visit America again because he was disgusted with American materialism.

"It would be childish for me to make such a statement," the poet said. "If I do not visit America again it will be because of my advancing age, not because of any dislike of Americans. Many of my best friends are in America. While I did not find in America all that I had hoped to find, it was a false statement which credited me with not wanting to return."

Dr. Tagore, who was here on his way to China, as been welcomed and feted by all communities, in a manner comparable only to the visits of the Prince of Wales and the Viceroy.

Dr. Tagore, with several of his professors, has been inivted to give a course of lectures in Pekin. He plans to visit also Japan, Indo-China, Cambodia, Siam and aJva. His object in this tour is to re-establish cultural and spiritual connection with India, and to revive the study of Buddhist and Sanscrit literature as a bond of unity between India and these countries.

6 Daring Tests

you should make before you buy any roofing

1. HEAT TEST: Lay sample of Vulcanite on hot radiator for 12 hours. See if it will melt or dry out.
2. ICE TEST: Lay sample on ice for 12 hours. Then pour boiling water on it. See if extremes of temperature affect it.
3. WATER TEST: Soak sample in water for 12 hours. See if, by weight, it absorbs any water.
4. ACID TEST: Immerse sample in hydrochloric acid. See if it is affected in any way.
5. FIRE TEST: Lay white-hot coal of fire on sample. See if it sets the roofing on fire.
6. "SCUFF" TEST: Lay sample on floor; scuff it hard with your shoe. See if any of the slate-surfacing will come off.

Cold air under the fire for hard coal

Warm air over the fire for soft coal

McClary's exclusive Air Blast Ring introduces warmed air over the fire. Proper combustion occurs and the excessive volatile carbon gases released from soft coal are all utilized.

This stops the usual waste in firing with soft coal.

The best parts of the fuel do not go up the chimney as soot.

Install McClary's SUNSHINE FURNACE and keep your home comfortable with either hard or soft coal.

Consult McClary's dealer and he will show you how to have a snug, warm home next winter on lower priced fuel.

HEARTS AFIRE

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Prudence Page—a pretty country girl has awakened from a brief and unhappy love affair with unreliable

Bert Traymore—a fascinating philanderer, guest at the home of

Mrs. Vansittart—a wealthy woman, owner of Winston Towers. Another of her guests is

Virginia Dale—a blase beauty, who has brought about a forced engagement between herself and

Peter Armstrong—a brilliant, young inventor, who cares for Prudence, but thinks she is still fascinated by Traymore. Virginia has been thieving from her hostess, has flung the blame of one theft on Prudence, and now the latter finds her in the woods, digging up valuables which prove to have Mrs. Vansittart's initials on them. How do you account for these? demands Prudence, pointing to the initials.

Virginia begs Prudence to keep her guilty secret, and Prudence, to save Peter disillusionment, agrees. Janet Mercer

Janet Mercer—a trained nurse, who is masseuse to Mrs. Vansittart's delicate child, is in love with Will Ogilvie.

Janet's happiness is dashed when she learns the engagement-ring Will had just given her is the property of Mrs. Vansittart.

Peter has practically completed an important invention when an explosion occurs in his laboratory and he is seriously injured.

CHAPTER LXXI

The Verdict

Prudence Page had not been far from Pear Tree Cottage when the accident occurred. The noise of the explosion startled her, filling her with dreadful premonition.

"Peter! The laboratory!" She ran with love's intuition, straight for the scene of the disaster, arriving there before anyone else had gained the spot.

The many windows of the laboratory were completely blown away. The garden and the field on which the shed abutted were strewn with broken glass and bits of bottles.

A queer, pungent smell came from within.

Without a moment's hesitation, Prudence tried to force the door open.

It had jammed.

She pushed and thrust, in vain.

Then, heedless of torn frock and a cut on her foot, she scrambled through a broken window, calling:

"Peter! Peter! Are you here?"

No answer.

She dropped from the window to the stone floor within, and gave a cry as she saw, amid the wreckage, Peter, lying, crumpled, face downward, one arm thrown forward, as though, amid disaster, he had tried to save himself.

"Peter!" Prudence rushed to him, and—kneeling down—she put her arms about his shoulders. "Peter! Speak to me! O Peter!"

Ghastly silence.

"Peter!" The agonized cry rang through the wrecked shed.

Something warm and wet dripped on her hand, red-colored . . .

It was blood!

"Peter dearest!" With a mighty effort she contrived to ease his head around, so that it fell against her shoulder. "Peter wake up!"

Except for the deathly whiteness of his face, he looked as though he were asleep. The eyes were closed, the body limp.

Prudence thrust her hand inside his torn coat, against his heart. Was it still beating? Was he . . . was he . . . dead?

"Peter!"

Glass lay on the floor, and everywhere. Again that warm trickle fell on Prudence's frock. There was a gash high above the ear, and the girl, without a moment's hesitation, tore a flounce of her gown off, and made a rough bandage for that bleeding head.

"Hi there! What's happened?" The village constable rapped loudly on the door. "Open I say!"

"Door's stuck. Come in by the window," Prudence called. "But first run for a doctor!"

The head of the village constable, accompanied by some neighbors appeared at the wrecked windows.

"An explosion," said Prudence quickly. "I'm afraid he's badly hurt."

One of the neighbors, who had a pony-trap outside, hurried for the doctor, while the others forced the door, and the big constable with the help of another man, carried the unconscious Armstrong into the bedroom on the ground floor of Pear Tree Cottage.

Someone ran for stimulant, and old Nannie, wringing her hands, kept wailing:

"He is dead."

To Prudence, the whole thing seemed a terrible nightmare. It was only when Janet Mercer, cool and composed, arrived upon the scene, that she went home.

The doctor's diagnosis had been very guarded. Until he'd got a second opinion, one couldn't say the extent of the injuries. There 'were complications'. An operation might be necessary.

Yes, it was serious. Extremely so. One couldn't say yet what the chances were . . .

There were some bad signs. Heart action very feeble. Shock.

Oh, yes, danger of collapse, as always in these cases.

The other doctor had been telephoned for, from the local postoffice. He was on his way, by car. They would telegraph to town for an eminent surgeon, if 'second opinion' advised it.

Prudence, her head full of the doctor's disjointed, gruff talk, walked with leaden feet towards her home. The news had spread, and her mother was at the garden gate, looking very anxious.

"Poor Mr. Armstrong!"

"He's still living," gulped Prudence, speaking as though she were in a sort of trance. "Janet Mercer is undertaking the case, and they've telegraphed for a night nurse, too. Mr. Cumbermere was passing in his racing-car . . . he knows Peter . . . and he says he'll get the best that's to be had, doctors' surgeons, nurses and all. Everything is being done."

At half past nine that night, when the night nurse went on duty, Janet Mercer came to Green Gables for a breath of air.

"He's been partly conscious, partly delirious, but there's hope," she said to the trembling Prudence. Then she added, anxiously:

"The worst trouble's with his eyes."

"What!"

"Yes. The explosion was a very bad one."

"Can—can he see?" asked Prudence, thunderstruck.

"We don't know yet. The doctor has them bandaged."

Next day, and the following, there was no further news. An eminent consultant from New York had said that much depended on the nursing, and in his turn, had brought a famous oculist to Pear Tree Cottage.

It seemed an interminable, heart-breaking time till he came out again. And he was looking very grave as he drove off.

Prudence's trembling limbs would scarcely carry her to the door.

"Oh, Janet, won't you tell me what the oculist said? The eyes will get better won't they? Don't tell me that Peter . . . I can't say the awful word . . . it would kill him . . ."

Down Janet Mercer's homely face the tears were coursing. She took Prudence's hand in her own strong, capable one, gave it a pressure, then said brokenly:

"Be brave my dear! He'll need all the bravery we can give him! When the oculist took off the bandages—"

"Yes? Yes? Peter could see . . .?" breathed Prudence, clinging to Janet's hand.

"Peter will never see again. He's . . . blind!" said Janet brokenly.

SWEDEN'S RUSSIAN TRADE FOLLOWS TREATY

STOCKHOLM, May 16.—A reduction by eight percent of the harboar dues of Swedish ships entering the port of Leningrad, a return to Swedish ownership of the embassy house in that city, and the appointment by each nation of official envoys to the other, are among the first results of the signing of the pact between Sweden and Russia, in which the Soviet is recognized as the government de jure.

While the treaty must be ratified by the Swedish Riksdag, the government headed by Prime Minister Trygger, has already promised recognition.

The treaty contains a clause granting each nation the most favored nation treatment, which does not depend upon ratification by the Riksdag. This has an important bearing on shiping privileges, as hitherto Swedish ship owners have been obliged to pay five times as high harbor dues as those from countries with which the Soviet had treaty relations.

The Swedish commercial and industrial world now looks forward to stabilization of the trade with Russia, which is a good market for Swedish products. Sweden also will be enabled to play an even stronger role as middleman between transatlantic exporters and Russian consumers.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

THE LAND OF RED DAISES

The wizard's daughter looked with surprise.

"I'd like to go to the Land of Red Daisies!" said Nancy.

"All right," answered Mister Muggs, the fairyman. "There's the red pig now. Jump into the car, kiddies, and we'll follow him. The way to the Land of Red Daisies is a secret, but this pig is a great friend of mine and he goes there every day. He is really a fairy and goes to find out what the red wizard is doing. The red wizard is the ruler of the Land of Red Daisies, and between you and me, he is generally up to mischief."

Well, they followed the red pig, and by and by they came to a red castle.

The castle was red and the grass was red and the trees and bushes were red, and everywhere there were red daisies as big as sunflowers.

Away went the red pig into the red woods, and when he had disappeared the Twins got out and so did Mister Muggs.

Suddenly a prince with a donkey's head appeared beside them.

"Don't go in there," he warned. "That is the castle of the red wizard and he may come home any minute and find you there. And if he does he may turn your heads into donkeys' heads, just as he has done mine."

"Why did he do that?" asked Nancy.

"Because I wouldn't marry his daughter," answered the prince. "He said that if I was as stubborn as a balky mule he would make my looks match my disposition. My kingdom is next to this one, but he brought me here in the night by magic and I can't find my way back. Besides I'd be ashamed to go back looking so awful."

Suddenly the red pig ran out of the woods and began to speak.

"I'll tell you how the spell may be broken," he squealed. "If the wizard's daughter could see you now she would refuse to marry you. That alone can break the spell. As soon as she says the words the spell will be broken and your own head will be restored. When you are ready to return to your kingdom, jump on my back and I will carry you there at once."

With that he ran squealing into the red forest again.

At that minute the wizard's ugly daughter came along.

"Who are you?" she asked in none too friendly a voice.

"This is Nancy and this is Nick," said Mister Muggs. "And this gentleman you should know, as he is to be your husband."

The wizard's daughter looked with surprise at the prince with the donkey's head. "Never," she cried, and, turning, ran away as fast as her legs would carry her.

Instantly the donkey's head disappeared and the prince's own fine head appeared in its place.

"Thank you, everybody," he exclaimed. "Now I can go back to my own kingdom and marry the lovely beggar-maid." And the red pig appearing just then, the prince jumped on and away they went like the wind.

Nancy and Nick and Mister Muggs got into the magic automobile and followed.

"Oh, dear!" cried Nancy. "I forgot! I wanted to get a bunch of those lovely red daisies."

"Better telephone," advised the little fairyman. "It's safer."

WOMEM IN BUSINESS MAKE IT HARDER FOR CROOKS TO GET A DISHONEST LIVING

CHICAGO, May 15 (United Press). — The modern "business woman' is so canny about money that she has forced investment crooks to change their traditional tactics. That is the conviction of Katherine L. Berry, prominent financial authority and head of the woman's department of a large investment company here.

Crooks are not so obvious in their ways nowadays as the movies depict them, Miss Berry said. Because the women have educated themselves about money, the crooks have been obliged to learn some new tricks.

"The crooks' real characters are often hidden behind pleasing personalities—sometimes behind college educations,' Miss Berry said. 'Millions are paid out annually by the widows and small wage earners for worthless stock. But within the past decade bogus stock sales have declined. Women are learning to trust more to the bankers and less to their own judgments.'

Not only has the "new woman' put crooks to rout; she has also proved herself superior in financial brains to man, according to Miss Berry.

"By nature woman is anything but a plunger, and education and business training have sharpened her wits. Women have finer intuition and intelligence than men. Consequently they are quicker to recognise a crook," says Miss Berry, but she admitted that even the women sometimes make mistakes with their money.

"Their greatest weakness with money is an over-supply of faith in the business ability of old-time friends," she said. "Every day hundreds of women are trusting their 'little all' to some old friend of the family who is buying an interest in a South American rubber plantation, or has an original idea for manufacturing Imperial sawdust.'

Home women are much easier prey than business women, according to Miss Berry.

"Working women know the energy it takes to earn a dollar. They know a dollar's value, and are therefore cautious about how it is invested," she said. "But the housewives have proved they have business ability, too. They do not take a fairy-lady's word about calico. Education can teach them whom to believe about stocks and bonds.

"If women do not intend to make a thorough study of investments, they should let a competent trust company manage their affairs. The only safe plan in any case is to seek the advice of a banker or good investment house, and then abide by the advice. Any woman can double her income in less than twelve years by investing funds safely at 6 1-2 per cent. and immediately re-investing the interest."

SMALL SISTERS HAD CONFERENCE

TORONTO, May 16.—(Canadian Press.) — Florence and Gertrude Small, sisters of Ambrose J. Small, missing theatrical man, held a conference yesterday afternoon at the Parliament Buildings with Hon. W. F. Nickle, K.C., Attorney General; General V. A. S. Williams, Commissioner of Ontario Police, and Deputy Commissioner Alfred Cuddy. Misses Small were accompanied by Patrick S., Sullivan, former member of the Royal Irish Constabulary and of the Alberta Provincial Police. Mr. Sullivan and Deputy Commissioner Cuddy exchanged greetings, Sullivan being a member of the Alberta force when Cuddy became its head. Misses Small had certain representations to make regarding what, in their opinion, should be done to get at the solution of the mystery surrounding their brother's unexplained absence since December 2, 1919. They believe that a vigorous investigation even at this late date might solve the mystery and asked for the assistance of the Crown officers. Hon. Mr. Nickle and police officers assured the Small sisters of the fullest assistance from the department and asked them to put certain things in writing.

GIANT REDWOOD FORESTS SAVED BY DONATIONS

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—Redwood trees with a value of approximately $1,000,000 have been saved for all time in central and northern California through the efforts of the Save-the-Redwoods League, by Dr. William E. Bade, counsellor for the organization.

The league was organized less than four years ago. Its membership is made up of tree lovers who are fighting to save the giant trees for posterity. Individuals and lumber companies have donated lands valued at $500,000 to the movement. The state, Humboldt county and citizens have contributed $475,000 in money to the movement for purchasing other lands.

"And yet the movement has just begun," said Dr. Blade. "While 14 miles along the Redwood highway have been preserved, there are several hundred miles, many of them heavily timbered, which should be preserved. We look forward to the establishment of a national redwood park of at least 20,000 acres."

Don't Squeeze Blackheads—Dissolve Them

Squeezing and pinching out blackheads make the pores large and cause irritation. Blackheads are caused by accumulations of dust and dirt and secretions from the skin, and there is only one safe and sure way and one that never fails to get rid of them—a simple—way, too—that is to dissolve them. Just get from any drug store about two ounces of peroxine powder—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off, and you'll be surprised to see that every blackhead has disappeared, and the skin will be left soft and the pores in their natural condition.

DAIRYMAN DEAD.

A SNAIL'S PACE IN LONDON

Street traffic in London is said to be the slowest in the world, with an average speed of from four to five miles an hour. When congestion is most acute, traffic moves at the rate of only three miles an hour.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance. Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

Safeguard your beneficiaries by providing the form of insurance payment that will best serve their needs.

If your wife is a good manager of money matters, and you have reason to believe she will be able to invest the insurance estate as carefully as you would like to have it invested, then you are justified in ordering the full face value of the policy paid her upon your death.

If, on the other hand, your beneficiary is not experienced in handling money affairs, you can specify that the insurance be paid on the income basis—that is, so much yearly, semi-annually, quarterly, or monthly, over a long period of years, or so much a month as long as the beneficiary lives. This insures that the proceeds of your insurance policy will not fall into unscrupulous hands,, and be poorly invested, leaving your dependents helpless and unprotected.

A trust agreement may also be arranged with a good trust company to accomplish the same purpose, if desired.

KIND HEARTED JAILER PAYS PRISONERS' FINES

NEW ORLEANS, May 13.—The custom of releasing two prisoners from the Orleans parish prison here every Good Friday, inaugurated so long ago that the originator and the reason therefor have been forgotten, was adhered to as usual this year. No one knows how long the custom has been in vogue, but it has been handed down through the years and so far no one has offered objection.

The superintendent of the prison picks out among those serving short sentences two who have been quiet, industrious and in general model prisoners. This year they happened to be a man serving thirty days in lieu of a $10 fine for drunkenness and another term for refusal to pay a taxicab bill.

Captain Archie Rennyson, the superintendent, chuckled when the 1924 quota paused for great breaths of the warm, free air as they left the prison entrance.

"You know," he said, "there's only one legal way prisoners like that can be released and that is for somebody to pay their fine for them. But it's a pretty custom—don't you think? So every year I pick out a couple of the boys who have been good prisoners and I pay what's left of their fines myself."

Freedom for the Good Friday selection this year cost the Captain $15.

NO WORLD PEACE UNTIL 1945 PREDICTS PORTUGUESE PROPHET

LISBON, May 13.—Joan Ferraz, who poses as a prophet, predicts terrifying events for Portugal and the rest of the world during the present year and for the next 20 years.

Last November Ferraz foretold great floods in this country, and the inundations during March certainly fulfilled his predictions. The rivers Tagus, Douro, and Mondego have submerged whole districts and placed villages and towns under water. Cottages have been swept away, vineyards and crops ruined and many lives lost.

Now Ferraz says this is nothing to what is to come. He predicts no peace in the world until 1945. This year more thrones will be overthrown, tremendous earthquakes will occur and storms at sea will sink many ships. There will be revolutions and civil and international wars, northern Europe being the scene of the principal occurrences. In conclusion he exhorts people all over the world to kill dogs or "the newspapers will not have space to hold the case of hydrophobia that will occur."

Local Council of Women

The regular monthly meeting of the Local Council of Women was held yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., with a very good attendance. The president, Mrs. A. Stevenson, occupied the chair. The members considered various matters of interest to the society, made final arrangements for a tea to be held in the near future under their auspices, and heard a very interesting, brief address from Doctor Jessie Birnie on "Preventive Medicine."

In the absence of Mrs. A. Mowat and Mrs. J. Wearing, the treasurer, Mrs. N. D. Seaton, read her own report, recording the sending of ten dollars by the Council to the Pavilion Fund at the British Empire Exhibition, and also read the minutes of the previous meeting and the correspondence, and called the roll.

A letter from the Toronto Local Council was considered, which asked the opinion of the Local Council as to the advisability of forwarding a joint petition of Local Councils to the National Council, requesting the Provincial Government to postpone the taking of a plebiscite on the O.T.A. until such time as they had demonstrated satisfactorily that present legislative restrictions on the liquor traffic were inadequate. As this resolution expresses the opinions of the Local Council, as embodied in a resolution forwarded recently by them to the Provincial Government, no action was taken.

The Council endorsed the list of nominations for the National Executive, received from Toronto.

Theatrical Matters.

Mrs. F. A. Hodgson, who had been deputized to interview the manager of a local theatre, with regard to a vaudeville act that the Council had taken exception to, reported that the manager expressed himself as anxious at all times to co-operate with the views of the Council in such matters, but felt that he could use only two media for gauging the appeal of his programmes: the box office statement and the applause and comment of his patrons. He would prefer to have opinions of his productions expressed to himself personally, and felt also that such opinions should be the frank expression of those who had seen the performances, not of people who had merely heard something to their detriment. He thought that the applause which greeted the performance complained of was sufficient demonstration of its capacity to please the patrons of the theatre, and that it should not surprise the mothers and fathers if the acts which met with approval from them should also please their children. He stated that it was against the policy of his company to offer anything but the finest films available, and said that anything which appeared at his theatre had passed through the hands of the censors, and received their approval. He would welcome an expression of opinion at any time and assured the Council of his willingness to co-operate with them in every way.

Mrs. Stevenson commented: "That is exactly what we always try to impress on the people. If things don't suit them and they want something better, they must tell the manager as they go out."

Mrs. Hodgson, in the absence of Miss A. Walton, convenor of the Committee on Objectionable Films and Literature, reported that a canvass of local bookstores revealed only two recent inquiries for banned literature. One young man had sought to buy "Snappy Stories" and an old man wanted 'True Romance.' The dealer thought that in both instances the request was for purposes of investigation.

"Save the Children" Fund.

Mrs. W. R. Morris, who had been requested to obtain the opinion of the local Ministerial Association as to their stand on the question of providing relief for destitute Greek children, wards of the League of Nations, who have been brought from Armenia and placed in Greece, and for whom a "Save the Children" Fund has lately been organized, reported that the local Ministerial Association expressed its sympathy in the cause, and unhesitatingly endorsed its merits, but felt that active co-operation on their part was impossible at the present time, on account of the many calls on the time and attention of the various church organizations working toward relief of similar worthy causes. The moral support of the Association was promised.

Mrs. Morris explained that the guardians of these children wished to succor and help them for one year, until such time as their parents should be enabled to harvest the crop which was now being put in, and that the support of each child for one year was reckoned at only twelve dollars, this amount being sufficient to give them the one good meal a day wroch the Fund considered would keep them alive during the intervening period. It was finally decided to inaugurate a publicity campaign on a small scale, enlisting the aid of The Examiner to carry it through, and appointing a committee and treasurer to receive such funds as might be forthcoming. It was felt that even a small sum might be sufficient to take care of two of three children during the year.

Arrangements For Tea.

Mrs. Seaton gave the report of arrangements made at a meeting of the sub-executive held recently, to make arrangements for a tea and sale of home-made cooking which the Local Council will sponsor this month. Final arrangements were made yesterday. Mrs. J. Mills was appointed convenor of the tea-room; while the sale of home-made cooking will be in charge of Mrs. N. D. Seaton. Mrs. E. B. Clegg was appointed to look after the advertising, and Miss L. Rush will provide the musical programme.

It was decided to send some flowers to Mrs. A. Mowat, corresponding secretary, who is ill at the present time.

Dr. Birnie on 'Preventive Medicine'

Dr. Jessie Birnie gave a brief, cogent address on "Preventive Medicine." The doctor's evident thorough knowledge of her subject and the direct, common sense, somewhat humorous style of her talk made it very interesting, and brought an enthusiastic clap at its conclusion.

Prefacing her remarks with the assertion that good health makes for success, happiness and also proper spiritual and moral conditions, the doctor spoke of the progress made during the last quarter of a century in preventive medicine. The terror of epidemic diseases has been greatly diminished by the discovery and use of the vaccines and serums which prevent and shorten their course, while the knowledge of the part played by insect life in their dissemination has also helped much to retard their advance. The role of the house fly in the spread of typhoid and cholera, and of the mosquito in the ravages of malaria and yellow fever, the necessity for pure milk and pure water, were all discoveries of the past thirty years. In the fight against tuberculosis, particularly that of the lungs, advances had been made by emphasizing the importance of plenty of fresh air, light and good food. A really remarkable lessening in the mortality among infants also had been registered during this period, principally due to the unflagging efforts and community benefits derived from the establishments of Well Babies' Clinics. Attention to the baby during its early months and pre-natal care and knowledge which laid stress on the proper safeguarding of the health and temper of the expectant mother, had been of inestimable benefit, as disseminated by these Clinics. "If you bring healthy children into the world, you will not have criminal institutions or insane asylums, for I believe that most criminals are defectives," said the doctor. "Syphilis and alcohol are the greatest enemies of the race, and the greatest breeders of disease and nerve disorders."

"We have lessened considerably the death-rate of those under the age of forty during the past thirty years, but, over this age, there has been an increase in the comparative mortality figures. This is the problem that confronts us now." The principal diseases which afflict those who have passed their two-score mark were enumerated as being heart disease, Bright's disease, degeneration of the arteries or arteriosclerosis, and neuritis. The causes of these disorders were described as being, first, the effects on the general system of attacks of acute infection, such as typhoid, scarlet fever or influenza, which affected the muscles of heart and kidneys. A long convalescence was recommended after an attack of any acute infection or after an operation. The second cause mentioned was the conditions of modern life, with its mental strain and competition, and the difficulty of living, a condition brought on mainly by the effort to have all the comforts which are considered necessary for existence in these days; the electric lighting and hot water heating, the paved streets, etcetera. The fever of life to-day was added to by the immoderate pleasure-seeking of the age. "We don't stay at home at night. Try and get any of your friends at home after eight o'clock in the evening or even after three o'clock in the afternoon, when so many of the ladies are out at committee meetings of one sort or another, and see how difficult it is to locate them. I believe in women taking part in such things but not to the extent that many of them do nowadays. Their pleasures are wearing them out."

"Another great factor is worry. If you can keep placid, you help your health to stand more strain, and another thing is our food." The doctor frowned on fads of the moment, "like raw vegetable eating. Who wants to go back to a savage state, and eat uncooked vegetables? I believe in getting some pleasure as well as profit out of eating."

"The vitamines that we hear so much about are as necessary to the progress of life as the spark is to the fire in the engine." The eating of meat once a day, with plenty of vegetables and fruit, and light desserts, was recommended.

Insidious Advances.

"The third thing to be noted is the insidious advance of these diseases. That was found out during the war, and insurance companies and medical examining boards will tell you the same thing." A thorough examination once a year after forty was almost a necessity to prevent the advance of diseases which might be unknowingly harbored within the system, with a semi-annual examination after the age of fifty or sixty years has been reached. Irregular habits of life and modern conditions of existence were mainly responsible for the great toll-taker of diseases; heart trouble, which annually snaps up more victims over these ages than typhoid or pneumonia, with their casualty figures doubled.

"Regular lives, no worry, with plenty of sunshine, fresh air and lots of sleep," was the parting admonition of a pleasant, instructive address.

No Individuality.

Mrs. Stevenson, thanking the doctor for her talk, and commenting on its subject matter, referred to the disastrous spirit of emulation apparent in the present day, the spirit that prevents a man or woman from living his or her own life as he or she wishes, and makes him try to adopt the style of his neighbor, with the result that there is no individuality in people of the modern age. "There are none of the old characters left, the individual people that were refreshingly different from others. We are all alike nowadays, and we are not very interesting. We all do just as the other fellow does, and this makes for indecision of character. We should try and make up our own minds to live as we wish ourselves, without eternally keeping an eye on someone else."

Dr. Jessie Birnie said a few words at the close of the meeting, commending the work of the Well Babies' Clinic to the attention of the members, and asking their sympathy and assistance in carrying it on. She spoke of the pressing need for a helper in the homes for pre-natal work.

DAILY PRACTICE WITH RIFLE FOR RUSSIAN MEN

RIGA, May 16.—A proposal to provide every member of the proletariat and every peasant citizen, especially the young men, with facilities for daily practice in rifle and machine gun shooting and experimental chemical warfare is being considered by the army leaders, the Bolshevist organ Izvestia states. The exercises will be made interesting by means of lectures and moving pictures, and awards will be made to those showing apitude.

The suggestion is made that shooting ranges and laboratories should be included in all educational clubs and reading halls in the country "with the object of keeping Russia's vast reserves constantly and efficiently ready for war."

KEEP THE KIDNEYS IN A HEALTHY CONDITION.

MEDALS AND SHIELDS ARE NOW ON DISPLAY

The visible and material rewards of the trip of Peterborough musicians to Toronto this year, to compete in the Ontario Musical Festival, are displayed in an attractive manner in the south window of the Grafton & Company's establishment. The two handsome shields, the first won on two successive years by Peterborough, for first place in the Sunday school orchestra contests, the other for first place in the new section inaugurated this year, that of an amateur orchestra from a conservatory or similar musical institution, are on view, also the two big certificates and a fine collection of medals in gold and silver and bronze, including the awards to Professor Gliddon as leader of the orchestra, to Mr. M. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., conductor of the Male Voice Choir, and to the two vocalists, Mr. M. H. Park and Mr. R. A. Browne. With the collection appears the gold medal awarded the directress of the winners in the Public School Choirs section; Bedford Park High School, Toronto, whose directress is Miss Isabel Baird, daughter of Mr. George Baird, 658 George street.

SWEDISH EMIGRATION SHOWS CHANGE IN VOCATIONAL TREND

STOCKHOLM, May 16.—(Associated Press).—Striking changes in the vocational trend and a shift to new points of destination in America appear in the stream of Swedish emigrants, as revealed by an investigation ordered by the Riksdag and just published.

Those who intend to take up farming in the United States are no longer in the majority, their number having decreased in proportion to the increase of industrial workers, especially from the metal and wood-working industries, which suffered depression last year. Consequently most of the emigrants are now bound for the industrial districts in the northeastern States, instead of the agricultural districts of the middle west or the Pacific Coast.

CONVERTS SWAMPS INTO RICH FARM LANDS

BELHAVEN, N.C., May 16—(United Press).— Possibility that the State Legislature will be brought here during its next session for members to see the remarkable improvement wrought by converting swamps into farm lands is being expressed by members from this section.

These solons believe that if their colleagues can see the 200,000 acres of farm lands, now on the tax books at from $150 to $200 an acre and producing corn 12 feet high, which once was sold for a few cents an acre, less trouble would be had in getting through other drainage projects.

A total of 10,000,000 acres has been drained by the state with 2,370,000 now under process of being drained.

PICNIC SANDWICHES

Sandwiches for picnics and children's lunches are kept much fresher and are more appetizing looking if they are wrapped in wax paper.

CAMPBELLFORD I.O.O.F. EXEMPLIFIED DEGREE

Team Visited Stirling, Where They Officiated In the Initiatory Step For First Time Away From Home Lodge — Half-Holiday Disagreement Is Not Settled.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 16.—The Campbellford Oddfellows, who went to Stirling on Wednesday night, returned about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, and all report one of the most pleasant outings of the year. The party, which made the trip in five autos, consisted of the following brethren:—R. A. Dunk (captain), P. Sherwin, R. J. Bullen, George T. Salter, T. Craighead, S. A. Maguire, H. Anderson, J. Poulton, sen., J. Poulton, jun., H. Pethrick, D. Dorie, D. A. Montgomery, Charles Holmes, G. L. Thring, J. McMillan, F. Osborne, A. Taylor, J. Stover, J. Dooker, J. Hamilton, J. D. McEachern.

This was the first time a team from the Campbellford lodge left home to work a degree, the initiatory degree being put on at Stirling by the team from here, the task being performed in a manner which won hearty applause from those who witnessed it.

A team from Argyle Lodge, Napanee, exemplified the work of the first degree. Over 250 brethren attended the gathering.

Speeches were made by R. Dunk, J. Douglas, F. Scott, S. A. Maguire and George T. Salter.

Stirling Lodge passed a vote of thanks to the brethren of both visiting lodges.

Refreshments were served and the gathering broke up in the early hours of the morning.

Cement Walk Finished.

S. Bedgood, who had the contract for building the cement walks at the new High School, has completed the work, and these walks, with other improvements that have been made, add considerably to the appearance of the building. The walks extend from the west side of of Rannie Street to the main and side entrances.

Born, Thursday morning, to Mr. and Mrs. John Nesbitt, a daughter. With the field for female endeavor constantly widening, the junior Miss Nesbitt may, in the years to come, follow in the footsteps of her athletic father and develop into a champion hockey or baseball player.

Half Holiday Problem.

Some stores that were closed last Thursday afternoon were open for business as usual yesterday, and it is announced that the owners will ignord the weekly half-holiday entirely ane keep open every afternoon during the week. The barber shops were closed yesterday.

A new definition has been given to the term "shop," as used in the amendment to the Factory Act, which gives Councils the right to set a weekly half-holiday where a petition, signed by a majority of the business men, is presented. The places of business that can be compelled to close, as provided for in the amended Act, are defined as follows:

"'Shop' shall mean a building, or portion of building, booth, stall or place where goods are exposed or offered for sale by retail, and barber shops, but not when the only trade or business carried on is that of a licensed hoted or tavern, victualling house or refreshment house."

An attempt to include other classes of dealers in the half-holiday movement has resulted in the rescinding of the by-law in some Ontario municipalities.

Mrs. Winter's Funeral.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Alex. Winters will be held at 2,30 to-day. Her maiden name was Agnes J. Carscallen, only child of the late James Carscallen, of Tamworth. She was born at Tamworth in 1864. As a child and young woman she resided in Tamworth, and on the 24th April, 1885 she was married to Mr. Alex. Winters. About three years later they moved from Tamworth to Lonsdale, where they lived for sixteen years. In 1904 the family moved to Campbellford, and for the last twenty years have lived in their present home on Wellington Street.

She had been ailing for some time, and on the first of February, 1924, she went to Toronto for an operation on her tongue, as it was feared she had cancer. For seven weeks she was in Toronto, then came to Campbellford to her home on Wellington Street, seemingly quite improved in health, but it was not long before she became worse, and for weeks past her family felt she could not last very long. After her painful sickness she passed away on Wednesday.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her sorrowing husband, Alexander Winters, three sons and two daughters—Claude, of Brockville; Sidney, of Toronto; Guy, of Sutton; Mrs. O. R. Davis, of Cleveland, Ohio; and Miss Minnie, of Brockville General Hospital.

Her family will miss a kind and loving mother, but she will be missed most of all by her husband, for, being almost a cripple for years, she has waited on him so patiently and faithfully all that time, driving him to his business morning, noon and night, and never complaining of the task, no matter what the weather was like.

HOPEFUL ELEMENTS GENERAL BUSINESS

Trade Is Not Diminishing In Volume — Food Estimates.

The "Canadian Grocer" points to several hopeful elements in the condition of general business, in the way of increased car loadings over last year, and the increase in the number of automobiles registered in Canada during 1923. From the beginning of January to March 15th, the car loadings amounted to 551,979, as compared with 505,000 cars for the corresponding period of last year, and for the three weeks ending March 15th the amount was 71,964 cars, as compared with 139,736 cars for the corresponding three weeks of 1923. "This is very tangible evidence of the fact that trade is not diminishing in volume."

With regard to the number of automobiles registered, the increase was more than ten per cent. over the previous year's total, the number of automobiles registered in Canada in 1923 being 571,616, an increase of 55,309 over the previous year.

The trade journal also records the steady increase in the number of automobile tourists from the United States entering Canada during the summer months. During the 1923 season, they spent a total of over one hundred and thirty-six million dollars, and expectations point to an increase of fully thirty per cent. during the coming season. It is pointed out that the automobile tourist traffic has become one of Canada's biggest industries.

Although the tourist is, of course, merely a transient buyer, whose real value to the community is his spending power while in that community, still he enlivens business activity. It has been said that every $100 spent in a retail store by a tourist not only adds $100 to the turnover of the retail merchant, but also about $75 to the turnover of the wholesaler and about $65 to that of the manufacturer.

Tourist statistics compiled by the Customs and Immigration Departments give the total number of automobile tourists entering Canada during 1922 as 996,329. Ontario had the greatest number of visitors, although Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and British Columbia received a considerable number of cars.

In a nine-month period of 1923, when the number of auto tourists passing through the city of Vancouver alone showed an increase of 61 per cent., the value of the trade to the city was placed at $8,800,000, while the total income from tourists ariving from all channels was placed at $24,000,000, which is in excess of the money brought in by the fishing industry, which yielded some $16,000,000.

Estimates of food bought and consumed by tourists visiting British Columbia last year include the following quantities: Cereals, 1323 bags, or 132,300 lbs.; bacon and ham, 394,000 lbs.; bread, 2,100,000 loaves, or approximately 2,100,000 lbs.; jam, 315,0000 lbs.; coffee, 78,750 lbs.; tea, 78,750 lbs.; sugar, 279,300 lbs.; butter, 18,000 lbs.; vegetables, 2,100,000 lbs.; potatoes, 45,000 bags, or 4,200,000 lbs.; fish, 2,100,000 lbs.; flour, 630,000 lbs.; salt, 31,500 lbs.; fat (for cooking), 210,000 lbs.; meat, hogs 8400 lbs., cattle 3500 lbs., sheep 25,200 lbs.; fruit, 420,000 boxes; apples, 21,000 boxes; cream, 73,500 gallons; milk, 262,500 gallons; syrup, 4200 gallons, and eggs, 8,400,000 dozens.

PROFITS IN WHALING REVIVE LONG NEGLECTED INDUSTRY

MADRID, May 16.—(Associated Press).—Whaling as an industry has been so profitable in Spain that several new companies are being formed to carry on whaling expeditions. The first station at Algeciras, established and managed by British capital, has been such a success in the past year that the same operators will establish another base in the north of Spain. Other companies under Spanish control have already selected operating bases and are purchasing equipment.

Meanwhile the sardine fishing industry is in a precarious condition owing to the distance from the shore at which the fish are caught, and the Galician fishermen who have hitherto been engaged in it are turning their attention to cod. A Spanish commission has been sent to Newfoundland to study the methods of cod-fishing in use in those waters.

MOTOR REPAIRS AND REPLACEMENTS

There are 28,000 automobile repair shops in the United States using replacement parts at the rate of $700,000,000 a year. This is $2,000,000 a day, or about $4000 a minute for eight hours.

NEWS OF BURNBRAE AND THE DISTRICT

Well Known Resident of Seymour Township Passed Away

BURNBRAE, May 16. — In the death of Arcantus Lain on Thursday last at the home of his son, Isaac Lain, on the 12th Concession of Seymour Township, there passed away, in his 86th year, one of the oldest residents of this district.

On Sunday, 4th May, he suffered a slight stroke, followed early in the week by another, which proved fatal. On Thursday night at ten o'clock he passed peacefully away.

The deceased was born in Lower Canada, near Merrickville, and when just a boy moved to Seymour, where his entire life was spent. His wife, Sarah Barnum, predeceased him about 39 years ago, also one daughter died a number of years ago.

He is survived by five sons and three daughters to mourn his loss: John and Isaac, Seymour, Caleb, Sault Ste. Marie, Amos in Alberta, Frank in North Dakota, Mrs. McKenzie, Havelock, Mrs. William Seebrooke, Havelock, Mrs. Thomas Arnold, Tacoma, Washington.

The funeral services were conducted Saturday afternoon, at Rylstone Presbyterian church by Rev. I. J. Black. Interment was made in Rylstone cemetery.

DIG FOR STEAM IN CALIFORNIA

In Lago, Italy, 20 Years Ago Man Succeeded in Conquering the Burning Earth.

By A. H. FREDERICKI

HEALDSBURG, Cal., May 16.—They dig for steam in "Devil's Canyon," near here.

They convert it into electricity.

Only once before has man succeeded in conquering the "burning earth." In Lago, Italy, they did it twenty years ago, but on a smaller scale.

Years ago Indians came awe-struck to the spot, worshipping face downward, the inconceivable power which sent smoke curling up through the ground.

Along came a hunter named Elliott in 1847. His awe equalled the red men's, and he called the place "Devil's Canyon."

For years it was a mecca for tourists. It remained for a neighbourhood lad, John D. Grant, to see its hidden possibilities. Now he is carrying out dreams of his boyhood.

But he was only a man with a "wild idea." Bankers and business men laughed at him. Undaunted, Grant mortgaged his own property—even his home—and put the money in his theory.

With a three-man crew, he began to drill for steam. At 12 feet under the sandstone, steam spouts were struck. at 140 feet depth, the well assumed volcanic proportions.

Rocks hundreds of feet away were loosened and sent hurtling down the hillsides. Fifteen-pounders were thrown 300 feet. Steam pressure became intense—1,000 pounds to the square inch—and the temperature at the surface was 335 degrees.

Pipes were sunk in casings to the desired depth and there anchored. Tee-valves were attached to the upper end, gate valves drilled through and the steam brought under control. Pipes to the turbines completed the job.

"The whole canyon," says Grant, "can be sunk with wells. We have two within fifty feet of each other, with no diminution of steam exhaust in either.

"We could go still deeper. But we have sufficient for our present uses."

Each of the three wells in operation thus far has developed from 1,000 to 2,500 horsepower, increasing in exhaust as new stratas are opened. Grant estimates one steam well develops as much electricity as the oil from seven oil wells.

RHEUMATISM GONE, SAYS MONTREAL HOTEL MA

ROSENEATH TEAM START PRACTICES

Boys Expect to Provide Some Stiff Opposition --Roseneath News.

ROSENEATH, May 15.—The local baseball team have at last got a start for the season when a practice was held. The team has been handicapped this spring by wet grounds, and as the opening of the season is less than two weeks away it will be hard for the players to get in shape in that short time. There was a fair turnout, however, including F. Shearer, J. C. Moore, Dr. Armstrong, W. Davey, C. W. Varcoe, H. Baker, and B. Thackeray of last year's team, also G. Dunnett of last year's Harwood team. There were several others out to help the boys along, among whom were some junior players. If any of these boys can make good they will be given a chance on the line-up. The players engaged in fielding practice mostly, and some of them showed that they had not forgotten how to handle the ball since last season. The pitchers did not limber up their arms in the box owing to the cold air. The boys are going at it with a vengeance next week to prepare for the opening game at Campbellford on the 24st, as they consider Campbellford will be one of the hardest aggregations to overcome that they will encounter this season. Our official umpire, Chas. Macklin, was on hand during practice watching the play and preparing himself for his duties in the near future. Mr. Macklin is always present at the practices as regularly as the players, and in this way gets a knowledge of the different plays that can be learned in no other way. We would ask other umpires of the league to take notice of this fact and do likewise.

Street Lighting.

The people of the surrounding country, on driving in to the village on Saturday evening, were much impressed by its bright streets. They were lit up with the gasoline street lights purchased recently by the Women's Institute. The members of this institution deserve a lot of credit for this act as it is a long felt want supplied at last.

Personals.

Mr. Richard Thompson, who was taken to Nicholl's Hospital, Peterboro, on Wednesday last, expects to undergo a critical operation on Thursday. Mrs. Thompson and son, Jim, motored to Peterboro on Sunday to see him.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tucker and family, of Lindsay, spent the week-end at the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Zucker.

Special Service.

On Sunday evening a special service was held in the Methodist Church. It being Mothers' Day, the church was decorated with house plants, and Rev. Walsh had a special address prepared. The girls of the C.G.T.T. group furnished the musical part of the service, which was all in keeping with Mothers' Day, assisted by some of the young men. Miss Cora Linton gave a beautiful solo and the choir rendered two anthems.

Presenting Play.

The Roseneath Women's Institute are presenting a play, "Dust of the Earth," which is being played by the Young People of Plainville on Monday, May 26th. In the afternoon there will be a baseball game between Brighton and Roseneath. This is expected to be a lively game as these teams are quite equally matched.

The District Convention of the W.M.S. of the Methodist Church is being held here on Wednesday. A large number of delegates are expected.

NEWS LAKEFIELD AND IN DISTRICT

Captain Heron Inspected the Lakefield Cadets--Personals.

LAKEFIELD, May 15.—Captain Heron, of Kingston, paid his annual visit of inspection to the Lakefield High School Cadets on Wednesday, and by a lucky chance the weather remained fine till the inspection was over. Captain Heron expressed great pleasure at the marked improvement shown by the cadets in their drill, and said that he had seen nothing better than their extended formation. The physical drill was excellent also, in fact, barring the fact that he urged a rosette of the school solors on the caps before another year, he found no fault nor had any criticism. He complimented the boys on their smart appearance and approved the new uniforms which were issued last week. He also complimented Cadet-Major Jack S. Ridpath on his good work with the boys.

Mr. J. M. Simpson, principal of the school; Mrs. W. M. Graham, representing the school board, and Rev. C. S. Reddick and Rev. T. L. White made short speeches complimenting the cadet officers and cadets, and stressing the fact suggested by Captain Heron that in wearing the King's uniform, even for a brief period yearly, they were privileged.

There was a much better turnout of citizens and parents than usual, and the hopes that even greater improvement in this regard will be seen next year, as the cadet corps are well worthy of a stronger interest from the citizens. After the inspection they paraded along Edward Street to Reid Street, down Reid Street to Queen Street, and thence north to Regent Street, where they were Mr. Simpson's guests for their annual treat.

The cadet officers were:—Cadet-Major Jack S. Ridpath, Cadet-Captain Willian C. Harvey, 1st Lieut. Harry Hill, 2nd Lieut. Donald Kidd, Sergt.-Major Herman Branch.

A drum was added to the equipment of the corps this year and was an invaluable aid to the boys. Herman Branch was an efficient drummer.

R. G. Madill, of the Dominion Observatory, Ottawa, and a Lakefield boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Madill, leaves on Thursday for Victoria, B.C., and then on to Dawson City, Yukon. Mrs. Madill (nee Olive Jory) will accompany her husband. They will return about the end of October.

TRICKY COURSE IS SET FOR GOLFERS.

The National Open Championship Will Be Played At Oakland Hills County Club On June 5 and 6.

DETROIT, May 16 — The golf course at the Oakland Hills Country Club, where the national open championship will be played June 5 and 6, is regarded by expert golfers as providing about the best test of golfing of any course in the country. Deceiving distances, shifting winds and fair ways that are well trapped are some of the handicaps that beset players unfamiliar with the links, and even those who have played over the course before must be on their game or they will find themselves in trouble.

The total yardage of the course is 6,771 and par is 72.

Always there is a wind. Most often it is from the west, an aid to the player on the first and second holes but dead against him on 7, 8 and 9, while on the other holes it blows across the fairways. The breeze, however, is never constant, shifting frequently enough to make the course a different test entirely, even on the same day.

The difficulty found by most golfers trying out the course for the first time lies in the deceiving distances, resulting in underclubbing shots. Although the fairways are wide and rolling they are trapped well, and shots that are wide are sure to cause the golfer who makes them considerable trouble.

Number 1 hole of 438 yards calls for a down hill drive, with deep traps about midway down on either side of the fairway to catch hooks and slices. Number 2 hole is 480 yards, with wide trap running across the fairway to catch topped drives. No. 3, 199 yards, is the first short hole, with green well trapped, while No. 4 is an elbow hole and measures 410 yards.

The drive from No. 5 tee calls for a carry over a slight hill, and the same condition prevails on the next hole. Number 5, is 425 yards and No. 6 is 354. From No. 7 tee the drive is from one hill to another, with a brook, which also crosses No. 5, ready to catch a hooked second shot. This hole is 383 yards. The green on No. is higher than the tee by about 25 feet, in a gradual rise. The green is a terrace affair with a steep bank in back. The hole is 435 yards.

Number 9 hole is only 250 yards, but any curves either to right or left from the fairway take the ball into traps. The 450 yard No. 10 and the 386 yard No. 11 require careful drives and second shots to avoid hazards. The No 12 hole of 360 yards is the longest of the 18 and regraded as the most difficult. The drive is from a hill into a valley, with a pond at the right about 200 yards from the tee. A slice is apt to go into the water, while on the left is long grass. Par for the hole is five.

The 130-yard No. 13 is negotiated with a mashie pitch to the green which is surrounded by sand traps. The drip on No. 14 calls for a carry of 175 yards over a marsh. The hole is 475 yards. Number 15 hole of 390 yards is another elbow and No. 16, measuring 360 yards, is one of the most picturesque and difficult of the course. Number 17 is another short hole (183 yards) with a par three, and No. 18, which is 470 yards is an elbow calling for a good brassie to follow the drive.

TOPING WOMEN AROUSED IRE OF OLD TIME GERMAN EDITOR

LEIPSIC, May 16.—The women of Germany 200 years ago spent too much time taking snuff, sitting about drinking beer and wine and indulging in games of chance, according to old files resurrected recently of the first women's magazine to be published in this country. The magazine, known as The Critic, also took the women to task for gossiping which, it was pointed out, did harm to themselves and to the community as well.

The magazine was a weekly edited by Johann Cristoph Gottsched, one of Germany's best known authors and critics of the times. In its initial number the editor stated that the publication stood for higher ideals of womanhood generally, and advocated the idea that wives dedicate themselves to motherhood and their homes. Several pages were devoted to society events, and other columns to humor and cooking recipes and reading matter intended to appeal to the women of those times.

Later issues contained lengthy articles protesting against boys and girls reading trashy books, and original stories intended to aid in the uplift movement which had been started to educate the young people were given prominence in issues over a long period.

The two hundredth anniversary of the founding of The Critic is to be celebrated here this summer.

PLENTY OF SLEEPING ROOM IN THIS SMALL BUNGALOW

Beauty of line and careful attention to detail have made this bungalow one of the most attractive of its type. The broad French windows, opening on the inviting terrace, give the front of this home an appearance of which the owner is bound to be proud.

Careful architectural thought has been devoted to the designing of the porch columns, the window frames and other details of the outside trim. The generous number of porches and the prominence of the fireplace in the living room suggest that this is the house referred to by those who declare that the home they build will have those features as the first consideration.

The interior of the home reveals an abundance of room which hardly would be expected from a cursory glance a the exterior. Beside the three bedrooms, the living-room, dining-room and kitchen, there are a sleeping porch and a sun porch, both of such size and substantial construction as to be virtually additional rooms.

The reception hall provides a closet for wraps and also allows one entering the front of the house to reach th bedroom group without passing through the living-room or the dining-room. The living-room suggests an intimate, livable abode from the provision made for the care of books and the wide opening on the sun porch.

The dining-room, with its cross ventilation and abundance of light, its built-in china closet and convenient means of communication with the kitchen, should be a place of cheerful meals. The kitchen is efficiently arranged with its own entrance porch.

The designer of this home has devoted much attention to the bedrooms and the comfort of the occupants. All of the three rooms open on the sleeping porches and all are provided with closets.

The approximate cost of this home is $9,600, although no figure can be given which will take into account the materials used in its construction, the distance of the location of the home from the source of these materials, the labor market and the many other factors which vary widely in different sections.

PUTS CRADLE BESIDE FLAG.

British Bishop Says it Should be Saluted on Empire Day.

LONDON, May 15. — "If I had my way I would put a cradle beside the flag on Empire day and when the girls of the schools came to salute the flag I would make every girl salute the cradle," Lord William Gascoyne-Cecil, Bishop of Exeter, a cousin of Lord Balfour, declared in a speech yesterday.

"What has happened in France in the matter of the falling birth rate, is also happening here," the bishop continued. "The average family in Devonshire is only slightly over three members".

CITY OFFICIALS LEFT WITH COURT

Mr. Clarkson Will Take the Matter of Several Officials Up With the Court Today.

TORONTO, May 16.—(Canadian Press).—The decision as to the appearance of the city officials and others mentioned in connection with the city deposits in the Home Bank before Charles Garrow, K.C., Master at Osgoode Hall, rests with the court.

Arising out of certain statements made by Fred. H. Richardson at an inquiry into his receipt of commission for influencing the Home Bank deposits, in which connection several officials of the city, past and present, were mentioned. The men may be given an opportunity to make formal declaration of their position.

Yesterday the Board of Control decided in favor of such an opportunity being given. To-day Mr. Clarkson will take the matter up with the court.

COMMONS REFUSES NATIONALIZATION

Lloyd George Excoriated the Project as a Gigantic Trust-Not Supported by Government.

(By Lloyd Allen, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, May 16.—The House of Commons to-day rejected a private members bill for nationalization of mines by a vote of 264 to 168.

The Labor government had announced formally that it was not backing the bill.

Former Premier Lloyd George excoriated the project, denouncing it as a "gigantic trust for working the nation's mines in the interest of one section of the community."

He demanded that the government give its opinion of the bill "because it is the first concrete example of that new socialism which will become effective just as soon as Labor gets a majority in the Commons."

Minister Shadwell contented himself with remarking that the bill was not supported by the Government.

Labor members who supported the measure in the debate stressed a point that 1,200,000 miners and dependents totalling 5,000,000 were making a living from mines which were being wastefully managed.

They declared war-time control of the mines had demonstrated the efficiency of nationalization.

TIMEPIECES LEAD IN SWISS EXPORTS TO STATES

BERNE, May 16.—Swiss exports to the United States during the first two months of this year amounted to 32,850,000 Swiss francs.

The district of St. Gall with its exportation of embroideries to America, lost the position of first place to watches and watch parts, which amounted during the two months to 9,000,000 francs, embroidery reaching only 3,000,000. Silk and silk goods came next with 4,820,000 francs, cheese 3,230,000, cotton goods 2,800,000, aluminium 2,720,000, hats 1,400,000 and shoes sent to the United States 763,000 francs.

The Measure of Life

CUT this rule measure out and paste it on your mirror, or some place where you will see it frequently. It represents the normal span of seventy years of life for men and women, narrowing towards the top because expectation of life narrows from year to year, and each year seems to pass more quickly than the last. The scale breaks off suddenly at the end because, even if extended a few years, active life is practically at an end.

Take a pencil and place it upon the exact point in the scale which represents your age. Look ahead and count up the years. Think seriously whether you have sufficient time ahead of you to permit of procrastinating the carrying out of any plan of life you may have decided upon.

You have always intended to take on adequate insurance. With this scale measure before you, decide now whether you have taken on sufficient insurance. Every year you delay increases the risk and the cost of carrying that risk.

The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada holds out to you practically every plan of insurance in which insurance actuaries have confidence. The Mutual Life of Canada offers insurance at cost.

NON-POLITICAL BANK CONTROL

An Organization Whose Leader Would Be Appointed By the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court Suggested As a Remedy For Banking Evils.

OTTAWA, May 16. — Sir William Stavert, financier, Montreal, gave the banking and commerce committee of the House of Commons yesterday afternoon a review of the causes of bank failures in the past 30-odd years with a suggestion of a remedy for the evils revealed.

The remedy which he proposed was to add to the amendments made last session an organization presided over by a banker of experience, who would receive reports from all banks. He would examine bank statements and value assets, and would communicate his criticisms to the general managers. The head of this organization would report to the Finance Minister with recommendations. He should also have authority to confer with a committee of the bankers' association. Sir William suggested that the head of the proposed organization would be well paid and should be appointed by the chief justice of the supreme court to remove him from politics.

Eight Failures.

Sir William led up to his statement regarding a remedy by stating that he had acted as liquidator in connection with eight bank failures, beginning with the Pictou bank in 1889-9 and up to the Sovereign bank.

"You have disposed of the remains of many banks," suggested A. R. McMaster, Independent, Brome.

Sir William smilingly agreed. He went on to say that the failures were generally the result of one or a few irregularities, in defiance of well known banking principles. The beginnings were usually reasonably conservative losses, increased by insidious growth. An officer with the necessary knowledge could restore the position of these loans.

Free From Politics.

After Sir William had set forth his proposal, Mr. McMaster asked why he favored appointment by the Chief Justice.

"In a recent case,' replied Sir William, "it is said there was in effect government inspection, and no action was taken. If the appointment was purely non-political the public would have an opportunity of getting a better selection than if political."

Mr. McMaster asked if Sir William considered the Chief Justices during the past 25 years were more competent judges of a good supervisor than the finance ministers during those years.

"Only if advised by general managers and presidents of banks," was the reply.

"Should there be a limit upon bank mergers?" asked W. F. McLean, Conservative, South York.

"Bank mergers cannot take place without the consent of the Finance Minister," replied Sir William."There are objections to them on the part of the public."

"There are reasons why financiers favor them as in England, where there are only five banks for forty millions of people."

"Is there any objection," asked G. G. Coote, Progressive, Macleod, "to having placed up in each bank receiving deposits, of a notice saying the government assumes no responsibility for deposits."

"I cannot answer that question," answered Sir William, and the committee rose till Tuesday morning.

(By Mrs. A. F. Calder.)

It seems to me ver' funny, how de poet-folks vill sing,
About de leetle birds, or bees, or any trifling ting,
Dey vill wax mighty eloquent, and rave just by de hour,
Of de great and malvellous beauties of de foliage and de flower;
And how de grass vas growing green upon de neighboring hills,
Oh how de golden sunshine, from his fiery car Sol spills,
Else maype of de slushy Spring, or Winter's swirling snow,
And heaps of tings, dot don't amount to pins von single row.

Now, were I of de poet-tribe, vhih tank my stars I'm not,
I'd sing of someting sensible, and not such tommy rot,
I would warble 'bout de onion, dot really vos vorth while,
And has dese common leetle tings, every von beat a mile;
Von richly perfumed onion appeals more strong to me,
Den all de orer kinds of fruit dat in de garden be,
De onion vas not selfish, its fragrance rare to hide,
But free bestows on friends, and foes its fragrance far and wide.

Vonce on a time, now in de past, a very longis' while,
De people dined on onions, down in Egypt by de Nile,
An' eber since dot distant date, mit all de human race,
We find de good ole onion have held held von spicuous place,
It always does de banquet grace, or baked or boiled or fried,
In soup or salad, savory sauce, in pickle on in pied;
De onion vas so many times, von useful friend indeed,
It mak de unwelcome guest depart, jest mit his highest speed.

It vas one safeguard for de sweet, young, unprotected miss,
Most reliable to ward away de stealer of de kiss.
Ven yo vas struck dry-eyed, because yo mother-in-law vas dead,
It vill supply de needful tears, dot yo am bound to shed;
Der am heaps o' talk about de lash to keep de country clear
Of crime, ont mak' bad foks behave, for punishment de fear,
But von certain, sure deterrent vas, de fear to be confined
In de same prison cell, mit von who vas on onions dined.

COMMENT ON THE BUDGET

OTTAWA, May 16. Canadian Press. — Mr. Crerar, in a comprehensive speech, paid tribute to the Right Hon. Mr. Fielding as one who occupies the most prominent place in public life of the whole community, and who "stands forth as a nexample to public men."

He had not made a close analysis of the debt statement concerning which the Premier and Mr. Meighen had argued. During Mr. Meighen's speech the surplus appeared to be vanishing into thin air, but Mr. King seemed to have another side of the argument. The purpose of national bookkeeping was that the public should be fully informed as to the exact position of the national finances. As to national expenditure the nature of the expenditure must govern its treatment in the national accounts.

The reduction in taxation was very important, said Mr. Crerar, and the present budget was the first step in that direction. Mr. Crerar declared that what the West looked for was the development of natural resources rather than the development of artificial industries. Of what value, he asked, was protection to the country which produced from its natural resources of agriculture, mining and forests, a great deal more than it could consume? Markets for Canada's natural products was the principal need of the Dominion. He deplored the fact that Canada had dedefeated the opportunity to establish reciprocity with the United States.

Hon. J. B. Baxter, Conservative, St. John, said that acting Minister of Finance Robb was "walking with stumbling feet along a path he did not know, driven by opportunism of a once historic party."

Conservatives Forget.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe described the budget as a Liberal budget, based on the traditional policy of the Liberal party, based not on free trade, but on freer trade. It was finding favor with the whole country, and would still find further favor when the gloom and pessimism spread by the leader of the Opposition, was finally dispelled. The budget had removed an appreciable part of the burden of taxation from the shoulders of the Canadian people. It was noticeable, he said, that the Conservatives forgot their talk of 'stability in the tariff when an increase was suggested. 'Stability' was infringed only when a reduction was suggested.

High protection was as destructive to revenue as free trade. When the tariff was high enough it kept out imports on which duties were charged. Also Canada must be prepared to buy in markets where it sought to sell. He believed the budget would reduce the cost of living nad afford some measure of alleviation to all classes of citizens of the burden of high prices.

In a tilt with Sir Henry Drayton, Hon. Mr. Lapointe told him that he "muttered too much, and that he preached blue ruin and spread reports of the closing down of "bogus factories" as a result of the budget.

T. W. Caldwell, Progressive, Carleton, N.B., succeeded Mr. LaPointe, and declared that it was unfair to accuse the government of partiality to the farmers. Nobody could view the farmers condition without being struck with the necessity for some measure of relief.

SERVICES AT THE CATHEDRAL

At the service last evening Father McCann delivered a well-reasoned instruction on the particular judgment meted out by God to every man immediately after his death. "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.' 'Heb. X:31.

God's law is written on the heart of every man. Evil seeks to conceal itself. Good will diffuse itself abroad because man of his nature is a moral being. The urging of conscience is insistent even though benumbed by long familiarity with sin. Furthermore to guide us we have the Divine positive law, the Ten Commandments graven deep on the tables of stone. Turn to the nineteenth chapter of Leviticus and learn how God commands obedience to His law. Over and over again He asserts His authority. "I am the Lord your God." "Keep all my precepts and all my judgments and do them for I am the Lord your God."

Out of sorrow and pity for the sad state of fallen man, God in the fullness of time sent Jesus Christ His Only Begotten Son into the world to redeem us. We all know how our Merciful Redeemer went about doing good. He preached a dispensation of mercy and offered Himself a willing victim of atonement for the children of men. However it is very noticeable that as His days upon earth were drawing to a close His words of love and encouragement turn to words of admonition and warning. If you read the twenty-third chapter of St. Matthew you will find there woe piled upon woe against the deceitful hardened sinner. You may read there the greatest invective ever hurled against malefactors in the tide of time.

Our Divine Master came as a benign Redeemer; He went about doing good to all; He proclaimed Him self teacher, shepherd and judge. He left the world without judging it, but He told us that He will come again with great power and majesty to fulfil the prerogative of judge. "For as lightning cometh out of the east and appeareth even unto the west, so shall the coming of the son of man be."

We know His law. We have the means of observing. He will demand a strict accounting. He has said so in no uncertain terms. Every man will be judged immediately after death because there is no delay in Divine justice.

It is after the custom of those who watch by the side of the dying man, to say on witnessing his last convulsive gasp, "it is all over", "do not cry: do not worry." Ah! my dear men it is not all over. Eternity is just begun. Is it all over with the criminal when he is arraigned before the jury? Is it all over when sentence is pronounced and the prison term is begun? Is it all over when the day of execution is decreed? Why cannot we be reasonable men when it is question of grevious offense against God's law? We recognize the wisdom and justice of the state when a dangerous criminal is executed. Yet as far as this world is concerned the punishment is eternal for the criminal. He is forever blotted out here below: He no longer enjoys the light and the heat and the beauty of this world; and the grave conceals him forever from his companions and friends who once loved him. The murderer is hunted down and put to death by his fellowmen in order that good citizen may live in peace and security. Has God no right to protect His innocent children who keep His law? Must they be scandalized and suffer continually? God has the right for He is the source of all authority. Let every soul be subject to higher power for there is no power but from God." Rom. XIII:1.

God has established His law. He has promulgated it in the heart and conscience of every rational creature He has written it large so that all who run may read. He will judge us according to that law. While your relatives proportioning your hard earned treasure you have already been assigned to eternity of weal or woe. You have stood alone before your God.

However, my dear men for us God is still the kind teacher and the Good Shepherd, the Lamb of God, who takest away the sins of the world. No matter how the world goes against us no matter how men may hate us, no matter how we have sinned, we can still say God loves me. Is it not sufficient? Let us then strive to serve him faithfully; let us make use of the powerful and abundant means of salvation, which He has purchased for us at such a terrible price. One day He will say to us, "Come my good and faithful servants possess the kingdom prepared for you.

ASKS CABINET TO HELP HOME BANK DEPOSITORS

TORONTO, May 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Headed by D. J. Sinclair, M.P. Tilsonburg, and I. E. Weldon, K.C., joint liquidators of the Home Bank, a deputation which included nearly a dozen members of the Provincial Legislature, waited upon the members of the Provincial Cabinet yesterday, requesting that the Ontario Government express its concurrence in the view that the Home Bank depositors should be repaid by the Dominion government.

"They asked us to concur in their view," stated the Premier afterward, "that the Home Bank depositors should be paid by the Dominion Government. By giving expression to that view, I asked them if their view was that no such legislation be passed and they said they didn't know whether it would or not. I pointed out that it would scracely be proper for us to anticipate any action of the Dominion Government in a matter that was entirely within their jurisdiction."

CANADA TO GET 2,000 SETTLERS

Large Shipments Will Arrive at the Ports of Halifax and Quebec Over the Week-end.

MONTREAL, Q., May 16.—Close upon 2,200 new settlers will arrive in Canada over the week end through the ports of Quebec and Halifax, according to reports received yesterday by Mr. James Morrison, general passenger agent in charge of the steamship traffic, Canadian National Railways, and will proceed to Montreal in six special trains over the National system. Of the above number 1,560 will disembark at Quebec and the remainder at Halifax.

The White Star Dominion liner Regina is expected to arrive at Quebec late on Saturday from Liverpool and Belfast with 722 passengers. Numbered among these are four specially conducted parties, these having been brought to Canada by the Ontario Government, the Salvation Army and the British Dominions Immigration Society. These are for the most part new settlers destined for points in Ontario and Western Canada. In addition to these are a party of Dutch immigrants who are settling in the neighborhood of Chatham, Ontario. The Ausonia of the Cunard Line, is also due at Quebec some time on Saturday fom Southampton and Cherbourg with 516 passengers, including a special party being brought to Canada under the auspices of the Church Army and who are destined for Western Ontario points. Another steamer due to arrive at Quebec Saturday is the Anchor Donaldson Liner Saturnia, with 268 new settlers from Glasgow.

There were two arrivals at Halifax yesterday. The New Amsterdam of the Holland American Line, from Amsterdam, arrived with 97 passengers and the Canopic of the White Star Line from Hambourg and Southampton with 209 passengers.

To-day will see the arrival of the Swedish American Liner Stockholm from Scandinavian ports with 176 passengers, while to-morrow the Lapland of the Red Star Line will arrive from Antwerp and Southampton with 99 passengers.

La Bourdonkis, a steamer of the French line from Bordeaux is expected to land passengers at Halifax on Sunday. All will proceed to Montreal by special trains over the Canadian National Railways.

JAPANESE EMPEROR'S HEALTH FAILS

TOKIO, May 16.—(Associated Press).—The Department of the Imperial Household is reported to have decided that the Emperor will not attend the State banquet in Tokio May 25 in celebration of the wedding of the Prince Regent. The Emperor's mental condition is given as the reason for the decision. A recent Household Department bulletin said that His Majesty's mental condition had become worse during the last 18 months, his powers of speech and memory having perceptibly declined.

WRECK OF BANK LAID AT DOORS PROMINENT MEN

White Ignored Danger Signals; Drayton Didn't Care a Whittle What Became of the Home Bank, and Fielding Forgot About It, Says Depositors' Counsel.

CLAIM PRESENTED

OTTAWA, May 16 (Canadian Press)—"We had a trinity of negligence—Sir Thomas White, Sir Henry Drayton, and Right Hon. W. S. Fielding. I charge these three gentlemen with being parties to the wreck of this bank."

In these words, W. T. J. Lee, counsel for depositors of the wrecked Home Bank, this morning, before the McKeown Commission, summarized his claim against hte Government for reimbursement.

While Sir Thomas White, when finance minister, had ignored danger signal after danger signal, he had, at least, made a genuine effort to improve the bank from within. But, Mr. Lee claimed, his successors in office had been builty of negligence and inaction, in the face of increasing danger.

"Sir Henry Drayton never seems to have cared a whittle what became of this bank," asserted Mr. Lee. "He didn't care whether the depositors lost all their money or not during his term of office.

"As for the Right Hon. W. S. Fielding he had apparently forgotten that there was any Home Bank at all."

Mr. Lee said he could not find anything to show that the present finance minister had written a single letter to find out about the condition of the bank.

"Sir Henry Drayton did nothing, Mr. Fielding did less. The bank plunges on the rocks and sixty thousand epople lose their money," said Mr. Lee. "Are these finance ministers coming back to return us our money?" He had not observed any indication of such philanthropic intention on their part.

Mr. Lee's argument which opened yesterday and occupied a large part of this morning's sitting of the McKeown Commission, emphasized the warnings of dangerous conditions of the bank which, he claimed, were repeatedly given to finance ministers over a period of years. He claimed that if the public had been in possession of the facts which Sir Thomas White knew, they would not have trusted the bank with their money.

A GREAT PROGRAM AT THE ROYAL

Special Children's Matinee Saturday -- Lloyd Hamilton's Latest Comedy.

There is an exceptionally fine bill at the Royal for to-night, to-morrow's matinee and evening. Owen Moode and Bessie Love are starring in a First National production, "The Torment," a wonderfully good picture. Two great comedies, including Lloyd Hamilton's latest, "Lonesome," and the serial story, "The Trail." Don't miss it. The programme is good.

KING ALFONSO HAS CANADIAN POULTRY

OTTAWA, May 16.—(Canadian Press.)— King Alfonso of Spain, who with the Queen and Crown Prince visited the Canadian exhibits at the World's Poultry Congress at Barcelona, Spain yesterday, accepted as a gift from the Dominion a pen of white leghorns, according to cable advice received this morning at the Department of Agriculture from T. C. Elford, Dominion poultry husbandman.

The Royal party was received by Mr. Elford and his assistant, E. R. Hoades, of Ottawa. Subsequently Mr. Elford was the guest of the King at dinner.

Shiny Mahogany Potentate From Africa Accompanied By His Worst Enemies Was Received By French Government Today

(By John D. Gandt, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, May 16.—A sohrt, shiny, mahogany colored little negro, who claims to be a direct descendant of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, was received in Paris to-day with all the pomp and dignity the French Government could evoke.

President Millerand and Premier Poincare, with a guard of honor in the background, were at the station to shake hands gravely with Ras Taffari, King of Abyssinia, when the train pulled in.

The dusky potentate, dressed in an amazing costume with twisted blue Oriental trousers clinging tightly to his ankles, and a gorgeous white silk cape trimmed with gold floating from his shoulder, gravely returned the salutes and reviewed the guard of honor.

Then he sat bolt upright beside President Millerand as a cortege escorted him to the Royal apartments at the Quai-1 D' Orsay and returned the stares of curious throngs on the boulevards.

Ras Taffari, as King of Abyssinia, is a man France is anxious to please. For his part, his thoughtfulness has exceeded the usual bounds. He has brought with him lions, camels, leopards and other wild beasts of his native land as gifts for President Millerand and other European rulers.

The King was accompanied by three chieftains, who were almost equally gorgeous in bright blue silk. These are reported to be his strongest enemies in Abyssinia, whom he did not care to leave at home to plot against him when he decided upon a European tour, so he brought them along where he could keep an eye on them.

Canadian Stock Exchange and Mines — New York Stock Exchange and Curb Prices

TO-DAY'S QUOTATIONS AND OPINION AND REVIEWS OF THE MARKETS.

MINING MARKET

The mining market this morning was quiet with some stocks advancing three points. The bulk of the trading was done in Dome which was off 15 cents. The Toronto and Montreal Boards were quiet with the most trading being done in Smelters which advanced 16 41 3-4. The British Empire steel preferred issues were firm and advanced fractionally. Toronto rails were active and sold at the highest for some time past. Closing at 90 1-4.

The New Market was a very dull affair. There was no overnight news to give, even the professionals, a line on what to do with the few stocks that were active. The strong stocks of yesterday were inclined to sell off this morning, while it was the reverse of the weak ones of yesterday.

ST. JAMES CHOIR PRESENT CANTATA

"The Building of the Ship" Under Direction of Fred Chenhall W. Musical Achievementas

St. James' choir concert was held last evening, with a good attendance of parishioners and friends. The cantata, "The Building of the Ship" was given, in excellent style, by the choir, under the direction of the church organist, Mr. Fred Chenhall. This was the first cantata ever put on by the choir of St. James', which is a young and energetic organization, with many good voices, which were enhanced in numbers by members of the choirs of St. Paul's and Trinity churches, numbering altogether about forty voices.

The cantata was a very effective rendition of the musical setting of Henry W. Longfellow's poem, "The Building of the Ship." The nautical atmosphere of many of the choruses has a good contrast in the love theme which runs through the production, adding color to the story, which is carried out in music of attractive, pretty type, in the solos, trios and choruses in ensemble and for male and female voices. Special assisting soloists for the occasion were two members of St. Paul's church choir, Miss Greta LeBarr and Mr. F. C. Clark. Mr. Chenhall directed his singers, while Mr. Martin Chenahll, senior, played the organ and Miss Isobel Donnelly supplied piano accompaniments.

The cantata, which progresses through an hour of music, was well renrered. St. James' choir is well balanced and takes an interest in its performances that makes them very pleasing. It was melodious, tuneful production, very creditable to the singers and their young conductor, who has spent much time in training them for the event, with a very satisfatcory result. The music to the poem was composed by Harvey Lahee, a French musician, and its atmosphere is bright, gay and descriptive.

Soloists from the choir itself were Miss Florence Saunders, soprano, Miss Mary Wood, alto, Mr. Bert Cutmore, tenor, and Mr. Ed Rowe, baritone, all of whose work was eminently satisfactory. Miss Greta LeBarr made a very fine impression in her vocal work as special soloist, while Mr. C. C. Clark also was received with enthusiasm. Miss LeBarr's brilliant, attractive soprano was accorded renewed applause for her first number, the pretty "Piper of Love," followed by an encore in the dainty "Lilac Time" (Perspicacity). Her second selection was "The Market." Mr. Clark's sweet, clear tenor was heard to much advantage in "Down the Vale," with its encore, "Sunrise and You."

During an intermission, Rev. J. D. Richardson spoke briefly.

MACCABEES INSTALLED OFFICERS IN HIVE 336

A very successful meeting of the Lady Maccabees was held on Thursday afternoon, when Provincial Commander Mr. Green, of Toronto, was present and installed the officers in Hive No. 336. The following are the officers installed:

Commander, Mrs. E. Langton.
Lieut.-Commander Mrs. M. Gilbert.
Chaplain, Mrs. M. Hawkes.
Sergeant, Miss A. Post.
Sentinel, Mrs. H. Wright.
Picket, Miss E. Theobald.
Deputy and Record Keeper, Mrs. M. Post.

After the installing of the officers, a very pleasant afternoon was spent in putting on the degree work, which was enjoyed by all present. The meeting closed with a hearty vote of tranks to Provincial Commander Sir Knight Green and Deputy Sir Knight Gilbert for their assistance in installing the officers and putting on the degree work.

BUTTER FACTORY BURNED

ST. FERDINAND D'HALIFAX, Megantic County, Que., May 16. — Through a fire which broke out here in a butter factory belonging to Francis Masse the village was menaced with destruction and it was only after several hours' work by volunteer firemen that the flames were controlled. The losses are estimated at $40,000.

Of the total area of Switzerland, 28.4 per cento is unproductive.

A RECITAL

The first of a duo of recitals by the large classes of vocal and instrumental pupils of Mr. George H. King was given last evening in Trinity, Reid Street, Hall. The next recital will be given on Thursday of next week. As usual with Mr. King's recitals, there was a splendid attendance, the big hall being packed with the friends and relatives of the performers, who represented pupils of the senior and junior grades in Mr. King's classes. Their work, both vocal and instrumental was excellent, and showed promising ability in most instances. Mr. King's careful attention to the theory of music, his insistence on important elements in time, tone and rhythm, were demonstrated in a pleasing programme. His vocal pupils sang in fine style in a series of soprano, contralto, tenor, and baritone solos that received much applause. Outstanding in the instrumental work was the performances of the boy pupils, with special applause for the very clever work of a promising musician, Walter Townsend. The following was the programme:—

Piano solo, "Dancing Along" (Joseph McGrath), Miss Isobell Lillico; piano solo, "Briar Rose" (G. F. Hamer), Miss Helen Donaldson; soprano solo, "Follow the Piper" (Herbert Brewer), Miss Teressa Thompson; piano solo, "At the Skating Rink" (Hopkirk), Miss Marion Downing; piano solo, "A Dream Song" (R. R. Forman), Miss Margaret Warne; soprano solo, "A Song of Songs" (Moya), Miss Ilein McKim, piano solo, "Victory March" (Adol, Weidig), Wilbert Ward; baritone soloe "I'll Sing to You" (Jack Thompson)- Mr. James W. EASTERN STAR HAD RECEPTION

The Reception Was Given to Miss Winifred Andrews and Mr. Harold Freeman.

A reception in honor of Miss Winifred Andrus and Mr. Harold Freeman was held last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Sexsmith, 50 Jackson Avenue, when about thirty officers and members of Eastern Star, L.O.B.A., gathered together for a social evening. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers for the occasion. Card playing and games were enjoyed during the early part of the evening, after which a Mock Marriage Ceremony was performed. The acting bride was Miss F. Hill, the groom, B. Wylder; the attendants were R. Sexsmith and J. Brown The little maid of honor being Verna Huffman with A. Hufferman as officiating clergyman, the ceremony being performed under an arch of white and pink with wedding bells. The wedding march was played by Miss Jean Anderson of the Peterborough Conservatory.

A beautiful tea set of Lemoge's china was presented by Miss Rose Sexsmith to Miss Andrus, and Mr. Freeman, on behalf of the lodge, and the following address was read by Mrs. R. Huffman.

Dear Winifred and Harold,

We, your friends and fellow workers of Eastern Star, L.O.B.A., No. 525, have assembled here this evening to convey greetings to you on your approaching marriage.

Your work in our Order has always been efficiently and faithfully given and we feel confident that you both will endeavour to labor as zealous as ever for the glorious cause of our beloved Order.

We ask you to accept this gift as a slight token of our regard and assure you both of our best wishes for your future happiness, and hope that as many times as you will have occasion to use these dishes they will serve to remind you of your many hungry friends who will be calling on you from time to time, feeling sure of a hearty welcome

Again assuring you of our best wishes for your future happiness, we are your sisters and brothers of Eastern Star, L.O.B.A., No. 525.

Miss Andrus and Mr. Freeman gratefully acknowledged the gift and spoke in very warm terms to those present.

About eleven-thirty refreshments were served. Among other friends present were: Mrs. Gerrard, Mrs. D. Foster, Miss Marion Hill, Mr. R. Gutherie, Miss L. Staples, Miss V. Huffman, Miss Anderson, Master Earl Huffman, and Mr. Staples.

FIRE DEPARTMENT GET NEW TIRES FOR TRUCK

One of the chemical and hose trucks of the Peterboro Fire Department was taken to Lindsay on Tuesday and equipped with new tires. The tires are of vacuum cup and anti-skid quality. They are made of solid rubber, size 38 by 4, and were purchased at 33 1-3 per cent cheaper than the ones that were on before. Although the hard tires will make the riding a little more rough there will be no chance of a blow-out, which would be very dangerous if it happened when the machine was going at top speed. The tires are of a very fine quality and will wear much longer than the ordinary tires. Chief Gimblett is very pleased with them.

MURRAY STREET HELD A BANQUET

About One Hundred Men of the Church Congregation Were Present

The men of Murray Street Baptist Church held a very successful inaugural banquet last night in the Sunday School Hall, at which nearly a hundred men were present. They sat down at 6.30 o'clock, and the supper and programme were concluded by 8.30 p.m.

The keynote of the gathering was "Fellowship," and the enthusiasm with which each item on the programme was received augurs well for the future success of the social side of the work among the men of Murray Street.

A large share of the success of the evening was due to Mr. J. F. H. Wallace, president of the men of St. Paul's, whose paper on "Irish Wit and Humor" was heartily applauded. Mr. Wallace also conveyed greetings from the men of St. Paul's, who have been successfully conducting men's meetings for several months.

A song sheet was placed at each plate, and many times the eating was interrupted by Song Leader C. S. Browne, who insisted upon everyone joining in the singing. A feature inflicted upon the gathering was a duet, "Smiles"—Walter Kidd and Charlie Westbrooke. Mr. Joe Wearing, when called upon for a solo, responded with "Daddy." Six young men, led by Graham Eastwood, got through "Pack up your Troubles, etc.," and when an encore was insisted upon (particularly by Mr. Wearing), they replied with "Old Black Joe," taking a position behind Mr. Wearing's chair. The Collegiate trio, Messrs. Zavitz, Graham, and Browne, also contributed.

Mr. Gordon Matthews, the president, was chairman, and outlined some of the programme for the future, as did Dr. Rose. Both were brief in their remarks.

Miss Trucie Pearson and Dr. Jethro Graham kindly contributed solos, and Miss Muriel Bridge was accompanist.

The Men's Executive has ambitious plans for future gatherings which will commence after the summer holiday season. Included is the entertainment of the Choir of the church and also a special men's service some Sunday evening for which a men's choir will be recruited. It is confidently expected that the men of Murray Street will 'know each other' before many months have passed.

The Ladies' Association provided the supper last night, and they propose using the proceeds towards the Parsonage fund.

The pretty floral decorations were supervised by Mrs. Gordon Matthews.

THE BRITISH HOUSE HAD A MIXED GRILL

LONDON, May 16. — (Canadian Press).—A mixed grill was dished up by the House of Commons last night when the Home Office estimates were under discussion. Arthur Henderson, Home Secretary, was bombarded with a variety of subjects, like lotteries, police wage disputes and alien labor. As regards aliens, he said that even the Labor Government could not be anxious to admit them if they displaced British workers.

G. F. Hohler, K.C. (Unionist), amid Labor interruptions, charged the Government with lack of courage in going back on their previous decision.

D. Kirkwood, Labor member for Dumbarton, particularly annoyed Hohler and drew from him reference about "a gentleman from some Scottish place who speaks an unintelligible lingo."

Kirkwood rose and warmly replied, "The language I speak has been challenged by an Englishman over there. That language, sir, is the language of men who saved you from the Germans."

MAN MAKES THREATS WHEN SENT TO JAIL

TORONTO, May 16.—(Canadian Press.)—"Though I am put behind prison bars, I will strike when I come out, remember that, and I will be taken out either dead or alive," said William Leslie, former leader of British harvesters, a self-styled Communist and a friend of Lenine, in police court here to-day, when he was sentenced to six months' imprisonment following his conviction on a charge of begging.

According to the police Leslie was the principle speaker at a meeting of Communists last evening.

SAY DR. SUN YAT SEN DID NOT DIE TUESDAY

HONG KONG, May 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Dr. Sun Yat Sen, president of the South China Republic, whose death was reported Tuesday, is alive and well, his confidential secretary declared emphatically today to representatives of the Associated Press at Canton.

Upon being assured that the President was still alive, the correspondent requested an interview with him, but this was refused.

STRANGLED IN HIS HOME IN FIXING DUMB WAITER

MONTREAL, May 16.— (Canadian Press.)— While adjusting a shelf in a dumb waiter at a Sherbrooke street apartment house last night, Rankin Duff, 30, accidentally brushed against a row of push buttons which started the mechanism in opertaion. The dumb waiter shot upwards and caught Duff's head, choking him to death.

FILIPINO LABOR MAY BE MENACE

The Only Way to Control the Large Filipino Population Would Be Through Filipino Leadership.

HONOLULU, May 16.—Unless means are devised to instruct Filipinos, a large number of whom have been brought to Hawaii by the sugar planters' association, in American standards and customs, the territory will face a menace such as no other community has encountered, H. W. Metcalf, superintendent of the Filipino center of the Hawaiian Board of Missions, has told the Chamber of Commerce here.

Failure to take action previously along these lines is the direct cause of the present strike of some Filipino plantation laborers, Mr. Metcalf said. The only way to control the large Filipino population would be largely through Filipino leadership, and Filipinos population would be largely through Filipino leadership, and Filipinos should be trained for this purpose, he continued.

Filipinos come to Hawaii with no conception of the value of money, and look upon work as punishment and not as a necessity to sustain life, the speaker continued. He advocated the employment of 20 Filipinos by leading commercial concers so that they might be trained, and in turn train their countrymen later. He said they should be started in the lowest positions at small pay and be permitted to develop gradually.

"In this way it would be possible to produce Filipino leaders who would understand the customs, ideals and practices of the country in which they live. When it is considered that the life of Filipinos in their homeland is entirely different in every respect from their existence here, it is a marvel to me that these men have adapted themselves to local conditions as well as they have."

Mr. Metcalf said that the Filipinos now compose the second largest racial group in the territory, being led only by the Japanese.

Jewels Stolen When Actress Left Rooms.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Jewels valued at between $20,000 and $30,000 were stolen from the West 72nd street apartment of Laura Sonderson, musical revue actress, on May 8 it became known to-day, despite efforts of the police to keep the robbery a secret.

The theft was committed by thieves who had lured the actress from her apratment b ya telephone message that her husband was seriously ill.

Kincardine Child Drowned Off Dock.

KINCARDINE, Ont. May 16.—Edward, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ryan, who was missing since five o'clock yesterday afternoon was found at 7 o'clock by a search party drowned under the North Dock close by the Lighthouse. Doubtless the little fellow was playing beneath the dock and slipped into deep water on the harbor side. Despite all efforts of resuscitation he was pronounced dead by Dr. Ferguson when he arrived, probably having been in the water over an hour.

Boas.

The treatment used was alternate radium and X-ray.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL

"TORMENT" IS EPIC OF SCREEN THRILLS.

Maurice Tourneur Adds to His Laurels as a Director of Artistic and Vivid Productions.

Maurice Tourneur has long enjoyed renown as a producer of beautiful and artistic pictures. But with the advent of "Torment," the First National picture which opened at the Royal Theatre last night for a week's run, one more adjective must be employed to properly describe his work. It is "thrilling."

Nothing that this writer has been in months surpasses "Torment" in point of thrills, and by this we do not mean to infer that it is inartistic or unreal, for there are some scenes at sea that take on the look of a master's painting, and moreover it requires the finest artistry to produce such thrills.

"Torment" is vivid, interesting—from the opening scenes of the Russian revolution to the closing amid the devastation and horror of the Japanese earthquake. Through it all runs the simple story of the love of Marie, a servant girl, portrayed by Bessie Love, for Hansen (Owen Moore), an international crook. And the figure of Jean Hersholt, who will be remembered for his screen portrayal of "The Servant in the House," brings a welcome note of peace to the story.

But in the main the tale is one of life in the raw. Blood-mad revolutionists storm the palace of Boris, a prince of the Russian royal family, in seach of the crown jewels. Escaping, he is pursued over the frozen steppes, until finally he makes his escape and, eventually, his way to America.

Here there is a breath-taking race between an automobile and a train and an attempted hold-up of a speeding express. Relief comes in some beautiful scenes at sea, where the plot of a band of American crooks to deprive the Russian of his gems is hatched.

Just as the spectator is nicely settled in his seat comes the Japanese earthquake. A cameraman with his tripod all set up on the August day when Yokohama was demolished could not have more faithfully pictured the scenes of devastation and horror that follow. A building tumbles. All the characters of the story are in the vaults below. Slowly the chandelier sways. The floor heaves. The wall curves in and out.

Plaster falls. Girders crash to the floor. Marble pillars tumble through the walls to the floor. The walls cave in. And through it all the human insects scurry

One is hurt. None are killed. For days they live, without food and with but a little water, in the vaults. And there comes the climax revealing the true characters of this little group of imprisoned humans.

The thrills alone are worth the price of admission, but there is also a theme which makes the story stand out as one of the finest the screen has every produced.

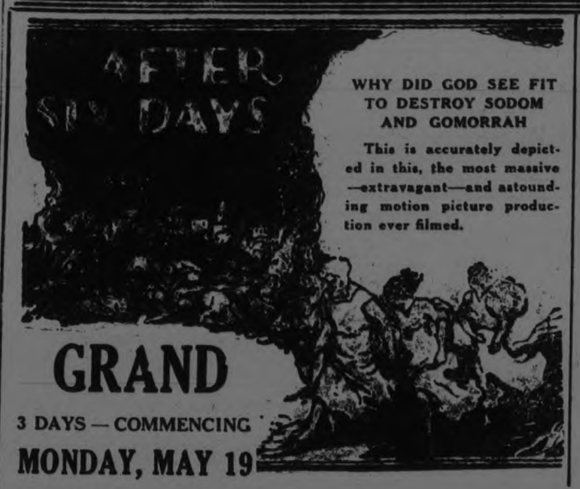
The added attractions are all up to the mark, especially Lloyd Hamilton's comedy, which is crowded with genuine laughs. This programme should draw capacity audiences to the Royal for the balance of this week.

AT THE CAPITOL

There have been plenty of clever dog actors in the movies in the past, but possibly "Strongheart" is the best of them all. He has made his debut as a real screen star in "The Love Master," the Capitol feature production for this week-end, and his admirers will be augmented by the almost human demeanor and actions of the big animal, with his soft eyes, and intelligent, pointed ears. "Strongheart" has his mate with him in teh picture, Lady Julie, the white-haired, mild-mannered foil to his gallant demeanor. Strongheart has the title role of an interesting picture of the Northern wastes, in a production that abounds in scenic beauty and clear pictures of wonderful charm. It is the dog that holds the stage throughout, with his splendid acting and his air of knowing all about his part in a big picture. Lillian Rich has the part of Sally, the heroine, and Harold Austin, is David, the hero, living in the North, at La Portage, with its few inhabitants, and caging the grey timber wolves and the black bear of the district. David has rescued Strongheart from a cruel master, and lives in fear of the law. He loves Sally, but has a rival in "Smiling" Joe LeRoy (John J. Richardson) the fur trapper of the district, and partner in fur thefts with the Ghost, a white-garbed silent man (Joe Barrel.) The two plan to steal valuable furs, and (Joe Barrel wishes also to marry the pretty, dark-eyed Sally, who is in love with David. In this triangular episode, the big dog plays a fine part. It is in the scene where death hovers over David, and Strongheart drives away the shadowy intruder, that he does some of his finest, most human, acting.

The comedy is "The Cake Eater," with Will Rogers as the star, involved in the meshes of the romance of two romantic spinsters, who buy a Western ranch, and then fall in love with the principal cowboy of the group. Rogers has some hectic experiences with the two ladies.

The vaudeville number is an eccentric musical offering by two men, the Australian LaMerts, singers, whistlers and piano monologists. A novel act that gives an impression of finished ease, includes a good deal of snappy piano music, a new whistling series, with a good imitation of the Scotch pipes, some catchy dialogue, and a clever series of piano monologue work with one of the men doing the English Johnny "monocle" number, and another whimsical bit of nonsense in a brief monologue drama (illustrated with music) portraying a vivid romance. This was an unusual and entertaining morsel. The two have some popular numbers in piano and whistling duets.



WHY DID GOD SEE FIT TO DESTROY SODOM AND GOMORRAH

"AFTER SIX DAYS"

Weiss Brothers' Ten Reel Spectacle a Picturesque Achievement That Will Entertain Everybody Regardless of Religion.

Reviewed by Roger Ferri.

"After Six Days" is a showman's production of the most lavish and luxurious sort ever brought to this country from the Italian studios. It is a colorful spectacle that will still be making money for exhibitors when all other pictures now on the market have ceased to interest the public.

It deals with the Old Testament but in a way that gives the production a maximum entertainment value that will make it an easy matter for exhibitors to not only hold the interest and attention of their patrons undivided, but incidentally to secure the co-operation of the bluest of "blue" advocates. Here is a picture that defeats the reformers at their own game, for the production is not only beautiful in scenic settings, pretentious in its making and entertainingly interesting in its interpretation of the Old Testament, but it reaches out to everybody regardless of religion.

If a showman had been told five years ago that the Bible could be reproduced either on the stage or screen for entertainment purposes, he would have immediately hopped into a fit of laughter. Yet, it's been done, for "After Six Days" is the best kind of entertainment, the sort that will bring to the moving picture theatres thousands who have steered clear of them—and more than that it furnishes convincing proof that the screen is a blessing to civilization.

"After Six Days" is seemingly one endless series of spectacularly marvelous sets. This reviewer has never seen anything so beautiful, so picturesque as the pretentious palaces, old world streets, etc., as are reproduced in this feature. There has been no exaggeration, no effort made to distort. Briefly, it tells the story embodied in the Old Testament in a more comprehensive, emphatic and concincing manner than the text itself.

Cinematographically, it is a masterpiece. The photography represents the last word in that art. The creation of man and his mate, the stars, the sun, the moon, the parting of the waters, the floods, the story of Joseph, and countless other episodes in the Old Testament are all convincingly picturized.

Children will find in this production an incentive for reading the Bible. The older folk will marvel at its beauty, its realism, and its enormity. In brief, there is no one to whom this production does not appeal.

At the Grand Theatre, commencing Monday, May 19.

AT THE REGENT

"The lights went out, and two guns blazed in the dark, and a woman screamed, and the lights went on, and—" It's the heart-gripping thrill in Metro's motion picture of Robert W. Service's famous poem, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," produced by Sawyer-Lubin. See it now at the Regent Theatre.

His wife, who had gone with Dan McGrew, was now the adored dancer of Broadway's Boulevard Cabaret. He followed her there, accused her of her unfaithfulness. A fight. A chafing dish upset, and the cabaret in flames, creeping near him, savage, hungry as the flames in his own heart! See what happened in "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," the Metro picture, produced by Sawyer-Lublin, from Robert W. Service's great poem.

"A bunch of the Boys were whooping it up in the Malamute Saloon; the kid that handles the music box was hitting a jag-time tune; back of the bar, in a solo game, sat Dangerous Dan McGrew, and watching his luck was his light-o'-love, the Lady that's known as Lou." Then out of the night, on vengeance bent, came the man of Lou's past! See "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," the Metro picture, produced by Sawyer-Lubin from Robert W. Service's classic poem.

If you want to see soul-stirring romance and thrilling adventure laid in the South Sea Isles, New York and the Yukon; if you want to be entertained as you have never been entertained before, go to the Regent Theatre now and see "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," the Metro picturization of the famous poem by Robert W. Service.

With the police at his heels as a result of having smashed a shop window and stolen a toy to give his boy for Christmas, Jim darted into an alley and came face to face with the wife who had deserted him years ago. He trembled with rage and . . A tense moment in Metro's "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," Regent Theatre, on now.

A poem known from coast to coast, written by Robert W. Service, famous poet of the Klondike fastnesses, has been made into a gripping, living-breathing picture of love and revenge by Metro, entitled "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," now playing at the Regent Theatre.

He accused his wife of infidelity and then found out that she had been true to him. To make atonement he crossed the vast desert wastes that led to the snow country and then in a Klondike saloon he found her—the reckless and desperate gambling decoy of Dan McGrew.

Romance, thrills, adventure and heartaches set in the most picturesque regions of the earth from Alaska to the South Seas, is the treat in store for you when you see "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," the Metro picturization of Robert W. Service's famous poem, Regent Theatre today.

Who was this man who could play so beautifully and came, no one knew whence? The stranger broke off the tune on the piano with a crash, wheeled around and said!—see this big punch in Metro's "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," Regent Theatre, now on.

Bowling

When the High Rollers and the De Laval come together next Monday in the final game of the City Ten Pin League, it will end one of the most successful season of bowling ever staged in Peterborough.

Like the larger cities Peterborough the most successful seasons of bowling. Bowling has taken a great hold in the larger cities and so it did here. The ladies now play the game and find it healthful and great sport. They were fast to pick it up and soon developed into good bowlers. In fact most of them were on the same par as the men and their scores show that.

Bowling was rather late in getting started, but once under way it was more than a success. One of the first leagues to form in five pins was the Brinton Carpet, who had one of the best seasons of its career. They were followed by the Examiner, whose league also was a great success. The Bell Telephone the Western Clock both had five pin leagues. The Lockworks had a small league near the end of the season.

The Mercantile Five Pin League was formed shortly after the season opened and was a great success from every standpoint.

There were a couple of ladies leagues run. The Western Clock had a successful league as did the Rebekah ladies.

So great a success was the City Ten League that another league had to be run when the season ended. This league will finish next Monday. The Quaker Oats had a ten pin league which was a great success.

Just a week ago Mr. Solomon staged one of the greatest five pin tournaments ever held in this city. Great numbers of bowlers took part and it was a fitting climax to the five pin season.

Besides all the different leagues and other bowling the Belmont Club staged two tournaments, one five and the other ten pins and both went over big. The Canadian Packing office staff held a big ten pin tournament a couple of months ago and it was a big success. The Canadian Packing also had a couple of other bowling novelties.

The ladies had their share of bowling. The Quaker Oats staff put over several big bowling nights as did the Cressman girls, the Canadian Packing, the Western Clock and the business girls of the city. The school teachers were regular attendants at the alleys and some of them were very successful in carrying off some of the great prizes which Mr. Solomon donated to the ladies.

Next year will see an even greater year than this in bowling. The game is taking a great hold on the public and its popularity is assured. The ladies like the game and next season should see even greater numbers playing than this. Bowing is an international success and the amount that play it in the States is more than surprising. Even Toronto is a great example of the game's success. Next year should be a record breaker here.

Mr. Solomon wishes to state that the alleys will be kept open until the warm weather begins. With the weather still cool quite a number of bowlers are still playing and there has been an unusually large amount of ladies at the alleys the past few days. They seem to take advantage of the fact that the leagues have all ended and there is lots of accommodations for them now.

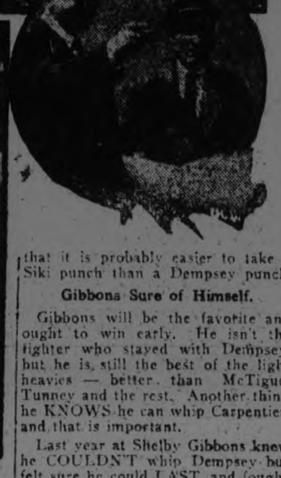
Did Dempsey Fist Weaken Gibbons?

THAT'S A POINT TO CONSIDER IN CONNECTION WITH CARPENTIER BATTLE.

Carpentier and Gibbons Meet at Michigan City, Ind., May 31—Here You See Gibbons' Training Camp, Carpentier in His Newest Pose and Messrs. Kane and Fitzsimmons Looking the Plant Over.



NEW YORK—May 16—In weighing the respective abilities of Messrs. Carpentier and Gibbons, light heavy weights, who battle at Michigan City, Ind., the last of the month, it is well to consider the mailed fist of Jack Dempsey, with which instrument of torture both competing gents are personally acquainted.

Carpentier was unable to survive four rounds with the Dempsey fist in 1921, whereas Gibbons lived through 15 long, gruelling rounds out on the Montana plans last summer and was not once off his feet.

The Frenchman was badly whipped in the region of the kidneys while the battle lasted but he was not subjected to the long, drawn-out, systematic pounding that Gibbons faced.

Carpentier didn't take one-eighth the punishment the St. Paul Irishman was compelled to endure to gain the distinction of having "lasted" with Dempsey, the killer. Even the knockout blow was not a devastating shot. Carpentier was not unconscious and many ringsiders more hardened than gracious, argued that the hero of France had "taken one."

Carp Badly Beaten, Too

How has the Dempsey whipping affected Gibbons? Outwardly he still appears to be the splendid-looking, healthy specimen who squared off so confidently against the champion at Shelby. Inwardly he may be different. No fighter ever recovers fully from a severe walloping.

This seems to me the only hope Carpentier has in the forthcoming fight, and this hope loses its rosy glow of promise when one recalls the beating the invader took from Battling Siki two years ago. The Senegalese cut Carpentier to ribbons and stopped him in the sixth round.

So where Dempsey may have reduced Gibbons' store of vitality to a low point the Siki explosion hardly added anything to Carpentier's stamina and effectiveness—except that it is probably easier to take a Siki punch than a Dempsey punch.

Gibbons Sure of Himself.

Gibbons will be the favorite and ought to win early. He isn't the fighter who stayed with Dempsey, but he is, still the best of the light heavies — better than McTigue, Tunney and the rest. Another thing he KNOWS he can whip Carpentier, and that is important.

Last year at Shelby Gibbons knew he COULDN'T whip Dempsey but felt sure he could LAST, and fought accordingly, losing but lasting.

Carpentier is coming here to get his last shot at the big money. He no longer has any illusions about fame and championships. If he wins he will stay on and fight again. If he loses he will have another bank roll.

Thus the psychology of the two men is widely different. Carpentier's is that of a man facing the inevitable, Gibbons' that of a man getting his big chance.

CHAMPION YANKEES IN AMERICAN LEAGUE RACE

By BILLY EVANS.

NEW YORK.—The Yankees are going to be hard to beat in the American League. Huggins has a great pitching staff. Perhaps some of the veterans are slipping a bit, but it is still the best corps of hurlers in the majors. Pitching wins pennants. Rival American League clubs look over good pitching in every game they oppose the Yankees. Club appears no stronger than last year.

DETROIT.—Ty Cobb has a dangerous club because it can hit. The Tyger problem is second base and pitching. If Detroit gets consistently good pitching, the club is so strong in other departments of play that it is sure to be a contender all the way. The problem is pitching. Without it the Tygers will suffer. Little change in team strength over last year. If Shortstop Rigney's injury keeps him out of the lineup, it will be another serious handicap.

CLEVELAND.—The Indians have strengthened first base at the expense of second and catching. Some of the promising young pitchers may miss the handling of the experienced O'Neill back of the plate. Wamby is a mighty good ball player. He passed to Boston with O'Neill for Burns. Burns will add a batting punch, help the offense. The loss of O'Neill and Wamby may weaken defense.

WASHINGTON.—Much the same ball club as last year with an aggressive, brainy manager, making his major league debut. Under Harris the Washington club is certain to go the limit to win in every game. This is the temperament of Harris that is certain to be taken up by the team. Third base and pitching are the two problems that must be solved. Same club with different spirit.

CHICAGO.—A club that seemed to fail to make the most of its possibilities last season. A new leader in the person of Frank Chance may cause a shakeup in the club that will enable the Sox to make trouble. There seemed to be something lacking last season that kept the apparent strength of the club in the background. White Sox should show improvement and be a better club.

ST. LOUIS.—The condition of Manager George Sisler is the big IF with the Browns. Sisler back in the game, playing the remarkable ball he is capable of when right, makes all the difference in the world to the Browns. Sisler at his best gives a ball club a real punch. Sisler out of it hurts the team's morale. The Browns for that reason are the IF club of the American League.

PHILADELPHIA. — Connie Mack's club was the spring sensation in major league baseball in 1923. It wouldn't be surprising if Mack's club was an all-year sensation in 1924. Mack's hopes are largely built around three recruits, Strand, Simmons and Bishop, stars in the minors. If they deliver in the majors his club looks a certainty for the first division.

BOSTON.—The most improved club in the American League. The addition of three veteran players of the worth of Steve O'Neill, Bill Wambsganss and Bobby Veach is certain to make the Red Sox much more formidable. In addition, Lee Fohl, new manager, has some promising recruits. Improved spirit of the club, plus added confidence, sure to be big factors in team's improved showing.

RESUME OF SLUBS.—New York again appears to be the outstanding team in the American League, with the rest of the field pretty well bunched. The positive statement of the reticent Mr. Mack that the Yankees should again win, with his club second, gives you some idea of what may happen in the American League this summer. The Athletics finished sixth by a nose last season. Seven improved clubs fighting a champion is the dope in the American, with the champ a year older.

MODERN GIRL TIRED

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 14.—The most deadly foe of the girl of today is fatigue, according to Dr. Celia Duel Mosher of Leland Stanford University. "The modern girl raves a short but rich life." Dr. Mosher says. "She fills her life with incessant activities and thus courts nervous bankruptcy."

SPORTING APPEAL TO FRENCH CROWDS

Spectators At Olympic Games Urged to Applaud Victors of All Nationalities.

PARIS, May 15.— An appeal to the public to abstain from all manifestations and protests during the Olympic competitions is made by the French Olympic Committee, in its bulletin.

"The urestrained violence of feelings shown during the Rumania-American rugby football match has been and is a cause of regret," the committee declares. "The Committee appeals to the sportsmanship and fairness of the public, and requests that it act in such a fashion that foreigners coming to the Olympic Games as participants or spectators may leave with excellent remembrance of our hospitality and sporting feelings.

"True sportsmanship applauds the efforts made and the victor, no matters to what nation he belongs. Forty-four nations accepted participation in the games at Paris and we owe to all their representatives the same cheers and the same cordial reception."

PETES PRACTICE AT 1:30 TOMORROW

Central Ontario Leaguers Will Work-Out at Riverside.

The Peterborough Central Ontario League Club will practice at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon at 1.30 o'clock sharp, the workout being called early on account of the Lakeview-Toronto game which will start at 3 o'clock sharp. In view of the fact that the Central Ontario League season will start next Wednesday at Belleville, it is important that every player shall attend Saturday's workout. The cold wet weather has greatly interfered with practice and every opportunity between now and Wednesday must be taken advantage of by the Petes. Players are asked to note that tomorrow's practice is at 1.30 o'clock.

SOCCER NOTES.

On Saturday afternoon, at King Edward Park, the Thistle will play the Quakers in a league game. Kick-off at 3 o'clock prompt. Referee, J. L. Howarth.

The game between the Woollens and Vets scheduled for last evening was postponed owing to the playing pitcher being in unplayable condition.

The Thistle team will be picked from the following players: Curtiss, Rae, Bishop, Anderson, Ross, Jackson, Dawson, McPhail, Melville, Burgess, Richmond, T. Williams, A. Williams, Hutton, and another. All players to be on hand at 2.45.

Tommy Foster turned out for the juniors last evening. He played in the Gordon Cup final for Quakers a few years ago. Also S. [illegible] who played for the Vetes when Woollens played in junior game. Mayor Turner kicked off.

The Mitchell family has the best record in local soccer circles. Alasister played in Canadian Woollens last season when they won the Peck Cup. James was in C.P.C. juniors that won the Taylor Trophy. Kenneth was in the team that won the School championship and the father of the boys is the well-known local referee, Mr. Mitchell who has a creditable record in soccer annals.

The Campbellford team is anxious to have some of the local elevens go down some Saturday afternoon for an exhibition game. The Woollens intend going again later in the season. If all goes well, a Peterborough team will go to the Trent town on Friday, May 23. White's Sports and Athletic Co. supplied the complete outfit of 2 inch upright blue and white stripe, jerseys, white pants and black stockings with stripe top.

At the Ontario Football meeting, thirty-six clubs entered for the Connaught Cup which is emblematic of Canadian championship. This is the largest record for the competition. A Northern Ontario district has been formed comprising Collingwood, Barrie, Midland, Orillia, etc. Peterboro did not enter.

Twenty thousand spectators saw the Canadian all-stars hold the Sydney, N.S.W. team to a scoreless draw in the first scheduled game of the Canadian tour in Australia.

The Nomads team—the has been (?)—has selected their uniforms from White's Sports and Athletic Store which consists of three inch black and white striped jerseys, black plants, and black and white stockings, to match. Jack Cairns, who is associated with this new aggregation, is an ex-president of P. and D.F.A. and has had excellent experience along soccer lines. He was one of the staunchest supporters of the C.G.E. team that used the Exhibition Grounds few years ago, then next year he gained permission, in fact, was the originator of the King Edward Grounds, and arranged, interviewed and laid out the playing pitch a number of years ago, to the satisfaction of the city council and engineer.

POLAND'S EXPORTS INCREASE

WARSAW, May 16.—Polish exports are increasing. Official data published by the Polish Statistical Bureau shows that while in 1922 Poland exported goods valued at 655,150,000 gold francs, in 1923 its exports were 1,195,586,000 gold francs. Imports during the same period were 844,584,000 gold francs, and in 1923 1,116,474,000 gold francs. The largest export items are coal and metal articles. In general, Poland exports chiefly raw materials.

JUNIOR SOCCER LEAGUE BEGINS

C. P. C. Juniors Defeated Grey Birds By 4 to 1 at King Edward Park — Mayor Turner Kicked Off.

The first league game for the possession of the Yeotes cup was played on King Edward Park on Thursday evening, the contesting teams being the C.P.C. Juniors (Mayor Taylor's cup holders), and the C.P.C. Greybirds.

There was a nice crowd on hand when His Worship the Mayor, J. J. Turner, kicked off. He spoke a few words to the boys, advising them to obey the officials and always play a clean game. Both teams played some reserves. The Greybirds took up the running, H. Hotson placing Foster in control, but his centre was missed by Kilenbeck. Curtis sent Mitchell and James up the right and Mitchell's shot was sent over the bar by Jenkins. Billingsley took the corner. Bradley headed the sphere to Cross, who raced along the wing and centred beautifully. Edwards met it and beat Montgomery with a nice shot This put the Greybirds on good terms with themselves, and for a time it looked as if they were going to add to the score. The Juniors were urged by their supporters who seemed to be in the majority to play up. Bradley and H. Hotson were kept busy. Carmichael was playing his wings like an artist, and Chambers, from one of his ground passes, missed by inches. Soutar, who played left half, was conspicuous with a grand drive. Jenkins saved. Grandey Foster was prominent with some nice runs and there was no further scoring. Half time arrived with the Greybirds leading 1-0.

Second Half

Upon resuming, the Juniors forced the play, Mitchell and James combining nicely together, made a nice run. Mitchell sent nicely to Carmichael who shot just wide of the post. The Greybirds were kept on the move. The Junior's forwards were very much in evidence. Backed by a splendid trio of half backs were a source of trouble to Bradley and company. Carmichael was well placed and receiving from Mitchell made the score equal. This put new life in the Juniors, and seemed to dishearten the Greybirds. Halliday at centre half sent in a terrific drive which Jenkins turned over the bar. Mitchell took the corner kick and sent outside. From the goal kick Foster sent out to cross but Downer and Curtis were in great form. Curtis gave to Halliday and he scored a grand goal, beating Jenkins all the way. From the centre kick, Anderson, who played an excellent game for the Greybirds, tried to score with a long shot which Montgomery fielded in fine style. Halliday was again in the limelight and from twenty-five yards' range beat Jenkins with the shot of the game. The Gerybirds seemed to tire. The game had been very fast and the defence of the Juniors were trying their luck. Curtis sent in a beauty which Jenkins caught and threw up to Feeley who, in turn sent to Cross, but his final effort went high over the bar. Soutar, who had been feeding his forwards like a seasoned player, tricked first one and then the other, and sent in a shot which Jenkins had no chance to save. The Juniors were now in control of the game and were content with the lead. There was no further scoring. Time was called, leaving the Juniors winners of a clean and well contested game by 4 to 1. The teams:

C.P.C. Juniors.—T. Montgomery, Curtis, J. Downie, S. Willis, Halliday, Soutar, Mitchell, James, Carmichael, Chambers, Billingsley.

C.P.C. Greybirds.—Jenkins, H. Bradley, R. Lindsey, Feeley, Batley, H. Hotson, Cross, A. Anderson, Kilenbeck, Edwards, Foster.

Referee.—Mr. Kellar.

TORONTO TEAM HERE SATURDAY

St. John's Baracas of the T. A. B. Intermediate League Will Clash With the Lakeview Juniors on Saturday.

Lakeviews, junior champions of 1923, will have their work cut out for them on Saturday when they clash at Riverside Park with the fast St. John's Baracas Intermediates of Toronto. The Baracas come here, highly recommended by the Spalding League and are classed as one of the fastest Intermediate teams in the T.A.B.A. The Lakeviews have been practicing hard lately and after a good workout last Saturday with the Central Leaguers when they defeated them by the score of 6 to 1, they should be in tip-top condition and should give the Toronto crew a good battle. The Lakeviews made a wonderful showing last season in winning the championship of Ontario and with, if anything a faster aggregation this year, they should give the Baracas a go for their money. Frank Whitehouse, the youthful pitcher who can make the Central Leaguers look like a fish ought to turn in a good game against the Toronto crew. It is hoped that the fans will turn out strong on Saturday and show their appreciation to the Lakeviews for the showing they made last season.

The Lakeviews will line-up as follows

Cameron, s.s.; Lebarr, 1st; Ash, l.f.; Whitlow, c.f.; Collins, c.; McIntyre, l.f.; Halliday, 2b.; Jhonston, 2b.; Whitehouse, p.; Cheu, 3b.; Marchan, 3b.

The game will be called at 3 o'clock sharp. The weather forecasts are fair and warmer for Saturday, and if this is right the fans should be given a real treat.

LADIES' SOFTBALL LEAGUE.

NEW CLOTHES SHOP

Al Sharpe Will Open for Business in Store Lately Occupied by Crescent Clothes.

Al. Sharpe, recently manager of Crescent Clothes Shop, and formerly well-known as one of the staff at Merrell & Meredith's, will open up for himself in the store lately occupied by Crescent Clothes Shop, in the Capitol Building, to-morrow morning. Mr. Sharpe's extensive business experience put him in a position to meet the wishes of the most particular class of buyers. He has selected a big stock of the finest furnishings and suitings on the market, which he will offer at moderate prices.

Since his return from France, Mr. Sharpe has been continuously serving the public in Peterboro and has made many friends, who will be glad to hear of his venture on his own, and will wish him all success. His store, which will go under the name of Paramount Clothes Shop, has been re-decorated, and with the new stock will be an attractive spot for men in search of wearing apparel.

DO YOU KNOW BASEBALL?

By BILLY EVANS

QUESTIONS

1. What happens when the batter strikes at an illegally pitched ball?—J. M.

2. Is it necessary that the team at the bat make an appeal for the valling of a balk?—Mike.

3. Bases are filled, two out, count three balls and two strikes on batter. All runners start on next pitch. It is a ball. Runner from second overruns third and is retired for third out before runner crosses plate. Does run score?—G. J.

ANSWERS

1. It counts for a strike or whatever may follow.

2. A balk rests entirely with the judgment of the umpire. There is no necessity or reason for an appeal, although the team at bat often raises the claim.

3. It does. The batsman received a base on balls, with bases filled. That entitled him to first and all runners to advance a base. Runner on third must be allowed to score, even though third out is made before he reaches the plate.

SPECIAL TOUR TO PACIFIC COAST.

Ontario Public School Federations (Men's and Women's Sections) have made arrangements with the Canadian National Railways for a special tour to Victoria, B.C., to attend the Dominion Eductional Association Convention to be held in that city, 14th to 16th August, 1924.

MUSICAL FESTIVAL TONIGHT

The diversity of music which will be rendered at the Community Festival this evening, includes some choral work by several modern composers. The Male Voice Choir numbers in the two sections in which they received prizes have two English musicians, still living, as composers of the two big test pieces. "Through Eastern Gates" was the work of the Granville Bantock, one of the adjudicators at last year's Musical Festival. Mr. Bantock, who has composed many things, including tone poems, lyrics, and choral suits, has been called "the arch experimentalist in British composers, who has introduced new phases and new inspirations in the world of music."

T. Tertius Noble, composer of the second big number, "New Life, New Love," was for fifteen years organist at York Minster, England, and is now organist at the famous Little Church Around the Corner, in New York city.

In the test pieces for a choir of twenty voices, the second section, another English composer, Percy E. Fletcher, a musician who has given to the musical world a varied series of works for piano and clarinet, figures, with his "Lullaby of Love," and "In Harvest Time," is by Oskar Merikanto, anable Finnish organist and composer, who has trained in Helsingfors, Leipsig and Berlin, and has written, besides many pieces for organ, piano and voilin, two operas, "The Girl of Pohja," and "The Death of Elina."

The two orchestral numbers which took first awards at the Toronto Festival will be given by the Conservatory orchestra, as well as the big symphonic piece, "Fidelio." In the Sunday school orchestral section, the popular "Lustspiel Overture" is the test number, composed by Albert von Keler, (Keler Bela), a Hungarian composer of brilliant dance music overtures, and violin pieces.

"The Merry Wives of Windsor" is the test piece of the second victorious section, that relating to an amateur conservatory orchestra. This is from a comic opera, in three acts, "Die Lustigen Weiber von Windsor," (The Merry Wives of Windsor) written by Otto Nicolai, and is taken from Shakespeare's famous comedy, in which Sir John Falstaff is tricked by the two merry wives; Mrs. Fluth and Mrs. Reich. The two ladies discover that the old beau has been making love to each in turn and resolve to punish him. He is pursued also by their two jealous husbands, and is tormented grievously by being compelled to assume all sorts of disguises to escape their wrath. The love story of Anna Reich, with two suitors, also runs trough the opera.

The test pieces in the various orchestral sections, the numbers to be rendered by the choir, and the vocal solos of the two Peterborough singers, Mr. M. H. Park and Mr. R. A. Browne, promise to make up a variety of fine music for all those attending to-night's big Community Festival.

MACCABEES MAY TAKE PART IN THE JUBILEE

The Peterboro Tent No. 69 Maccabees held a meeting in the C. O. F. Hall last evening, when degree work was exemplified and a class initiated. The Provincial Commander, Chas. S. Green, of Toronto, was in charge, assisted by Deputy H. Gilbert.

Discussion took place of the mammoth jubilee caravan of automobiles, which will take place to Washington next year. It is anticipated that fifty members from Peterboro will attend this jubilee gathering. Preparations include the placing of armed guards for the caravan's tour, and stop-over privileges will be allowed. Expenses, which are paid by the Supreme Tent, will allow each member attending the sum of $8 per day, or $112 for the fortnight's trip.

JACKSON PARK TO HAVE POOL

Project Endorsed at To-day's Meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

At to-day's Kiwanis Club luncheon it was announced that Kiwanian Everett Taylor was the winner of the attendance competition and was awarded the silver cup donated by Kiwanian J. I. Allen. Kiwanian Taylor captained the winning team and his activity in this connection was commented upon by Kiwanian Allen who made the presentation. Kiwanian Ed Wood reported on the Kiwanis bridge and five hundred party held in the Peterborough Club early in the week. The party was a big success. A vote of thanks was tendered to Harold Jeffries, son of Kiwanian Jack Jeffries for his work in connection with the decorations for the evening.

Kiwanian Hamish MacIntosh, representing a committee to investigate the prospects of creating a swimming pool and sand beach in Jackson park, reported favorably on that project. Plans have been prepared and on May 24th the members of the club will turn out and perform some manual labour in connection with the scheme.

District Trustee J. I. Allan reported an invitation from the Montreal Club to attend a meeting with the International President. The Peterborough club will arrange to send a delegation.

Kiwanian J. A. McKone reported on last night's trip to Belleville, where a charter night celebration was held, attended by representatives of several district clubs, including Kingston, Lindsay and Peterborough. "A time was had by all" as the country correspondent would say and not the least of the pleasant remembrances of this trip was the presentation to-day to Kiwanian McKone of a handsome pair of cuff links in recognition of his services on this occasion.

Kiwanian Hugh Niven reminded the members of the Community Festival this evening and invited support for this worthy cause. Kiwanian J. J. Turner was commended for his efforts as a fight referee and his services will be referred to the P.A.A.A. This public recognition of Mayor Turner's ability arose out of an altercation at a Board of Works committee recently in which Mayor Turner's efforts as a peacemaker were brought into play.

A quartette consisting of Messrs. D. D. Brown, Douglas Carlisle, H. M. Niven and E. Humpage contributed two numbers and were eulogized for their splendid effort.

The speaker of the day was Rev. H. D. Kennedy, who in a vigorous and convincing manner linked up the success of man with right living and a true knowledge of God. In order to be a success man must first believe in God. Man should be thankful that he was created. The speaker said many are prone to think that man originated from a tadpole or something of that kind. Mr. Kennedy said he was not so much concerned about where he came from as he was about where he was going. A successful man must believe in the book of God. It is a record of failure and success in men. Then you must believe in yourself and lastly believe in your work. You have not got to be in a great place to be great.

President John R. Marshall brought a busy session to a close sharp on time.

Voluntary Closing of Bank In St. Louis.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., May 16.—The Drovers' National Bank here was closed voluntarily yesterday by the Board of Directors. President H. R. Dooley said unexpected losses had been sustained through failure of two more State banks and "detrimental rumors persistently circulated, resulting in withdrawals to a hurtful degree." He declared that the bank was solvent. The capital was $200,000 and deposits $626,310.76.

HELD CLOSING MEETING.

The Anglican Sunday School Workers' Association held their closing meeting for the season in St. Luke's Parish Hall on Tuesday evening, with the president, Miss Clara Adams, in the chair. There was a good attendance of members from the parishes of St. John's, St. George's, and All Saints' Churches. A musical programme included a piano duet by Misses Aloha Horn and Hutchins, a vocal solo by Mrs. W. G. Perks, and a reading by Miss Elsie Worrell, followed by an interesting address on Sunday School work, given by Rev. Walter Cox, of Lakefield. Refreshments were served by the teachers of St. Luke's Church.

DEATH

Mary Loretta Goselin, two months old, passed away this morning at 6 o'clock. She leaves to mourn her loss, her sorrowing mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Goselin. The funeral took place this afternoon, at 2:30 to St. Peter's cemetery.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

There is no Trinity taught in the Bible, yet one of our Methodist ministers said if it was not in the Bible, it ought to be there. This is surely giving a man-made creed the preeminence over the Bible, whose author is God. The writer is quite conscious of his lack, but knowing that in the past, as well as the present, God uses the weak and foolish things, and sometimes the frail work of one man has been used for good to hundreds and thousands of his fellowmen, hence we are encouraged to do what our heart and mind findeth to do; and more so, on account of being utterly abandoned to the will of God. Men in the past and present have recognized the voice of God and have accepted commission from His hands. So the writer, or anyone else, can go ahead, if in obedience to the known will of God, the Holy Spirit guiding our thoughts and sayings aright. Some vainly imagine that if Jesus was not Almighty God, He would not have power to accomplish the work given Him to do. By man came death, by man (Jesus) came the resurrection. 1 Cor. 15:22. In Isaiah 9:6, words are there mentioned that Trinitarians put great stress on, but a little sane, careful reading of the same, will show that Jesus there is not called the Almighty God ,the Jehovah God, nor is He called God the Father. He is called the Father of Eternity, that is, He is the giver of eternal life. In 1 Cor. 8:5, 6, we read of gods many, but only one Jehovah God, and one Lord Jesus; so in one sense Jesus can be rightfully called mighty God. Jesus said the Father was greater than He. John 14:28. Jesus is the first born of all creation. Col. 1:15. Rev. 3:14. The only begotten Son of God. Psalms 2:7. Jesus said that the Father and He are one, John 10:30; and further explains this oneness, John 17:11. The only union that can exist between two persons is that of disposition and will. The oneness between Jehovah God and our Lord Jesus Christ is also shown in Heb. 10:5, 6, 7, 8, 9. In Isa. 45:5 we read "I am Jehovah and there is none else, beside me there is no God. Jesus said "The Son can do nothing of Himself, but what He seeth the Father do." This does not sound like Trinity. Read Deut. 6:4, Mark 12:29. It is utterly absurd to think of God being created, or dying, or a woman being the mother of God. It is equally absurd to say the Son is the Father, and the Father the Son. Men and women are called upon to believe such absurd, unreasonable, inhuman theories incorporated in the creeds of Christendom, that thinking men have rebelled against the bondage of man-made creeds, thinking that the creeds emanated from the Bible. They have discarded the Bible with the creeds. The Bible contains not only literal, but symbolical, hyperbolical, parabolical, historical and prophetical sayings, yet all uniting in one grand harmony.

Another pin upon which Trinitarians hang their creed, is the Holy Ghost (or Holy Spirit) being spoken of as a person. Anyone who acknowledges the authority of the Bible knows that God is a spirit. Any who have had an experience of the special salvation provided Jesus freely say it was listening to and hearkening to the voice of God (the Holy Spirit) that led them into that experience. When the voice of God speaks it is God that speaks. When "the voice of one crying in the wilderness' spoke, it was John the Baptist, so the voice could be called a person.

With the one desire that light and truth may spread, and that God the Father, Jesus, the Son of God, and Holy Spirit, a voice of God, be honored more and more, I close these few remarks.—M. T. Butcher.

Finnish Trapper Believed Murdered.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., May 16.—Three men walked into the office of the Canadian National Railway despatchers at Mabella, fifty miles west of here last night, and told of the finding of the body of a man named Antti Kilpela, 50, with chest crushed and wounds on the head. He had been dead only four or five hours. Constable Ingram of the provincial police, and Coroner Boyd have gone so Mabella to investigate.

The victim was a Finnish trapper who has been in the district for some years. Investigation revealed knife and glass wounds in the head and chest, and it is believed to have been a case of murder.

$4,000 Allowance For Loss By Earthquake.

OTTAWA, May 16 (Canadian Press) —An allowance of $4,000 has been made by the government to A. E. Bryan, Canadian commissioner to Japan, for loss incurred in the recent earthquake, it was stated in answer to a question in the House of Commons yesterday. Mr. Bryan's claim originally asked for $6,787.

IN MEMORIAM.

GLASS. — In sad and loving memory of Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Glass, who died 16th May, 1923, aged 5 years and 6 months.

The Twenty-third Psalm.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul; He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for Thou art with me, Thy rod and Thy staff, they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; Thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

OBITUARY

EDWARD D. ENGLISH.

The funeral took place this morning of Edward D. English, of Asphodel, whose death occurred suddenly at St. Joseph's Hospital on Wednesday morning.

The deceased is survived by his wife, three sons, Emmet, Mark and Robert, three brothers, Patrick, John and Michael, and three sisters, Mrs. Crough, Mrs. Sweeney, and Mrs. Hickson.

The funeral, which took place this morning to St. Paul's Church, Norwood, with interment at St. Paul's Cemetery, Rev. J. McCarthy officiating, was very largely attended.

The late Mr. English was an old resident of Asphodel Township, where he was a well-liked and much-respected member of the community.

CHECK STEERING GEAR.

Go over the steering gear occasionally to see if any part is becoming loose. If this mechanism fails there is usually a serious accident. If all parts are tight, put oil or grease wherever necessary, and then see if there is any lost motion in the steering wheel. If there is an inch or so, it should be taken out. Details differ with different designs, but they all have the same means of adjustment. Have this attended to at the service station.

BUDGET FOR AUTO EXPENSES.

A great deal of time and expense will be saved through the use of a budget system. In the operating expenses of a car, the major items might be listed as gasoline, oil, tires, supplies and repairs. If an owner is interested in getting the maximum service out of his car at a minimum of cost consistent with such service, he should be willing to take the time to study the machine and learn how it operates best.

VOL. LIV., No. 117 , PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, MAY 17, 1924 PRICE THREE CENTS

OFFICIAL IS DISMISSED FOR LIQUOR "SCRIP" TO MEMBERS OF COMMONS

'No Offence Against Any Law,' Hon. Arthur Meighen Protests In Pleading For Dr. Torrance of the Department of Agriculture—Hon. Mr. Motherwell Said Former Official Wrote An Imprudent Letter to Washington and Abused Franking Privilege of Letters.

PRODUCE MORE INFORMATION

OTTAWA, May 17 (Canadian Press). — After a brief period of rest, following the all-night Budget sitting, the House of Commons in Committee of Supply yesterday considered estimates of the Department of Agriculture.

A somewhat acrimonious discussion developed in regard to the dismissal of Dr. Torrance, a former official of the Health of Animals Branch of the Department, when an item of two million dollars for this branch came before the committee.

From the seats of the Conservatives came the charge that Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, had dismissed Dr. Torrance without justification.

Mr. Motherwell retorted that Dr. Torrance had been guilty of a number of indiscretions, notably one in connection with drafting a letter to the Health of Animals Bureau in Washington. He read a statement that Dr. Torrance had issued "scrip" for liquor and sent it to members of Parliament. He believed this statement to be true.

After some cross-firing, Mr. Motherwell agreed to bring down further information on the Torrance case, and the item was allowed to stand.

Indiscreet Letter.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell explained that Dr. Torrance had been instructed to communicate with the Health of Animals Bureau in Washington concerning the attitude of the United States to a possible shortening of the quarantine on animals from Britain. Dr. Torrance phrased his letter so as to convey the impression that Canada was being subjected to "political pressure" in the matter and that other indiscretions had been committed by Dr. Torrance which justified the "severance of relations" which followed.

Told To Get Out.

Hon. H. H. Stevens appealed to the committee to consider Dr. Torrance's position. That official had been in the service of Canada since 1906. He was now 64 years old. He was competent and painstaking. Because he used in a letter to a confrere in Washington the phrase "should political pressure compel me to shorten the quarantine," he was accused of giving rise to grave international complications. The contributory causes which the Minister said had justified his dismissal were not enumerated. Probably they were insignificant. Why did not the Minister admit that in a moment of bad temper and jealousy he had told Dr. Torrance to get out? That was how the official had been treated.

He had been given a moment's notice and the choice of resigning on the spot or being dismissed and thereby losing his $1,500 a year pension. This form of dismissal was contrary to the spirit of the Civil Service Act. The Government had not the power to do it. Dr. Torrance might have refused to comply and fought out his case afterwards, if he had only been cunning enough to take that attitude.

"Franked" Own Mail.

Mr. Motherwell said that, in addition to the letter written to Washington, he had received corroboratory evidence against Dr. Torrance and he was asked by Conservative members to read it. He said he was reluctant to do so, but after some cross-firing began to read the document. This document charged that Dr. Torrance had used the frank for his personal mail and had to be asked twice by the Post Master General before he discontinued the practice.

"I don't know anything about that," said the Minister.

Liquor Allegation.

He then read a statement from the same document that Dr. Torrance had issued "scrip" for liquor and sent the liquor to members of Parliament.

"Does the Minister take responsibility for that," asked Mr. Meighen.

"No, but I believe that it is true," replied Mr. Motherwell.

Other charges contained in the document were that a son-in-law of Dr. Torrance's had been reported to have secured a rake-off in connection with a purchase of a research station and in connection with the purchase of a quarantine station at Quebec.

"Does the Minister take the responsibility for that?" again asked the Conservative Leader.

"No," replied Mr. Motherwell, "but when reports of this kind came from a responsible authority in the department . . ."

There were repeated demands that the Minister give the name of the person who had drawn up the document he had been reading, but he refused to do so, saying that it had come to the Deputy-Minister confidentially.

Meighen Insists.

"I demand the authority for it now," declared Mr. Meighen. "A Minister who refuses to give the authority for diatribes and scandals against a public official is not fit to be a Minister of the Crown."

Mr. Motherwell responded that if the Opposition would ask for a committee the matter would be investigated.

"Are we to ask for the appointment of a committee?" retorted Mr. Meighen, "to investigate something said by nobody?"

Mr. Motherwell again stated that he took responsibility for the charge in regard to prescriptions of liquor.

"If that is true," declared Mr. Meighen, "it is no offence against any law."

"If any of my officials does the same thing," responded the Minister, "he will meet the same fate."

Motor Cyclist Died of Injuries From Crash.

MONTREAL, May 17. — Oscar Daunais, 20, of this city, died at the Notre Dame Hospital here Friday afternoon four hours after his motorcycle crashed into a taxi cab at the corner of Dorchester and St. Denis streets. He was trying to pass the taxi cab when his motorcycle struck the former's mud-guard and he and a companion were thrown to the ground. Daunais' skull was fractured but his companion was only slightly injured.

NEW YORK SEEKS WCNY CALL.

NEW YORK, May 17. — Call letters of the transmitting station being put atop the municipal tower for the city of New York may be WCNY, or KCNY, if the special request of that city's officials is granted.

Call letters in the United States may start only with K or W, the letters allotted to this country by the international radio conference. But the remaining letters of the call may be indicative of the station broadcasting, as New York hopes to have it.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

KINGSTON, May 17.—Miss Hazel Smith and Mr. Frank Ham, residing at Adolphustown, had a miraculous escape from death when the automobile in which they were riding went over a 10-foot embankment near Adolphustown and fell into the lake into shallow water. Ham suffered a severe shake-up.

DEFERS FLIGHT TO POLE.

Amundsen Now Plans Starting the First Week In June.

PISA, Italy, May 17.—The departure of the airplanes of the North Pole expedition which is to be led by Captain Ronald Amundsen, has been postponed and the craft will take off the first week in June, atmospheric conditions permitting.

Loudest Noise Ever Tests Silence Zone

PARIS, May 17.—The loudest noise ever made by man deafened persons within a ten-mile radius of Courtine Camp, in the centre of France, at 7.30 last night.

The noise was made by the explosion of ten tons of melinite, set off by the physiological service with the object of making tests to solve the mystery of the "zones of silence," first noticed during the war.

According to the first reports the sound reached Clermont-Ferrand, sixty miles away, in three minutes and forty seconds. Observers were listening at Paris, Strasbourg, Bordeaux and other stations, some nearly 600 miles away.

Numbers of animals were placed within 200 yards in order to study the effect on them, while villagers of the nearest habitation, five miles away, reported that the sound felt like an earthquake.

May Try Delorme At St. Hyacinthe

MONTREAL, May 17.—Following the decision of Acting Chief Justice Martin in the Court of King's Bench to postpone the hearing against Rev. Father Adelard Delorme, charged with the murder of his half-brother, Raoul, to the September term of the court, counsel for the defence have decided to ask that the venue of the trial be changed and that it may be heard at St. Hyacinthe where the criminal assizes open June 19.

R. L. Calder, K.C., Crown Prosecutor, is said to be aware of the decision of the defence and to have stated that as the postponement to September was agreed by the Crown, he would like to see the defence appeal to get the decision reversed.

Counsel for the defence state that in a few days they will present their action asking for the change in venue.

NO DELEGATE FROM CANADA

Comment At Emigration Conference in Rome on Absence of Canadian Representative.

ROME, May 17 (Canadian Press). —The delegates to the emigration and immigration conference continued their work of organisation yesterday.

There was considerable comment among the delegates over the absence of representation from Canada.

It is understood that Canada declined to send representatives because of Italy's policy of not allowing Canada to select emigrants to Canada before their embarkation.

It has been the policy of Italy to have Canada indicate the class of emigrants she desires, and to allow the Italian Government to choose them.

Canadians, it is said, insisted on having their own selection officials on the ground and to make a choice of emigrants before their departure.

CORONATION AT BELGRADE SOON

Preparations Being Made At Capitals For Crowning of Monarch of Triple Kingdom.

BELGRADE, May 17.—Elaborate preparations are being made both here and at Zagreb, the Croatian capital for the anointing and crowning of King Alexander and Queen Marie as king and queen of the Serbs, Croats and Slovene, which will take place this summer.

The monastery of Gitche is being restored for the purpose. The ceremony will follow the Serbian precedents, but several features will be adopted from the ancient ceremonial of the Croatian kings, before Croatia became an appanage of the house of Hapsburg.

The foreign guests at the coronation will be a sharp reminder of the changes in the royal families that have occurred as a result of the world war. But the house of Hohenzollern will be represented through the Sigmaringen branch, which is reigning in Rumania. Queen Maria of Serbia is a daughter of Queen Marie of Rumania.

One of the dethroned kings who will attend the ceremony, on the ground of relationship to Queen Marie of Serbia, is ex-King George of Greece, who is married to Queen Maries' sister, ex-Queen Elizabeth. Thus the family of Marie of Rumania, called the "Mother-in-Law" of the Balkans, will be represented at the ceremony by two reigning and one deposed king.

A Balkan sovereign who will not take part in the festivities will be Boris, king of the Bulgarians. It is extremely unlikely that Boris, reigning over a defeated people, will be asked to mingle with the conquerors, each of whom now holds territory that belonged to Bulgaria before the war.

The event will be made all the more notable because it will mark the thousandth anniversary of the first kingdom of Croatia.

Eighteen Months For Youth Who Stole Car.

CHATHAM, Ont., May 17.—Homer Stringer, 18, was sentneced to the Guelph Prison farm by Magistrate Arnold yesterday for a term of not less than sixteen months. In company with Ray Hillman, Stringer was arrested by London police, charged with stealing a car belonging to Hugh McDougall of Blenheim. Hiliman has yet to be sentenced.

GERMAN GOVERNMENT PROCEEDING TO PUT REPORT OF EXPERTS INTO EFFECT

Contends It Represents Predominant Opinion of the Nation, and Ignores Nationalists' Demand For Resignation—Remains In Office Until Reichstag Assembles.

BERLIN, May 17.—In reply to the demand of the Nationalists that the Government resign, it was semi-officially announced to-day that the Government has resolved not to retire until the Reichstag assembles. It is the Government's view that it must continue to represent the nation in the discussion on the experts' reports and must prepare the necessary decrees to put the reports into effect.

The Government maintains that its views on the experst' reports are shared by the Social Democrats, the Centrists, the Democrats and the Bavarian People's Party and that their combined votes in the new Reichstag will greatly outnumber the opposition which is composed of Natiolalists, Communists and the German People's Party.

Few of the morning papers comment on the Nationalists' demand and the Cabinet's reply because of the lateness of the hour when the decision was reached.

FIRES NEAR EDMONTON CUT TELEGRAPH WIRES

Communication With Fire Swept Area Broken When Telegraph Poles Fall — Conditions Are Reported Worse In North Country — Fires Raging Three Days.

EDMONTON, May 17 (Canadian Press). — With all wire communication from points 100 miles north of the city cut off, due to bush fires burning the poles, the situation in the north country yesterday was shrouded in uncertainty.

According to the telegraph companies, conditions yesterday were worse than on Thursday as far as any attempt to keep communication open is concerned.

Whether this means any danger to the northern settlements or merely that the fires have reached the railway and telegraph lines, it is impossible to say.

Information reaching the city late on Thursday reports several houses and barns in the Grand Prairie district destroyed.

The strong winds during the past three days are dropping, and it is hoped will bring some relief to the hundreds of men battling the many fires.

Rain is needed badly to check the flames.

ABATES AT PRINCE ALBERT.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., May 17 (Canadian Press). — An easement in the fire situation area forty miles north was expected yesterday morning, and no further damage to settlers has been reported.

A big fire is sweeping north of Alingly through unoccupied territory.

FARMER FINED FOR STARVING CATTLE

Five Cows Have Died This Spring and Others Were Emaciated and Neglected

INGERSOLL, Ont., May 17.—In the police court Friday, Johnston Bigham, a Bereham township farmer, was fined $50 and costs on a cruelty to animals charge. The information was laid by the County Constable, Fred. Hill.

That he might fully grasp the deplorable conditions at the Bigham farm, Magistrate Patterson was driven to view the barn and premises generally. It was stated that five cows had died during the spring and that others of the herd were barely able to stand owing to their weak condition. Other live stock showed similar effects from neglect.

Payment of the fine was made and Bigham assured the Magistrate he would get in a supply of feed and clean up his premises.

Oil Burners Keep Shipbuilder Busy.

LONDON, May 17.—(Associated Press)—Lloyd's shipping returns for the first quarter of 1924 show that there are at the present time 35 steamers and motorships, each of over 1,000 tons, with a total tonnage of 183,850 tons under construction in the world for the carriage of oil in bulk. Of these tankers, 12 of 74,500 tons are under construction in Great Britain and Ireland.

The tonnage of vessels now building in the world, which are to be fitted with internal combustion engines, amounts to 694,712 tons, while the tonnage of steam vessels under construction is 1,801,710 tons. The motor tonnage thus equals 38½ percent of the steam tonnage.

Ancient Grudge Of Two Old Men Led to Shooting

MANITOU, Man., May 17 (Canadian Press). — An ancient grudge and two old men formed the centre of an affray here on Thursday which ended in the shooting of E. Bailey, 68 years old, a farmer living near Manitou, by Peter Crimmon, 70, a former friend and associate, of Elm Creek.

Bailey now lies in the home of a neighbour with a bullet wound below his heart.

The bullet penetrated no vital organs, and unless his advanced age causes complications, he will recover.

Crimmon is in the hands of the Provincial Police at Morden, he having surrendered himself following the affair.

The feud is stated to date back forty years, and to have started over a land deal, involving considerable money.

BELLEVILLE GIRL REACHES NEW YORK.

Gwendolen Lazier Carries Invitation to President Coolidge to Attend Celebration.

NEW YORK, May 17. —Miss Gwendolan Lazier, who is riding on horeback from Belleville, Ont., to Washington, to present President Coolidge with an invitation to attend the celebration in honor of the 140th anniversary of the settlement of Upper Canada, visited Mayor Hylan at City Hall Friday. She invited him to be present at the exercises, which will be held in Belleville on June 16 and 17.

Hawaii Takes Steps to Save Its Natives.

HONOLULU, May 17.—(Associated Press). — The Hawaiian homes commission, which is charged with the rehabilitation of the vanishing Hawaiian race, has decided to survey, subdivide and open up for homesteading purposes a tract of approximately 3,400 acres on the island of Molokai, the site of the original rehabilitation tract at Kalanianaole.

This will be the second unit in the rehabilitation program, and it is expected that the new homesteaders may be placed on the land within three months. The tract will provide 40-acre homesteads for approximately 85 families who must be of full or partial Hawaiian blood. More than 150 applications

Japan Provides For Safety In Submarines.

TOKIO, May 17.—(Associated Press).—The Japanese navy, seeking to minimize the dangers of its submarine service, recently demonstrated with terrible vividness by the loss of two submarines with their crews, plans to purchase safety suits; resembling divers' garb, for its submarine crews.

It is believed these suits will enable some of the men to save themselves by opening the submarine and fighting their way to the surface. The American navy, according to word here, has been successful in the manufacture of such safety uniforms.

FLIGHT AROUND AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE, May 17.—Wing-Commander Goble and Flying Officer McIntyre have started to circumnavigate Australia. They will go by way of Sydney, Brisbane, Thursday Island and Darwin, continuing round the coast to Melbourne, a distance of 9,000 miles.

Skeletons Found Under Landslide

CALGARY, Alta., May 17. —A special to the Herald Friday from Blairmore says the skeletons of several people buried by the Frank slide in 1902 were unearthed yesterday morning by the Government road gangs working on the new road through the slide. Police patrols are now keeping a close guard over the operations because it is believed that the ruins of the Union Bank which was buried may be unearthed.

From the location of the houses and in the opinion of old residents of the district, the skeletons found are believed to be those of a family by the name of Clark that moved from Claresholm to Frank just a few days before the disaster. The skeletons of one adult and three or four children were found in one house and the skeleton of a man was found under a huge boulder not far away.

FIRST SIGN OF HOUSE CLOSING

Government Given Full Control of Proceedings On Wednesday — Some Members Protest.

OTTAWA, May 17 (Canadian Press). — A sign of preparations for bringing the session to a close was seen in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon when, on the motion of Premier King, a resolution was passed to give the Government business first place on Wednesdays, the only day now remaining for private members.

The motion did not carry without a protest.

Harry Leader (Progressive, Portage la Prairie), A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberni), and W. C. Good (Progressive, Brant) all made objections to the motion.

Mr. Good stated that not in the past thirty years had so little time been given to private members' business as this session; and both he and Mr. Neill suggested amendments to the rules to give more time to private membrs.

However, none of the party leaders on the Opposition raised any objection, and the motion was carried without a vote.

It gives the Government full control of the House from now on, as it applies on the coming Wednesday.

TAX ON UNEARNED LAND INCREMENT

Foreshadowed By Snowden In Speech Reviewing Work of Labor Government.

LONDON, May 17.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—Speaking at Colne Valley Friday, Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, after reviewing the government's accomplishments since assuming office, particularly in the direction of removing the hardships pressing on the unemployed, foreshadowed the introduction of a policy of taxation of uneraned increment on land.

The chancellor accused the press of carrying on a campaign against abolition of the McKenna duties and declared that he was not going to be bullied into sacrificing principles or national interests under the terrorism of the newspaper press. He acknowledged the generous and whole-hearted support of the Liberals in regard to the budget but added that there could be no such thing as coalition or an arrangement between Liberals and the Labor party.

Fireman Attempted to Catch Falling Man.

CHATHAM, Ont., May 17. —The bravery of George Hill, fireman, is to be brought to the attention of the City Council with a view of securing for him some tangible recognition. Tuesday afternoon Hill was standing near the fire hall when he observed a man flirting with death on the sill of a window of a third storey. He ran across the street just in time to attempt to catch the man when he fell forty feet.

IMPERSONATION CHARGE.

MONTREAL, May 17.— Alderman J. B. Arthur Angrigson, recently elected in St. Paul's Ward, and charged with impersonation in the police court, was acquitted by Judge Monet here Friday afternoon. His Lordship said in his judgment that the case did not come under the jurisdiction of his court and further that in his opinion there was no case against the Alderman.

SECRET MOBILIZATION OF RUSSIANS AGAINST RUMANIANS REPORTED

Military Activity Along Border of Bessarabia — Anxiety Felt In South-Eastern Europe Over the Threat of War—Rumania Awarded Provinces of Bessarabia After the War and Refused the Bolsheviki's Proposal For Plebiscite On Question of Rumanian Rule.

NEGOTIATIONS WERE ABORTIVE

COPENHAGEN, May 17 (Canadian Press). — A News despatch from Constantinople declares that the newspapers assert that secret Russian mobilisation is proceeding on the Bessarabian border.

SOFIA, May 17. — Interruption of the negotiations between Roumania and Russia at Vienna for adjustment of the Bessarabia question is causing not a little anxiety throughout South-eastern Europe.

Bulgaria is particularly interested, chiefly because there are approximately 300,000 Bulgars living in the province of Bessarabia.

The Bulgarian element of the Bessarabian population is very strongly opposed to Roumanian rule, and, in the event of a plebiscite, would support Russia.

Other alien elements in Bessarabia, it is believed, also would prefer Russian rule to that of Roumania.

REFERENDUM REFUSED.

This attitude on the part of the Bulgars and other aliens, it is believed, is recognized by the Rumanian Government and was a strong factor in influencing it to reject Russia's proposal to settle the question by referendum vote of the population. Rumania, is it understood, fears that a referendum in Bessarabia would establish a precedent of which Dobroudja would take advantage, and the population of Dobroudja is also largely Bulgar and opposed to Rumanian rule.

Outlook Critical.

Throughout the Balkans the situation is considered critical, chiefly as a result of the bold declaration of the Moscow Government that it will never recognize Rumanian rule in Bessarabia. This renders Rumania's position all the more difficult, as, in addition to the Bessarabian situation, the Government is faced with serious anti-Semitic disturbances.

Rumania and Jugo-Slavia, owing to strong separatist movements within their borders, and the most unsettled nations in the Balkans. In Rumania more than two-fifths of the population is alien, and in Jugo-Slavia more than two-thirds of the population is inimical to the Belgrade Government. These countries,, therefore, are anxious to maintain the Little Entente as a safeguard guaranteeing territory they acquired in post-war settlements.

Rumania Alone.

In the event of a conflict between Russia and Rumania, it is believed that pressure from alien and other dissatisfied elements in her population would prevent Jugo-Slavia from giving effective aid to Rumania. Czecho-Slovakia also, it is considered certain would refuse assistance to Rumania, which would leave only Poland as a possible ally. Poland's internal situation is regarded as such that it is considered unlikely she would be able to render substantial assistance to distant Rumania.

Rumania, therefore, would be without effective outside assistance should a stae of war with Russia arise, and would be practicaly surrounded by Russia, Hungary and Bulgaria —all enemy nations. The general belief in the Balkans is thta any conict between Rumania and Russia would be fraught with grave political and territorial changes in the Near East ,and for this reason the situation involving Bessarabia is being watched with apprehension in all Balkan capitals.

Montreal Loses Hour Early Sunday Morning.

MONTREAL, May 17.— At 3 o'clock Sunday morning next daylight saving time will go into effect for Montreal and district, as well as for many of the suburban and other municipalities centering upon the metropolis. This year, it is stated by the Montreal daylight saving association, the change will be much more generally accepted than last May owing to the official action of the city council in adopting the principle of advancing the hands of the clock. Standard time is still however, the official legal time for the city.

Italian Consols Rise Above Par on Exchange.

ROME, May 17.—Great enthusiasm and excitement greeted the rise above par of Italian consols on the Rome Stock Exchange yesterday. The occasion was marked by enthusiastic cheering and cries of "Viva Italy," and "Viva De Stefani." Congratulatory messages announcing the event were sent to Premier Mussolini and Minister of Finance Alberto De Stefani.

The rapid rise in consols is considered a great achievement of the Fascist Government's finance policy and as an indication of the country's increasing confidence in security and stability in the future. Consols went as low as 68 in 1919, and were still under 90 at the beginning of the present year.

Indictment of Muir Before Appeal Court.

MONTREAL, May 17.—The indictment under which Walter Muir of New York, convicted of murder, was arraigned, is being attacked as bad in law before the Court of Appeal here next Tuesday. Muir was to have been hanged Friday, but the execution was postponed until October 23 after notice of appeal had been served on the court officials by counsel for the prisoner.

Muir shot and killed a man in a Sherbrooke hotel last September over a dispute about a dog.

WISDOM OF WISEACRES INDICATES HOME BANK COURSE ASSERTS WHITE

Retrospective Imagination Easy to Develop, Former Minister of Finance Sardonically Remarks — Agitation Would Have Resulted If He Had Closed the Bank.

OTTAWA, May 17. — Continuing before the McKeown Commission his arraignment of Sir Harry Drayton and the Hon. W. S. Fielding on the ground that they did nothing to avert the wreck of the Home Bank, W. T. J. Lee, counsel for the depositors, yesterday said:

"What could have been done? I should have thought in two years of office, the honorable Minister of Finance would have at least written something to find out the condition of this bank. If he was too pressed with business, he at least might have sent the deputy, having regard to the fact that all the time there was the old complaint of Mr. Fisher and Mr. Crerar in the department, and that had not been cleared up.

"But you cannot find anything in the file and so we have got to leave it. A man can be guilty of neglect by inaction as well as by action. Sir Thomas White did something. He tried to do what he could. He was all for action.

"Sir Henry Fielding did nothing. Mr. Fielding did less. And so the ship blunders on and smashes on the rocks on August 23, 1923.

"Some 60,000 people lost their money. Over 2000 people are now saddled with double liability.

Rather a Joke.

"Are these Finance Ministers coming back to give us our money, lost by reason of their negligence. I don't see any of it. I have not received any of their cheques.

"Sir Thomas White did a considerable amount of good work. Sir Henry Drayton did nothing of any effect, nothing that could be considered as looking after his common duties in the high position he occupied.

"And as for Mr. Fielding, it is rather a joke to think that the gentleman should be placed in a position, with only 16 or 18 banks in this country to look after, and this bank is allowed to go steadily on from bad to worse, until it smashes on the rocks."

Won't Quarrel with Them.

"To be fair to the Honorable Minister of Finance, it is only right to say that the Premier, when he gave evidence, said that Mr. Fielding took exception to Sir Henry Drayton's saying he drew attention to the condition of the bank.

"But I don't care whether Mr. Fielding's attention was drawn or not. That makes no difference. I am not going to quarrel with either of them on this point. The facts and the results are there. That we have lost our money and it does not make any difference to me whether it was Mr. White's, Mr. Drayton's or Mr. Fielding's negligence, or the combined negligence of all. The poor depositor has had all his life's savings wiped out.

Looted the Bank.

"The Masons looted this bank. They are gone. I will say no more. But who helped them to do it? I will say that men placed in such responsible positions in the Government of this country as the Minister of Finance should have had regard for this business, in which washerwomen, charwomen, other poor people have had their whole lives' savings blotted out. The wrecks that have come to my attention have been pitiable. I am asking here, as one who has suffered by this failure, I am asking the government for something that I think I am entitled to get. Why? I am entitled to get it by reason of the negligence of their officers. I am coming to the people of Canada, seeking their suffrage for what in common, ordinary decent justice I am entitled to expect —that the men I helped put in public office shall at least do their duty by the people."

"Sir Thomas White at least tried to do his duty. I am afraid I cannot say as much for the other two. Sir Thomas at least tried to steer the ship off the shoals. Did the other two gentlemen do that? I leave it to your Lordship to say."

In House of Providence.

Mr. Lee, describing the effects on the depositors as a result of the loss of their money, pointed out that in Toronto alone 16 Home Bank depositors had been under the necessity of finding shelter in the House of Providence. He also said that a number of deaths had occurred. As a result of this tragedy they would have to have a clean-up of the banking system and greater efficiency in the Finance Department. The depositors were determined that come weal or woe they were not going to have a lot of other people flim-flammed in the same manner in which the Home Bank depositors had been flim flammed.

This concluded Mr. Lee's argument which had lasted for nearly six hours.

Sir Thomas White

Sir Thomas White, following A. G. Browning K.C., informed Commissioner McKeown that he was going to ask him to find that the portion of the order in council of February 23rd which authorizes the commissioner to pronounce whether or not an investigation of the bank was justified, was ultra vires of the executive government of Canada. The question of whether or not the minister of finance should have appointed an auditor to investigate the Home Bank was entirely in the discretion of that minister, and he was responsible, only to parliament. The former minister subitted that for the commissioner to find whether or not the appointent of an auditor under 56A of the act was justified was to review the conduct of a minister. The only tribunal which could review the conduct of a minister honestly engaged in carrying out his duties was parliament, and it had never been suggested that he had acted dishonestly.

Responsible to Parliament

It could not be seriously contended that this commission was to oust parliament and pass upon the question of whether or not Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding should have inspected the Home Bank, said Sir Thomas. He (Mr. Fielding) was responsible to Parliament and to no other tribunal. Similarly Sir Henry Drayton and Sir Thomas himself, assuming always that they were honest in the discharge of their duties, were subject only to the will of Parliament and the criticism of the representatives of the people.

Sir Thomas claimed that there were numerous letters on file in the department of finance casting doubt upon the condition of banks. Some of these were written as a result of internal quarrels, others were inspired by genuine concern for the condition of the bank. It was the duty of the Minister to pass upon these letters, and it was the practice to refer them to the board of the bank. Under section 19 of the Bank Act the affairs and business of banks were entrusted to directors and shareholders. They must lose all and more than all, they had invested in the bank before the depositors could lose a cent. No Minister of Finance had general power of super vision over banks, he pointed out.

It was very easy to be wise after the event, said Sir Thomas. It was easy to develop "the retrospective imagination" and to declare just what should have been done. People doing this were termed "wiseacres" he said. No Minister had power to close a bank up.

Hitting Below the Belt

Sir Thomas referred to the payment of $1,500 to him shortly before the bank failed, claiming that the way the story of this payment had been given out was unfair to him. The impression had been created in common quarters that he had received this retainer as a Minister insted of receiving it nearly four years after he resigned office, he said.

"That is what I call hitting below the belt," he remarked.

An impression had also been created that he had carried off his private file of correspondence in regard to the Home Bank when he resigned from office. This was absolutely false.

Agitation A Result

Sir Thomas White contended that if he had closed up the Home Bank in 1916, the year when the complaints of the Western directors were made an agitation would have resulted which would have been second only to that of to-day. It took years to build up the god will of a bank and only a day to wreck it, he said. You did not close up a bank even if it ha dlost half its capital if it had a good chance of recovering.

Sir Thomas opened his case follow ing the completion of argument on behalf of the depositors. He will continue on Monday morning when the commission resumes. Following his arguent, it is expected that R. A. Reid who is appearing for shareholders, will speak briefly. The case for the Government will then be argued by Eugene Lafleur K.C. and H. J. Symington, K.C. It is expected that sittings will occupy all of Monday and a part, at least, of Tuesday.

MAJ. J. F. BELFORD IN A CAR ACCIDENT

MAJOR F. F. B. BELFORD.

ORLAND, May 17.—To be pinned under a motor car from 2.30 until 4.30 this morning was the experience of Major J. F. Belford, M. P.P., for Northumberland. Major Belford's hand was badly cut and his back was hurt, but no serious results are anticipated. He was removed to his home. The accident occurred on the Trenton and Campbellford Provincial Highway, about three miles east of Orland, near the farm of Wiliam Montgombery. He was found by William Lackaperry and was removed from the wreckage by J. P. McCauley and sons, also William McDuffie and others who resided nearby. Major Belford believes that one of the wheels either dished or came off, and the car turned over, pinning him underneath. He was taken to his home by J. P. McCauley.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Funeral of Mrs. John Bateson — A District Convention.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 17. — The funeral of Mrs. Bateson, widow of John Bateson, took place to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Campbellford, on Friday, 16th May.

Mrs. Bateson was about 90 years of age, and lived in Campbellford, on Front Street, for a good many years, and was a faithful member of the Methodist Church while here.

Some years ago she went to Warkworth to live with her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Owens, and has remained there till the time of her death.

The service was held at the home of Mrs. Owens. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Walter Bateson, who resided in Campbellford till about two years ago, and Mrs. Owens of Warkworth.

Quite a number of Campbellford people attended the funeral.

DISTRICT CONVENTION

About one hundred and fifty ladies from the Campbellford District attended the District Convention at Warkworth. Yesterday about forty ladies from Campbellford motored over in the morning and attended the two sessions.

Mrs. Lawlor of Norwood, district superintendent, presided at the sessions. Press reporters were appointed for the different places where there are papers.

Reports were read from the Auxiliaries, Circles and Bands of the district. These on the whole were good, showing splendid work for the year and good results financially.

During the morning session the new officers for the coming year were appointed by acclamation, as follows District Supt., Mrs. B. F. Doxsee, Hastings; Associtae Supt., Mrs. C. A. Denike, Havelock; and Sec.-Treas., Mrs. Smale, Warkworth.

In the afternoon as well as in the morning there were some splendid papers on different subjects, given by Mrs. McLaughlin of Keene, Mrs. Adams, Norwood, Mrs. Barrett, Stirling, Miss M. Hinton, of Hastings, Mrs. Pakenham, Norwood, Miss Pollock, Weilman's, little Edna Evans of Norham and others.

Greetings from the Presbyterian W.M.S., of Warkworth, were sent to the convention through Mrs. Dick, their president.

The principal speaker for the afternoon was Miss Hudson, returned home missionary, who has worked in the West for 15 years.

Miss Hudson told of her work in the Crosby Girls' Home in Port Simpson, where the first two hundred dollars ever given out by the W.M.S. was allowed for that home.

She also worked in Prince Rupert, where she met so many different nationalities, and worked among them, starting a primary Sunday school, doing deaconess work among 18 different kinds of people, acting as strangers' secretary and looking after the Woman's Missionary Societies in those places.

Her address was interesting and instructive as she told of the interest the people took in the work. A very interesting feature near the close of the afternoon was an exercise by the members of the Warkworth Mission Band, where one little girl wondered what to do with the money she had saved. Others came in representing gum, candies, movies, Japan, China, and other countries needing missionaries. She at last decided to give her money for missionary purposse and sang a solo telling her purpose. This exercise was much enjoyed and received a hearty applause.

The duet by Rev. E. W. and Mrs. Cafley of Norham, the solo by Miss U. Duffield of Norwood, the solo by Mrs. (Rev.) Glover of Campbellford, and the solo by little Madeline Bond of Hastings, rendered during the sessions, were much enjoyed.

The ladies of Mount Pleasant W. M. S. extended an invitation to have the convention there next year. This was accepted.

A vote of thanks was tendered the ladies of Warkworth for the splendid hospitality shown the visitors.

Mrs. Ashton, of Campbellford, the branch president, reminded the ladies of all they should do in the temperance work and of their privilege to vote and how to use it.

On the motion of Mrs. C. A. Denike and Mrs. W. H. Ashton, that we put on record our appreciation of the faithful work of our retiring district superintendent for the past nine years, the ladies responded heartily.

Mrs. B. F. Doxsee, of Hastings, the new district superintendent, was called to the platform, and she made a few remarks as to her new duties.

Funeral Mrs. Winters

The funeral of the late Mrs. Alex Winters was held on Friday afternoon and was largely attended. The service at the house was in charge of her pastor, Rev. W. Elliott, assisted by Rev. H. B. Kenney of Belleville, Rev. Mr. Hinton of Hastings, Rev. J. E. Glover of Seymour and Rev. C. F. McIntosth of St. Andrew's church, Campbellford.

Rev. W. Elliott gave a short talk on the text "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."

The beautiful flowers "Gates ajar" from the family, Cross, home department of the Sunday school, wreath, Sunday School, sheaf, Mrs. Walter Meeker of Oswego, (sister of Mrs. Winters), "anchor", Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Kingston, cross, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Smith, sheaf of tulips, J. C. Birmingham, sheaf of tulips Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lucy, spray carnations, Mrs. Wragg, sheaf of roses, Mr. Allan J. McCrady, and a wreath from the staff and nurses of the General Hospital, Brockville, were sent in loving sympathy.

The bearers were: Messrs. J. C. Birmingham, R. J. Bullen, Geo. Smith, G .A. Kingston, Geo. Lucy and C. W. Palliser.

Those out of town who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. W. Height, Mr. Joseph Height and Miss F. McRae from Lonsdale.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Davis and family and Dr. Bert Davis of Toronto.

Miss Mabel Carscallen and Dr. W. Carscallen of Tamworth, (only cousins left of the late Mrs. Winters), and Mr. Allan J. McCrady of Brockville.

Mrs. Winters was a member of the Methodist church and a very active worker in the Home Department of which she was president for some years.

Oddfellows in Session.

The annual meeting of the Stirling District I.O.O.F., No. 46, was held here on Friday afternoon, with delegates in attendance from Stirling, Campbellford, and Springbrook, Hastings being the only town in the district not represented. Reports from the various towns showed that the order is increasing in membership throughout the district.

The officers were re-elected. R. A. Dunk of Campbellford is Deputy District Grand Master and W. T. Sine, secretary-treasurer for the current year.

Christ Church Choir.

Major J. M. Bygott, who is nothing if not optimistic, brought a message of cheer to his fellow-members of Christ Church choir at a social evening held in the Parish Hall last night when he sang "'Tain't Goin' to Rain No More," his daughter, Miss Isabel, playing the accompaniment. The Major's audience and the public generally will join in the hope that his weather forecast will prove correct at least until after the holiday next week.

The memebrs of the choir entertained a number of invited friends and a short musical programme was rendered. There was a boys' chorus, those taking part being Franklin Linton and Alfred Bunting, who rendered a duet, John Gledhill, Simpson Gledhill, Leonard Collins, Willie Pearse, and Teddy Wilsher joining in the chorus.

Other numbers were a solo by Mrs. H. O. Lowery, a piano solo by Miss Isabel Bygott, a minuet by Miss Elise Southern, and solos by Miss Dorothy Peckett, Rev. G. C. Clarke, and R. A. Dunk.

Dancing followed the musical entertainment, after which refreshments were served.

Home From Queen's.

J. Ernest Anderson, who has completed his third year in medicine in Queen's University, is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Anderson. The young medical student was champion wrestler of his class last year and represented Queen's in the athletic contests with the students of McGill University, Montreal. He was out of condition at the time and lost out by a narrow margin.

Personals.

Mrs. A. Barron, Wallace street, is down at Menie at her sister's, Mrs. Johns, during Mrs. John's absence in Peterborough, where she is undergoing an operation.

Mrs. (Dr.) W. F. Loucks, Saskatoon avenue, who has been ill for nearly two weeks, had an operation in Peterborough on Thursday.

Born—In Campbellford, on May 15th, 1924, to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nesbitt, Front street, a daughter.

FAIR VOLUME OF BUSINESS

Retailers Buying Closely, Winnipeg Reports In Weekly Trade Review—Toronto Finds Buying For Immediate Requirements.

WINNIPEG, May 17 (Canadian Press). — The weekly trade report of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association, Limited, states:

Halifax — Wholesale and retail trade shows a marked improvement in volume of business as well as in collections.

St. John — Wholesale trade continues satisfactory. Retail business fairly good. Collections fair.

Montreal — The past week has witnessed an increase in sales of dry-goods together with added improvement in collections in this line. The grocery business remains about the same. Hardware fairly good. Both sales and collections in boots and shoes continue quite satisfactory.

Toronto — In wholesale trade business continues steady authough there are not many advance orders. Buying is chiefly for immediate requirements. Retail business has been a little quiet recently, but increased volume is anticipated with the warmer weather. General industrial activity continues to hold up quite well. Collections fair.

Winnipeg — Wholesale trade was fairly satisfactory, though restricted by the attitude of the retailers in buying closely and keeping stocks down. Wholesalers continue to pursue a careful credit policy. Retail trade is fair.

Regina — A fair volume of business was done in the past week in the wholesale lines. A slight improvement is noted in retail trade. Collections rather slow.

Saskatoon — No marked change in either wholesale or retail lines. Improvement looked for.

Calgary — Conditions generally about the same as last week. Business good [illegible] to be increasing. Current collections very satisfactory. Old accounts only fair.

Edmonton — Farmers are all busy on the land. Seeding conditions are satisfactory. During this period the trade and collections are rather quiet.

Vancouver — All lines keeping fairly brisk. Hardware and drygoods are especially good. Collections fair.

ONTARIO'S ROADS.

Hon. G. S. Henry's intimation that investigations into the highways constructed during the regime of the Farmer Government gives promise of developing into another scandal would have more effect if it were accompanied by a definite statement that a thorough public inquiry into the matter is being instituted.

Hon. F. C. Biggs, former Minister of Highways, has already denied that there was any skimping in the work done during his term of office.

There the matter rests, with the present Minister making guarded charges and the former Minister uttering general denials.

The public wants to know more about Mr. Henry's "probable scandal," and the only way to satisfy that want is to have a proper inquiry made.

There has always been an uneasy feeling about the cost of the "roads that Biggs built," an impression that they have been excessively costly.

Mr. Henry intimates that this feeling was justified—but he stops there—and as Mr. Biggs flately refutes the suggestion of wrong-doing in the department while under his administration, the public is no wiser than before.

Mr. Henry should have held back his announcement until he was ready to tell the people that a channel of investigation had been opened.

MAINTAINING THE ROADS.

The Deputy-Minister of Highways is to be congratulated upon his frankness in telling members of the Ontario Motor Truck Owners' Association that "you can't expect the taxpayers to build up roads that you wilfully destroy."

Mr. Squires practically blamed the truck owners for the ruin of Provincial roads, and while it may not be fair to place the whole onus upon the heavy commercial vehicles, it is undoubtedly true that ponderous trucks play havoc with the road surface.

Trucks heavier than eight tons are to be banished entirely from the highways after January, 1928, and although it is claimed there will be heavy losses to truck owners, the restruction will be beneficial to Ontario's road system.

Owners of the big commercial cars have in many cases themselves to blame for the attitude taken by the highway authorities towards them.

They have shown little consideration for the preservation of the roads, sending their trucks out early in the spring before the frost is fairly out of the ground and tearing road surfaces to pieces with their weighty cars.

If a freight business on a large scale is to be developed by the use of motor trucks, it is evident that the general public cannot be expected to maintain good roads for such a traffic, and that the participants in such freight business must be called upon to pay their fair share of the upkeep, having regard to the damage done by their vehicles.

PARLIAMENT'S EXAMPLE.

In one respect at least municipal bodies can learn something from the House of Commons, the members of which do not allow differences of opinion in regard to political policies to develop into personal hostilities.

Thus we read that yesterday morning after an all-night session of a nature to try the nerves and the temper of the most mild-mannered member and after the longest Budget debate in the history of Canada's Parliament, the Chief Conservative Whip, amid the laughter and cheers of the House, led the French members in singing their favourite "Alouettie."

The debate was hot, but the contestants did not make the mistake of quarrelling with each other simply because they differed in opinion, and when the battle of words was over good feeling prevailed.

There is no reason why municipal business should not be carried out in the same spirit.

It is not to be expected that all Aldermen will take the same view of every question, and it is decidedly to the interest of the public that there should be differences of opinion on matters of policy.

But they should respect each other's views and convictions sufficiently to make a personal combat between members of Council impossible.

The spirit of the House of Commons when a heated debate terminates in singing and cheering is commended to the attention of legislators in the municipal arena who might find in the incidents of yesterday morning the germ of an idea that will be of service to them when they meet to transact public business.

THE BUDGET DIVISION.

The vote on the Budget taken yesterday morning did not produce any surprises, and the Budget proposals were, as expected, supported by a huge majority, the figures being 165 to 53.

This result was anticipated a month ago when the Budget was brought down.

It was apparent at once that the Government would receive practically the unanimous support of the Progressive members—and the actual vote found this prediction verified, only one Progressive, Elliott of South Waterloo, voting against the Budget.

At the same time it was predicted that several Liberal members from industrial centres would on this occasion line up with the Opposition.

Three of them, Marler of St. Lawrence-St. George, Montreal, Raymond of Brantford and Euler of North Waterloo, confirmed this forecast by voting against the Government, while a fourth, McCrea of Sherbrooke, although he attacked the Budget during the debate, failed to vote.

Thus the long grind of oratory and talk, week after week, until a new record in the number of speeches was set up, was merely a waste of time.

Not a single vote was changed by the flood of speeches.

The result was the same as if the vote had been taken the day after the Budget was brought down.

In fact, it would have been decidedly in the public interest had the debate consisted of a speech from a representative of each of the parties in the House, followed by a speedy division.

There would then have been plenty of time for a sufficient consideration of the other business of the session.

WASTING PARLIAMENT'S TIME.

The British Budget, introduced by Chancellor Snowden on April 20, passed the House of Commons on Monday last, the debate lasting 12 days. The Canadian Budget, introduced by Mr. Robb on April 11, is still being debated, says the Ottawa Journal.

The British Budget was a momentous one. It produced a substantial surplus; it dealt with British finance all over the world; it abolished the McKenna duties; it repudiated the policy of Imperial preferences; and it made important cuts in taxation. Yet, notwithstanding that Britain may be said to be still in the throes of a great fiscal controversy, and that this was the first Budget of a Socialist Government, it took the British House just 12 days to dispose of it.

The Canadian Budget made but slight changes in taxation; contained no new startling departure; and its few tariff changes were anything but complex. Yet it has been before the House 33 days—and the end is not yet.

Such a waste of time, when there is so much to be done, is discreditable. The debate itself has been one of the least able within years. For weeks men have talked without intention or effort to convince; facts and arguments that have been piled deep on Hansard for half a century have been vamped and revamped ad nauseam; the press has all but ceased—and rightly so—to report the speeches—the debate has no educational or other value.

And what will be the result? The chief result will be that when the orgy of prepared briefs is over, everybody will want to go home. Then will come the rush of real business; the days and nights when votes for millions will be railroaded through a jaded, half-emptied, listless House; when estimates that involve prodigious taxation will be passed with a minimum of attention; when members, their indemnity cheques in their pockets, and their vocations calling them back home, will forget their passion for economy, and let everything slide.

Truly, we are a patient, long-suffering people.

A NEW CONCERT OF EUROPE.

There is both dignity and common-sense underlying the address delivered by Premier MacDonald in the Albert Hall last night. That vast auditorium has witnessed some epoch-making gatherings, and its walls have echoed to many important utterances in the past, but few speeches heard there have contained more weighty and well-considered words than those in which the British Premier made his plea for a great peace union of all Europe. It is a new and a complete Concert of Europe he has in mind, in which the smaller nations shall all find a place and which shall give heed to their voice as well as to that of the Great Powers.

It ought to be obvious to anybody who gives the matter thought that no policy of reconstruction in Europe can hope to succeed so long as it neglects to take into consideration the position and the claims of the smaller nations as well as those of the big ones. The reorientation of the Southeastern Europe has resulted in giving homogeneity to the Jugo-Slavs and the Czecho-Slovakians. Here are two nations of considerable force, compact, self-contained, who must be given due recognition in all future councils of Europe. Poland, too, reconstructed, consolidated, has equal claim to a voice; and so with all the rest. Premier MacDonald puts a point of significance forcefully when he declares that the sandpapering of the diverse ties of humanity created by many experiences of race, creed and clime into one feature would be a very bad thing for the world. The individuality of nations must be respected; but not to the point of hampering the peacemakers. Nationalism, he argues, is not aggression, but self-respect. Therein lies the keynote to his attitude towards the smaller nations of Europe in the great work of reconstruction.

The British Premier's optimism regarding the result of the adoption and execution en bloc of the report of the Dawes Commission on Reparations may be too keen. It may not meet with enthusiastic endorsation in all directions. But at least it is a bold and definite step, and if it be taken it will not bar the way to the adoption of effective and adequate alternatives should insuperable obstacles present themselves in the working out of the plan as set forth by the Commission. The one big thing is to start Europe on the way to well-founded reconstruction, and Premier MacDonald sees in this adoption of the report en bloc the only practical route to take to that end.

There is, fortunately, very good reason to warrant endorsation of his belief that quiet sanity and reasonable common-sense are beginning to replace militaristic methods of argument and persuasion; and the best sign of all, the most encouraging and heartening indication of that change, is the fact that the country which has held out longest and most vigorously in favor of compulsion has effected a complete reversion of attitude and now stands for moderation. In the future, when Premier MacDonald's words are recalled, as there is good reason to think they will be, it will be remembered also that France took her destiny in her hands with a generous gesture, as she has done more than once in the past, to serve humanity.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P., was the final speaker in the Budget debate, thus proving once again that woman always gets the last word.

NAPANEE, May 16. — At to-day's cheese board meeting there were 685 colored cheese boarded, 13 1-4c bid, no sales.

BIDS REFUSED.

LISTOWEL, May 16. — At the regular cheese board meeting to-day there were boarded 335 cheese from nine factories; highest bid was 14 1-8c; no sales.

PICTON CHEESE BOARD.

PICTON, May 16. — At to-day's cheese board meeting there were 422 boxes colored cheese boarded, 210 sold at 13 7-8c and 212 not sold.

CHEESE AT VICTORIAVILLE.

VICTORIAVILLE, Que., May 16—Five hundred boxes of cheese sold here to-day at 13 5-8c.

IROQUOIS CHEESE SALE

IROQUOIS, May 16. — At to-day's session of the Iroquois cheese board, 618 boxes of cheese were boarded, all colored, of which 230 sold at 14 3-8c and the balance at 14¼c.

MONTREAL BUTTER.

MONTREAL, May 16. — At the Quebec Agricultural Co-operative Society auction sale here to-day there were 1425 packages of creamery butter offered for sale for which the competition between buyers was keen and the bidding was more active than at any previous sale this season to date which resulted in prices scoring an advance of 7-8c to 1 3-8c per lb., as compared with those of Monday. Of the offerings 100 packages pasteurized creamery sold at 31¼c per lb., 500 packages No. 1 pasteurized creamery sold at 31c and 350 packages No. 1 creamery at 30 1-4c lb., and 475 packages No. 2 creamery at 29¼c per lb.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, May 16. — The demand for cash grain was rather quiet but prices ruled steady. There was nothing new in the flour market. A fair business continues in millfeed, but the demand for rolled oats was limited. The tone of the baled hay market was steady. Prospects are for higher prices in eggs, but there is no change so far. The market for potatoes was moderately active. Butter prices advanced 7-8c to 1 5-8c per lb., and No. 1 creamery was especially strong. The feeling in cheese is firm.

STERLING RATES.

Demand; 4.4425.
Cables, 4.4463.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, May 16. — The market is firm with a sharp advance in prices due to receipts being held up on account of the unfavorable weather which has made the roads, especially in the remote districts, almost impassable.

Toronto firm; jobing specials 32; extras 30; firsts 27, seconds 23.

Montreal market steady, with a good demand for both storage and immediate consumption. Jobbing specials 33 to 34; extras 30 to 31; firsts 27c.

Ottawa market steady; receipts heavy. Dealers quoting to country shippers, extras 25, firsts 23.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 16. — Dry weather reports from Nebraska, Kansas, and other important wheat states, together with higher temperatures in the southwest did a good deal to-day to lift the wheat values. The wheat market closed unsettled at ¼c and 3-8c to 3-4c net gain. July $1.06 5-8 to $1.06 3-4 and September $1.07½ to $1.07 5-8. Corn finished 1-4 to 3-4c and oats unchanged to 1-8c higher; provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 2c.

BOARD RESENTS CHEESE GRADING

Kingston Board May Close Before Season Is Over—Dairy School Blamed For Lowering Price of Butter.

KINGSTON, May 17.—The decision of Montreal cheese merchants to make reductions in the price of cheese, according to the Government Grading, aroused considerable discussion and criticism of the grading system at the Frontenac Cheese Board meeting. One buyer feared that it may mean the closing of the local board before the summer is over as it is understood has happened at Peterborough.

The Govrnent Grading system on cheese was in effect last summer but a new aspect has been given the matter by the decision of the Montreal merchants, word of which was received by Mr. Pillar by wire. The resolution passed by the Montreal Produce Merchants Association was to the effect that when a complete lot is placed in second grade, the lot shall be paid for at not less than one cent per pound under the price of first grade cheese, but when part of a lot is picked out and placed in second grade, these pick outs shall be paid for at not less than 1½ cents per pound under the price of first grade cheese; and that for all cheese placed in third grade the price shall have to be fixed according to the value of cheese but not less than two cents per pound under the price of first grade cheese.

In the discussion it was denied that the Government Grading system was wanted either by the farmers or consumers, as had been claimed.

One of the members of the Board claimed that the Eastern Dairy School was instrumental in lowering the price of butter which should not be the function of an institution where the staff was employed and paid by the Government. It was a matter for the dairy men to take up, it was claimed.

FIVE ZOOS ROBBED OF PARROTS

STUTTGART, Germany, May 17.—Thieves have recently made a specialty of parrots which speak. The local zoological garden and the zoos in Berlin, Frankfort, Nuremberg and Dresden have reported thefts of birds, and in all cases valuable parrots were taken. Shipping agencies and shipping lines have been advised of the thefts and the zoos hope to prevent the exportation of the birds.

The statute knotfi usually considered as a standard is 6082.66 feet.

A Thought

GOSH, WHAT A WORLD!

A man may, by dint of perseverance, intelligent and hard work, make a lot of money. He may give employment to a lot of people. He may rise to a prominent social position and be what the world calls "prosperous," but what are all these things to a man who has a hardened heart—has no friends to like him for his individuality and not just his income?

Rich men tell me they are afraid to make many friends. They feel that they must guard against new acquaintances, for the stranger may have some oil stock to sell.

The poor man has nothing to lose and everything to gain by meeting other men. He may only get a lesson, by meeting other men, but it is by our lessons that we learn. The rich man knows but little of the world, and, gosh, what a world this must be!

He seated himself in the grill and made a long study of the menu.

"Waiter," he said at length, "I have only two dollars with me. What would you recommend?"

The waiter gently removed the card from the hand of the stranger as he replied:

"Another restaurant."

THRONGS IN SUSPENSE WAITING FOR WINNERS

Like Waiting for World Series, to Hear Who Received Strollers Prizes.

Winners of the latest Strollers Contest were announced last night. The awards went out from Tobacco Products Corporation, Hamilton, to the fortunate people whose cleverness and energy won one of the large cash prizes donated to smokers by the makers of this famous brand of cigarettes.

It was made known in town to-day that the following is the complete list of winners as officially announced at Hamilton last night:

1—George Walters, 124 Main St., Galt, Ont.
2—E. Relley, 312 Observatory St., Nelson, B.C.
3—Harrison Ralph, 8 Main St., Dundas, Ont.
4—Y. Desparois, 105 Boulevard, St. Joseph E., Montreal, P.Q.
5—C. E. LaGrave, 1082 Bank St., Ottawa, Ont.
6—E. Humphreys, 95 Tisdale St., N., Hamilton, Ont.
7—S. Leslie, 213 1st Ave., Yorkton, Sask.
8—S. J. Selonen, 17 Elliott St., Dartmouth, NS
9—E. L. Murray, 924 Queen St., Preston, Ont.
10—C. Alain, 154 Ave. Taschereau, Que., P.Q.
11—W. L. Craft, 70 King St., St. John, N.B.
12—A. Biggins, Suite 6, Royal George Apts., Brandon, Man.
13—G. Jackson, 622-11th Av. E. Vancouver, BC

Hundreds from coast to coast sent in complete sheets of the moving picture stars whose pictures are inserted in all Strollers packages. In addition to the contestants were thousands working in the interests of their friends. And the public in general realizing that another exciting race was in progress; manifested a keen desire to learn the result.

EVERY PROVINCE ENTERED

From the land of the Evangeline, through the Maritimes, into Quebec, all over Ontario, and thence clear across to the Pacific, the amazing demand for Strollers has been shown for nearly two years. A high-quality Virginia product, it caught the smokers' taste and public favor at the same time. The latest contest simply shows how popularity spreads. Strollers are sold everywhere by leading tobacconists. And the demand has continued to grow until the monthly production runs into many millions.

Small packets of ten are sold at 15 cents, packets of 25 for 35 cents, tins of fifty for 75 cents, and tins of 100 for $1.40. This broad range of prices and sizes has been necessary in meeting the public demands.

ONLY CLUES PRINTED

The latest contest was simply a "clues" contest. Only the outline of the Movie Star faces were published, yet thousands recognized them at once and sent in complete sheets. The prizes were awarded for the first complete sheets received, the date of mailing being considered in the judging. It was the greatest race through the mails in Canadian history. More than 300 completed sheets were received the first mail.

It pays to say "Gimme," and smoke Strollers—pays in terms of fine flavor, mildness and real satisfaction—it also pays to save the inserts, as the fortunate winners know, who are being congratulated by friends to-day.

DOUBT MANO'WAR RUMOR

HORSEMEN TREAT LIGHTLY REPORT THAT HE MAY MEET EPINARD

Horsemen were interested yesterday in a rumor that Sanford G. Riddle's Man o' War might return to training to meet Epinard, the French champion, in the running international series in the contest. But they could not believe that Mr. Riddle would seriously consider attempting to bring Man o' War to racing in view of his long retirement to the stud. It was pointed out that it would not be fair to the American champion if Man o' War was a three-year-old in August if returned to the stud after the present season.

TIPS FROM AN OLD-TIMER

Never make up your mind that a play is impossible as the ball leaves the bat.

There is always a chance until the ball has passed you and is on its way to the outfield.

The question of an infielder's speed doesn't enter into the scheme.

The thought is, that no player should ever give up on a ball until the possibility for a play has been eliminated.

I always work on that theory, and have time and again surprised myself by getting a ball that seemed a physical impossibility when it left the bat.

Of course, my speed helps, but every infielder has certain possibilities, and he should always make the most of them by giving every ball a battle.

Don't quit on a ball, no matter how impossible the play may seem.

DELEGATES TO LABOR PARTY

Mrs. Charles H. Thorburn One of Representatives of Canadian Government At Geneva Conference.

OTTAWA, May 17.—(Canadian Press.)—Mrs. Charles H. Thorburn, of Ottawa, vice-president of the Canadian National Council of Women, has been appointed as one of the two delegates representing the Government of Canada at the international labor conference to be held in Geneva in June. Mrs. Thorburn is at present in London, England as honorary commissioner to the British Empire exhibition.

Mr. Melville White of Toronto, will represent the employers and Tom Moore, president of the trades and labor congress, will represent the employees of Canada at the conference.

R. W. Craig, K.C., Winnipeg, has been appointed advisor to the Government delegates. The second delegate representing the Government of Canada has not yet been appointed. This announcement was made by the Minister of Labor today.

The international labor conference was established under part 13 of the treaty of peace. Canada, as one of the eight leading industrial nations of the world, holds permanent representation at the labor conference as well as on the governing bodies.

TOBE'S FUNNY STORY.

"Well—haw! Haw, sir!" laughed Tobe Sagg. "Lemme tell you the funniest thing I ever heard of in all my life! Lank Lopstitch was riding along on horseback and lost his britches off. He——"

"Lost them off? In the name of gracious, how?" interrupted a motorist who had halted his car in the big road to inquire the way to Presbyterian Hill.

"Aw, it don't make no pertickler difference how. The story is about what happened atterwards, and ——"

"But, wait! How in the name of the everlasting Sam Patch can a man lose his trousers off when he is riding horseback?"

"Looky yur! If you don't want to hear this story, say so!"

SEEDING ON LOW FARMS IN CAVAN NOT YET BEGUN

Work on Higher and Drier Land Fairly Well Advanced—Cattle Are Turned Out to Pasture Early—Hogs Sold At Low Price.

Extra Cream Cheques.

CAVAN, May 17.—The continued rainfall is causing things to appear serious for many farmers.

There are farmers in Cavan who, as yet, have not a seed sown, their land which had to be seeded this spring being low, they could not get it in shape to sow. Others, whose land is higher, are pretty well on, while very many report only from five to twenty acres sown.

While unable to work on the land, many are utilizing the time by repairing fences, etc.

Cattle in Pasture.

The scarcity of feed has caused many to turn their cattle out to pasture, which is none too good at the present time.

Mr. Richard Matchett turned out fifteen head on his ranch this week.

As you drive along the country roads, on almost every farm can be seen stock on pasture. This would not have been done (as it is bad for the pasture to turn cattle out too early) had the feed not been scarce.

Mr. William Stark reports that in his district (the west part of Cavan) stock are being turned out on account of scarcity of feed. Among his lambs is a freak lamb with one ear.

The report comes from Manvers of a gosling with four feet. It was alive until it was at least a day old.

Hogs Plentiful.

Pigs are plentiful in Cavan Centre, one man having forty on one hundred acres. They have been changing hands among the farmers at from six to nine dollars a pair, according to age and quality.

A number of Cavan farmers ship their cream to the Farmer's Co-operative Co., Toronto, and are well pleased with the price paid, a cent more being given by them than by other Also those who sent last winter, after receiving this extra cent, in the spring received an extra check, the company having decided, when their books were made up, that they could afford to give their patrons this extra amount.

Mr. Jos. Staples was one of the men who received extra.

This season is well suited for setting out fruit trees and bushes, in fact, any kind of trees.

Many are setting out berry bushes.

Even villagers are behind with their crops; in Cavan village very few gardens are even ploughed.

Mr. S. S. Staples shipped a carload of hogs and veal calves on Monday from Cavan station. He payed $7.75 a cwt. for the hogs.

Mr. Tom Lang, the Millbrook buyer, also payed that price this week.

Personal Mention.

Mr. Harry McIvor is not at all well. For the past few weeks he has remained in bed for the greater part of each day.

Mr. James Paul is suffering from a prolonged attack of rheumatism, the weather having been unfavorable for his recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Fee, East Emily, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hunter, Cavan, on Tuesday.

Mr. Robert Bigelow is looking after farming operations for his brother, Mr. Herbert Bigelow, leaving the latter free to devote his time to his sawmill and custom sawing.

James' veneering mill is running full time. The drying racks are full, and the material turned out from the mill is arranged along both sides of the road for a considerable distance to dry.

Besides logs received locally, many logs have come into Cavan station by train and more are expected. In fact, the station yards are full of them.

Mr. Leonard and Miss Bertha McNeil visited Manvers friends on Sunday.

BETHEL NEWS

BETHEL Otonabee, May 17.—There is to be a meeting of the church officials at Harry Reid's on Wednesday evening.

Miss Lila McKay is spending a few days at Norwood.

Mrs. Ben Reid was called to Peterboro on Sunday to wait on her sister who is quite ill.

Tom Downer had a barn raising on Tuesday afternoon; he is building a new straw barn.

The carpenters are busy at H. McKay's framing a new drive shed.

G. W. Fife went to Toronto on Tuesday with a drove of fat cattle for the market.

Harry Reid is working at the mill these days putting in logs for D. Sedgewick.

Eggs are selling at 21c a dozen; butter at 33c for dairy, 35c for creamery.

Mr. George Patterson was in Peterboro on Sunday visiting his brother, W. Patterson.

Miss Effie Reid spent the week-end at home.

Bootleggers Present Cards In Convention.

GALVESTON, Texas, May 17.—(United Press).—Existence of a bootlegger's union was disclosed here during the recent convention of Texas bricklayers.

Two prosperous promotors of the bootleggers' fraternity buttonholed the bricklayers in convention anterooms and hotel lobbies.

They presented engraved cards, reading as follows:

"Gentlemen, I am Mr. ———, a former union ———. My partners are all former union men. We operate the only union bootlegging agency in Galveston, and if any of your delegates get thirsty we would like to get their trade. We feel your union should support our by buying from union men rather than from outsiders."

FRANCE FISHES FOR FAVORS FROM JAPAN

Franco-Japanese Entente Believed Possible--Would Ensure France's Interests In Continent.

By J. W. T. MASON.

NEW YORK, May 17.—(United Press).—France is preparing to fish in the troubled waters of the Far East. The dispute between America and Japan over immigration and the breaking of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, are believed by French statesmen to make possible the creation of a Franco-Japanese entente, to complete the encirclement of continental Europe in France's interests.

Governor-General Merlin of French Indo-China, has been instructed to pay a state visit to Japan, accompanied by his wife and son, high officials of the French Indo-China administration and by the French Presidents of the Chamber of Commerce of a number of Indo-China cities. The party will remain in Japan probably three weeks. France also is considering sending her most experienced colonial authority, M. Sarraut, ex-Minister of the Colonies, on a special mission to Japan.

It was recently reported M. Sarraut might become French Ambassador to Japan, replacing the well-known aesthete, Paul Claudel, who has made a deep impression in Japanese artistic circles by his dramatic compositions which have been produced in Tokyo. Claudel is a better propagandist than anyone else France could send to Japan in a permanent capacity, because he represents the sensitive side of French art, which finds so much in common with the aesthetic instincts of the Japanese. It is probable, therefore, that Claudel will remain in Tokyo while Sarraut or someone else will be sent as a special envoy if real negotiations are to be undertaken.

A Bait for Japan.

Toward the close of the World War, it was reported that France was willing to engage with Japan in a joint colonizing scheme for Indo-China, but the plan has not as yet been carried out. France, however, has this bait in reserve. The French believe Indo-China would serve as an excellent Japanese jumping-off place for India, now that the British Labor Government has abandoned the plan to make a naval base at Singapore, the nearest neighbor to Indo-China.

If the Japanese were willing to make a formal alliance with France the French Government would have reached a height of success equaling the topmost accomplishments of the times of Napoleon and Louis XIV. Germany would then be completely checkmated against using Russia as an ally in a future attack on France. The French ring surrounding Germany in Europe must always remain fatally weak while Germany is free to ally herself with Russia for a joint war against the French European hegemony. But, if Japan, in alliance with France, stood at Russia's back-door, waiting to attack, the Russian bear would be held fast, and Germany could hope for no assistance from that quarter.

Japan Gains Little.

This scheme offers enormous advantages to France, but there are no equal advantages for Japan. The Japanese, holding Russia peace, could earn nothing in Siberia. Nor is Siberia of any value to the Japanese, who will not colonize in undesirable climates. France could offer to pay Japan with Indo-China; and there would be a casual advantage in this; but Japan has not yet pushed her advantages to the full in Formosa. Indo-China presents different problems than exist in Formosa, but fully as difficult ones. In addition, in time of war, against a great naval power, Japan would have to have a much augmented navy in order to keep Indo-China, which is 1,500 miles away.

The French idea that Japan might use Indo-China as a base for the conquest of India, is fantastic. The next conquest of India will be by the natives of India for their own benefit and will be a peaceful move by means of self-government. Furthermore, Japan has not forgotten that it was France, in temporary alliance with Germany and Russia, who robbed Japan of the fruits of her victory over China in 1896. The Japanese, whose political provision has stood many tests, are likely to see that they have nothing substantial to gain by European military alliances for years to come when conditions are likely to be radically altered.

EMILY FIELDS UNDER WATER

Farmers Fear Seed May Rot Before Sprouting — Some Have Only Part of Farms In Seed.

EAST EMILY, May 15.—In this locality quite a lot of the fields sown in grain have water lying on them this week, therefore making the farmers anxious for fear of the grain rotting in the ground before it gets started to grow.

The recent rains this week have put a stop to the seeding for a while, and by the way the rain keeps up there isn't much prospect of the men being able to work on the fields for a few days yet.

Some farmers in this locality have very little sown yet, and those who have any sown are wishing it was in in the granary.

Very few people have any garden seeds in.

Mr. Harry Deyell took about 30 head of cattle back to his ranch in Harvey on Tuesday.

The market price of eggs and butter in this locality is 22c and 30c respectively.

Mr. Isaac Guthrie is busy preparing to build his new barn.

The men on this section of the county road are busy this week underbrushing the ditches and dragging and drawing gravel for any holes in the road.

Mr. Stanley Rusk has two acres of potatoes in the ground.

Mr. Stanley Rusk took this week's butter to Peterboro on Wednesday from East Emily factory.

VACATION

In 1916 the average railroad employee worked 3148 hours. In 1923 he worked 2584 hours. This is equivalent to giving him nearly three months' vacation a year, taking a bit of it daily.

So claim the railroads. We won't pause to analyze the accuracy of their figures. The important thing is the principle involved—the vacation idea. And railroad men in this respect are no different than the rest of us. Nearly every one is working shorter hours. We are reaping the harvest of invention and efficient methods.

JAPANESE ENVY AIR VICTORIES OF ANGLO-SAXON

Apparent Cause to Fear That Japan May Be Left Far Behind In Race For Air Supremacy.

SEEKING PEACE.

TOKIO, May 17.—(Associated Press).—Mingled admiration and envy, tinged with a vague fear lest Japan be left too far behind in the development of military aviation, characterizes the comments of Japanese on the round-the-world flight by American and British aviators already under way.

Intelligent Japanese are aware of their country's backwardness in aviation. Therefore their admiration for the exploits of the Anglo-Saxons, although genuine, is accompanied by regret that they cannot enter the competition for globe-girdling honors. The probability that both the British and American airmen will be crossing Japan at the same time in opposite directions, and possibly will be refitting at Kasumigaura, near Tokio, simultaneously, has intensified Japan's interest in aviation.

The Osaka Asahi, after describing the American and British flight plans and expressing admiration for the daring of the flyers, says: "Although we would like for our own aviators to participate in the competition, we must realize that they are in no position to do so. It is highly regrettable that we must be content with watching and studying the progress of aviation shown." The Asahi, then remarks that no aviators have ever crossed the Pacific Ocean, and that the Japanese, because of their position, will study the success of the American attempt.

"Whoever may win the laurels," continues the paper, "the achievement will be an important point in the history of aerial navigation, perhaps a turning point in the record of civilization. From this standpoint we hope for their success. However, we must not forget the fierce competition in aerial expansion now in progress between America, Great Britain and France."

The Asahi expresses hope in the possibility that the pacific British Labor Government may do something to lessen the dangers of the competition, and then continues:

"The competition to girdle the globe by air may have no connection with the aviation expansion plans of the powers, but it seems that the United States was influenced by the British and French competition to plan this round-the-world flight. Announcement of the American plan brought out similar projects in Britain and France. This being the case, it is natural that discussion is going on of a new disarmament conference.

"If these flights are planned to further peaceful communication throughout the world they should receive every support. If, however, they are intended to assist in the expansion of military air forces they must be decried; they should be stopped. If the British and Americans seek only to demonstrate the feasibility of travelling around the world by air, Japan can be content with her role of onlooker; but if their flights are preparation for expansion of their military aviation defenses, Japan must adopt plans to meet the situation."

Blind Woman Reads to Deaf and Dumb.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., May 17.—(United Press).—An address read by a blind woman from a manuscript written in Braille characters are interpreted by a man beside her on the platform into sign language for the benefit of deaf members of the audience, was the outstanding number on the program that marked the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Colorado School for the Deaf and Blind here.

Miss Charlton Harris, 1913 graduate and now director of a music studio, gave the address. An instructor in the school interpreted for the deaf.

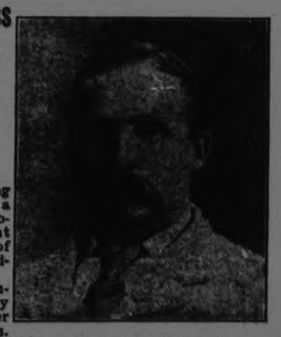
A Nervous Wreck

Victim of Gas—After Endless Suffering—Turns To His Old Friend and Is Well

The Fruit Treatment "Fruit-a-tives"



One of the most astonishing recoveries that seems almost like a miracle, is that of Mr. James Dobson of Bronte, Ont., a prominent merchant, a mine owner and one of the charter members of the Dominion Stock Exchange, Toronto.

In 1912, Mr. Dobson was completely relieved of Rheumatism by taking the Fruit Treatment, after suffering for more than five years.

In January of last year, Mr. Dobson was almost suffocated by gas from a furnace in his house. He says, "I had blood tests, analysis of the stomach, X-ray of teeth, had eight teeth extracted and became a nervous wreck. Finally, my wife suggested trying our old medicine "Fruit-a-tives", which I did. Today, I weigh 189 pounds instead of 140 and am completely restored to health. In my estimation, there is no other medicine that will give as good results as "Fruit-a-tives".

Thousands and thousands of people, in the past eighteen years, have come to the same conclusion—that "there is no other medicine that will give as good results as "Fruit-a-tives"—for all troubles arising from a disordered condition of the stomach, liver, kidneys or skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" are the intensified juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes, combined with tonics and form a complete treatment in themselves.

If you are not well, try the Fruit Treatmest. Your dealer has "Fruit-a-tives"—25c. and 50c. a box—or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

Swedish Airmen Have Record For Safety.

STOCKHOLM, May 17.—(Associated Press).—Swedish airmen, anxious to prove to the public that there is a remarkably small margin of danger in their occupation, have just figured out that the aviators of Sweden have actually flown a distance equal to encircling the globe 14 1-2 times for every fatality.

This record of safety surpasses that of the United States, according to Col. E. C. Arikson of the Swedish Army, who says deaths in airplane accidents in that country are more than three times as frequent for the same unit flown. Stated in terms of time, the Swedes fly 3,800 hours without a fatal accident, as against the Americans 1,170 hours.

Commercial flying in Sweden has been given a new impetus by the decision of the Postal Department t osupport and utilize the new air service between Malmo and Hamburg. The flying time to London will now be only six hours.

TRADERS

Germany is our third best export customer now, and crowding Canada for second place. Both countries are buying over 49 million dollars worth of American goods a month. United Kingdom tops them by taking 57 millions a month.

When it comes to imports, Germany ranks ninth among countries America buys from. We're flooding Germany with goods, not Germany flooding us as many feared when the war ended. It's a different story when we compete with Germany in outside countries.

Paperhanging now Simplified

DO you fully realize how much more simple, easy and rapid, paperhanging has become with the perfection of semi-trimming?

Consider the difference between this and the old-fashioned methods. Staunton Semi-Trimmed Wallpaper eliminates all trimming. You simply give the ends of the semi-trimmed roll a rap on table or floor and the selvage falls off. Then cut the strips the required length and apply paste. Hang the paper—and the result is a perfectly butted job.

Staunton Semi-Trimmed Wallpaper is accurately trimmed for you in course of manufacture. It saves time, prevents muss and disorder, and simplifies the work throughout. It is to the advantage of all who hang wallpaper to use Staunton Semi-Trimmed Wallpaper.

Ask your dealer to show you the patterns.

BEST ARTISTIC EFFECTS

All Staunton Wallpaper is 22 inches in width. This allows of better development of the patterns and better artistic effects. Each Staunton pattern is handled with the most painstaking care and tasteful judgment by men who are experts in interior decoration.

The 1923-4 Staunton line of Canadian-made Wallpaper is unsurpassed in novelty, design, coloring, finish or variety by any country in the world.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

THE POOR COBBLER

They jumped up on the work bench and began to sew.

The next place Mister Muggs took the Twins in Once-Upon-a-Time Land was to see the Poor Cobbler.

Although indeed he was not poor now. He was very, very rich and needed to cobble no longer for a living.

"We came to see you and your good wife," called Mister Muggs when he had parked the little car outside the gate. "May we come in?"

"Of course, of course!" said the kindly cobbler. "Come right in and I'll call Sally and we can have a party. I think she has just made some fresh cookies, and the Jersey cows gives rich milk."

After Nancy had had six cookies and Nick eight, the cobbler told his story.

'We are very, very poor,' he said. "Somehow or other everything had gone wrong. Sometimes I was sick, sometimes my wife was sick, and sometimes both of us together. Our savings in the teapot on the mantelpiece got less and less and less and finally disappeared.

"Well, at last there was only enough leather left for one pair of shoes. Late one night I cut them out, and then went to bed so I could get up early in the morning and finish the work.

"The next morning when I went into my shop, there lay the shoes on my bench all finished to the last stitch, and sewed so neatly that I got twice the price for them I usually did.

"This went on for many nights, each night the mysterious visitor sewing twice as many shoes as he had the night before. I became the richest man in town.

"My wife and I decided to watch, so one night we hid behind the door, and at 12 o'clock two ragged little men came, no bigger than my hand. They jumped up on the work bench and began to sew. They must have been fairies, for never have I seen shoes made so fast. A stitch and a snip and they were done.

"We said to ourselves, 'Tit for tat. The little fellows need clothes. Perhaps that is what they are working for.' So next day my wife made two tiny suits and knitted two tiny jackets and caps and laid them beside the leather.

"Then we watched again. The little men came and when they saw the new clothes they shouted for joy. Then they put the things on and disappeared. We have never seen them since.

"But a queer thing happened. I had bought some green leather—enough for two pairs of shoes. It disappeared with them."

"They must have made magic shoes and given them to the Fairy Queen,' 'cried Nancy. "And she gave them to us."

"Best Thing in the World For Delicate Girls"

Mrs. John Bennett, Boggy Creek, Man., writes:

"My little girl had organic nervous trouble, could not sleep, had severe headaches and fainting spells. This went on for three years, and three doctors helped her very little. After reading of what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food had done for others, I got some for her. She is now so well that she is like a different child. She is fourteen years old and looks the picture of health.

"We have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for different members of the family, when recovering from "flu" and scarlet fever, and it has always helped them."

TUBES TAKE PLACE OF TENNIS MEDALS

Edith E. Rotch, Noted Tennis Champion, Quits Game For Experimental Radio Work.

(By Harold B. Mtson.)

BOSTON, May 17.—From tennis to radio —and always a champion.

Before the days of radio, Edith E. Rotch of this city was driving her way to triumph on the tennis court, winning many an important title.

To-day she enjoys the distinction of being a radio champion—that is, she is one of the few women amateurs who have been granted a special licnese to transmit, with privilege of operating on special wavelength for experimental work.

At her home silver trophies, placques and medals are being crowded from sight by loops, receiving sets, transmitters and their accompanying apparatus, not to speak of certificates and diplomas which testify to her accomplishments in radio.

Miss Rotch first became interested in radio in 1917, when she felt the urge to engage in war work. After completing a four-months course in a radio school here, she passed government examinations and was employed as an inspector in the American Radio plant at Medford, Mass. It was her task to set radio sets before they were packed for shipment to the war zone.

Taught Amateurs.

However, the ending of the war did not end her activities in radio. Besides continuing experimental work at home, she took up instructing radio students in a Boston school.

Among the amateurs, Miss Rotch has been known by her call IRO, but now with her new license, lifting her above the amateur class, her call is IZR.

Her transmitter is a set using the IDH circuit and a 50-watt tube, and her working receiver is a 3-tube radio-audio-frequency set, hooked to a six-wire loop. Sometimes she connects it with her transmitter cage antennae to clarify and soften the tone. Her apparatus includes a DC motor generator and a concert amplifier.

Athletic Record.

In the tennis world Miss Rotch is known for the singles titles she won in Cleveland, Baltimore, the Virgina Hot Springs tournament, Middle States championship, and Chevy Chase. In doubles she played in the national tournaments with May Sutton and Mary Brown. Once in the national singles it looked like Miss Rotch was to be the champion. But May Sutton was playing a superior game that year and conquered the Boston girl.

Besides tennis and radio, Miss Rotch also has won fame for her ice-skating, having won a dozen or more New England fancy skating contests.

FLUCTUATIONS IN PRICE OF FURS

Comparison of Quotations At Winnipeg This Week With Those of Year Ago.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 17.—(Canadian Press). — Comparative prices paid for furs at the auction sale here this week and those prevailing a year ago, show a broad fluctuation, according to figures released by officials of the Winnipeg fur auction. Following are the prices established at the present sale:

FOR LARGE FAMILIES.

PARIS, May 17.—Mon. and Mme. Cagnacq have given another 15,000,000 francs to the French Academy, the income of which is to be awarded annually in premiums of 10,000 francs each to 103 French families residing in France or Algeria of five or more children from same parent.

He was in Pretty Bad Condition

SO SAYS SASKATCHEWAN MAN BEFORE HE USED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Mr. J. St. Germain suffered from Rheumatism and found relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lacordaire, Sask., May 16.—(Special).—"I feel glad to say that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best I have ever used. I was in pretty bad condition before I took your pills. I was weak in the kidneys and in bad shape with rheumatism. At present I am very well. I have recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills to my neighbors and they all claim that they are the best kidney remedy that can be bought. I only took four boxes and now I can work hard and always feel so good."

This statement comes from Mr. J. St. Germain, well-known resident of this place.

There is no reason why anyone should continue to suffer when Dodd's Kidney Pills can be obtained from druggists everywhere, or The Dodds Medicine Co., Ltd., Toronto.

RADIO EDUCATION NEW SUGGESTION

Establishment of Radio Broadcasting Stations By Universities Been Recommended.

MADISON, May 17. — Establishment of radio broadcasting stations, by universities, for the dessimination of learning by wireless, was recommended by Professor W. H. Lighty, of the University of Wisconsin, at the meeting of the National University Extension Association, just held here.

This recommendation was made after a survey in which Professor Lighty reports that he found a general lack of radio interest and knowledge among educators despite its growing hold upon the younger generation.

"The impression gained from a study of tabulated replies indicates far less understanding and interest among persons engaged in educational work than one was wont to assume," Lightly reports upon a questionnaire that he sent to educators in Wisconsin.

"Perhaps this reflects something lacking in a desirable radio audience or listening constituency to make university broadcasting wholly satisfactory," he adds. But he points to the hold that it has taken on American boyhood of to-day.

"Radio communication constitutes one of the outstanding inventions that is bound to profoundly change our social institutions, Lighty says. "The radio once again buttresses home and family influences. In my boyhood, the fireside lure may have been Arabian Nights but now for my boy it is Radio nights.

"The public school system of a great city, the municipal or the state university and likewise all national universities or private foundations that recognize obligations for service to the times, should have the opportunity to serve their contemporary constituencies with such light and leading as the radio broadcast can freely supply.

"Numerous broadcasting stations in institutions of learning co-operating with one another or supplementing one another may make contributions of inestimable value in the happiness and progress of mankind."

CHINESE MISSIONARY SUICIDE AT CONFERENCE

Young Convert Grieved Over Country's Woes and His Separation From His Family.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 17.—Roger Rahn, a native lay delegate from West China to the Methodist General Conference in session here, committed suicide Thursday morning by taking cyanide of potassium at his hotel.

The conference was officially informed of the suicide by the Rev. Dr. I. F. Peat of the West China delegatilon, 3,000 persons standing with bowed heads as he told of the mental and physical illness which had prompted Mr. Hahn's act.

"He had been under the care of physicians while here in Springfield," Dr. Peat said. "They had not felt that his illness was incurable, but mental depression greatly exaggerated his physical condition. He was suffering from acute melancholia with persistent insomnia, and some time before 8 o'clock he took his own life."

SINK STRAINERS

TESTS POINT TO BROADCASTING ON SHORT WAVES

England Picks Up 107 Meter Concerts Out of Hut In Schenectady.

SCHENECTADY, N.Y., May 17. —Experiments conducted from station WGY here, point to the adoption of short wave transmission for extremely long distance radio communietaion.

From a small isolated cabin, especially built for the purpose, engineers of the General Electric Company have been sending out broadcast programs on 107 meters wave length, which have been picked up and rebroadcast on higher wave lengths by eight British stations.

As high as 10 kilowatts were used in sending, which meant taking special precautions against danger to those handling the apparatus. The transmitting station had to be built far from other structures. Persons in the hut could not carry metal pencils or watches, and shoes without nails had to be worn.

The short wave signals were transmitted so clearly that reboradcasting 3,000 miles away was found easy.

Steps have already been taken to establish the rebroadcasting system on a permanent basis.

Once every two weeks it is planned to give British listeners the treat of hearing WGY or KDKA at East Pittsburgh, Pa. The broadcasting will take place between 6 and 7 o'clock, eastern standard time, which is between 11 and 12 at night in England.

The American short wave signals are received at an isolated station about 15 miles from London. They are intensified and sent over a line wire to the broadcasting station in London, from which they are rebroadcast on a higher wavelength.

COOKING MEAT.

When cooking meat or fish, keep it in a warm place for a while before it is cooked and have it wiped as dry as possible. If very cold, the meat brings down the temperature of the fat in which it is to be fried to such an extent that a coat cannot be formed quickly enough to prevent the fat from entering the food, and a greasy product is the result.

NEWS FROM CAVAN AND THE DISTRICT

Several Farmers have Finished Seeding—Personals

CAVAN, May 17. — Mr. Harry Roddy's sale on Thursday afternoon was well attended. Cattle sold fairly well. A team of good horses sold for $100.00 apiece. The implements sold quite low.

Mr. Wilbert Larmer, Whitfield's Line, is another farmer who has finished seeding.

Mr. T. A. Kelly, 8th Line, Cavan, is also done.

Several farmers are again working on the land.

Mr. Eber Syer arrived home from Toronto University on Friday evening to spend the week-end. On Tuesday he will go to Hamilton, where he will take a position on the medical staff of the Insane Asylum. He was on the staff during his vacation last summer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Clegg, Montreal, are spending the week-end with Mrs. Clegg's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eber Syer.

Dr. Jamieson and Mr. T. A. Kelly motored to Peterborough on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Armstrong and Mrs. Loyd Sutton were visitors to Toronto on Thursday.

Mrs. Armstrong took her baby to Dr. Williams for a slight operation.

Lowest priced receiving sets in Japan cost about $25 or $30.

FABLES ON HEALTH

The Mann child had long since outgrown the "baby scale," on which the pounds and ounces were regularly calculated.

But the Manns did not neglect to watch the growing child's weight, for this is of considerable importance.

Statisticians carefully charting the various weights for the young child, have arrived at the following figures:

At two years:

The boy should weigh slightly more than 28 pounds, and the girl 27 pounds. Height: Boys, 33 1-10 inches; girls, 32 inches.

Three years: Boys, 33 pounds, and girls, 31 pounds. Height: Boys, 36 inches, and girls, 35½ inches.

Four years: Boys, 41 pounds, or slightly more, and girls, 35 pounds. Height: Boys, 38¼ inches; girls, 38 2-5 inches.

Five years: Boys, 41 pounds, 6 ounces; girls, 41 pounds, 3 ounces. Height: Boys about 42 inches, and girls, 41.3 inches.

These are important years in growth, both in weight and height, and some, of course, grow more rapidl ythan others. The figures quoted are those of average normal children.

Don't neglect to watch your child's weight and height.

FARM LIFE AND ITS PROBLEMS

MODEL FARM AT RICE LAKE HAS WEALTHY OWNER

American Millionaire Has Plant That Will Be a Show Place of the District When Completed--Creamery Is Part of Equipment.

FURTHER PROGRESS.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

ROSENEATH, May 17.—There are comparatively few people outside of this district who are aware that on the shores of Rice Lake American millionaires have established model a farm that when completed is likely to become one of the show places as an example of agricultural progress in Central Ontario. Here is another instance of capital from the United States being invested in Canada.

Fred F. Field, whose home is at Avon Lake, about 20 miles from Cleveland, Ohio, is at the head of this movement and associated with him in the venture is Joseph Kelly, his business partner. Mr. Field is one of the many Americans who, having acquired wealth and seeking a vocation, a side line to divert their minds from the worries of business life, take up farming. Another city man has realized his dream of a quiet existence in the country where he can indulge his fancy for farming according to his own ideas. It is Canada's good fortune that he has decided to experiment here instead of in his own country.

Started Three Years Ago

It is three years this spring since Mr. Field, who has paid frequent visits to the Rice Lake district during the resort season, and who evidently became impressed with the country, purchased a farm, and built a summer home for himself on the edge of the lake. Since that time he has extended his buildings until now it is estimated that he owns nearly 1,000 acres all told, this tract containing every variety of soil, high and low, clay and sand, and swamps that may be reclaimed and made highly productive by drainage. There is also natural pasture land in abundance. The place is well suited to diversified farming, including the production of fruit.

As It Appears Today

Just what great things can be accomplished in three years by intelligent methods and the liberal outlay of money has been demonstrated by Mr. Field. Buildings of all description, all planned by expert farm architects, and all painted white, have been put up and others are in process of construction. The house occupied by Mr. Field himself is now being enlarged and will be furnished when completed in the most modern style throughout. The main barns, in which the high-priced stock is housed, have been erected in duplicate, so that in the event in one the loss will not be total.

City farmers invariably have what may be classed as fads, but in nine cases out of ten, the keeping of high class stock, dairy cattle especially, is one of their hobbies. When Mr. Field started here he specialized in Jerseys of all kinds. His cattle were of that type, his hogs and hens were Douro Jerseys.

So far as the hogs and poultry are concerned he has decided to make a change. There are over 100 of the former in his piggery now but these will be disposed of as soon as possible, and will be replaced by others of a different breed, but just what variety has not yet been settled.

In a hen house, over 100 feet long, well lighted and scrupulously clean, there are 700 hens and 1,400 eggs are in the incubators. Mr. Field, after a careful study of the poultry problem, has decided that the best breed is the White Leghorn, and will fill his pens with these.

Thirty Jersey Cows

The Jersey as a dairy cow is still regarded on the Field farm as the champion. There are 30 of these, all prize types, and the herd sire has been pronounced by competent judges to be one of the finest specimens of his breed in Ontario, a certain prize winner if shown at any of the big fairs. The milk from these cows is made into butter on the premises, an up-to-date creamery being part of the equipment. Half the cattle are housed in one barn and the remainder in another so that if one building should be destroyed by fire any of the stock that escaped would not be homeless. The same plan is adopted with the horses.

Three Fine Teams

Three standard breeds of horses are represented on this farm. There is a team of Percherons, a pair of Suffolk Punchers and another of Clydes, these being kept in the highest condition, their satiny coats showing the good care which they receive. These horses are all ready for the show ring at any time. The breeding of heavy horses will be one of the branches to be taken up on an extensive scale later. No light horses are kept, the policy being to produce or maintain nothing that cannot be used on the farm.

The Working Force

There are at present 21 men employed on the farm, the married men being provided with residences that are equipped with all modern conveniences. Mr. Field did not bring his working staff from the United States. Karl Harris, his farm foreman, and all of the workmen are Canadians. As time goes on, the place will develop into a community in which the residents will have all the advantages of dwellers in the cities and towns. There will be electric light and water in every home and in all the outbuildings. There is a water service already in the barns so that it is not necessary to turn out the cattle when they require a drink. Amusements, summer and winter, will be provided for the employees, and a physician will make regular trips to the farm to look after the health of the community. Each livestock department, that of the hogs, poultry and the like, is in charge of an expert. The duties of two men are confined to taking care of the dairy cows.

Baseball Prospects.

Mr. Field is an ardent baseball fan. He came here some time ago but has returned to Cleveland for a short time. Rumor has it that he will bring bats with him and some good players to form the nucleus ofa team to be maintained on the farm, and as he never does anything by halves it can be taken as a certainty that that team will have no occasion to fear to face any team in the Northumberland or other leagues.

Mr. Kelly, who lives some distance from the centre of population of the farm, has a fine place, planned on the same general outline of the main buildings. Seeding operations, except on the high portions of the farm, have been delayed owing to the wet weather, but the prospects for abundant hay and pasture are excellent.

Wonderful as the place now is, it is felt that simply a start has been made and that further outlay will be practically unlimited.

Cow Mired This Year Where Drought Swept This Time Last Year

CODRINGTON, May 17.—Mr. William Wilson, of the Orser neighborhood, a short distance from this village, reports that this has been the wettest spring in his experience. As yet he has only made a start at his spring work. Mr. Harry Belford, son of James F. Belford, M.P.P., says one of his cows nearly mired in a field that the drouth was affecting at this time last year. As these men reside in one of the best portions of the township of Brighton, as far as farm productiveness is concerned, the matter is beginning to look serious in respect to spring seeding generally.

However, the bright side of the situation is the excellent condition of all new meadows, fall wheat and rye.

NORWOOD FARM GETS LOTS RAIN

Nearly Every Day This Month Has Been Wet — Farmers Keep Milk at Home.

NORWOOD, May 17.—A number of the farmers in this district who have been shipping their milk away, have decided to send to the cheese factory.

Mr. W. Bitten, proprietor of the Norwood Creamery, has a truck on the road every day collecting cream.

Mr. Robert Sedgwick, who has been employed as shipper for the U.F.O., has had to give up the position on account of ill-health.

Weather conditions of late have not been very favorable for the farmers around Norwood, rain having fallen nearly every day during the past month.

Mr. F. C. McRae, B.S.A., district representative of the Department of Agriculture, placed a man with Mr. Oscar Hogan, of Asphodel, on Thursday.

Mr. McRae has delivered the eggs, seeds, potatoes, and other articles to the different schools in the district, and the children are getting busy preparing for the school fairs to be held in the fall.

TRENT RIVER FARM.

TRENT RIVER, May 16.—Mr. W. W. Redden, of lot 10 and 11, concession 14, has fall grain and hay seeding looking fine, but says the wet weather has delayed the spring seeding.

AYRSHIRE HERD ON SMITH FARM PASSED A TEST

E. J. Leeson Had Fifteen Head of Cattle Passed By Government Inspector Without a Single Reactor —Some Prize-Winners.

MADE GOOD RECORD.

Interviewed by The Examiner yesterday, Mr. Alex. Leeson told of his son's success as a cattle breeder at Lily Lake, and reported that his herd of fifteen Ayrshire pure bred cattle was pasesd by the government inspector without one reactor.

Mr. E. J. Leeson has his farm on the second line of Smith, where he has been established about four years. After farming for a time near Havelock, Mr. Leeson gave up agriculture and conducted a hardware store in Havelock. Four years ago the family moved to the present farm and three years ago the splendid Ayrshire herd was acquired. This week's test was the first of three which will be given at the specified intervals, and on passing the last test the cattle will be accredited tuberculosis-free. In the meantime, if Mr. Leeson purchases more cattle, the new stock must go through the inspection before being allowed on the farm, and no animal may be herded or stabled with the inspected pure breds unless it has passed the test.

Some Prize Winners

Some of the cattle were exhibited at Peterborough Industrial Exhibition on two occasions. The herd sire, from a tested cow with a good record, obtained prizes on both occasions, and headed the second prize herd on the second year.

Mr. Leeson believes whole-heartedly in the principles of accredited herds and is assured of the advantages in returns and in satisfaction to be obtained from pure bred accredited stock.

HASTINGS CHEESE HAS A HIGH TEST

Seventy Per Cent. Classed Special Last Year--Barley May Be Re-sown.

HASTINGS, May 17.—The continued rains are causing much anxiety in the farming district here. Some report that it is expected barley will in all probability have to be resown as so much dampness has caused it to rot in the ground before growth has commenced. Timothy and clover hay are exceptionally good and with favourable weather conditions large crops are looked forward to.

Very little work has been done in the local gardens.

Abundance of green grass is noticed on the lawns in various places, but so far the flower beds have a dreary outlook.

Apple trees are only just beginning to leaf in most cases.

Produce prices remain much the same. Dairy butter is selling at 30 cents a pound, eggs varying from 18 cents to 24 cents a dozen, graded. Plenty of old potatoes are yet available.

Cheesemaking

The Ormond cheese factory at Hastings opened for the year of 1924 the first Monday in May. Ten milk routes arrive at the factory each morning. An average of nine thousand pounds of milk are being handled each day, and from eight to nine cheese are being made daily.

Mr. Wesley Montgomery, the cheesemaker, has made cheese in the above factory for seven years, and the patrons are exceedingly well satisfied with his work. He has always been given great praise for the high quality of cheese he turns out yearly.

Last year the cheese made by Mr. Montgomery was 70 per cent. specials.

No test has as yet been taken of the milk this year, the highest milk test last year was 4.3.

The cheese are shipped co-operatively to the Belleville Co-operative Board. As yet no cheese has been shipped this year.

CHICKENS DON'T LIKE EMILY'S DUCK WEATHER

EAST EMILY, May 17.—The farm women in this locality are having a great deal of trouble raising their young fowl this season on account of the wet weather.

Mr. Max. McCauliffe had the misfortune of losing a team of horses. Both died on the same day last week.

Mr. Harry Deyell has bought a number of young cattle through the district, and is putting them out on his ranch for the summer.

The recent rains have put the men back in their spring seeding again, but a great many are hoping for dry weather in the near future.

Mr. Wilbert Fee has been through this district buying up young cattle to put out on his ranch for the summer months.

Mr. Stanley Rusk is very busy with his motor truck gathering cream for East Emily factory. His route takes in Downeyville, King's Wharf, Omemee, Ennismore and Emily.

WARSAW HAS GOOD GRASS BUT TENDER

WARSAW, May 17.—As a result of the rains, much of the fall wheat which was practically uninjured by the frosts, has been weakened.

Seeding is much delayed, but little could be done last week. There is a great growth of grass, and is very tender.

Some are completely out of feed and have to buy. The weather is such that milch cows cannot be left out.

Make Provision For Agriculture On the List of School Subjects To Meet Need of Farm Country

(By Alex. McGregor)

Of all the writers and speakers who have discussed the serious economic problem that is created by the drifting of young people from the rural districts to the cities and towns, how many have got any nearer the truth than Agnes McPhail, M.P., who, in a recent public address that has been quoted all over Canada and the United States, held the educational system responsible? The pupils in the country, she declared, were being educated away from the farms.

Probably Miss McPhail meant that there is in the educational system upon which so much public and private money is expended, no provision made for arousing the interest of the rural pupils by teaching subjects with which they come in daily contact.

The People To Blame

If Miss McPhail is right in her contention, then it is the people themselves, rather than the educational authorities, who are to blame. The Department of Education has made liberal provisions for the establishing of agricultural departments in the High Schools of the Province, just as has been done in the matter of setting up consolidated schools. Nothing like coercion has been attempted, everything being left to the will of the majority. Some of the High Schools and Collegiate Institutes have opened departments for the teaching of agriculture, this course to be optional with the students. In all such places the results have been most encouraging, and the attendance is the best guarantee of the popularity of this branch of study. More and more progressive teachers are fitting themselves every year as heads of such departments by taking the special course provided for their benefit.

Present Arrangements Unfair

High Schools in Ontario are not only maintained by rural and urban ratepayers on the ratio of attendance but within the past few years the regulations have been changed so as to require the country property owner to bear part of the expense of putting up the building. Both classes are entitled to the same consideration in the arrangement of the course of study.

Take the town of Campbellford for an example, a town that has a High School second to none of its class in Ontario, as shown by the results of the departmental examinations, but which as yet has no agricultural department. The business man who has a son or daughter attending that school and whom he wishes to take into his store or office after they have graduated, can have that son or daughter take the commercial course. The town resident receives some direct benefit, for the money he is paying to maintain the Campbellford High School.

The farmer who is also paying his share is receiving no such benefit. His boy attending the Campbellford High School is receiving no technical instruction which will arouse his interest in agriculture, and so make him a more valuable co-worker with his father on the farm. On the contrary, if Miss McPhail is right, he is being wooed away from his father's house, his mind filled with the impression that the only road to human greatness leads to classical lore and to the professions.

Campbellford Makes Start

The Campbellford Board of Education, when they planned the new High School which has just been completed, built for the future. Rooms are available for a domestic science department and for technical training. If the teaching of agricultural work is taken up in one of these rooms, the Department will pay 50 per cent. of the cost of building that part of the school.

Grants For Tuition

If the Board of Education engaged a teacher of agriculture at $2,000 a year the Department would pay 75 per cent. of this salary, or $1,500. If such teacher spent half his working hours giving instruction in some other department the special Provincial grant for the payment of his salary would be $750.

Preliminary Steps

Before an agricultural department can be opened in any school, the Department will send an official to make a survey of the field to be served to see whether conditions justify the proposed outlay. Judging from what has been done in other places, it is safe to conclude that such official would decide that as an industrial centre Campbellford is too small to maintain a technical department but that he would favor an agricultural branch as the school is in the centre of one of the finest farming sections in Ontario.

The boy from the country attending High School would hold the calling of his father in higher esteem and be less likely to leave it to plunge into the uncertainties of town life, if he found agriculture given a prominent place in the course of study.

TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

I have enjoyed reading your farm page very much and think it is a splendid idea. I want to tell you how I solved my particular problem on the farm, and it may help others.

I've been raising pure bred chickens for twenty years, but never really kept books on them until four years ago. My husband would never give me a definite idea of the cost of the feed. He is just a wife spoiled husband who thinks a woman had no use for money and not enough sense to spend it properly. He tried bookkeeping once but said he would either have to give up bookkeeping or farming.

I shipped eggs each spring for hatching and sold stock in the fall. All the work was mine, and my husband always said the chickens were barely paying expenses. He kept repeating that the "fool chickens" were eating their heads off until I got tired of hearing it. Then I told him that I would no longer work so hard with something in which there was no profit. I also made the proposition that I would buy feed and stand all other expenses for half what the chickens brought in. He finally agreed.

That spring I sold $200 worth of eggs from my 50 hens. My feed bill and other expenses were $30. For the first time in twenty six years I had some money of my own, and I felt like John D. Rockefeller. I didn't spend it for finery, although I did buy some decent clothes, and just ever so many conveniences for the house and kitchen Since then I have had an incentive to do my best, and I have made clear money every year. I have a nice bank account and can spare money every once in a while to take a little trip.

I think the reason my husband always put forth the plea that the chickens were eating their heads off was that he resented the idea of anything on the farm being profitable that he didn't manage himself. Anyway, he is perfectly satisfied now, and we work together for the good of all concerned.

—Mrs. W. J. C.

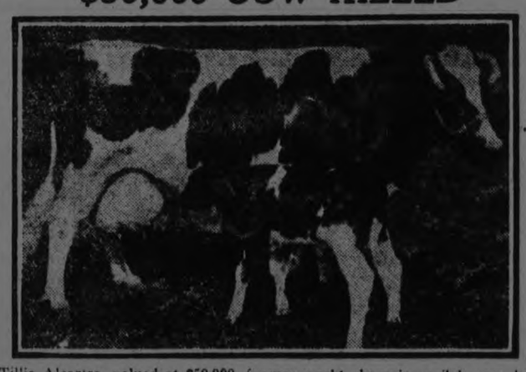
"Always capitalize your husband's hesitancy. It means he's considering your side of the question and that you can make him do as you wish by being forceful, though in a pleasant way," says a contemporary woman's page. He who hesitates is bossed.

Science and invention are combining to take the "far" out of farming.

A farm is a business, and the money expended in it should be expected to pay dividends just as though it were in stocks or bonds or any other enterprise.

If a buyer said: "I will pay you twenty per cent. profit on your cost of production", could you set your price?

$50,000 COW KILLED



Tillie Alcartra, valued at $50,000, former world champion milch cow, has been killed in the campaign in California to stamp out the hoof and mouth disease. Thousands of cattle, including entire prizewinning herds, have been driven into trenches, shot, and their bodies covered with quicklime. Indemnity on Tillie wa $750.00, and the State and Federal Governments each paid her owner, Fred Hartsook, $40.00 upon her execution. The calf shown with her in this picture recently sold for $61,000.

EGGS DOWN TO 18c IN HASTINGS SHOP

Butter Is 35 and 40 Cents a Pound—Town Gardeners Are At Work.

HASTINGS, May 16.—The continued heavy rainfalls have not had a very beneficial effect on the low-lying districts.

In conversation with a Percy farmer, he said that, while fall wheat and clover gave a promising yield, the late crops were at a standstill; and, indeed, some low-lying districts would not be seeded for some time yet, and some, which had been seeded earlier, might have to be re-sown.

In town, work is being done in the gardens where the soil is in good condition, but some cannot be worked on account of the weather conditions.

The prices of farm products locally are:—Eggs, 18c, 21c, and 25c per doz., according to grade; butter, 35c and 40c per lb.

The rain has been of great benefit to pasture lands, and the majority of cows are now in their summer pastures, as well as young colts.

FALL GRAIN AND CLOVER AT ROSENEATH ARE GOOD

ROSENEATH, May 17.—Mr. Wm. Arnold shipped six head and Mr. Harry Mauncey two head of fat cattle through the U.F.O. at Hastings on Saturday. Both farmers are recognized as breeders of high-grade shorthorn cattle in this district, and the shipment showed the effect of good breeding. It is expected that they will receive a fancy price for them.

The heavy rainfall on Friday put an end to seeding in this district for a few days as the fields are lying in water in many places. This is detrimental to the seeding as the season is getting advanced, but it is more than counterbalanced by the growth of the fall grains and clover. All needed now to make a bumper crop of hay is warn weather and Nature to do her work.

SILVER LINING BEHIND CLOUDS IN JANETVILLE

JANETVILLE, May 17.—Farmers have been doing nothing on the land for a week, and the ground is saturated with moisture. The roads, too, are in a deplorable condition, and those whose farms are low lying are bound to worry more or less. But the wind has changed, and there are indications of brighter days.

One thing is sure, and that is the moisture is in the land, full and plenty, and the sunshine will come. With these two blessings, the farmer will find a way out. Potatoes, corn, buckwheat, and a dozen other crops may be sown and planted as late as July, and with plenty of heat and moisture, have been known to develop and mature an abundant crop. So there is reason to hope for large returns yet.

Then the hdy, fall wheat, pasture and grain on high land are looking better than in many years past. The farmer must use his judgment now as to when and what he sows.

CANNOT IMPROVE BEAUTIFUL LAWN

Specimen Plants and Odd Flower Beds Only Clutter Up the Lawn.

In laying out farm buildings for construction or improvement, it is highly desirable that each person study his own specific problem and decide upon some definite policy to be carried out in the future. Decide where you want the trees, the shrubs and the flowers and then work towards its completion. Be careful not to clutter up the lawn with specimen plants, bushes, round flower beds and the like. An expanse of lawn is beautiful in itself and adds beauty to the place. It also provides a place where games may be played and the children may romp.

Trees are preferably located to one side of the house rather than directly in front of it. Groups of shrubs are placed about the foundation of the house and around the border of the lawn area. Lower shrubs are used about the house and taller ones in the border groups. Perennials may be placed in front of the shrubs. Sod should not be allowed to encroach upon the shrub areas. The perennial beds and shrubbery groups should be cultivated three or four times during the season.

BETHANY CATTLE TAKE TO THE OPEN RANGES

BETHANY, May 17.—Several farmers in the vicinity are going ahead seeding despite the unfavorable weather conditions.

The fall wheat is coming along nicely, and the spring grain is showing up. Seeding is practically finished with the exception of the low-lying fields.

The pasture is not as far advanced as in other years but cattle are being turned out for the summer in the majority of cases.

The roads are in poor condition owing to the lengthy wet spell, several holes are developing and the ruts are miles long.

STABLE MARKET IS A SOLUTION OF FARM LABOR

Adequate Returns Would Justify Steady Employment, Omemee Farmer Says--U.F.O. in Omemee Is a Lively and Useful Organization.

SUGGEST EGG POOL.

OMEMEE, May 17.—A prosperous farmer in this neighbourhood was recently in conversation with a fellow-laborer, and discussing the farm problems casually remarked that his lawns were not what he desired, fences not in the best of shape, and buildings were somewhat in need of paint and repairs; but his only reason for not giving the desired touch is the low price of farm produce and the high cost of living, and thus, as with other farmers, many improvements were left undone which would beautify the whole country. If his wishes could be carried out in the stabilizing of Markets, he would give permanent employment. The markets are now so undependable, but if a co-operative market was started, which he has hope for, men would be justified in indulging in agriculture so that profits would be assured.

Egg Pool Proposed.

Mr. Merckley, of Toronto, will address the Omemee branch of the U.F.O. on Tuesday evening in regard to the egg pool. By this system the farmer is paid a certain price, and the eggs are shipped to Toronto and placed in cold storage. Later they are sold at an advanced price and the farmer receives a balance, less the cost of shipping and storage. As eggs are now bringing the low price of 23c a dozen, which is an advance of 1 cent over last week, many farmers will be interested in this subject.

Not Dead Yet.

Some time ago we read an article from Lindsay stating that the U.F.O. was dead in many centres, and is rapidly dying out in other districts, but if the contributor of that article could or would pay a visit to the Omemee club he would see that the organization here is very much alive. Recently, five carloads of oats have been brought in, each containing 2,000 bushels, and one more is on order. The retail price of same was from 54c to 50c a bushel, while the local retail price was 70c a bushel, thus a saving to the farmer of from 16c to 20c on a bushel, or from $320 to $400 on a carload.

A short time ago a car of salt was received and sold for 90c a 100 lbs., and many farmers took advantage of the shipment. The secretary, Mr. D. Weir, expects another carload order this month.

Coal Too.

Two cars of coal are also on order. Not only have the farmers become connected with the club for the purpose of securing much foodstuff at a reduced price, but also for the benefits they receive by their meetings. Throughout the year many interesting and helpful subjects have been debated on, and speakers have addressed their gatherings on important topics several times. Together with all this, there is the sociability which everyone enjoys.

"He that gets out of debt grows rich."—George Herbert.

THROUGH the Farm Page we can bring to you some things that you do not know, and there is no doubt that you have solved some problem in farm work that your neighbours in the next county are still struggling with. If you leave it to us to find out it may take some time. For the good of the community let's have the suggestion. If you have a good reason for keeping accredited cattle, tell us and we will pass it on. On the other hand, if you know a good reason for not keeping accredited cattle, it is just as valuable. Have you made work easier through some short-cut? It will give an added pleasure to your achievement if you share it with others.

And if there is anything you can tell us about improving this page, put it on paper and address it to the editor.

RUSSIA ISN'T SATISFIED AT LEAGUE PEACE

The Soviet Government Absolutely Refuses to Accept the Treaties.

GENEVA, May 16.—A reference to the Russo-Japanese war was a feature of the recent communication which the Russian Soviet government sent to the League of Nations outlining the reasons why it is opopsed to the pact of mutual guarantees which was elaborated by the last assembly of the league. Developing one of the ideas of the league convenant, the pact in question provides for a gradual world disarmament, and incidentally it gives to the league council the authority to decide which state is an aggressor when any serious difficulty breaks out between two powers.

In his note to the league, Tchitcherin, who signed himself "People's Commissary for Foreign Affairs of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics,' 'declared that in the present international situation it is impossible in most cases to say which party is the aggressor. He contended that neither the entry into foreign territory nor the scale of war preparations can be regarded as satisfactory criteria. He insisted that hostilities generally break out after a series of mutuual aggressive acts of the most varied character.

For example, Tchitcherin said, when the Japanese torpedo boats attacked the Russian fleet at Port Arthur in 1904 it was clearly an act of aggression from a techinacl point of view, but politically speaking, it was an act caused by the aggressive poliy of the Czarist government toward aJpan, who in order to forestall the danger, struck the first blow at her adversary. "Nevertheless," he added, "Japan cannot be regarded as the victim because the collision between the two states was not merely the result of the aggressive acts of the Czarist government, but also of the imperialist policy of the Japanese government towards the people of China and Korea. The Soviet government considers, therefore, that it is absolutely impossible to adopt the system of deciding which state is the aggressor in the case of each conflict, and making definite consequences depend upon such decision.

Tchitcherin admitted that there are cases in which a state attacks another without provocation, and said that the Soviet government is prepared to make agreements with other governments to oppose attacks of this kind undertaken without due cause.

Referring to the pact's authorization of regional agreements between groups of states, the Soviet government said it regarded local agreement between certain states as inevitable, but deemed it quite inadmissable that they should receive recognition from an international organization (meaning the League of Nations) or that they should be regarded as beneficial in the prevention of wars.

Moscow regarded as ever more in admissable, declared Tchitcherin, the obligation imposed on other contracting state to give assistance, in the eevnt of hostilities, to these coalitions of powers. He added, "The Soviet government absolutely refuses to accept the reservation contained in the draft treaty which confirms the treaties of Versailes, Neuilly, St. Germain and Trianon. The Soviet government took no part in the conclusion of these treaties and maintains an entirely negative attitude with regard to their provisions."

APPENDICITIS

Operation Not Always Necessary.

Hundreds of operations for appendicitis have been avoided by the "J. B. L. Cascade."

These letters from among many in our possession should convince you that Internal Bathing brings positive results. Mr. James McLaughlin, 91 Evanston St., Winnipeg, writes: "I bought a 'J.B.L. Cascade' for the cure of a bad case of appendicitis. My doctors told me I must have an operation at once. I had spent more than $50 in doctors' bills, but the Cascade completely removed, in a few days, every trace of soreness and pain. I eat and sleep well now, have regained my former weight, and am now in perfect health."

A mother from R.R. No. 1, Leamington, Ont., writes: "About two weeks ago our eldest son took sick with cramps in the bowels so bad he could not move. Our doctors gave him hypodermic injections and ordered him to the hospital to be operated on at once. Before doing so, however I induced him to use the 'J.B.L. Cascade', and in less than a week he was up and around, and has been well ever since. It also cured me of severe headaches and constipation. I cannot praise the Cascade enough. It certainly is a wonderful invention."

If you have constipation, headaches, appendicitis, or feel languid and not just right, don't drug yourself, bathe internally. The "J.B.L. Cascade" is being shown and explained at the Warne Drug Company.

COBOURG FARMS APPEAR TO BE IN GOOD SHAPE

COBOURG, May 17.—The middle of May will see considerable grain still unsown in Northumberland County. There are some farmers who were almost through with seeding operations last week-end, while only a few rods away would be another farm with practically no seeding done. It all depended upon the nature of the soil, clay or sandy, and the situation.

There is not much fall grain sown in this district. The few fields that exist are said to be looking well, although growth up to the present time has been very slow. The clover crop is reported to be looking exceedingly well, with prospect of a good crop.

Buys New Tractor.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 17.—Thos. Sorke, one of the East Seymour's progressive farmers, has purchased a tractor from Don W. Douglas, the local dealer. Mr. Douglas has disposed altogether of about fifteen tractors to the farmers in this district.

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE HELPS ALBERTA FARMERS

LETHBRIDGE.—The outbreak of hoof and mouth disease in California has stimulated the demand from the States for Southern Alberta cattle, as high as 2,500 beef steers passing through this city in three weeks for one large packing firm in Seattle and Tacoma. Canadian ranchers are, therefore, thriving on the misfortune of their brother stockmen across the line. Practically all the mutton and lambs finished here have been shipped to Vancouver, where the market is keen due to the stoppage of imports from Washington and Oregon, due to the dread malady in California. Sheepmen are beginning to worry over sheep shearers, for it is believed that shearers who have lately worked in California and neighboring states will not be permitted to enter Canada.

HE'D DO THAT MUCH.

"Bobbie, dear," said his mother, "I hoped you would be unselfish enough to give little sister the largest piece of candy. Why, see, even old Biddy gives all the nice big dainties to the little chicks, and keeps only an occasional tiny one for herself."

Bobby thoughtfully watched the hen and chickens for a time, then said: "Well, mamma, I would, too, if it was worms."

Has Finished Seeding; Looks For Big Harvest.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 17.—Harry Bedford, East Seymour, is one of the few fortunate farmers who were able to beat out the backward season and finish seeding before the recent wet spell. Mr. Bedford has a farm of 215 acres. Of this he has sown 50 acres to spring grain. He says that fall wheat and meadows give promise of an unusually heavy yield.

THE NOBLE BIG FARM PROJECT WAS FAILURE

LETHBRIDGE, May 17.—C. S. Noble, Canada's largest farmer, founder of the Noble Foundation, Ltd., recently received a full and clear discharge in bankruptcy by Mr. Justice Tweedie of the Supreme Court. The Noble Foundation, Ltd., failed after a determined effort to farm 30,000 acres. It failed because it has been demonstrated again and gaain that the big farm with the big overhead cannot be made to pay. Mr. Noble, who is known through out America as a wheat baron, is now farming 800 acres of land near Noble ord, the little prairie town he founded.

ORLAN STRAWBERRIES GOOD

ORLAND, May 17.—On account of the lightness of the soil in this locality the farmers who have more or less high land are nearly through seeding. While those on the lower lands are, what they call "mudding it in". Clovers, rye, fall wheat and early-sown spring grain are looking fine. Strawberries look excellent nd if late frosts do not interfere there will be a bumper crop.

FIRE DEPARTMENT WAS ON THE JOB PROMPTLY

EDMONTON, May 17 (Canadian Press).—The city fire department's prompt and efficient action undoubtedly saved this city yesterday from the worst fire in its history, when the premises occupied by the John Deer Plow Company and the hay and straw warehouse of the Gillespie Grain Company burned, causing damage unofficially estimated at $185,000.

DRAINING OF PALLISER DISTRICT ECONOMICAL

Twelve-Inch Pipe Laid At Campbellford to Carry Off Flood of Water — Money Saved By Crossing Property Instead of Cutting Through Hill—Passed By Council.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 17.—There has been considerable talk heard recently concerning certain work that was done by the committee on roads and bridges of the Town Council, on Market Street, near the greenhouses of C. W. Palliser, where a drain, fitted with a 12-inch pipe, was put in, some critics claiming that a 6-inch pipe would have been sufficient. The representative of The Examiner, accompanied by a member of the committee, looked over the ground yesterday.

This work was decided upon at a full meeting of the Town Council early last fall at what has since been known as the "water session," on account of the number of residents who asked for drainage as their premises were flooded. All of these requests were granted. The applicants included Alf Hay and N. C. Palliser, who asked for a drain in their neighbourhood on Market Street. Mr. Palliser owns an extensive garden in the vicinity, and in wet weather his land was flooded with water flowing onto it in all directions from surrounding hills.

The work was started last fall, but, as the town was unable to secure the necessary tile, the drain was not completed. A 15-inch pipe had been laid across Market Street, near Mr. Palliser's residence, and the water from this overflowed his land.

As soon as the frost was out of the ground this spring, the drainage referred to was completed. Mr. Palliser gave the town permission to put in a covered drain from the 15-inch pipe across one corner of his land. To get an outlet in any other direction it would have been necessary for the town to cut through a high hill at a cavy expense. Any money that has been laid out for drainage in the vicinity referred to has been spent in the regular way, on the request of the interested taxpayers.

With regard to the dimensions of the pipe, which has occasioned so much criticism, it is pointed out that 12-inch, rather than a 6-inch, tile was required to carry the flow of water from another pipe 15 inches in diameter, as well as the water that came to it from other sources.

The district benefitted is a good residential section, but is one of the most difficult to drain in the corporation.

Rural Carriers' Grievance.

The residents of the rural mail zone here are served by five carriers, who, in common with their co-workers throughout the Dominion, are united in an effort to secure higher compensation from the Government. The carriers, with the length of the route of each, are as follows:—Charles Cochrane, 21½ miles; James Walkinshaw, 21½ miles; George Hay, 18 miles; Wilbert Read, 23 miles; Harold Dalgleish, 21½ miles.

The carriers here and elsehwere regard $75 a mile as fair pay, and it is for this amount they are asking. If this flat rate were allowed, the year's salary of Messrs. Cochrane, Walkinshaw and Dalgleish would be $1,500 and of Mr. Hay about $1,300, and of Mr. Read $1,600. There present pay is not much more than half these several amounts. Mr. Dalgleish is the best paid of all, as he also carries the mail to and from the depot, his contract keeping him out early and late.

Each carrier requires two horses to make is rounds, driving them on alterdays. They are expected to go out in all kinds of weather, and at the present high cost of living for men horses, and at current prices for vehicles and other equipment, it is apparent that their job is no gold mine.

Run for Firemen.

The firemen had a run on Friday morning, about 6 o'clock, to the residence of Walter Lowe, on the west side. A burning chimney was the cause but there was no damage.

MINERALS FOR SWINE.

Keep the following mineral mixture before the hogs: Two bushels charcoal, one peck salt, one peck wood ashes, two quarts copperas, one gallon air slacked lime and one quart powdered sulphur.

CHURCH UNION IN OWEN SOUND MEET

Opposing Camps Will Convene at Same Time Features of General Assembly.

OWEN SOUND, May 17 (Canadian Press).—Owen Sound is to be the meeting place from June 4 to 12 of the two opposing camps on the Church Union question. It is anounced this morning that while the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada is meeting in Knox and Division Street here the Presbyterian Church Association, anti-church union organization which has come into prominence during the past year, will hold an annual convention in one of the several large halls in Owen Sound.

Rev. J. W. MacNamara, General Secretary of the Presbyterian Church Association, has charge of arrangements for the convention and Mr. Lyman Brown, secretary of the local association, is securing a meeting place for the association, and making all local arrangements.

The exact number of delegates to the convention is not known. Some of those who attend the general assembly will be delegates to associations' convention but a large number will come as independent delegates to the convention. The object of the convention is to discuss further developments on the Church Union question, and to watch the action of the general assembly on the matter.

The action of the Presbyterian Association in locating its convention here at the same time as the General assembly meets, makes it more certain that Church Union will be a feature of this year's general assembly.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

MILLBROOK, May 17.—Archie Johnston, Fallis Line, has purchased a new tractor cultivator this spring, W. E. Ball, Millbrook, being the sales agent.

Allen Mitchell, who has recently moved to the village from Fallis Line, sold his tractor outfit to W. Elson, 7th line, Cavan.

H. Lord, who has successfully carried on a market garden for the past two years, and who planted his land over a month ago, has all his vegetables well up with the exception of potatoes. Quite a variety of flowers are included in the garden, the snow having been shovelled away to permit early planting of sweet peas, which have now a growth of over two inches.

Local prices this week include 25 cents for butter, 20 cents for eggs, and $1.25 per bag for potatoes. There is practically no delivery of grain at the elevator prices remaining the same as about a month ago—wheat $1 per bushel, oats 50 cents, barley 62 cents, peas $1.40, and rye 75 cents.

The recent rains have retarded seeding to a certain extent, especially where land is low-lying, some farmers having not yet been able to take their seeders out of the barn. Many in the vicinity have about fifty per cent of their crops in, some considerably less than that, while a few have completed seeding for this year. On the whole, it appears that about the same acreage as last year will be sown. Peas and wheat, with, in some cases, oats, seem to be the principal grains planted so far this season.

A few fields of wheat sown this spring are already up, but these are apparently the exception, though warm, dry weather would mean rapid growth, as it is from three weeks to a month since fields were planted.

The shortage of feed after the long winter is beginning to be felt, though there is not yet much pasture fit to turn the stock out on, the injury to the latter by too early use probably being greater than any advantage derived from a saving in grain feed. The general opinion seems to be that, so far, the spring is at least two weeks behind other years, though in some cases seeding last season was not completed until the last of May.

NEW CALOMEL WORTH MILLIONS

Your liver is poisoning the whole system, causing a tired feeling in the morning, sick headache, bad taste in mouth, sour stomach, indigestion, constipation, kidney, trouble, etc. There is only one drug known that acts directly upon the liver, and that is calomel! Because so many people object to the ordinary calomel, it is now put up in a new form, called Tanol Calomel Tablets, which act with a gentle movement of the bowels and no salts or seidlitz powders are needed to remove it from the system, as it is self-eliminating. Get a few of these Tanol Calomel Tablets from the druggist and they will make you feel 100 per cent. better. For sale at Weber's Drug Store, Charlotte street. m.s tf

DEATH FOR CZARIST SPY.

Mlle. Beitner, Russian Noble's Daughter, Condemned In Moscow.

MOSCOW, May 17.—Marie Beitner, daughter of a Russian nobleman, was sentenced to death by a Moscow district court yesterday for "active operations against the labor class."

Mlle. Beitner stood her trial stoically, was easy mannered and answered smilingly the questions which the judges put to her. She was charged with having been in the service of the secret police during the Czarist regime for fourteen years, with having furnished the Imperial authorities with information of the activities of Russian revolutionists within the country and abroad, and with having betrayed a number of Communist Party workers.

Amnesty was denied her.

J. H. GORDON IS DEAD.

MONTREAL, May 17.—James Hartley Gordon, secretary-treasurer and a director of the Sherwin-Williams Co., died here yesterday at the Royal Victoria Hospital after an illness of two months.

Havelock Creamery Has Increased Its Product.

HAVELOCK, May 17.—Mr. Buchanan, of "Elmview Farm," Belmont, has purchased a registered Jersey calf, "Ottawa Rover 7th", from the Dominion Experimental Farm at Ottawa.

Owing to the rainy weather, very few of the farmers have their grain sown.

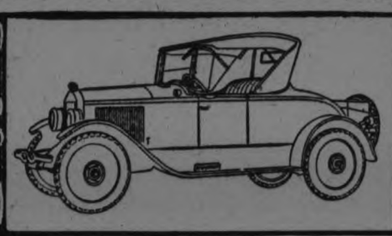
In April the Havelock Creamery shows an increase in make of butter of 71 per cent. over the same month last year.

YOUNG'S POINT GRASS IS SLOW IN GROWING

YOUNG'S POINT, May 17.—Several of the farmers in this district have nearly finished their spring sowing. Owing to the backward spring the growth of the grass is very poor, but the fall wheat and rye are progressing favorably.

Droves of cattle are passing through the village every day bound for cattle ranches farther north.

A few countries use standard time based on the longitude of their national observatories.



The Vital Things in a Car

WHEN you go to look at a Gray-Dort there will be no attempt to side-track you from the vital things in a car. There will be no side-stepping when motor, chassis, axle, clutch, transmission come up for discussion. There are no trick selling points in the Gray-Dort.

And any Gray-Dort salesman can prove it by the car itself. He'll prove it by the smooth, quiet, never-failing flow of power from the motor; by the gentle, positive, new Gray-Dort disc clutch; by the over-strength new Gray-Dort rear axle. He'll prove it by the wonderfully careful workmanship in every part of the car.

The new management of Gray-Dort Motors stands or falls on the quality of the Gray-Dort and on that alone. Not one car will be permitted to leave the factory until it is absolutely right in every detail. You can see this kind of car at the Gray-Dort showroom now.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, May 17 (Special).—A local citizen who appeared in court here on a charge of selling contra to the B.O T.A. was sentenced to a penalty by Magistrate Floyd of $1,000 and three months in jail, or six months in jail if the fine is not paid, it being an alleged second offence. It appears that two spotters, who were in town some weeks ago, approached another man and prevailed upon him to procure for them a bottle. They are further stated to have represented that they were selling oil burners or stock in an oil burner company. The man so approached is alleged to have secured the bottle from the accused, paying for it $7.00, and the spotters are further stated to have watched the transaction.

Funeral Wednesday

The funeral of Mrs. Harriss, wife of Dr. Charles Harriss, took place yesterday morning at St. Peter's Church here and was largely attended, Rev. Canon Sawers conducted the services and Mr. Cyril Rice, boy soloist of the church of the Transfiguration, New York City, sang. A daughter of the late Dr. John Beatty, of Cobourg, Mrs. Harriss was recognized here as a livable gracious lady. She married first Mr. G. K. Shvenberger, of Cincinnati, a Pittsburg steel magnate, and after his death married Dr. Charles A. E. Harriss, the distinguished musician, whose work is so widely known. Dr. Harriss was in England directing the Imperial choir at the British Empire Exhibition, but left Wembley in time to reach Ottawa before his wife's death. A service was held on Tuesday at Earnscliffe, Ottawa, formerly the home of Sir John Macdonald, after which the remains were brought to Cobourg for interment. Two sisters predeceased Mrs. Harriss. They were Mrs. John Dainty, of "The Poplars," Cobourg, and Mrs. Girevard, wife of Mr. Justice Girevard, of the Supreme Court of Canada. Two sisters survive her, Mrs. MacDougall, wife of the late Hon. William MacDougall, one of the Fathers of Confederation, and Mrs. Charles Ryerson, Toronto. By her hospitality, her benefice ce and her gracious manner, Mrs. Harriss was a lady who endeared herself to very many, and much regret is expressed here because of her death.

At Brighton With I.O.O.F.

Some from here went to Brighton on Sunday to attend church parade with the Brighton I.O.F. lodges, members being present also from Trenton, Tweed, Stirling and Colborne. The service was held in the Presbyterian Church, and on excellent sermon was preached by Rev. F. T. Butcher, Baptist clergyman. A union choir led the praise service. The Rebekah Lodge joined also in the church parade.

The Late William Bray

The funeral of the late William Bray of Hamilton Township took place to Welcome Cemetery on Thursday. Surviving him are his widow, one daughter, Dorothy, and two sons, Earle and Stanley, and with all very much sympathy is felt. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Wm. Coyle, Thos. Bray, Harry Bray, Henry McCall, Nichols Ball and Alfred McCall.

Dr. Mackenzie Has Retired

The Presbytery of Peterborough lost one of its most highly esteemed members from active work when Rev. W. A. Machenzie, D.D., closed a pastorate of nine years at Colborne and Lakeport on Sunday last. The day of his resignation also marked the conclusion of fort years in the ministry, which time he occupied important charge both in Canada and the United States. The pulpits at Colborne an Lakeport were declared vacant last Sunday by Rev. Mr. Moyer, of Brafton, who will act as interim moderator of the congregation.

Fell Thirty Feet

Two or three weeks ago Mr. Wm. Coyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. TOO MANY HOME CARES

One Reason Why So Many Women Are Weak and Run-Down.

The work of the woman in the home makes greater demands on her vitality than men realise, and there is always something more to do. No wonder women's backs ache, and their nerves are worn out. No wonder why they get depressed and irritable, suffer from headaches, and always feel out of sorts. But of course all women are not like that. What is the difference?

A woman with plenty of healthy red blood in her veins finds work in the home easy; her vitality is at par. This points the way to health in women who feel run down and depressed. Make new rich blood. You can do it with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills have the marvellous property of building up the blood and toning up the nerves. That is proved by the case of Mrs. Eppinger, Scott Street, Vancouver, B.C., who says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills brought back my health and strength and restored my nerves to normal condition after other medicines had failed. t was after the birth of my second child that I became so anaemic and nervous that I thought I would lose my mind as well as my strength. I tried several medicines, but got no relief until I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After using a few boxes of these I could see a change. I felt stronger; my appetite was better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued the use of the pills for some time, and again found myself a well woman, and I can sincerely say that my health has since been the best. I can cheerfully recommend the pills to all weak, run-down women."

You can get these pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

GLASS CELLS ISOLATE ALL IN FEVER HOSPITAL

LONDON, May 17. — A novel method of treating patients suffering from different infectious diseases without danger that infection will be transmitted from one to another is employed at the London Fever Hospital, Islington.

In the "Glass House," patients with measles, scarlet fever and diphtheria are lying within a few feet of one another, but they are by thick glass partitions through all secured against cross-infection which no microbes can pass. These partitions are also sound proof.

ATTACK CENTERED ON INTERFERENCE

Radio Leaders Join Hands to Clear the air

NEW YORK, May 17.—The American Radio Association has joined with the Interference Radio Conference in a bitter fight against all kinds of reception interference.

"This campaign," explains Prof. L. A. Hazeltine, chairman of the conference, "marks the beginning of the first nation-wide determined effort to bring harmony and peace in the air, and it will be followed vigorously until various kinds of interference are eliminated from the air. Unless something is done quickly, the interference problem will seriously affect the progress of radio."

Both organizations will strive to eliminate interference caused by improper use of radiating receivers, by ships and commercial stations, faulty electrical transmission lines and other disturbing influences.

COLONY IN AFRICA TO HAVE REFIGERATOR

NAIROBI, May 17. —Following the recommendtaion o fthe economic and finance committee it is officially announced that the government is allocating £25,000 for the provision of cold storage plant at Mombassa and is inviting the advisory assistance of a South African expert.

The anouncement foreshadows an effort on the part of the whole colony to establish an export trade in dairy produce and to relieve stock trading depression.

Mrs. James Cook, Mrs. Claud Goodman, Misses Marie avey and Bessie G. French went to Campbellford yesterday.

SNAKE-SKIN HATS FROG-SKIN PURSE

Pigs, Elephants, Lizards and Rats Employed In Newest Paris Whim.

By M. Therese Bonney

PARIS, May. 17—There are certain things Milady shudders to contemplate, and yet Parisian creators have dared to make them popular.

Snakes, lizards, frogs, and, above all, rats!

Even the most timid could scrace resist the charming creation of snake-skin hat and purse by Marthe Regnier — the most enchanting green for spring days. The skin has been especially treated and beautifully colored, but srake it remains useful for small change, for which the scales have not been removed.

There are lizard-skin purses and hats, too. The "grand chic" in Paris this spring is shoes and purse or hat and purse to match. Perugia, king of French bootmakers, has created an extremely popular lizard-skin shoe. It is of African lizard, the skin of which is of the finest texture and dyed in popular colors—red, dark brown and blue.

By far the most popular beast of the season is the often despised, much avoided pig. Pig-skin hatbands introduced by Molyneux and used on small hats of heavily braided straws or on coquettish brown felts, pig-skin belts on smart little one-piece kasha dresses and pig-skin purses in large flat envelope form. All these seen in natural color and in gay colors.

A still more recent and original creation is the frog purse, extremely useful for small change, for which the entire skin is used, with precious stones for eyes—another Regnier creation .Quite the newest and latest in sport shoes is fashioned of elephant skin, by Perugia. And there are charming fur coats made from the skin of "palm tree" rats.

In days of old ,the mere mention of most of these animals in polite society was considered a breach of etiquette. Now everyone is asking everyone else. "Have you seen the adorable elephant-skin shoes at Perugia's or the charming snake-skin hat at Regnier's?" or "I simply must have one of Patou's "rat des palmeirs' coats."

It sounds so much less ratty in French.

THE MUSICAL FESTIVAL

(By Jeannette.)

The citizens of Peterborough had the unique opportunity last evening of hearing on one occasion the various prize-winners at the recent Musical Festival in Toronto, when a Community Festival of vocal and instrumental music was given in the Grand Opera House by the Peterborough Symphony Orchestra, the Peterborough Male Voice Choir, and the two successful singers, Messrs. R. A. Brown and Maurice H. Park.

With the main floor filled almost to capacity and a good crowd in the balcony, it was an appreciative audience of over six hundred people that listened to a brief, enjoyable programme of music, that comprised the majority of the test pieces at the Toronto Competitive Festival. Although the element of competition that lent an electric atmosphere to the Toronto event was naturally lacking last evening, it had been replaced by an evident desire on the part of the performers to give their friends and fellow-townsmen the very best that they could demonstrate in musical art.

In connection with the prowess of the Peterborough musicians in Toronto, it might be well to remember that, although the various competitions did not have a great number of contestants, that the standard set was very high. Prizes were not awarded merely to the first place in any event. The judges were severe and impartial critics, and a certain large percentage had to be gained to win the medals. Therefore the awards were marked by a degree of proficiency that would have been similar with twice as many contestants.

Last evening, the two handsome silver shields won by the Orchestra were on view, with two large certificates on either side of the stage, and the two leaders, Mr. Rupert Gliddon and Mr. Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., as well as Mr. Brown and Mr. Park, wore the medals received in the different contests.

The curtain rose on the entire assemblage of over a hundred contestants, with the orchestra in front, the choir standing in the rear. The performance opened with a few appropriate words by Mayor Turner, who expressed gratification at the large numbers present, and spoke of the pre-eminence in music attained by Peterborough contestants as being quite as important as pre-eminence in sport, in the life of a well-balanced community.

Mayor Turner also spoke of the time when singing was taught in the Peterborough schools by Sergt.-Major Rundle, and mentioned the receipt of a telegram from G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., regretting his inability to be present last evening, and extending congratulations to the musicians on their prowess.

The orchestra played splendidly last evening. They had the initial offering, appearing as an amateur conservatory organisation, and playing the "Lustspiel" overture of Keler Bela, the test piece in this section, which won the shield and gold medal for the Peterborough players. This is one of the most attractive of the test pieces, and has a quality of brightness and verve that was well exemplified by the musicians, whose playing evidences careful attention to every detail of phrasing and rhythm. The crisp opening, the good balance and rich forte tone of the overture brought back to mind the satisfactory criticism of the adjudicator at the Toronto Festival. Under Mr. Gliddon's direction, the orchestra demonstrated every bit of interest in the dashing number, which was followed by applause that brought a rendition of the "Anvil Chorus" from Il Trovatore, with the refrain picked out by the strings and cymbals.

As the Symphony Orchestra, which won second place, with a margin of three marks between them and the first prize winner, the orchestra played Beethoven's overture, "Fidelio," from the opera of the same name. A certificate and silver medal were the rewards of this number, which is a selection of more difficult calibre, with an atmosphere throughout of restraint, the rush and advance of the shivering strings culminating in vivid crescendo passages that gather every orchestral resource in their production. There is a good deal of wood wind apparent in this number, which was adequately managed by the players. Another encore brought the pretty "Sextette" from Lucia di Lammermoor.

The final appearance on the programme was also by the orchestra as the Trinity Sunday School aggregation which won the first prizes of shield and gold medal, with their playing of the test piece, "The Merry Wives of Windsor,' another Merry Wives of Windsor," another overture. The accentuated melody is introduced by the bass viols and ivnMe,hr'ann bretdrsW soefoyrWm 'cellos, with a good deal of shrill trebles in the string background, the brasses and wood wind chiming in later, all merging into a concerted outburst of sound. Applause also followed this number.

In their choral numbers, the Peterborough Male Voice Choir also made a splendid impression. Like the orchestra, they gave the four test pieces, with a couple of bright encores. All numbers were sung in the "A capella" fashion, without accompaniment.

As a choir of twenty voices, they sang "A Lullaby of Love" and "In Harvest Time," the numbers that received second prize of certificate and silver medal. The "Lullaby" is a love song of the soft, hushed type, with a good deal of soft, pianissimo work, well managed. The judge's words: "The Peterborough choir sang as if they loved their music," were also recalled here, and in the "Harvest Time" number, with its fine bass section.

As a full choir of fifty voices, which won the second prize of certificate and silver medal, with a margin of but one point between them and first place winners, Granville Bantock's "Through Eastern Gates" was sung; a full-voiced, robust number, with excellent interpretation and soft shading. The good balance, the wide range of expression and artistry of the musicians, brought out to the fullest under Mr. Chenhall's direction, were apparent in this and the second selection, "New Life, New Love," a song of spring, by T. Tertius Noble, another modern composer.

Both numbers received enthusiastic encores, the first the jaunty, rollicking "Mulligan Musketeers," with its "rub-a-dub" opening and its sudden, effective finale. As a second encore, the choir gave a very enticing selection, the whimsical, fantastic song of the Chinese 'stra'w" soldiers, "The Gongs Are Beating," whose sudden, swift tempo and descriptive stanzas were evidence of their versatility and grasp of various types of choral music.

The two vocalists had a triumphat reception from pleased hearers. The splendid voices of the two fine singers were heard to the best advantage in several of their test numbers, and accompanying encores. The gold and bronze medal awards which their singing brought to Peterborough were evidently received after difficult interpretations, Mr. Brown's solos being particularly exacting.

The first prize number in the bass solo section, "Ye Twice Ten Hundred Deities," by the old English composer, Purcell, was an ode which made onerous demands on the capabilities of its performer. Ascending and descending scales, a peculiar almost grim atmosphere, and odd phrasing, were adequately met and presented by the singer, whose powerful, deep tones, ease in delivery, and admirable stage presence met with an enthusiastic response from his audience. On his second appearance, Mr. Brown had two lively numbers, Bennett's "May Queen" bit, "'Tis Jolly to Hunt," a song of the greenwood, robust, dramatic, in resounding voice, with a degree of interpretive force that made this and the following number, "Ho! Jolly Jenkin," from "Ivanhoe," pleasing in the extreme. The jolly second selection seemed eminently suited to Mr. Brown's rich voice and manner of singing. As an encore, he gave the lovely song, "Sylvia."

Mr. Maurice H. Park's gold medal song was the operatic number, "Walther's Prize Song," from "Die Meistersinger" of Wagner. A difficult selection, its descriptive stanzas of spring and love and poetry were well rendered by the fine tenor of the vocalist. It was on his second appearance, however, that Mr. Park brought down the house. He sang a second test piece, the graceful love song, one of the type in which tenors excel, the "Oh Vision Entrancing" from "Esmeralda." His excellent enunciation, the "sympatica" quality of his melodious tenor, and his very marked powers of expressive rendition held his hearers spellbound in the following number, in Italian, the popular "La Donna e Mobile" from "Rigoletto." To the repeated and loud applause which followed this song, Mr. Park gave a second brilliant encore in "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms," to a house that held its breath to the last sweet note.

Accompanists for the vocal numbers last evening were Mrs. G. G. Evans, playing for Mr. Brown, and Mrs. M. C. Mackinnon, for Mr. Park. Miss Muriel Bridge, the Male Voice Choir accompanist, gave the key to the choral performers.

From first to last, the performance last evening was artistic. It demonstrated to the fullest the various acting music, it gave their friends an opportunity of hearing the test pieces which brought prizes to the city, and an opportunity also of enjoying some of the very best in vocal and instrumental music of old and new composers. There was an atmosphere of interest and good fellowship apparent in the gathering last night that evidenced the appreciation of Peterborough of its fine musical representatives.

LEAGUE SPEAKER IS TO PASS PETERBORO

Coast to Coast Campaign by Prominent English Speaker Does Not Include This City.

OTTAWA, May 17.—(Canadian Press.)— To undertake a coast to coast campaign in support of the League of Nations was the decision reached by the executive committee of the League of Nations Society which met here yesterday under the presidency of Right Hon. Sir Robert Borden, and the offer of the British League of Nations Union to release Frederick Whelan, its foremost speaker, for a six weeks' tour in Canada, was accepted by cable. Mr. Whelan will arrive in Canada at the end of May and will commence a series of meetings to be held in Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina, Moose Jaw, Vancouver, Victoria, Kamloops, Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Halifax, Amherst, Moncton and St. John in the order named. It is hoped to include Windsor, Hamilton and London.

ABYSSINIAN PRINCE IS HONORED BY LEAGUE

Will Visit Geneva in September--Prince is Trying to Suppress Slavery.

GENEVA, May 17.—(Canadian Press.) — It was announced here yesterday that Ras Taffari, the Abyssinian Prince Regent, who will attend the Assembly of the League of Nations here in September, will be accorded the same honors as those extended the King and Queen of Roumania, on the occasion of their recent visit to the City of Geneva, Secretariat of the League of Nations and Headquarters of the International Labor Organization. Abyssinia, which is evincing great interest in the League, recently submitted a full report of the measures taken by that country to suppress slavery within its realm, according to an arrangement made with the League Assembly last September.

ZBYZSKO WON TWO FALLS TORONTO FROM WALKER

TORONTO, May 17 Canadian Press —Toronto obtained a view of heavyweight wrestling last night at the arena gardens, when Stanislaus Zbyzsko, former champion of the world, won first and third falls from George Walker, introduced as the undefeated Canadian heavyweight champion.

The bout appeared to please a number of the compatriots of the winner while Walker's supporters were of the opinion that Zbyzsko was lucky to win. The unbiased thought the winner the better wrestler.

Waker conceded about 30 pounds to the Polish grappler, weights being about 196 and 230.

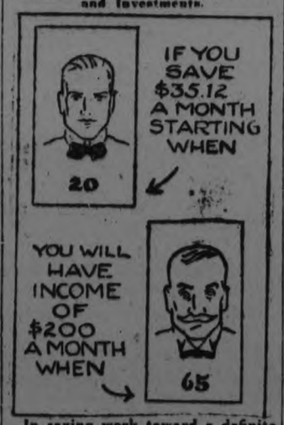
STEFANI PRAISED FOR RISE ITALIAN CONSOLS

ROME, May 17. — (Canadian Press.)—Great enthusiasm and excitement greeted the rise above par of Italian consols on the Rome Stock Exchange yesterday. The occasion was marked by enthusiastic cheering and cries of "Viva Italia, Viva De Stefani." Congratulatory messages announcing the event were sent to Premier Mussolini and Minister of Finance Alberto De Stefani. The rapid rise in consols is considered a great achievement of the Fascisti Government's financial policy and a reflection of the country's increasing confidence in the security and stability in future.

Consols went as low as 68 in 1919 and were still under 90 at the begining of the present year.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.



In saving work toward a definite goal; it makes saving easier.

For instance, if you estimate that you would like to have a monthly income of $200.00 at the age of 65 years get your banker to show you how much you would have to save monthly to have the required amount.

Starting at 20 years of age, for example, you should save $35.12 a month until you are 65. This amount saved monthly and deposited in a savings bank at 3 p.c. interest, compounded semi-annually, will amount to $40,000 by the time you are 65; $40,000 invested in good bonds at 6 p.c. interest will yield a monthly income of $200.00, and think of the comforts that $200.00 a month will buy as the shadows of life lengthen.

Grand Lodge Honours For Several Members -- A Presentation.

On Thursday evening, May 15th, about 50 members including the officers of Vimy Ridge 244, L.O.B.A., motored to Lindsay for the occasion of celebrating the 3rd anniversary of the Victoria 366, L.O.B.A.

When the Lodge was declared opened the following Provincial Grand Lodge officers were brought before the altar and given the Grand Lodge honours Sister Jean Manley, R.W.P.G., Chaplain, Sister Mima Wright, R.W.P.G. Director of Ceremonies, Bro. Geo. Porter, P.G.M. of the Black Preceptory of Ontario East. The following lodges were also represented by W. M. of Cameron, W.M. of Bobcaygeon, W.M. of Orillia.

The Peterborough officers were entertained in the meantime by conduct the initiation of 10 new members into the Orange Degree and confer the Sacred Scarlet Degree upon 4 members. Vimy Ridge received great applause for the able manner they carried out the work.

On behalf of the Lindsay Lodge, W.M. Sister J. Manley was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses and maidenhair ferns. Sister Manley made suitable acknowledgment, after which the lodge closed in due form.

From there the members proceeded to the banquet hall and sat down to a very sumptuous dinner, being entertained in the meantitme by Hooper's 5-piece orchestra.

A pleasing feature of the evening was the cutting of the birthday cake by the W.M. of Vimy Ridge, Peterborough.

After ample justice had been given to the dinner the members participated in dancing and eventually a very enjoyable evening was brought to a suitable close by singing Auld Lang Syne and God Save the King.

OTTAWA AUTHORITIES HOLDING UP ITALIANS

HALIFAX, N.S., May 17.—(Canadian Press.)—Charges of gross injustice levelled at the Canadian Department of Immigration of discrimination being exercised against the Italians and other races of Southern Europe in favour of immigrants from northern countries, and demand that "In the name of fair play and friendship for defenceless strangers," four hundred Italian immigrants who have been held here under orders of immigration authorities since Tuesday night, be allowed a lawyer of their own nationality, are contained in a statement made to the Canadian Press to-day by Rev. Dr. Charles Curren, of St. Mary's Cathedral.

"I charge Canadian Immigration Department with an act of gross injustice," said Dr. Curren." I have no wish to censure the action of local authorities—they are acting only on instructions from Ottawa," Dr. Curren added.

BOBBY EBBER SENDS NICHOLS TO DISCARD

HAMILTON, May 17. Canadian Press. — Jackie Nicholls, Detroit, is added to the list of vanquished, for Bobby Ebber fought just hard enough in his ten round bout here last night to outpoint the American. Nicholls proved a hard boy to hit, and he passed along a few rude jolts during the night.

MILK A SPRING TONIC

No meal is complete without good, pure milk in some form. Serve it as delivered or cooked, you know your family is the better in health, spirits and energy for its daily help. Milk, as if by magic, brings you in winter the stored-up goodness of field and meadow—tender grasses, greens, fruits and flowers of all out-doors. In summer milk is even more to be desired, as it incorporates all the freshness and sweetness of every good growing thing which Mother Nature has provided for her animal charges.

No wonder milk is good—and good for us. As a spring tonic, a summer tonic, or a year-round tonic, it has no rivals. When we stop to think that milk is the essence of Mother Nature's bounty, we should crave it and value it accordingly.

"HEARTS AFIRE!"

By MAY CHRISTIE

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

CHAPTER LXXII.

Prudence's Chance.

"Blind!"

Prudence repeated the fateful word as though she didn't in the least take in its meaning.

Peter Armstrong . . . blind! All the light of the sun and of this lovely world shut out forever!

Those handsome, humorous, wise eyes that had smiled at her, and comforted her, and cheered her . . . never would they rest seeingly on her again!

"Peter!" She stammered out the much loved name. What matter though he was another's? What matter though her love had no return? She would have given her own eyes for his happiness, his consolation. . . .

"Come in; this way." Janet steered her into the tiny living room of Pear Tree Cottage. With a woman's sure intuition she sensed that it wasn't only shock that Prudence suffered from, but something deeper.

"The child care for him! If only he'd returned it, instead of setting his foolish heart on that callous Dale woman, what a rock of strength she'd have been to him just now!" thought Janet, the tears still on her cheeks.

Prudence stood near the window of the living room, facing Peter's nurse.

"Does—does he know yet? Did—did the oculist tell him?"

Janet shook her head.

"There wasn't any need to tell. He knew. When the bandages were taken off he was like a child gropping in the darkness. The doctor tried to buoy him up with hope, but all Peter said was: 'I understand, doctor. Strength will come to me to face what lies before me. I pray that it will come.' And the doctor was so choked with emotion, hardened though he is to painful interviews, that he couldn't say another word, but just gripped Peter's hand and got out of the room, somehow. As for me, whenever I got outside the door, I broke down, and not ashamed to admit it, for if ever there was a fine character in this world, and a brave one, it's Peter Armstrong!"

Prudence wiped her eyes.

"Is Virginia Dale here?"

"That creature? Huh! Is it likely?" The nurse shrugged expressive shoulders Her lips curled. "Her excuse has been that she's so prostrated through the shock of Peter's accident that she's been unable to leave her room at the Towers. But I met her yesterday, out walking in the evening with Traymore."

"Has—has Peter asked for her?"

"Just once. Mrs. Vansittart was calling, and he must have heard her voice out in the passage, for he inquired afterwards if Virginia had been with her. I said 'No.' He asked me to tell Virginia he would like to speak to her, but Virginia's message was that she was too ill and too upset to come."

"How could she?" Prudence breathed.

Then they both started as a call came from the invalid's room near by. "Nurse!"

"Excuse me." Janet hurried to her patient, who was lying propped up on his pillows, just as she had left him. The bandages had been replaced, and on the light of the shaded room only the clean cut mouth and chin were visible, and the thick, wavy hair above the bandages.

"Did someone come in now, nurse?" The tones were low and steady.

"Only Prudence Page." Like a mother bird fussing over her young, Janet drew the clothes more comfortably about him, fluffing up a pillow, adjusting a coverlet.

Peter started.

"Prudence Page? Has she been here before?"

"Oh, hes! Every day, and sometimes twice a day, to inquire. Those roses are from her." Janet moved a vase of blooms so that their perfume reached him. "And she isn't the only one who comes. I should think the entire village is at the door most of the time. You're a popular young man, Mr. Armstrong!" She tried to make her voice sound jocular, but a half sob caught in it, which Janet cleverly translated into a cough.

"Does she know the doctor's verdict?" he asked, very low, ignoring the latter bits of information.

"Gracious! how would I be telling her what talk takes place in a sick room? Besides, I've yet to learn that the doctor has given his verdict!" She had got control of herself now, and her manner was really bracing. "Think of all the treatments you'll be having! Aren't the bandages on again, to give those stupid eyes of yours a further rest? What more d'you want?"

Peter's slow smile would have torn any heart in twain, so full of it was of knowledge, of pathos, and of pain bravely struggled against.

"It's better to face the truth. I'll never see again. Lying here in the dark, trying to read just my life, my future, I—I've known it all along."

"Nonsense! You're morbid!" Janet clattered about the room, making a great noise to hide her own emotion. "I'm going right up to the Towers now, and get your young lady to come and cheer you up——"

Under the bandages his brows contracted. His lips twitched sensitively.

"Miss Dale won't come. She—she isn't well."

"She'll come, right enough," said Janet, grimly. "Whenever Nurse Brown comes back from her walk, I'm going to fetch her. Now, is there anything you want?"

"If I might have a cigarette?"

Janet offered him some in a silver box and allowed his fingers to grope until he found one. (It was kinder not to make him feel his helplessness too much.) Then she applied a match to the end of it, and when she saw that he was smoking she slipped quietly from the room.

"Go in and talk to him. Be bright. Be very, very hopeful," she adjured Prudence. "That Virginia Dale's conduct is a scandal, neglecting him the way she's done! Go in and show him there's a few real women left in the world."

She thrust Prudence gently into the presence of the man who had just been condemned to eternal darkness.

Next Issue: Janet and Virginia have a talk.

COMPRISED

Most phonograph makers were alarmed when radio swept into popularity, fearing it would ruin their business. A few months ago their attitude changed. Many of them are making radio parts and putting out combined phonograph-and-radio machines.

Nothing can stop progress.

The wise course is to co-operate, not oppose. There's always room for both. Years ago it looked as if the auto would displace the horse. Time proves we need both. So with politics. Both conservatives and progressives are needed, progressives as the engine to drive the car of progress ahead, conservatives to serve as brakes in rounding dangerous curves in the road.

PRIZE

Who should pay the cost of broadcasting radio programs? For the best answer to this question, a prize of $500 will be paid by American Radio Association, 50 Union Square, New York City. If you want information, write to that address. The contest closes July 20.

In England the government makes each owner of a receiving set buy a license. The money goes mostly to broadcasting. Such a law could not be generally enforced in our country, with millions of young radio fans. Its fairness is also disputable, though it's much like buying records for a phonograph.

Groups and Lines of Room Should Be Proportioned

One of the fundamental thoughts in furnishing a room is the idea of proportions.

The reason why people are attracted to the unusually tall man and the unusually short one together is because one accentuates the other and each is made all the more unusual by the proximity of the other. Both make a queer, inharmonious group.

Similarly with furniture, or any other features about the home.

Place a small Windsor chair alongside a heavy overstuffed easy chair, and there is a clash of appearances. They do not blend artistically. They make a distasteful group.

Unwelcome Feeling.

Put large heavy curtains on a small, single window, and they overbalance the window. Put a heavy, overstuffed sofa in a dainty sunroom, and the place will be nothing but sofa—opposed to the very idea of the room.

Hang a large mirror over a dainty wall table in the hall and the mirror will appear to shatter the table if it fell.

Just as pieces in a group should be proportionate, the groups themselves should harmonize as to size as well as lines and color. A heavy group at only one end of the room with all other groups light, overbalances the room and makes the entire place feel uncomfortable and uninviting.

Unconventional.

Walls, doors and windows should be proportionately divided for wainscoting, hangings or paneling. The best proportionate division for a rectangular surface, like a wall, door or window, is three-eights or five-eights from one side. Halves, thirds or quarters make the proportions look uninteresting and devoid of personality.

For instance, the tie-back on the window drapery makes the entire hanging look best when placed three-eights from the bottom of the window. A shade drawn down rather "unconventionally" during the day should be three-eighths from the top. Wainscoting along the kitchen wall should be three-eighths or five-eighths from the bottom. And so on.

All proportions tend to depart from the conventional, stereotyped half, quarter or third.

A well proportioned room depends on the adaptation of this principle for its beauty and atmosphere.

A Little of Everything

$650.00.

The income of the American people last year averaged about $650 apiece, according to the Mechanics & Metals National Bank of New York. It estimates that 70 billion dollars was the total income of the whole nation — including wages, salaries, royalties, interest on investments, etc.

On this basis, a man and wife with two children would have had an income of $... during 1923, if everything were evenly divided. That's about $217 a month.

Did your family do better or lay behind the average?

SCRAPPED.

A London court decision admits the worthlessness of 120 million dollars worth of Confederate bonds sold in England by the Southern States during the Civil War. Most of us believed that any sane man years ago realized the worthlessness of these bonds. But the British never lost hope of recovering at least part of their investment.

Later you may read about courts admitting the utter worthlessness of Russian rubles and German paper marks. Confederate bonds and money to-day are worth far more than Russian and German currency, as historical relics.

CONQUERED.

Scarlet fever and diphtheria have been conquered and eventually will be entirely eliminated, says Dr. William H. Park, a conservative physician of high standing nationally. He adds that a serum has been found that will prevent measles and check epidemics.

No battlefield victory ever was as valuable. But while one class of scientists strive to save life by conquering disease, another class burns midnight oil developing new ways to take life in war. Science simultaneously is our greatest friend and foe.

WINDFALL.

It's becoming not unusual for successful men to retire and give their businesses to their employees who helped build them up.

The latest is a large cotton brokerage house. It not only gives its business to its employees, it even will back them financially the first year. The value of a brokerage house of course is largely intangible, not representing much material investment except furniture. Value is in reputation and organization.

Well, we're progressing. Many can recall the old time employer who kept his "hired help" contentedly on the treadmill by promising to remember them in his will—and usually forgetting to.

NIGHT.

In Buffalo 104,000 adults have attended night school in the last six years. No one is ever too old to learn. In youth schooling is dreaded though not as much as formerly, due to the improved methods of interesting the pupils.

In old age men and women regret that they neglected educational opportunities in youth when knowledge is more easily acquired. Existence is an endless process of education and life is just one class in a perpetual chain.

The brain need never grow old.

SPENDTHRIFTS.

The leading governments are beginning to live within their incomes, according to a check-up by the League of Nations. It reports Uncle Sam and John Bull spending less than they take in. South Africa and Finland have decreased their deficits near the vanishing point. Italy is spending a fourth more than her revenue. France at the bottom of the list, is spending 100 francs for every 45 francs collected in taxes and other forms.

Where there is a burst of economy it is usualy due to the politicians being unable to find more to spend.

Beauty.

Too many young women neglect to give as much attention to the inside of their faces as to the outside, says Evelyn C. Schmidt of American Dental Association. She urges as much care for the teeth as for the complexion.

The two are related. Neglected teeth—unclean and decaying—poison the body and ruin the complexion. Real beauty is a by-product of health. The most alluring peach bloom of the cheek is not sold at the drug store.

Better.

Business is picking up a bit, according to latest reports from the railroads. They're handling more freight—less than a year ago, but far more than two and three years ago.

Most of the drop, compared with this time of year in 1923, is in decreased coal shipments. Grain, livestock and general merchandise are being shipped on even a bigger scale than last year. Except for coal, the roads are close to breaking all freight-handling records for this season of the year.

Iron.

Iron production in April was 4 per cent. less than in March. But the furnaces turned out 323 tons during the month for every 207 tons in April, 1922, and 360 tons in April, 1923.

Monthly production figures tell the real story, the truth. With iron output dropping only 4 per cent. in April, it's obvious that the iron and steel slump has not been nearly as bad as was rumored. A business slowdown usually occurs just before the Presidential nominating conventions. Generally trade swings back upward again after the candidates are selected.

High.

In France an aviator named Coupet breaks the world's record by flying to a height of over three and a half miles above ground with 2200 pounds of cargo aboard.

This is a lot more important than smashing speed records. Fliers in general are obsessed with a craze for speed. What is needed most, to popularize flying, is SAFETY and CARRYING CAPACITY. Enormous express and passenger traffic will be handled by planes of the future. Flying still is more of a sport than a serious business.

Workers.

Nineteen million workers of 22 countries will be represented in a demonstration against war next September 21. It'll be staged by the International Federation of Trade Unions.

Demonstrations, however, will not end war. Neither would an international strike, for machine guns would be turned on strikers and their leaders. We have democracy—except in war, when we need it most.

The quickest way to prevent war is to pass laws drafting factories and dollars. They could, of course, be "promised" that nothing would be too good for them after the war—eh, doughboys?

Adventure.

Sailor named Staden, said to have been deranged by the heat in the South Seas, jumped overboard. For a day and a night, perched on a life preserver, he fought off man-eating sharks with his pocket knife. He slashed shark after shark as they plunged at him. Then came rescue.

This is "adventure," which many of us think we yearn for.

China.

Chinese, working seven days a week, are beginning to form labor unions.

The long working hours in China are due to poverty. And that poverty is chiefly the result of cutting down China's forests, as we're now destroying ours in America. With forests gone, the rich top-soil washes away to the sea and the cost of housing impoverishingly high.

Then making a living becomes increasingly difficult.

Foreign-Born.

The 10 largest American cities have a combined population of more than 15 millions. Of these, nearly four millions are foreign-born residents of voting age.

No figures are available as to how many out of these four millions have become naturalized citizens. But a tremendous number still are outside the fold.

What's become of the Americanization movement that we heard so much about, a year or so ago? Every person living under our flag should have a voice in determining how he is to be governed. The only way to get that voice is by becoming a citizens. With national elections approaching, now is the time to impress this argument on the unnaturalized.

Sister Mary's Kitchen

For those who are specially fond of the true spring-time maple taste these recipes are suggested:

Maple Dip

Two cups maple syruy.

Boil syrup until a firm ball is formed when a few drops are tried in cold water. Serve warm over vanilla ice cream. It's delicious.

Total calories, 1300. Carbohydrate 1330.

Maple Puff Pudding

One cup milk, 1 cup thin cream, 3 eggs, 1 dessertspoon plain granulated gelatine, 4 tablespoons cold milk, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups maple syrup.

Combine milk and cream and heat over hot water. Beat yolks of eggs lightly with salt and pour the scalded milk slowly into yolks, beating constantly. Return to double boiler and cook five minutes. Stir in gelatine softened in cold milk and stir over hot water until gelatine is dissolved. Remove from fire and add maple syrup. Let cool. When beginning to set foid in the whites of the eggs beaten until stiff and dry on a platter with a wire whisk. Turn into molds and chill.

Total calories, 1880. Protein, 159; fat, 631; carbohydrate, 1090. Iron, .0051 gram.

Add one or two tablespoons of maple sirup to hard sauce.

Make the boiled icing with maple sirup next time you bake a cake. It will take two cups of sirup for one well-beaten egg. Boil the sirup just as you do a sugar and water sirup. The maple sirup will require less cooking.

And old-time "sugaring-off" makes a delightful informal spring party.

Boil the sirup to the soft ball stage. Put about three tablespoons sirup in cereal dishes, one for each guest. Let the sirup stand until cool. Provide stiff, plate silver spoons and let each guest stir his sugar. It's quite fun to see who makes the whitest, smoothest candy.

While the sirup is cooling for stirring, boil some extra sirup to the hard-crack stage and pour one or two tablespoons over bowls of chopped ice. This is "maple wax" and so good!

If you want the wax, boil more syrup for the stirring than will be needed and then the extra time required for boiling to the hard-crack stage will not be a bore. Stiff spoons are necessary for thewax.

GOOD TIMES FOR MOVIELAND

By HAROLD E. SWISHER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD, May 16.—Hollywood is out of the trenches of pessimism and peering over the horizon to greet the sunrise. The barometer of production, largely raised or lowered by Famous Players Lasky Corporation, is registering fair weather ahead. Hollywood is happy.

Vice President Jesse L. Lasky has returned to the West Coast studio from the sales department convention of the organization, held in San Francisco, bringing with him the announcement that "Paramount will launch at once the most extensive production program ever attempted in the history of the organization."

Naturally studio-land is looking up while real estate dealers, automobile salesmen and other vendors who haunt the movie colony are growing cheerful again.

Forty pictures will be released by Paramount between Aug. 1 and Feb. 1, 1925, according to Lasky's announcement. In order to supply this demand, eighteen pictures, more than have ever been attempted simultaneously before, will go into actual production during the next thirty days at the Hollywood and Long Island studios of the organization.

Only a few of the forty pictures required for the Autumn release have been made to date, Lasky said, requiring that both Paramount plants run to capacity for the next ninety days.

"We believe the next season will be the most successful in the history of motion pictures," Lasky said, announcing his program. "Therefore we are planning the most ambitious production we have ever essayed both in number and quality. The publics' taste in motion picture entertainment has been steadily rising and next Fall we shall release the most interesting pictures we have ever made.

"We are bringing to the screen a number of new personalities; a small army of writers has supplied story material; several new directors have been created in the belief they will bring fresh inspiration and new ideas to the screen; some of the greatest classics of the modern stage will reach the screen for the first time in this group. The public, always the final judge of screen entertainment, has ordered from us more and better pittures. It is our business to fill this order."

"The Covered Wagon" is one of the Paramount productions scheduled for Fall release. This classic has just ended a record-breaking run of 65 weeks at the Criterion Theatre, New York, but has never been exhibited over the country in regular picture theatres.

Selecting the fifteen most beautiful women in America is not an easy task, according to Professor Ernest Linnekamp, famous artist, who has been commissioned by the Analthea Art Studios of Switzerland to paint the fifteen beauties of the United States.

Professor Linnekamp has been spending several weeks in Hollywood looking over the fair picture players as prospects in the search. He has found only three whose distinctive beauty entitles them to a place in his hall of feminine fame. The are Mary Philbin, Claire Windsor and Claire de Lorez, the artist said.

Miss Philbin is the "dainty, demure type," Miss Windsor a "stately, impresive beauty,' while Miss De Lorez, a newcomer in pictureland, has "pulchritude plus personality which simply captivates," the artist declared.

Again has Elinor Glyn bestowed a chronological title upon a work of her pen. This time is is "Her Hour" an original story written especially for the screen. It will be produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the new combination, with Mrs. Glyn supervising it. The leading feminine role will be played by Aileen Pringle.

Mrs. Glyn's fondness for chronological titles is shown in "Three Weeks," "The Great Moment," "Six Days" and other works. She strayed from the title expressing time only in one, which expressed place, "Beyond the Rocks."

Paul Scardon has been engaged to direct Helen Chadwick in her first starring vehicle for Hodkinson, upon which work will start this month. Miss Chadwick experienced difficulty in obtaining the kind of a story she wanted for her first production, and read scores of books during the past few weeks. Her selection has not yet been announced.

GERMANY LOSES MANPOWER BY EXTENDED EMIGRATION

BERLIN, May 13.—Germany had six percent less population at the beginning of 1924 than it had at the beginning of 1913, according to the estimates of the German statistical office. The total population is now placed at 63,500,000.

An analysis of the figures shows the decrease in man power has been more marked than the general decline. There are now seven percent fewer men between the ages of 15 and 65, and the number of able-bodied men between 20 and 45 has been dropped 13 percent. Also the proportion of children under ten has dropped from 33 percent to 18 percent.

Emigration is making violent reductions in population of the very character that Germany needs for reconstruction. Discussing the migration of the sturdiest of Germany's young farmers, industrial workers, tradesmen and technicians, Dr. Berger, counsellor to the cabinet on subjects relating to emigration, says Germany's ability to reconstruct itself speedily is being undermined by the flight to the new world.

While he does not advocate the restriction of emigration, he suggests that the social condition of the working class must be raised so as to make it more inviting for the workers to remain in Germany.

STINNES' HOBBY WAS BOOKS.

BERLIN, May 17.—(Associated Press).—The late Hugo Stinnes had but one hobby outside of his devotion to his broadly scattered business interests. That was the collection of rare books.

Mr. Stinnes was especially fond of having "number one" in limited and luxurious editions of famous works, and would pay almost any price for such a volume. He left a rare collection of books of this character which now fals to his oldest son, Dr. Sdmund Stinnes, who is also a book-lover.

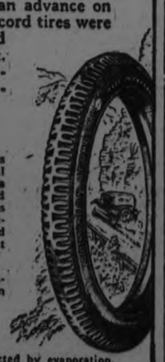
Two improvements in Dominion Cord Tires

DOMINION TIRES—always standard of tire excellence and tire values in Canada—now feature two exclusive improvements which are as great an advance on the old methods of building cord tires as cord tires were over fabric tires. They add nothing to your tire cost. They give you perfect uniformity of wear—extra mileage at no extra cost.

Web Cords

The Web Cord process unites the cords by saturating them in latex, the natural sap of the rubber tree, thus forming a web of pure rubber, insulating each cord from the other, eliminating cross threads which cause internal friction and destructive heat. Web Cords lie flat and even and take all strains with perfect uniformity.

The Web Cord process is used exclusively in Canada for building Dominion Royal Cord and U-cord Tires.



Sprayed Rubber

Sprayed Rubber is the natural, pure rubber extracted by evaporation, direct from the latex or rubber tree sap, thus eliminating the use of smoke, coagulating acids or other processes used in preserving crude rubber.

By the Sprayed Rubber process, the finest and purest rubber and therefore the strongest and most elastic, is obtained. Sprayed Rubber is used exclusively in Canada for the walls and treads of Dominion Royal Cord and U-cord Tires.

Modern Traffic Requirements are Best Met by CONCRETE

FOR traffic as we know it today, the roads of our ancestors are totally inadequate. This is being brought home to us more clearly, as automotive transport increases and our old-time roads break down under the strain of it.

A pavement, to meet the exacting requirements of present-day conditions, must provide a smooth surface, yet gritty enough to give firm footing to steel-shod horses and rubber-shod cars.

The even, gritty surface of Concrete meets these conditions. Requiring but slight "crown" for perfect drainage, Concrete enables traffic to move rapidly, easily and safely.

Biggest of all the factors in the choice of Concrete is its permanence—its resistance to the pounding strains of all kinds of vehicles. Concrete costs so little to maintain that the taxpayer's burden is lightened, while his use of the roads is increased.

The growing demand from all parts of Canada to "pave the highways" is the direct result of the experience of those communities that have turned to Concrete as the modern highway material.

It's the little they cost to maintain that makes Concrete Pavements Economical

SERVICES AT THE CATHEDRAL

The men came punctually to church last evening, and in their usual large numbers listened to a very helpful and pious instruction. Father Crowe, in his unique energetic manner, urged upon all his hearers the great necessity of devotion to our Lord in the most blessed sacrament. "Jesus answered, if thou didst know the gift of God and Who He is that saith to thee: 'Give Me to drink.'"

Here, on the altar, is the self-same Jesus Christ, hidden under the veil of the sacramental species. He is always pleading for our love and devotion. We do believe in this great mystery of love, for we have the words of Christ Himself in the sixth chapter of the Gospel of St. John, when He promised to institute the Blessed Eucharist. And the very act of institution is recorded later on in the Gospels. Is our faith as lively as it should be? Does it manifest itself sufficiently in external acts? I fear not.

We believe, we admire, and we feel a sense of peace and security when we contemplate God's unfathomable love in this great miracle of His love. But do we bestir ourselves with energy to return love for love?

Our indifference may sometimes be a stumbling block to others not of our faith. The world is more critical of our actions than of our belief. "By their fruits you shall know them." Hence it is that careless Catholics are often a source of scandal for they are always more conspicuous than the much larger number of devout souls.

If we would constantly strive to realize God's infinite love for us we should grow daily stronger in His friendship. We should become constant, generous, loyal and self-sacrificing in His service. If an earthly king announced that he would visit us, with what feverish energy we would prepare for his coming. The King of kings dwells daily in our tabernacle, and what is the attitude of many of his children toward Him? They are often cold and neglectful, because poor, human nature needs constant urging, and because a deceitful world is seductive and alluring. Jesus Christ, always constant, loyal and loving toward the children of men, comes to us through Bethlehem, Egypt, Nazareth, Jerusalem and Calvary, to take up His abode with us. He dwelt among your forefathers, He will dwell among your children's children to the end of time. He never for a moment, in the light of day or in the depth of night, forgets us. At the very time of death He journeys with the priest of God to the humblest home. He there strengthens and beautifies the soul in its final journey to eternity.

Look out upon the world to-day with all its sin, its ingratitude, nay, its contempt for God and its industry in the service of satan. What stays the avenging hand of God? It is stayed, and the world is spared only because of the Holy sacrifice of the Mass which is offered up from the rising of the sun to the going down thereof. Jesus Christ still pleads daily from our altars as He did from the Cross on Calvary: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Strive, then, to attend Mass on week mornings. I know you all attend on Sundays and holidays, but do more than that as a testimony of your loyalty and love. Sanctify the Sunday Set an example in this regard. The Sunday is desecrated to-day. It is fast becoming a day of sinful pleasure. Modern inventions have multiplied the occasions of sin.

Come frequently to Holy Communion. Receive the living bread that came down from heaven for the life of the world. "My flesh is meat indeed, and My blood is drink indeed. And he that eateth My flesh and drinketh My blood abideth in Me and I in him; and I will raise him up on the last day." The saints and martyrs strengthened themselves daily by partaking of the Eucharistic banquet; and this is why they were loyal and constant, even to a degree that they could cheerfully lay down their lives in God's service. Fortified by Holy Communion the missionary priests years ago went among the savage tribes of this fair land. They had no financial help, nor did they feel the need of it.

Oh, my dear men, in these days of multitudinous temptations and distraction, seek some method in your work of salvation. Receive Holy Communion at least once a month.

Above all, be devoted to our Lord in the Blessed Sacrament. There seems to be a general indefinite idea in the minds of men that devotion belongs only to women; that it consists in sentiment and emotion. Nothing can be further from fact.

Grasp this truth and make it your own; cling to it. Devotion is primarily an act of the intellect and will—to know your duty and to perform it. Look, for example, to the good husband who toils day in and day out and turns over his earnings to support his large family of small children. He is often tired, unwell and discouraged, but his sense of devotion overcomes his sentiment and emotion. He denies himself the legitimate pleasures of this world to make his home happy.

Take the example of the young soldier standing-to in muddy trenches at the dead of night. His sentiment and emotions carry him away over thousands of miles of land and water to his home, where dwell his loving father ,his kind mother, and his dear younger brothers and sisters. Were he to follow the impulse of emotion he would at once take the shortest road home. But duty calls him. At the word of command he leaps over the parapet and gives up his life in devotion to his country's cause. Be then faithful, devoted soldiers of Jesus Christ!

At the conclusion of the instruction the whole congregation, following Father Crowe, made a solemn act of atonement and reparation to Jesus in the Blessed Sacrament. The service then closed with benediction.

CANADA SHOWS FOWL IN SPAIN

The Fowl Were Not Shown in Competition But Displayed Essentially to Demonstrate What Canada Can Do.

MONTREAL, May 17.—(Canadian Press).—Thirty-five Canadian fowls at the world congress, and the pick of the Dominion, were carried 5,000 miles to Spain by the C. N. Express.

At the World's Poultry Congress held at Barcelona, Spain, and which closes to-day, the thirty-five birds, carefully selected from all over the Dominion by F. C. Elford, Dominion poultry husbandman, by whom they have been accompanied to Europe, have aroused widespread admiration. The fowls have not been shown in competition, but were displayed essentially to demonstrate what Canada can do in this branch of husbandry.

The representation of the Dominion at this important congress has been due to the initiative of the poultry exhibitors of Canada, who decided among themselves to be represented at Barcelona in a sufficiently impressive manner to arrest attention. All the leading poultry raisers of the country have contributed to the display which may be said to be country-wide in character, and to comprise the finest array of birds which the Dominion has ever exhibited overseas. The following are represented:

The Experimental Farm, Ottawa, and Agassiz, B. C., with Barred Rock and White Leghorn breeds; the University of British Columbia, Barred Rocks and White Leghorns. In the R. D. B. class are F. G. Delamere, Stratford, Ont., White Leghorns; A. M. Hendricks, Hanover, Ont., White Leghorns; Norfolk Speciality Farms, St. Williams, Ont., White Leghorns; J. W. Clark, Gainsville, Ont., Barred Rocks; R. J. Penhell, Port Dover, Ont., White Leghorns. The foregoing are all registered birds.

The standard bred class is represented by the Hon. J. S. Martin, Port Dover, Ont., White Wyandottes; Agricultural College, Quebec, Chandreier, Ferguson and Hunter, Smith's Falls, Ont., White Leghorns; the Barred Plymouth Rock Club, Toronto, Barred Rocks, contributed by Dr. J. A. Lambertue, Eganville, Ont., H. Hall, Trafalgar, and Go-Pe-Haw Poultry of Toronto.

The assembly at Ottawa was supervised by F. C. Elford, who completed arrangements with the Canadian National Express for their transportation right through to Spain. The movement of the birds was a sterling feat in itself, inasmuch as they had to be carefully packed and special facilities completed for touring them en route to ensure their arrival in first-class condition. The feathered passengers were routed from Ottawa to Halifax, where they were taken on board the White Star liner "Doric" for Liverpool. Reaching the English port the birds were immediately transferred to the boat train for London, then despatched across the Channel to Havre, by way of Southampton. At the French port they were comfortably accommodated for the last time in the train to complete their journey to Barcelona, where they were met by Ernest Rose, of the Dominion Livestock Board, none the worse from their 5,000-mile journey with its five intermediate trans-shipments.

TORONTO HAS A RADIO STATION

Sir Henry Thornton Wea Unable to be Pressnt Last Night But States That He Will Talk in Near Future.

MONTREAL, May 17.—(Canadian Press).— Canadian National broadcasting from Station CFCA, Toronto, which is to be featured everw Friday evening, was inaugurated last night, by the President of the Canadian National Railways, Sir Henry W. Thornton K.B.E. with the following message

"I regret that I am unable to be in Toronto personally to-night to speak to you for a few minutes on the occasion of our first radio broad cast from a Toronto station. I promise you, however, that on the first opportunity I will visit Toronto and talk to you from our radio station there.

"At this time I would like to send you this message. Splendid reports have come to me of the fine efforts you are all putting forth on the central region. This is good. Keep it up. Though I cannot hope to meet you all personally, I want you to know I am deeply appreciative of the loyalty you are showing to the company and of the co-operative effort being made by all members of all departments. You have every reason to be proud of your company. Continue to cultivate that pride in your work in yourselves and you will be doing a great deal to insure the success of the Canadian Naitonal Railways, of whose future all of us have the right to be confident.

"Do not take seriously the campaign of villification with respect to certain of our officers and employees which is being industriously promoted in certain quarters. You may rest assured that although no improper acts will be tolerated on the part of any one in the service, the administration will be equally zealous in protecting the good name of its officers and employees whose only fault may have been that they have faithfully fulfilled their duties irrespective of attempted pressure.

Certain interests are determined to prevent the ultimate success of the peoples railway. By constantly stirring up turmoil and bringing malicious charges they hope to discourage the administration, the officers and the employees, but we are not built that way. We are not hunting trouble. But, on the other hand, we do not intend to run from it. I repeat to you what I have said on many other occasions—no railway company was ever blest with more efficient, honest and loyal set of officers and employees than those who are in the service of the Canadian National Railways, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. We all take the greatest pride in the enterprise and we are going to stick to it and also stick together.

"The heavy passenger season is beginning now. I ask those whose daily works brings them in contact with the travelling public to show every consideration and courtesy towards all patrons of our service.

A company is often judged by the actions of the men and women in its employ and it is your duty and mine to see that the name of the Canadian National Railways ranks first on this continent for service and courtesy.

"May I repeat again that the many splendid reports which have come to me of your work on the central region, have been attested to by what I have personally observed and that not only are your efforts appreciated by myself, but by all the officers and employees of the other regions who are fighting shoulder to shoulder with you to make the Canadian National Railways a system which all citizens of the Dominion may point with justifiable pride.

POLITICS HAS NO RULE OF AN EIGHT HOUR DAY

IMMIGRANTS ARE MORE PLENTIFUL

Although There Has Been a Large Number Land in Canada Already There is Room For More.

CALGARY, May 17 (Canadian Press). — "While it is true that more people are entering Canada than during the same period of last year, it is still necessary that we should still increase the numbers, especially in these cases where definite arrangements to place the settlers have been made by one of the several agencies engaged in the work of locating prospective immigrants," remarked E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who arrived in Calgary at noon yesterday in continuing his inspection trip to the Coast.

Generally speaking, the reports indicated that the soil conditions were excellent for the time of the year, and there was great confidence and optimism in the three Prairie Provinces.

In reply to a question Mr. Beatty said that the only extensions contemplated in Alberta, of any consequence, were these connected with branch line construction.

Referring to the Western route, Mr. Beatty said that was becoming increasingly important, and would, no doubt, be taken greater advantage from Alberta and Western Saskatchewan if, as would appear to be the case, ocean tonnage was readily available.

Last year's grain crop, he said, was conspicuous for its size and the expedition with which it was handled.

It was a matter of great gratification to the o cers of the Canadian Pacific Railway that they were able to contribute their share in that service in a manner which was satisfactory to the shippers of Alberta. The reason, of course, was that the company was equipped and prepared to take care of a heavy movement and the work was grappled with enthusiasm and intensive effort by all these having to do with their transportation departments.

CAMPBELLFORD HAS A ROLLER

Mr. Redden Makes Heavy Roller For Streets Out of an Old Mill Boiler.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 17. — To supply a long felt want, Councillor Redden has converted an old boiler which he used when he operated a sawmill some years ago, into a roller to be used on the streets of the town. The boiler was cut down to a section six feet in length, filled with cement, both ends plugged, and supplied with a shaft three inches in diameter. The frame is of heavy oak scantling, and the entire weight of the contrivance is six and a half tons. The cost is estimated at $150, and Councillor Redden will allow the town the use of the roller free of charge, if his colleagues in the council care to use it for the improvement of the streets.

Councillor Redden believes that Campbellford will not be in a financial position to undertake the paving of the streets for ten or twelve years. In the meantime he contends that the leading thoroughfares should be surfaced with crushed stone and then rolled. To give a practical demonstration of his idea he has laid crushed stone for a block on Queen street, near his home and for the first time tested his new roller last evening.

It required two teams of heavy horses to pull the roller, the difficulty being to get the ponderous affair into motion. Another hard matter is to turn the roller as it is in one solid piece. There is no doubt however, that it achieves the purpose for which it was built and levels the crushed stone, making a good roadway.

The test came to an abrupt conclusion when in attempting to make a turn the driver backed the roller into the gutter. In the attempt to get it into the middle of the street again the four-horse double tree was broken, and the work for the day was suspended. A large crowd of citizens witnessed the trial.

SOVIET JAILS 2 FOR REPORT TO A. R.

MINSK, Russia, May 17.—Mme. Roumyanzeva, a former estate owner, and N. Katzaouroff, an agricultural specialist, formerly employed by the American Relief Administration, were sentenced to five years' imprisonment, respectively, for alleged espionage in furnishing a secret report to the organization regarding the situation in the White Russian Republic.

AUSTRALIANS' FLIGHT.

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 17 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuters). —Lieutenant Goble, who is on a tour round Australia on a mission for the Naval Defence Department, has arrived at Ceduna, South Australia, after crossing the great Australian Bight, which is the most dangerous stage of the flight.

His last jump covered 650 miles, and was travelled in 5 1-2 hours.

To Canada Life Policyholders

Each year the Canada Life sets aside a special month for making personal calls upon policyholders where that is possible.

This is done in order to give all Canada Life policyholders the best and most up-to-date service possible in connection with the life insurance they already possess.

Services We Offer You

There are many forms of service which may be the means of increasing the value of your life insurance protection:

1. Your Canada Life policies may require to be changed to suit new conditions.

2. You may wish to arrange to have your life insurance paid as a monthly income.

3. You may want advice regarding the proper appointment of a beneficiary, or it may be necessary to change the present beneficiary.

4. You may wish to know how your insurance can be paid to your beneficiary in quarterly, half-yearly or yearly instalments, instead of a lump sum.

There are many forms of service in addition to these which we shall be glad to explain.

How to Secure Service

We are anxious to give service to all policyholders and shall make it a point to give particular attention to requests by mail.

The coupon below is a convenient way to get in touch with the Canada Life Head Office for this purpose.

Send for Free Booklet

As a Canada Life policyholder you are entitled not only to the service suggested above, but our Booklet,—"How To Keep Well" is yours for the asking.

MRS. LLOYD WOOD'S OMEMEE RECITAL

Former Peterboro Organist Assisted By Mrs. Reesor of Lindsay, Delighted Village Audience.

OMEMEE, May 17.—The council met in the council room on Monday evening. Members were all present excepting the reeve, who, through illness, was unable to attend. Councillor Southworth took his place.

Moved by J. Magee, seconded by Thos. Newman, that the following accounts be paid: Wm. Magee, cleaning streets, $10.80; W. Ingram, cleaning streets, J. Chittick, cleaning streets, $6.90; Walter Magee, drawing gravel, etc., $113.55; W. Mitchell, repairing fire engine, $2.50; street lighting for April, $72.34; Coronation Hall, March and April, $10.59.

Moved by Jas. Magee, seconded by W. Magee, that M. D. Earle, who was present, be heard, who gave prices on roofing material for Coronation Hall.

Miss A. Stephenson was present, and complained of street called Church, being used by parties for rubbish, and wished that said street be opened up for traffic. Moved by T. Newman, seconded by L. Southworth, that Jas. Magee and W. Magee be a committee to look after this street and see what should be done.

Moved by T. Newman, seconded by Jas. Magee, that W. R. Mitchell be given the contract for roofing Coronation Hall and furnish all material.

Moved by T. Newman, seconded by W. Magee, that in compliance with the request of R. J. Grandy, this council does hereby consent pursuant to the town planning act to the registration of certain conveyances.

Through the kindness and instrumentality of Mrs. R. J. Mulligan, of Lindsay, the citizens of Omemee were privileged to enjoy an organ recital in the Omemee Methodist Church on Wednesday evening, given by Mrs. W. Lloyd Wood. Owing to inclement weather, many from a distance who had looked forward to the rare opportunity of hearing the talented musicians, were keenly disappointed at not being able to attend. However, there was a fair audience, and much praise is due Mrs. Wood and her assistant, Mrs. W. R. Reesor, of Lindsay, soprano soloist, for the splendid programme contributed.

At the close of the recital the musicians, on behalf of the Ladies' Aid, were presented with beautiful bouquets of tulips from Misses Jane Earle and Madeline Gray, after which they and other Lindsay visitors were invited to the Sunday school room where cake and ice cream awaited them.

Those from Lindsay who attended the recital on Wednesday evening were Mrs. (Rev.) Barrouclough, Mrs. (Rev.) Montier, Mrs. Mulligan, Miss R. MaCrea, and Messrs. W. R. Reesor and W. Lloyd Wood.

Mr. D. McBride, of Lindsay, was in town on business, Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Howden and daughter, Miss Lottie, were visitors to Peterborough on Tuesday.

Holiday Celebration

Everyone is boosting the celebration in Omemee on Saturday, May 24, and the event promises to be the best ever. The several committees are working hard. The Salvation Army band of Lindsay has been engaged and along with an attractive programme of sports and ball games, a memorial service will be held in the afternoon, when the Rev. Canon Marsh, of Lindsay, will assist in dedicating a small grove of trees in memory of the fallen heroes of the world war.

All the ladies of the town and those interested in the O.A.A. are asked to donate two pies towards the booths as in previous years.

A splendid programme is being prepared by local talent, to be given in Corontaion Hall in the evening.

Largest radio station in Canada is said to be CKCH, of the Canadian National Railways, at Ottawa.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

MILLBROOK, May 17.—Recent activities in connection with J. B. Hall Lodge, A. F. & A. M., No. 145, recall the fact that the first Masonic Lodge in Millbrook met in an upstairs room in Dr. Might's home, one of the oldest houses in the village, built before incorporation (1880), and for many years known as the Carveth property, now owned and occupied by Mr. W. Thorne, of Thorne & Yake, proprietors of the local meat market.

Dr. H. A. Turner has a picture of what is now King Street, in the early days of village history, Dr. Might's house, then with no other buildings in its immediate vicinity, standing out prominently. The "pavement" consisted of a board walk, two planks wide, laid lengthwise. The straggling roadway was also in its primitive stage, several tree stumps adorning it at intervals. The only other conspicuous object is a rather out of repair rail fence along the south side of the street, the sidewalk being laid on the north side only.

Another building linking early days with the present is the "Commercial House" at the station. It is fifty-six years since the late Mark Raper, who came from England to Canada in his twenty-fourth year, moved to Millbrook from Bethany and opened the "Raper House," across from the G. T. R. depot.

The original frame building was burned about forty-nine years ago, a defective kitchen chimney causing the blaze, as far as could be learned at the time. The chimney was accustomed to smoke when the wind was in a certain direction, as happened on the day of the fire, so the family were not concerned until the flames had gained such headway between the walls that they could not be controlled, especially as a "bucket brigade" was all the fire equipment the placed boasted at that period.

The fire occurred at noon on a July day while Mr. Raper, Sr., was absent in Bethany. His son George, however, a commercial traveller dining that day at the inn, the late James Cochrane, then G.T.R. station agent here, who boarded at the hotel, and others did all in their power to stay the flames, but their efforts proved vain. Very little of the unstairs furniture was saved, though most of the effects downstairs were removed to a place of safety. An empty building on the lot where Mr. J. Pitt's house now stands, gave opportunity for carrying on the business temporarily, but work was begun on the new brick structure, now the "Commercial House," as soon as possible, and by Christmas it was ready for occupation.

Masons from Peterboro laid the foundation, Wilcox Bros., then of Millbrook, were the bricklayers, and the late William Bateson did the carpenter work.

The late Mr. Raper passed away over thirty years ago, his son, Alfred, succeeding him as proprietor for a short time, selling out to J. Sothern, who in turn disposed of it to Mr. Emmerson, his death occurring while a resident of Millbrook.

His successor was the late B. Page, and upon his decision to retire from public business and reside in a smaller house, the present owner, Mr. J. W. Hutchison, became the purchaser and occupant.

Mr. Wilbert Belch and his mother have moved to the village and are living in the house at the west-end which they recently purchased from the estate of the late Mr. Noble Stewart.

Rev. S. T. Tucker will take up the question of Church Union on Sunday morning. This will be the first occasion when the subject has been publicly presented to a congregation here.

Mr. Howard Lunn has moved to the farm on the hill west of the village lately occupied by Mr. Geo. Brown. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are now residing in the house next Miss E. Hunter's residence, which has just been vacated by Mr. Lunn and family.

PLAN ESCALATORS FOR FISH.

Columbia River Dam Builders Will Help Ladder-Shy Salmon to Climb.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 17.—Escalators for ladder-shy fish were proposed here yesterday to solve the problem of building a ninety-foot dam in the Columbia River $100,000,000 power project without blocking the peregrinations of the salmon in their native habitat.

Models will be erected to determine whether the fish will consent to being "escalated" or whether they prefer to climb a ladder or be shot through a turbine elevator. The salmon annually go up the river to spawn and then return to deep water.

Political Will Picks Successor

PEKING, May 17.— In accordance with the Chinese custom, Dr. Sun-Yat-Sen, South China Government President, whose death at Canton was announced Thursday, is reported to have left a political will which is likely to have an important bearing on the future of his constitutional party.

It is believed Dr. Sun probably chose as his successor either C. C. Wu, son of the late Wu Ting-Fang, former Minister to Washington, and one of the most influential members of the party, or Tang Shao-Yi.

The latter, who in 1922 was offered the Premiership, resides in Shanghai and lately has been out of sympathy with Sun's policies.

PASS ELEVEN BILLS RAILWAY EXTENSION

Amendments Introduced by Sir Henry Drayton Were Lost Every Time.

OTTAWA, May 17.— (Canadian Press.) — Amendments from the Conservative Opposition calling on the Government to place amounts equired for branch line construction in the estimates met with defeat in the House of Commons last night. A bill providing for the construction of an extension from Grande Fresniere to Rinfret Junction was passing through the committee stage when the first amendment was moved by Sir Henry Drayton. Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, objected to the amendment, saying that the votes for railway construction had hitherto gone through in the form of a bill. The amendment was lost on a standing vote of 65 to 11 and the bill was reported and given a third reading.

When the next bill, providing for construction of branch line in the Kamloops-Kelownia division, came before the committee, Sir Henry moved a similar amendment, agreeing however, to its being declared "lost on division." As bill after bill came before the committee, the formality of calling the amendment and declaring it lost was gone through.

In all eleven bills passed through the committee and received the third reading.

A Severe Attack Of Heart Trouble Was Relieved By MILBURN'S Heart and Nerve Pills

Mr. S. E. Barnes, Athens, Ont., writes:—"Four years ago I had a very severe attack of heart trouble. I consulted my doctor; he treated me for some time, but I only seemed to be getting worse. I finally went to our druggist and purchased three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and derived immediate relief from their use, and I can truthfully say they are a wonderful medicine. I always keep a box on hand, and if I feel out of sorts I take a few pills and feel all right again."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

KLAN KLEAGLE FINED, PAYS $400 FOR RAID.

Cortland County Chief Accepts Alternative to Going to Jail For 400 Days.

CORTLAND, N.Y., May 17. — A new chapter was added to the history of the Ku Klux Klan in New York State here, when Robert L. Rice, Ja., acknowledged Kleagle of the Cortland County section of the Klan, paid a fine of $400 after he had admitted being leader of a group of twenty Klansmen who raided a hotel in Marathon, N.Y., south of here, on April 10.

Payment of such a fine by a Klan officer of this rank is believed to be without precedent in the State, and it was with obvious reluctance that Rice turned over the money. The alternative was 400 days in jail. The case was brought up before Supreme Court Justice Leon C. Rhodes.

Charges against Rice grew out of the raid of April 10, when men dressed in the customary costume of the Ku Klux Klan entered the Central Hotel at Marathon and ransacked the bar. A number of bottles taken from it were broken in the road outside the establishment. Soon after the raid complaints were made by the Cortland post of the American Legion that members of the Legion had been held up by Klansmen while the raid was taking place, and Rice's arrest followed.

THIRTY MILLION VOTES IN GERMAN ELECTIONS

BERLIN, May 17.— (Canadian Press.)—Final figures in the Reichstag elections held in Germany were given out yesterday showing that nearly thirty million votes were cast for 472 deputies. Eleven parties will be represented in the new Reichstag. More than eight hundred thousand votes were wasted by what are called the eleven "mushroom" parties. Vorwaerts claims that these votes weakened the showing of the Left, especially Socialists.

OVERLAND BLUE BIRD CREATES SENSATION

The big new Overland New Bird recently announced by Willys-Overland as Canada's lowest priced car (with genuine balloon cord tires and disc wheel standard) has created widespread interest.

So many extra features are incorporated in this new Blue Bird without extra cost that it more than lives up to the claims made for it as an outstanding automobile at a remarkably low price.

Genuine balloon cord tires—cushions of air—give you something wonderfully new in riding comfort and the utmost in non-skid tire safety. Five trim looking disc wheels. Radiator, head lamp rims, windshield stanchions, scuff plates and outside door handles all heavily nickel-plated.

The big roomy body in rich blue with upholstery to match—fenders, top and running gear in jet black—all set off and brightened with the nickel trimmings, makes a brilliant picture. A car that is at once different, smart and beautiful.

Columbus Was Late by a Thousand Years When He 'Found' America Says Canadian Who Declares West Coast Was "Ireland"

MONTREAL, May 17.—(Canadian Press.)—That there were Irish in New York before Columbus ever saw the western land, and that about the year 1,000 all of the coast of America from Nova Scotia down to Florida, was known as "Ireland, the Great," was the statement made here last night at a meeting of the Antiquarian and Numismatic Society by Rev. Father Devine, well-known Canadian antiquarian. Father Devine said there were maps in Europe recently reproduced which show this continent prior to 1492, while records in the Vatican indicate that there were bishops, churches and nunneries in Greenland before the time of Columbus.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR CENSURED FOR SPEECH

Said That He Suggested Reversal of American Policy With Russia.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(Canadian Press).—An all-American conference held here yesterday condemned Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador, for his speech at Cleveland, Ohio, on the sixth. A resolution first adopted in the morning, assailed the Ambassador of a friendly foreign Power for taking an unprecedented and unwarranted advantage of his position "to plainly suggest that America reverse her Russian policy."

Later it was moved to reconsider the resolution, whereupon a debate ensued in which it was contended that the Ambassador's remarks at Cleveland might have been misinterpreted, and also that even if there was no mistake on that score, the conference should not interfere. Proponents of the resolution quoted from the text of the address and refused to consent to the proposition that it was an improper subject for action.

The same resolution contained a denunciation of the abandonment of the Russian hearing by the Senate sub-committee, charged with making that investigation.

PRESENTATION TO MYRTLE THURSTON

Dunsford Girl Moving to Kerrobert, Sask., Receives a Remembrance From Choir.

DUNSFORD, May 17.—On Wednesday evening, May 14, an address and presentation was tendered to Miss Myrtle Thurston, who is going West to make her future home. The following address was read by Mr. Albert Thurston, and the presentation was made by Mrs. Theodore Greer.

Miss Myrtle Thurston,

We are taking the privilege, which this happy gathering affords, to wish you "bon voyage" and much happiness in your new home.

By your kindly and cheerful disposition you have endeared yourself to us all.

You have always been such a splendid and willing worker in our choir and in all departments of our church and its social activities, that we feel we could not let you go without expressing in some tangible form our feeling for you.

We would ask you to kindly accept this table linen and traveling bag as a slight token of our regard.

Our best wishes go with you. Signed on behalf of choir and church,

H. H. Thurston,
J. A. Brein,
I. M. Laidley,
Albert Thurston.

Miss Thurston, although taken by surprise, thanked the people for their kindness in the past, and gave them all a cordial invitation to her home whenever they were West. Miss Thurston is going to make her home in Kerrobert, Sask. After a few words from a large number of the congregation, the evening was spent in music and games, all of which was enjoyed by all.

SCHOONER AGROUND.

REEDSPORT, Oregon, May 17 (Canadian Press). — The Admiral Nicholson, a coastwise steamer, went aground this afternoon while going to the rescue of the G. C. Lindaeur, a lumber carrier, which is stranded on the South Spit of Umqua Bar.

Members of the coastguard crew, stringing breeches buoy lines to the stricken vessels, said that apparently both would be lost.

A gale is blowing.

Both ships were poised upon jagged barriers.

Closed Car Comforts at Open Car Cost

Advantages Exclusive to the Coach

The Coach costs but little more than open models on either Hudson or Essex. The extra cost of closed models on other cars is from $300 up, even on the low priced cars. More than 135,000 Coaches are in service. Sales exceed 3,000 every week. Everyone prefers a closed car. The coach alone is the quality car within reach of all. No wonder the Coach on Hudson and Essex is the world's largest selling six-cylinder closed car.

It gives all the utility you get in any closed car. It is the car for everyone.

Hudson and Essex are creations of the same engineers. They are built under the same patents. There is no difference in quality of material or workmanship.

The price you want to pay will decide you for Hudson or Essex. The closed car advantages of the Coach and its price surely leave no other consideration.

GIANTS DEFEAT CUBS IN BATSMAN'S FIGHT

Twenty-One Hits Off Six Chicago Pitchers Restored New York to First Place, While Boston Won From Cincinnatti.

CHICAGO, May 16.—New York defeated Chicago 16 to 12 in a wild slugging match in which home runs and extra base hitting turned the tide of battle several times. Each side trotted out pitchers to check the slugging, the Cubs using six and the Giants four in the box, one as a pinch hitter and another as a base runner.

Terry, substituting for Kelly, who was ill with a sore tooth, smashed out two successive homers with a man on base each time and Young ade one. George Grantham of the Cubs sarshed out a four-bagger with the bases filled and gave the Cubs the lead for the second time, but the visitors continued their attack and finally won. Score:

COBB AND NEGRO IN A FIST FIGHT

Detroit Manager Said He Was Insulted By Park Attendant at Philadelphia — Boston Won Twelve - Inning Game From Chicago.

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—Detroit made it two straight from Philadelphia to-day when Holloway defeated Burns in a splendid pitching battle. The score was 3 to 1. A double by Pratt in the seventh inning with two on base gave the Tigser the victory. Hauser made his sixth home run of the season.

Prior to the game Ty Cobb, manager of the Tigers, exchanged blows with a negro attendant at the park. Cobb said the negro insulted him. The men were separated before any damage was done and the attendant was disissed by the home club. Score

Wambsy Helps Win

BOSTON, May 16.—A single by Ezzell, Flagstead's bunt, and Wambaganss' single gave Boston a 4 to 3, twelve inning victory over Chicago to-day. Ferguson was ineffective only in the first inning when Chicagoscored its three runs. Five hits after two were out in the fifth gave Boston three runs. Score:

DE FOREST WINS PATENT RIGHTS

WASHINGTON, May 17.— Lee De Forest, famous radio engineer, has been established as the real inventor of the three-element radio tube as well as the feed back and regenerative receiving circuit.

This has come about by a decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, to which suits covering these patents had been brought. It nullifies the claims of Edwin H. Armstrong, Alexander Meissner, German radio expert, and Irving Langmuir of the General Electric Company.

LEAFS RALLY IN THE NINTH

Snatched Victory From Buffalo When Down Two —Wisner's Sixth Straight For Rochester.

TORONTO, May 17 (Canadian Press). — The Leafs rallied in the ninth innings, scoring three runs, and defeatd Buffalo 7 to 6 in the first game of the series, which for the greater part was played with rain falling. With two out in the winning session and two on base Frank O'Rourke drove over Dye's head, sending in two runs.

Wicky McAvoy dropped the ball into the bleachers in the sixth, counting for three of the Buffalo runs, and Spencer was robbed of a homer in the same inning when Joe Kelly reached over the railing and speared the ball with one hand.

The score:

Buffalo ..... 120003000—6 12 3
Toronto ..... 040000003—7 9 2

Beirniller, Reddy and McAvoy; Doyle, Glazer and Stanage.

MERCANTILE TO OPEN TUESDAY

Bankers and Western Clock Meet in Opening Game—Should Draw Large Crowd.

The Bankers and Western Clock hook up next Tuesday evening in the opening game of the Mercantile League, and from present indications the game should be a hummer.

Both teams are vastly improved aggregations than last season. The Bankers have added several new men to their team, including Frank Whitehouse, the good left handers of the junior ranks, and a another pitcher who is new to these parts. The latter hails from Kingston and either he or Whitehouse will be given the heaving assingment for the opening game. The Western Clock have several additions to their team and will trot out a fast aggregation next Tuesday night.

This game should draw a large number of fans, not only because it looms up as a fast game, but because it is the opening game to be played by and leagues. The fans are hungry for baseball and they should witness a great game between these two teams.

The game is scheduled for 6 o'clock and will get away on time. Harry Cobb will be the umpire-in-chief.

There is no admission charge to the Mercantile games, but the hat will be passed. Ladies will be admitted free at all times.

LEAGUE OPENING AT THE CAPITAL

Jean Dubuc's Ottawa-Hull Team Started Badly In Quebec, Ontario and Vermont League.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 16.—(Canadian Press).—Jean Dubuc's Ottawa Hull Aces lost the opening game of the Quebec, Ontario and Vermont League here this afternoon to Montreal Canadiens, 4 to 1.

Overcoming an early lead in the fifth, Canadiens scored twice and added one each in the eighth and ninth. Ottawa's lone tally came in the first inning on O'Rourke's single

Both teams were weak at batting, only one three-bagger and one two-base hit being made in the nine innings.

Canadiens' recovery in the fifth started with Crowe's wild throw to first off Carmel's bunt allowing the latter to reach second. Millier's long drive to left field which Delisle fielded slowly, scored Carmel and Millier reached second. Millier scored on Lafontaine's single.

Ottawa in the eighth with none out had two men on base but Harrington bunted to Major who doubled Crowe at second.

MONTREAL TEAM WERE WALLOPED

Royals Defeated 16 to 1 By Rutland in First Game of New Eastern League.

MONTREAL, May 16.—Rutland, Vermont, marked its break into organized baseball by defeating a 16 to 1 defeat on the local Royals in the Quebec, Ontario and Vermont League game here this afternoon.

Nineteen hits which included three home runs and a pair of smashing doubles, coupled with some loose play by the locals in the field were the factors in Royals' defeat. The circuit drives were scored by Beaudein, Huitis and Cyron, while Poeler also scored a home run, making the only tally for Royals in the seventh inning.

Carrigan, Rutland pitcher was invincible. He held the local batsmen to one hit in the first six innings and then allowed one each in the seventh and eighth. On the other hand "Lefty" Shanglin the local pitcher was in trouble in the first inning but steadied down in the second. Then in the third the parade started in earnest and reached a climax in the eighth when six runs were registered against him.

Lack of training told against the local club while the condition of the diamond after the recent rains was heavy. Score:

KNOW EVERY BALL THE PITCHER THROWS AND STUDY EVERY BATTER, COLLINS' TIPS TO SECOND BASEMEN

BY EDDIE COLLINS
World's Greatest Second Baseman

Cover the bag—I offer that slogan for every second baseman. On every ball that is hit always have in mind the play that may arise at your bag and be ready for it.

Work with your shotstop—There should be a perfect understanding between the second baseman and shortstop. For smooth play it is necessary that the shortstop and second baseman know who is to cover the bag. This can be done by the use of a simple yet obvious sign.

Get the catcher's signs—The second baseman should be familiar with the battery signs, so that he knows just what style of ball is going to be pitched. This enables him to shift on his batters so as to be in the best possible position at all times.

On an attempted steal—When the understanding between shortstop and second baseman calls for the second baseman to cover the bag and take the throw on an attempted steal he should make it a point to be at the bag in plenty of time. Leave your position as the runner starts his steal.

Speed Keynote of Double Plays

With a runner on first—I favor playing a step or two closer to second base with a runner on first than I ordinarily do. The reason of course is that the short distance so gained often makes possible the completion of a double play on a ball hit to the shortstop. Many a double play is lost by a matter of inches.

In making double plays—Speed is the key to the making of double plays. Get the ball away from you with something on it, shoot it rather than merely toss it. In order to handle a speedy throw it is necessary to be at the bag, read to pivot and throw.

Shifting your position—The stationary second baseman is a serious handicap to a team's success. Seldom do I make two plays from the same position. On the player known as a right-field hitter, shift over in the direction of first. On the dead left-field hitter play much closer to second than is customary. Study your batter, take into consideration the style ball that is to be pitched and shift accordingly.

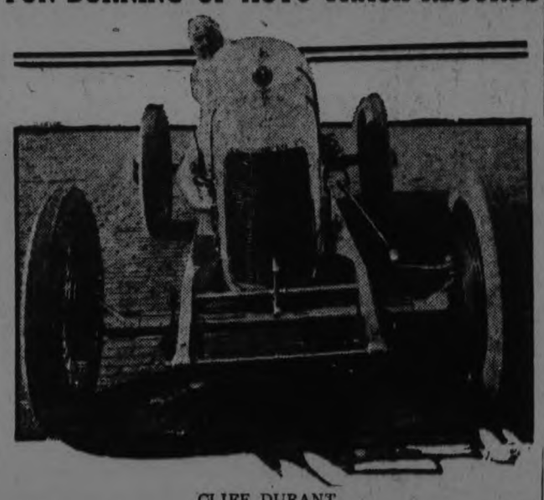
Always Conentrate on Your Game

The part the pitcher plays—Very often an infielder is made to look foolish by having a batter hit through the spot that he has vacated. This slip can often be traced back to the failure of the pitcher to deliver the ball called for. Getting crossed in signals often makes the infielder look foolish.

Concentrate—Keep your mind on the ball game. Carry on no conversation with a fellow player other than is necessary to dope out your plan of defensive strategy. Don't play the game as a mere machine. Try to figure out the possibilities of every situation and be prepared to meet them.

Don't worry—If you have a bad day try to forget it. Fretting over tough breaks hurts one's game. Figure each game, just a fractional part of the season. It doesn't always rain.

HAS MONEY TO BURN, BUT GETS MOST FUN BURNING UP AUTO TRACK RECORDS



CLIFF DURANT

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 17.—The world's most expensive racing car, a speed creation valued at $25,000, will be driven in the International 500-mile race here, May 30, by R. C. "Cliff" Durant, millionaire patron of the great gasoline sport, and son of the famous motor magnate.

During the past nine years the younger Durant has spent nearly a half illion dollars on racing cars and racing paraphernalia. He has won numerous contests on the Pacific coast, his home and stamping ground.

Last year he led the furiously paced Indianapolis race, which was won by Tommy Milton, for several laps, and when leaping along to a flying record his car broke down and he was 22 laps behind the leaders before he could get it rolling again.

Durant, like all sportsmen who drive racing cars for the thrill of speed, doesn't worry nearly so much about the finish as many other drivers. So long as his car is fast enough to keep him up in front duelling with the leaders he is satisfied.

Durant also is an aviator, plays a violin, cornet and saxaphone, is regarded as a keen business executive, and will make a tour to the South Sea Islands in his own yacht immediately after the Indianapolis race.

With Durant here in Indianapolis is a French valet, a Swedish masseur, a trainer, chauffeur for his three cars and his own cook.

He trains as vigirously for the race as a heavyweight box fighter working out for a championship bout. Each day he boxes, works out in the gym, rides horseback, on a bicycle—and practices on his musical instruments, as well as rides many practice laps on the speedway.

The United States Ordance Department is developing two bombardment machines at the big gunmaking arsenal in Watervliet, N.Y. One is a fort on wheels; the other is a gun on a self-propelled motor carriage. Each of these guns weighs 333,782 pounds while the projectives they hurl weigh 1560 pounds and the powder charge is 462 pounds. The carriage is so constructed that the gun will fire at angles of elevation from zero to 50 degrees. The extreme range is 404,000 yards, or between 22 and 23 miles. These guns are intended for coast defense, and being mounted on railway cars can be rapidly moved from point to point along the seacoast.

TRAPSHOOTERS HAD LAKEFIELD GUESTS

Messrs. Tanner, Spence and Hendren Were Visitors at Local Traps—Invitation to Oshawa.

The Gun Club held a shoot last evening at the traps, and Messrs. Tanner, Spence, and Hendren, of Lakefield, were visitors.

The shooting was pretty good, and some fair scores were turned in. Mr. Eldridge was high gun with 44, making a straight in one event.

Th boys have received an invitation from Oshawa to shoot there next Wednesday, and it is expected a small squad will go down.

The scores were:

	Broke.	Shot at.
Eldridge	44	50
Tanner	40	50
Graham	40	50
Curvin	39	50
Spence	35	50

TO-DAY'S QUOTATIONS AND OPINION AND REVIEWS OF THE MARKETS.

The action of the stock market yesterday, following the erratic movements of the previous sessions, gives evidence that the list as a whole is showing some resistance to the attacks of professional interests. This at least applies to some groups that have been under pressure of late, but on the other hand no general advance can be looked for until the uncertainties regarding legislation at Washington have been cleared up. The impression prevails despite reports received from Washington, that several votes are lacking in sustaining the presidents. Petroleum stocks were prominent issues in yesterday's trading, although gains are reported in most sections of the list.

"WOMEN WHO GIVE" BOASTS GREAT SHIPWRECK

Barbara Bedford, Robert Frazer, Renee Adoree, Frank Keenan, Joseph Dowling and Margaret Seddon play the principal roles in "Women Who Give," Reginald Barker's latest production, which comes to the Capitol Theatre on Thuesday, Friday and Saturday next.

The production is an adaptation of "Cape Cod Folks," Sarah P. McLean Greene's classic of the New England coast. It has been filmed in unusually thrilling and dramatic style providing motion picture entertainment of the very highest quality and is decidedly one of the most interesting productions to play in this city.

A wonderfully realistic shipwreck with a fishing schooner smashed to pieces on the rocks, a life and death struggle with a huge swordfish, the firing of a fisherman's cottage and tense dramatic moments too numerous to mention all, tend to make "Women Who Give" a photodrama that no lover of motion pictures will care to miss.

"Women Who Give" is a Louis B. Mayer-Metro offering, adapted by Bernard McConville and J. G. Hawks B. Mayer-Metro offering, adapted by with scenario by A. P. Younger. It was personally directed by Reginald Barker from the story by Sarah P. McLean Greene.

GREAT MYSTERY DRAMA AT CAPITOL MON., TUES., WED.

In "The Breaking Point," a new Herbert Brenon production for Paramount which comes to the Capitol on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the action begins in New York where a wealthy and dissolute millionaire is infatuated with a sccessful actress. Matts Moore, as Judson Clarke, and Nita Naldi, as the actress, Beverly Carlysle, have roles in which one becomes a fugitive from justice, the other a fugitive from public opinion. The story moves to Wyoming where the love interest between Clark and Beverly is discovered by the husband. There is a fight, a shot—and then Clark, mentally unbalanced by the sight of a dead man on the floor before him, rushes head long into a blinding Wyoming blizzard and sure death.

Ten years later he reappears upon the scene of the murder as Dr. Richard Livingstone. The secret of those ten years, the mystery of his lost memory and the real story of the murder as unfolded by the running reels of "The Breaking Point" form one of the most fascinating romances ever recorded upon a film. There is a woman in each of the two lives which Matt Moore portrays. The first is Miss Naldi, the other the charming Patsy Ruth Miller. Both have a legitimate claim to him, and both love him, and the difficulty increases, when with the recovery of hi memory, he is unconscious of both loves. George Fawcett plays a fine character in Dr. David Livingstone, the only man who knows the entire secret of the mystery which surrounds Judson Clark, alias Dick Livingstone. All the aforementioned players are featured. Theodor von Eltz is also well cast. He is a part of the mystery and holds locked up in his mind the one link which makes the chain of events comprehensive to a great many others who have been puzzled for ten years.

Others in the strong supporting cast of the picture include Cyril Ring, a reporter; Charles A. Stevenson, John Merkel, Julia Faye and Edythe Chapman.

VINCENT AND DAVEY IN "REMEMBERED?" NOVEL ACT, CAPITOL ON MONDAY

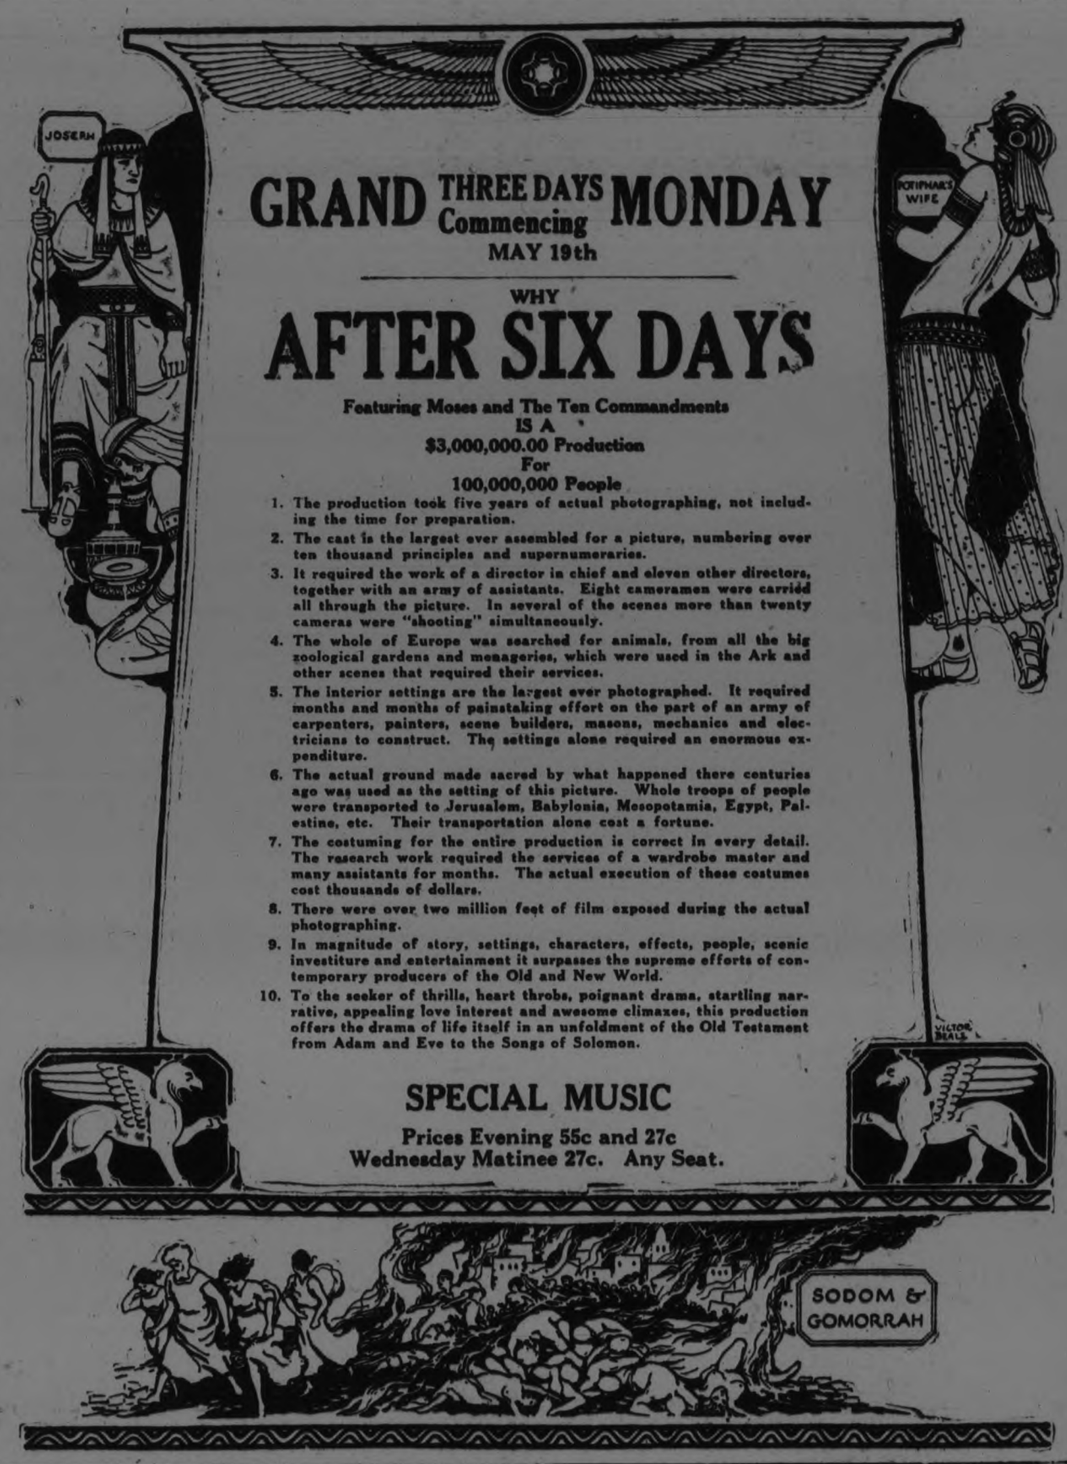
Vincent and Davey, versatile comedians, singers and dancers, will be the vaudeville attraction at the Capitol theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, when they will offer their novel act entitled "Remembered?" This offering will be found to be in line with the usually good list of vaudeville attractions presented at the Capitol during recent months.

AT THE GRAND

GRAND—C SATURDAY

"AFTER SIX DAYS"

The management of the Grand theatre has always shown a disposition to give its patrons the best that is obtainable in the motion picture market, and that it has succeeded there is not the slightest doubt. As a further evidence of getting only the best for the picture-going public of this city we cite the fact that beginning Monday they will show the most unusual and at the same time the greatest production that has yet reached the silver sheet, namely "After Six Days," featuring Moses and the Ten Commandments, in 10 reels. In speaking of this subject it brings to mind a news item we read recently, that there were more copies of the Bible sold each year in this country than all the ten "best sellers" put together, which proves conclusively that the inhabitants of the United States are not as bad as a lot of foreign lecturers would picture us. We have always felt that picture-goers are more partial to stories that have historical value, we felt too that they were more interested in the clean, honest, wholesome kind of pictures; being of this belief we felt that the big producers of motion pictures would soon realize this and would bring to the screen some portion of the Bible at some near date. We never imagined, however, that one producer would burden himself with the task of transplanting the Old Testament into one evening's screen entertainment; nevertheless this has been accomplished in such a manner that it has met with wonderful commendation wherever it has been shown. It is said that it took over five years to make this picture and we believe it; it is said too that it required a cast of over ten thousand people, and further it is said that the production cost over $3,000,000.00. In this connection, not knowing real picture values in dollars and cents due to the inflated idea soms of our well known producers have, when mentioning their pictures, we will merely take their word for it. But with a cast as suggested above and the time it required to make, we can say without any fear of contradiction that it cost as much as any picture ever made. We wish to congratulate the management of the Grand theatre for their foresight in booking "After Six Days" for we feel sure that it will prove most interesting and at the same time highly entertaining.



GRAND THREE DAYS Commencing MONDAY

MAY 19th

WHY

AFTER SIX DAYS

Featuring Moses and The Ten Commandments IS A $3,000,000.00 Production For 100,000,000 People

1. The production took five years of actual photographing, not including the time for preparation.
2. The cast is the largest ever assembled for a picture, numbering over ten thousand principles and supernumeraries.
3. It required the work of a director in chief and eleven other directors, together with an army of assistants. Eight cameramen were carried all through the picture. In several of the scenes more than twenty cameras were "shooting" simultaneously.
4. The whole of Europe was searched for animals, from all the big zoological gardens and menageries, which were used in the Ark and other scenes that required their services.
5. The interior settings are the largest ever photographed. It required months and months of painstaking effort on the part of an army of carpenters, painters, scene builders, masons, mechanics and electricians to construct. The settings alone required an enormous expenditure.
6. The actual ground made sacred by what happened there centuries ago was used as the setting of this picture. Whole troops of people were transported to Jerusalem, Babylonia, Mesopotamia, Egypt, Palestine, etc. Their transportation alone cost a fortune.
7. The costuming for the entire production is correct in every detail. The research work required the services of a wardrobe master and many assistants for months. The actual execution of these costumes cost thousands of dollars.
8. There were over two million feet of film exposed during the actual photographing.
9. In magnitude of story, settings, characters, effects, people, scenic investiture and entertainment it surpasses the supreme efforts of contemporary producers of the Old and New World.
10. To the seeker of thrills, heart throbs, poignant drama, startling narrative, appealing love interest and awesome climaxes, this production offers the drama of life itself in an unfoldment of the Old Testament from Adam and Eve to the Songs of Solomon.

CAN MODERN GIRL MAINTAIN CODE OF HONOR IN THIS JAZZ AGE? "East Side, West Side," at Royal on Monday.

Can a modern girl, reared in a sordid environment and compelled to work for a living remain faithful to her ideals in this jazz age? That is the question which is so vitally answered in the wonderfully human picture, "East Side, West Side," adapted from the play of the same name by Leighton Osmun and Henry Hull. These authors prove that a girl can maintain a high code of honor despite her environments if she has character, regardless of the fact that she may be beautiful and possess personality.

Our heroine is one of three girls who live together in a furnished room in the crowded East Side of New York. One of them takes advantage of her opportunity to intrigue a man of wealth, She has no honor and goes forth unshamed; another is an invalid who is compelled through lack of health from taking advantage of her youth and sex, but the heroine, possesses health and personality in abundance. And she works and keeps faith with her ideals. Her code is that a girl can get along admirably and win respect and friendship if she plays the game on the level.

Eileen Percy as this girl, Lory James, is shown in a role strikingly different from anything she has heretofore attemped. Kenneth Harlan, regarded by many as one of the handsomest actors on the screen, and playing opposite Miss Percy, gives an effective presentation of the young man who clings to clean ideals and fights to preserve them.

The picture unfolds an interesting plot which extracts a great deal of sympathy for its central figures.

Its characters are genuine and the story moves ahead with ever-increasing vigor and suspense. The director is Irving Cummings, whose experience and talent with the megaphone has enabled him to make a drama which will win the enthusiastic praise of every patron who sees it.

Dusky Abyssinian Visitor Wants to Fly But His Hosts Fear For His Royal Neck And in a Tantrum He Missed Substitute

PARIS, May 17.—(United Press). —Ras Taffari wants to fly, even if he is Crown Prince and Regent of Abyssinia, and he did not hide his displeasure when French officials today disuaded him from taking his first trip in an airplane. The Ethiopian ruler, who is the guest of the French Government, paid a visit to the Bourget flying field this morning and astounded the officials by demanding to be taken for a flight. The latter, perturbed, explained that it was not included in the programme, but the dusky Prince insisted. Finally M. Lagarde, the French Minister to Abyssinia, who accompanied the party, persuaded him to postpone the trip for the present. Ras Taffari was obviously dissatisfied and cut short his visit to the flying field, thereby missing his first experience with a wireless telephone which was on the programme. The field officials expected the Ethiopian to be astonished at the flight of an air squadron but the Prince, with a bored air, remarked that he had seen airplanes before, and his only interest seemed to be to fly in one. The officials, however, feared to take the responsibility in case some mischance should cause a fracture of his royal neck.

GERMAN MARKS LOCAL MARKET

Two Million Offered For a Dollar--To-day's market Prices.

The color of hope was paramount on the farmers' market this morning. There was green in most of the carts, in the early freshness of the growing things that filled them with vegetable and flower plants, and there was a good deal of green also in the crowd around the glib-tongued gentleman who dispensed German marks at an opening quotation of 50 cents for a half million, progressing to more generous treatment later with offers of two million for one dollar. Bills and silver passed from his audience to the purveyor, who prefaced his offers with a sermon on the rise and fall of currency, from the "German war of 1876 (?)" to the recent depreciation in the French franc.
Ice made its initial appearance for the season also this morning in the basket section, where it kept down the temperature of butter and cream.
Dairy butter was plentiful. There was plenty of butter and eggs on sale, the former at an opening price of 35 cents that gradually lessened to 32 cents a pound, the latter at 22 and 23 cents a dozen. Fowl was selling all the way from 24 cents a pound to 35 for the milk fed birds, and one lone turkey was 35 cents a pound.
Downstairs, near the entry, admiring crowds surrounded the two small collie pups that were offered at two dollars apiece, and there were audiences also for the small squealing porkers that could be had this morning at the low quotation of $7 a pair. Potatoes were fairly plentiful, at a general price of $2 per bag, and Ben Davis apples were 25 cents a peck. Butter beans were 25 cents a quart. A small boy was crying "water cress" at 5 cents a bunch, his supply of cress and green onions and rhubarb neatly arranged on ice, and asparagus was 15 cents a bunch.
There were plenty of plants to be bought; cabbage and lettuce, tomatoes and chives and onions at 20 cents a box, raspberry runners at 75 cents a dozen, and flowers of all sorts, including asters and iris and "cup and saucer" Canterbury Bells, at prices ranging from 2 for a quarter to 20 cents for a small box.

FLAPPER BANDIT STEALS IN JAIL

Got Away With Visitor's Pearls and Gave Them to Little Girl.

LOS ANGELES, May 17.—(Canadian Press).—Pearl Redmond, the "flapper bandit," convicted of holding up and robbing a real estate man, was sentenced to-day to serve from five years to life in San Quentin Prison, but not before she had added an alleged $5,000 pearl necklace robbery to her criminal record. Mrs. A. E. Rickenbacker, formerly prominent in Pasadena society, who spent last night in the county jail, complained she had lost a necklace when she was arraigned on the charge of defrauding an hotel. Mrs. Gladys Ellare, sister of the "flapper bandit," who had visited the jail with her little girl, telephoned the jailer to ask what disposal to make of a string of pearls the little girl had brought home with her. They were the gift of the "flapper bandit," the girl explained.

NINE PERSONS ARRESTED FOR HELPING COMMUNIST
BERLIN, May 17. United Press.—Nine persons were arrested to-day charged with assisting the flight of the communist leader, Botenhardt, search for whom was the cause of the recent raid on the premises of the Russian Soviet trade mission.
Botzenhardt was arrested yesterday in a flat occupied by members o the Russian delegation where he had been in hiding since last Saturday. He is wanted by the Pomeranian State attorney on a charge of treason.

JACK REDDICK WON FROM KID MOOSE IN MOOSE JAW
MOOSE JAW, May 17. Canadian Press. — Jark Redick, who claims the middleweight championship of Canada, added another victory to his string last night when he won the decision over Kid Moose in a 12-round bout. Reddick had a slight advantage in weight and was never in serious danger, while Moose demonstrated that he was a much better boxer than he was a fighter. No title was at stake.

In addition to these, which complied with the letter of the law, there were a few cars that partly fulfilled the requirements, some having the rear ligh and some the front lights burning, but not both. In this class there were two on Hunter, one on on Charlotte, one on Water, one on Simcoe, and one on George.

MONTREAL MAN IN A SUBWAY ACCIDENT
NEW YORK, May 17.—(Canadian Press.)—A man believed to be Leo Shaikie, of 11 Common street, Montreal, fell or jumped in front of a five-car subway train as it pulled into Parkside avenue station in Brooklyn to-day and was instantly killed.
Motorman Henry Patton did his best to stop the train, but the brakes did not bring it to a standstill until the forward truck of the first car had passed over Shaikie's body.

PASTOR, MEMORY GONE, SEES CROSS, RECOVERS
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 17. —The Rev. Fritz Hamlin, of Chicago, recovered from an attack of amnesia when he saw a revolving cross on a church in St. Louis, two months following his disappearance, after he had accepted a call to be pastor of the Swedish Baptist Church at St. Paul.
He disappeared under similar circumstances seven years ago.

A RECITAL

An interesting recital by the instrumental pupils o Miss Mary E. Wood was given on Wednesday evening of this week at the J. M. Greene Music Company's store. The piano pupils, the majority small musicians, were assisted by a vocal pupil of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, Miss Clara Allen, soprano, who sang very sweetly "Love Pipes of June." The work of the small pupils was very creditable to themselves and to the painstaking tuition of their teacher. Those taking part included: Jack Bradshaw, Mary Evans, Hazel Wagar, Gordon Dearborn, Jean Barringer, Fraser Bradshaw, Jack Clayton, Norah James, Ruby Curtis, Ina Terrace, Isabel Thompson, Percy Atkinson, Zetta Wood, Jack Sturgeon, Jennie Smart, Mary Gregson, Edna Jeffries, Edna Pilly, Carolyn Knox and Henry Dearborn. Duets were also given by Miss Wood and Henry Dearborn, Edna Jeffries, and Zetta Wood. At the conclusion of the programme, a bouquet of flowers from some of the pupils was presented to their teacher.

HIS HEADACHE SO BAD HE KNOCKED SELF OUT
RICHMOND, Va., May 17.—John Marks told the police he preferred unconsciousness to suffering a severe headache when he regained consciousness after having beaten his head with a brick. He was found in a state of coma on the street.
"The headache was too much, so I just hit myself on the head with a brick and it was all over," Marks said.
